A proposal
for building on your “passion for impactful, nonpartisan investigative journalism” by extending it to those least investigated in our country although they wield the most power:
federal judges,
who are unaccountable and abuse their power risklessly
Concrete abuses to be investigated and exposed in articles, whose impact can insert the issue into the 2020 campaign and set in motion transformative change in our system of justice[‡]

Ms. Susan Smith Richardson, CEO
The Center for Public Integrity
910 17th Street, NW, Suite 700
Washington, DC 20006
watchdog@publicintegrity.org

Dear Ms. Richardson,

Thank you for accepting my application for a subscription to Watchdog. I hereby take you up on your invitation to reply with comments to your welcoming email.

A. The harmonious nature of your work and mine warrants my proposal

1. I appreciate the commitment of your organization to “Truth. Transparency. Accountability”. Your use of “thoughtful, longform investigative journalism” to provide the content of your newsletter is likely to make you all the more receptive to my original law research and strategic thinking, which inform my writings.
2. I applaud your determination to “hold the powerful accountable and defend the rights of the vulnerable”. The latter include, not only “African American communities”, but also ‘Hispanic men and women’. The vulnerable also include the rest of We the People other than the most powerful class of officers in our country, who “betray the public trust” granted them by abusing their enormous power over the People’s property, liberty, and all the rights and duties that frame their lives and shape their identities: the judges of the Federal Judiciary.
3. This is shown in my two-volume study*[†] of judges and their judiciaries:

Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Abuse of Power:
Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting*[†]

4. I have posted excerpts of my study to my website Judicial Discipline Reform at <http://www.Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org>. The positive reaction that they have elicited in its many visitors have turned into subscribers more than 33,456 of them.¹

¹ This warrants the proposal for developing it, as described in the business plan, into a clearinghouse for complaints against judges; a research center for paying customers; and the base of a multidisciplinary academic and business venture that leads up to the creation of the institute of judicial unaccountability reporting and reform advocacy.

B. Proposal for investigating federal judges' abuse of the vulnerable by betraying their trust

5. This is a proposal for a joint investigation of the concrete forms of abuse by federal judges described briefly in the article hereunder and in detail in the corresponding articles accessible through its blue text references.
6. Some of those forms are the following:
 - a. self-enrichment by favoring the party in which judges hold shares
 - b. interception of emails and mail to suppress those of their critics
 - c. dismissal of 100% of complaints against them
 - d. running a bankruptcy fraud scheme
 - e. failure to read most briefs and disposing of them through their clerks' rubberstamping dumping forms
 - f. conducting sham hearings on judicial accountability
7. These forms of abuse involve criminal and fraudulent activity. Hence, the abuse is qualitatively different from conduct as to which reasonable and honest people can differ on whether it falls outside judges' broad margin of discretion. It is not abuse committed by a rogue judge. Rather, it is abuse that judges have coordinated among themselves and with their cronies in the judicial and legal system. Thereby they have turned it into their institutionalized modus operandi.
8. The findings of the proposed investigation can be most impactful because they can so outrage the media and the national public as to stir them up to demand of each incumbent or running candidate that they take a stand on the issue at every interview, press conference, and rally. This can insert into the 2020 campaign the issue of unaccountable judges' betrayal of trust by abusing their power, whereby the issue can become a decisive one on Election Day.
9. This is realistic: It only took a few weeks for the public outrage at the USPS delivery slowdown to become so intense as to cause both chambers of Congress to hold hearings for Postmaster General Louis DeJoy to testify about it and for the House to be recalled from its recess, hold a rare Saturday session, and vote $25 billion to shore up the postal service.

C. Publishing one or a series of my articles exposing judges' abuse

10. Because time is of the essence, I respectfully propose that while we prepare and conduct the proposed investigation(e.g., *>OL:194\$E), you publish one or a series of my articles exposing judges' abuse of power. You can review them by clicking on their corresponding blue text references. The publication of these articles can become a scoop. They can attract the attention of the Pulitzer committee.
11. These articles can enhance the reputation of The Center for Public Integrity as the outlet that launched a generalized media investigation into how the most powerful, unaccountable, and abusive officers in America run the Federal Judiciary for their convenience and gain as a racketeering enterprise.

D. A proposal attuned to the mood of We the People and opportune

12. The publication of the articles and the proposed investigation will increase your readership within a national public that is demonstrating on the streets and expressing consistently in survey after survey a MeToo! intolerance of any form of abuse. That public will be given yet another cause for shouting more loudly its self-assertive rallying cry:

Enough is enough!

We won't take any abuse by anybody anymore.

13. The proposed articles and investigation deal with “the stories that matter most” to the parties to the more than 50 million cases filed every year in all courts, to which must be added the scores of millions of cases pending or deemed to have been wrongly or wrongfully decided. Those parties form the huge untapped voting bloc of The Dissatisfied with the Judicial and Legal System.
14. The articles and investigation will let The Dissatisfied and the rest of “the vulnerable” know that “they can count on you for...truth, transparency, and accountability” at a most opportune time: when they are marching to the polls to assert who they are, to wit, We the People, the masters in “government of, by, and for the people”, entitled to hold all public servants, including judicial public servants, accountable for their performance and liable to compensate the victims of their abuse of power.

E. Benefits for your Center from accepting the proposal and my offer to present it to you

15. Just as “Scandal sells”, stories that “matter the most” to your readers bring in donations.
16. The articles on, and the investigation of, unaccountable judges’ betrayal of trust and abuse of power can do for your Center and you what the articles on, and the investigation of, the Watergate scandal did for The Washington Post: The Post became known nationwide. Its reputation as a serious investigative outlet became on a par with that of The New York Times. Post publisher Katharine Graham became a historic figure for her journalistic savvy and her determination to hold even the President and all his White House men accountable.
17. To lay out this proposal and address the concerns that it may raise in you and your colleagues, I offer to make a presentation to all of you via video conference or in person. You may visualize what this presentation will look like by watching my video together with its slides([†]>OL2:958)[‡]:
http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/OL2/DrRCordero_judges_abuse_video.mp4
[‡] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/OL2/DrRCordero_judges_abuse_slides.pdf
18. To set up the presentation you may contact me about it by sending me an email to my bloc of email addresses, Dr.Richard.Cordero_Esq@verizon.net, DrRCordero@Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org, Corderoric@yahoo.com; otherwise, you may call me at 1(718)827-9521.
19. The Center for Public Integrity and Judicial Discipline Reform should join forces to implement this proposal. We can become the paradigm of investigative journalism by “Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting”.
20. We can set in motion transformative change. The judicial system that undergoes the change will emerge from it as a different one, that is, one where judges are no longer above the law and where for the first time in history We the People ensure the “Truth, Transparency, and Accountability” necessary to afford “the vulnerable” as well as the powerful Equal Justice Under Law.
21. Therefore, I look forward to hearing from you.

Dare trigger history!...and you may enter it.

How You Can Reach a National Public Intolerant of Any Form of Abuse
by Exposing the Most Unaccountable Officers Anywhere:
Federal Judges, Who Risklessly Abuse Their Enormous Power as Their Institutionalized Modus Operandi[‡]

The national public has become intolerant of abuse of power and demands an end to what engenders it, unaccountability, as shown by the MeToo! movement, the police brutality demonstrations, the criticism of the President's Covid-19 response, and of course, of his performance in office. That public will receive avidly the individual and collective articles that journalists and readers are hereunder called upon to write to expose the most unaccountable class of officers: federal judges, who are life-tenured, in practice irremovable, and have risklessly institutionalized their abuse of power to run the Federal Judiciary as their racketeering enterprise. This is shown in my two-volume study*[†] of judges and their judiciaries:

Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Abuse of Power:
Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting*[†]

A. Reuters's trailblazing report on state judges' unaccountability and abuse of power

1. Last June 30, Reuters published "The Teflon Robe", a report on its massive investigation of state judges. It found "hardwired judicial corruption". Indeed, state judges are subject to 'independent' state commissions charged with overseeing their conduct and investigating complaints against them. However, the relation between the judges and the commissions is so intertwined that the judges are routinely exonerated or, worse yet, not even investigated. As a result, state judges are unaccountable. This allows them to engage in corruption in reliance on its condonation by its 'independent' overseers.

B. The enabling circumstances of federal judges' abuse of power

2. The corruption among federal judges is much more profound precisely because they are their own overseers: Every complaint against a federal judge must be filed with their respective chief circuit judge, as provided for under the Judicial Conduct and Disability Act of 1980, 28 U.S.C §351. The official statistics of the federal courts are contained in the annual report submitted to Congress as a public document by the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts. They show that the chief judges dismiss 100% of those complaints. When petitions for review are filed with the respective circuit council, 100% of them are denied...in a reasonless rubberstamped dumping form(OL2:608§A).
3. Federal judges have institutionalized their unaccountability by coordinating their reciprocal exoneration throughout their Judiciary.
4. Their self-exoneration is reinforced by the failure of the politicians who nominated and confirmed them to office and the others who receive their annual report to hold them accountable and subject to constitutional checks and balances. Instead, the politicians connivingly protect them as 'our men and women on the bench'.
5. Their unaccountability is further strengthened by the exceptional fact that federal judges are the only officers in our country who hold a life appointment. In the last 231 years since the creation of the Federal Judiciary in 1789, the number of them impeached and removed is 8!

6. Their exoneration by themselves and politicians, and their irremovability in practice explain why federal judges abuse their enormous power over people's property, liberty, and all their rights and duties that frame their lives and shape their identities: Their abuse is riskless. But it leaves complainants uncompensated and the rest of the people at their mercy.
7. Moreover, federal judges hold all their adjudicative, policy-making, administrative, and disciplinary meetings behind closed doors and do not hold press conferences.
8. Nor do they provide reasons for all their decisions, which allows for arbitrary, ad hoc, conclusory fiats of star-chamber power that denies due process. Those who receive a reasonless dumping form when compared to those who receive a reasoned and published decision are deprived of equal protection of the law. (OL2:453§§B, D)
9. In the institutionalized secrecy of their operation abusive coordination festers. Free of any concern about adverse consequences, let alone punishment, federal judges abuse their power extensively and gravely as their modus operandi.
10. Unaccountability, coordination, risklessness, and secrecy are the circumstances enabling their abuse of power as their way of doing business. As a result, federal judges grab gain and convenience by running the Federal Judiciary as a racketeering enterprise.

C. Sen. E. Warren's denunciation of federal judges' abusive self-enrichment

11. This is confirmed by no lesser a politician than Senator Elizabeth Warren. In her "I have a plan for the Judiciary too", she dare denounce, among other things, the systematic failure of federal judges to recuse themselves from cases in which they hold shares in the company of one of the parties before them. They resolve the ensuing conflict of interests by favoring that party so as to maintain or increase the value of their shares. Sen. Warren has identified the circumstance enabling federal judges to commit such abusive self-enrichment to be their unaccountability.
12. Their self-enrichment necessarily entails the crimes of:
 - a. concealment of assets
 - b. tax evasion
 - c. money laundering
 - d. fraud on the parties through intentional frustration of judicial process predicated on fairness and impartiality
 - e. breach of contract for judicial services entered into with no intention to perform it and thus, in bad faith
 - f. breach of their oath and of public trust causing injury in fact.
13. Showing that the justices of the Supreme Court have engaged, still engage, and cover their peers' and lower court judges' engagement in abusive self-enrichment can lead to the resignation of one, several, or all the justices and judges. The precedents for this are the resignation of Justice Abe Fortas on May 14, 1969; and of Former 9th Circuit Chief Judge Alex Kozinski on December 18, 2017.

D. Trump v. judges: The enemy of my enemy is my friend

14. There is a top politician who will deem it in his interest to fuel the public outrage at judges' abuse: President Trump. He will benefit from discrediting the very federal judges who are currently deciding whether to order the release of his tax returns.
15. He will only have to grant the exposers' request to make public the FBI's reports on its vetting of candidates to judgeships and justiceships. The evidence available points to information contained in those reports so incriminating that it will provoke profound public outrage at not only judges, but also politicians. Such outrage will have two dramatic consequences:

- a. The issue of judges' abuse of power and racketeering will be inserted into the 2020 campaign and become a decisive one on Election Day.
- b. Unable to remove judges, Trump may demand that Congress call the constitutional convention that 34 states have petitioned since April 2, 2014. This will throw national politics into turmoil and even stir up a deep institutional crisis. An outraged We the People can force Congress to give in and call the convention.

16. Failing that, Trump could resort to what he pretends enables him to do most anything that Congress shows itself incapable of doing: an executive order. Obviously, he already forgot that a single federal judge, District J. James Robart of Seattle, suspended nationwide his ban on Muslim immigration travel and that a panel of three circuit judges sustained the ban nationwide. But their preventing him from achieving the greatest accomplishment in the history of the Republic, namely, "Trump's Constitution", would only cause him to lash out against federal judges and aggravate the institutional crisis.

E. Interception of emails and mail to suppress those of their critics

17. Other forms of abuse by federal judges include their abuse of their Judiciary's sophisticated national computer network and expertise to intercept the emails and mail of people so as to detect and suppress those of their critics. This is likely the abuse that will most outrage the national public, for it affects most people and deprives them of their most cherished rights, namely, those guaranteed under the 1st Amendment to "freedom of speech, of the press, the right of the people peaceably to assemble [by email and on social media too], and to petition the Government [of which judges are the 3rd branch] for a redress of grievances [including their payment of compensation]".

F. Judges' bankruptcy fraud scheme

18. People who go bankrupt by definition do not have enough money to meet their needs. The vast majority of them cannot afford a lawyer and must appear without one (pro se) in court. They are overwhelmed by the mindboggling complexities of bankruptcy law and procedure. As a result, they fall prey to judges' bankruptcy fraud scheme.

19. The spread to Covid-caused bankruptcies will allow judges and their cronies in the bankruptcy industry to take advantage of, and aggravate people's financial and emotional distress.

G. Judges do not read most briefs, whose high cost goes to waste

20. "The math of abuse" demonstrates judges' failure to read most briefs, which they require parties to prepare, serve on parties, and file in support of every case and motion. Each brief costs a party $Ks and even $10Ks to produce. Instead, they have their clerks dispose of the corresponding cases and motions by rubberstamping a 5¢ dumping form. The call for parties to jointly demand that they be compensated for such waste and fraud will attract a large segment of the national public.

H. Parties invoking the Chief Justice's performance at the impeachment trial

21. Chief Justice Roberts presided over P. Trump's impeachment trial with disregard for "traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice". His disregard can be invoked by anybody as precedent for refusing discovery on equal protection grounds and privileged communications. The issue may be accepted for review by the Supreme Court on the vote of only four justices seeking to embarrass the Chief Justice.

I. Sham hearings on judicial accountability show bad faith and connivance

22. The sham hearings held in the Federal Judiciary and Congress on judicial accountability reveal judges/politicians' connivance and their fraud on witnesses and the public. The hearings have brought no improvement in judges' accountability at all, for they were only held for show and thus, in bad faith.

J. Unprecedented citizens hearings held by the media and universities

23. Journalists and readers can call for unprecedented citizens hearings on judges' abuse. These hearings are intended to be held at media outlets and universities; conducted by professors, journalists, and experts in Information Technology, fraud and forensic accounting, bankruptcy, etc.; and use interactive multimedia to take the testimony inexpensively without involving travel of the largest number of victims of, and witnesses to, judges' abuse. The hearings can become the means by which the fact-finding power of a grand jury is taken and exercised by We the People as we self-assertively shout: Enough is enough! We won't take any abuse by anybody anymore.
24. You can be a pioneer of those historic hearings or simply sit back and be a listener.

K. A presentation on joining forces to expose judges' abuse of power

25. The above is the content of a programmatic presentation via video conference that I offer to promote the joining of forces of journalists and readers who are or may become interested in exposing judges' abuse of power. Together we can so outrage the People that the latter demand that every politician take a stand on that issue, thereby inserting it in the 2020 campaign and making it a decisive one on Election Day. You may visualize what this presentation will look like by watching my video together with its slides([†]>OL2:958)[‡]:

26. This is realistic: It only took a few weeks for the public outrage at the USPS delivery slowdown to become so intense as to cause both chambers of Congress to hold hearings for Postmaster General Louis DeJoy to testify thereon and for the House to be recalled from a recess, hold a rare Saturday session, and vote $25 billion to shore up the postal service.
27. The presentation is tentatively scheduled for Sunday, September 13, at 10:00 a.m. on an appropriate video conference platform in light of the expected number of participants. For more details and to reserve your place, visit the website of X or <http://www.Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org>.
28. I also offer to hold a presentation for you and your group. Send me an email at this bloc of addresses Dr.Richard.Cordero_Esq@verizon.net, DrRCordero@Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org, CorderoRic@yahoo.com; I will reply within 24-48 hours; otherwise, call me at +1(718)827-9521.
29. The exposure of federal judges' abuse of power will make history by setting in motion transformative change in both the administration of justice and the rest of government so that judicial public servants as well as all other public servants are held accountable and liable to compensate their masters in "government of, by, and for the people": We the People.
