Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

April 29, 2014

Dear Literary Agent and Book Publisher,

I would like to submit to you for representation and publication my manuscript Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing: Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting(jur:1), supported by my academic course(dcc:1) and creative works(cw:1).

While many books comment on statutory and case law, judicial decision-making, and court functioning, no book compares with mine: My manuscript is based on my statistical findings(jur:21§A) as researcherii, and experience as practitioner prosecuting cases from federal bankruptcy, district, and circuit courts to the Supreme Court107b,114c. By analyzing statistics, reports, and newsletters of that Judiciary –the model for the state ones– and speeches, articles, and filings of its judges, it describes the means, motive, and opportunity(21§§1-3) enabling their wrongdoing(5§3): In the 224 years since the creation of their Judiciary in 1789, the number of federal judges –2,131 were in office on 30sep11[13]– impeached and removed is 8![14] They abuse the Judiciary Code, procedural rules, and their decisional power to self-exempt from discipline(24§§b-d). They are unaccountable(21§1). Whether they act individually or in coordination, e.g., running[60] a bankruptcy fraud scheme(39§5, 66§2), their unaccountability renders their wrongdoing irresistible: It is riskless and highly profitable, for their grabbing of unethical and unlawful material[213], professional[69], and social(60§§f-g) benefits does not require costly measures to avoid detection and punishment. Consequently, their wrongdoing is so routine and coordinated(88§§a-d) among judges -including justices- and between them and bankruptcy and legal systems insiders[169] as to constitute the Federal Judiciary's institutionalized modus operandi(49§4).

The manuscript is part of a more ambitious[iv] project than just a one-time publication of a groundbreaking exposé of the Federal Judiciary as a safe haven for wrongdoing: the pioneering of JUDICIAL UNACCOUNTABILITY REPORTING(166¶365). This novel news and publishing field(7¶¶ 24-28) can be developed through a multidisciplinary academic(128§4) and business venture(119 §1) that advocates judicial accountability reform(130§§5-8) as it builds the market of: 1) lawyers and pro ses that need intelligence on the wrongdoing patterns of judges sitting on their cases(136§ 6); 2) those affected by the 1.5 million new bankruptcy cases every year[34], constituting 80% of all new federal cases[33], mostly filed by pro ses[35], who fall prey –as top lawyers do too(29¶¶46-47)– to judges driven by the most insidious corruptor: money!, $373+ billion in CY10 alone(27§2); 3) the parties to the other 48 million federal and state cases filed annually(7§5), many of whom end up as judicial wrongdoing complainants in many websites and Yahoo- and Googlegroups, which are ignored by judges and politicians; and 4) a nation outraged by reports that Then-Judge Sotomayor's assets concealment, suspected by NYT, WP, and Politico[107a], and its cover-up by politicians(xxxv) are but part of institutionalized tax evasion[213] and interbranch connivance(77§§5-6).

There is a vast market for public corruption books: The nation holds Congress[16] in contempt with single digit approval ratings[15]; and has rated its confidence in the Supreme Court at a historic low[86]. The Corruption Chronicles(a&p:18) on the presidency, published by Simon & Shuster, was no. 1 bestselling nonfiction in the country. The University of Michigan Press dare publish Corrupting the Bankruptcy Courts(20). National outrage(83§§2-3) that stirs up public demand for news, information, and reform, thus fostering market development, can be provoked by: a) a presentation(xxvii) of evidence that launches a Watergate-like media investigation(100§3); b) an Emile Zola I accuse!-like denunciation(98§2) of judges' unaccountability and wrongdoing; c) a series of talkshows1 and other events(172§1) that give rise to public feedback(122§§2-3); and d) the 103K-word manuscript, and the project phases(a&p:5) and platform(23) of the venture.

Hence, I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

a&p:page #

I. Letter to the Literary Agent and Book Publisher and endnotes 1, 3

II. Information for Evaluating The Merits of The Manuscript..... 5

A. Manuscript's subject matter 5

B. Manuscript's sources and thesis 5

C. Judges' unaccountability and consequent riskless wrongdoing..... 6

D. Manuscript's 1st Purpose: to lay out the strategy for exposing judicial unaccountability and consequent riskless wrongdoing..... 8

E. Manuscript's 2nd Purpose: to propose articulated phases for pioneering judicial unaccountability reporting and developing it as a news and publishing field 9

1. The market: an outraged public and its demand for news and publications..... 9

2. Starting phase: presentations of evidence of judges' wrongdoing 10

3. The subsequent phases..... 10

F. Reasonable expectations the manuscript offers agents and publishers..... 12

G. Length of the manuscript 12

H. What to include in the book & corresponding timetable for manuscript completion..... 12

I. Number of illustrations..... 12

J. Executive Summary..... 13

K. Table of contents..... 13

L. Manuscript's overview and introduction..... 13

M. Marketing strategy..... 13

N. Author's resume..... 13

O. Competing or similar books..... 13

P. Sound investment in an author and writer with more than one book in him..... 13

Q. Offer to make a presentation of the project..... 13

R. Table of Law Related Books and Authors..... 14

S. Resume of Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq., and early publications..... 16, 17

T. The Corruption Chronicles, Tom Fitton..... 18

U. How Big Cases Are Corrupting the Bankruptcy Courts, Prof. Lynn M. LoPucki..... 20

V. Excerpt with a summary of sections..... 21

W. Developing a platform by making an offer to professional schools..... 23

1. Form letter to law school deans 24

Y. A message from LinkedIn augurs the development of a broad platform..... 25-27

Correcting Broken Links at End of Line

If a link returns an error message, e.g. "No page found", or otherwise fails to download the reference, (i) copy and paste it in the address bar of your browser and eliminate any blank space, which may be represented by %20, and then click the go button or press enter; or (ii) choose the Hand tool from the menu bar >rest it over the link> right click> from the dropdown menu choose either "Open Weblink in Browser" or "Open Weblink as New Document".

---

[i] a) Republicans Turn Judicial Power Into a Campaign Issue; by Adam Liptak and Michael D. Shear, The New York Times, 23oct11; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Rep_candidates_fed_judges_12.pdf; b) Dems Hit Romney for Going After Sotomayor in Ads; TPM (5mar12); Hispanic leaders condemn Romney for criticizing Sotomayor in ad; by Griselda Nevarez. VOXXI (29feb12); National Institute for Latino Policy; 5mar12; id; c) CBS "Face the Nation" Host Bob Schieffer interviews Speaker Newt Gingrich on "activist judges"; 18dec11; id. See [296] and jur:171¶371

[ii] This proposal is based, not on secondary sources, i.e., other authors' opinions, but rather on official statistics and statements found through original research and analyzed by Dr. Cordero:

a) official statistics of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts, http://www.uscourts.gov/Statistics.aspx, and of individual courts, e.g., http://www.ca2.uscourts.gov/;

b) official reports on the federal courts, http://www.supremecourt.gov/publicinfo/year-end/year-endreports.aspx and http://www.uscourts.gov/Statistics/JudicialBusiness.aspx; and reports of individual courts, e.g., http://www.ca2.uscourts.gov/annualreports.htm;

c) official reports on the proceedings of judicial bodies, e.g., http://www.uscourts.gov/FederalCourts/JudicialConference/Proceedings.aspx

d) documents publicly filed with the courts, http://www.pacer.uscourts.gov/index.html;

e) rulings, decisions, and opinions of judges available in print and online through the courts' websites, http://www.uscourts.gov/court_locator.aspx, and through official court reporters, e.g. West Publishing, http://web2.westlaw.com/signon/default.wl?bhcp=1&fn=%5Ftop&newdoor=true&rs=WLW11%2E10&vr=2%2E0; and unofficial aggregators of official court materials, e.g., http://www.findlaw.com/ and https://www.fastcase.com/;

f) judges' speeches, e.g., http://www.supremecourt.gov/publicinfo/speeches/speeches.aspx;

g) official news releases and articles in the official newsletter of the federal courts, http://www.uscourts.gov/News/InsideTheJudiciary.aspx;

h) other materials, http://www.uscourts.gov/FederalCourts/PublicationsAndReports.aspx;

i) federal laws and rules of judicial procedure, http://uscode.house.gov/;

j) reports providing the evidentiary justification for the need, purpose, and intent of legislative bills, http://www.senate.gov/pagelayout/legislative/g_three_sections_with_teasers/legislative_home.htm and http://clerk.house.gov/floorsummary/floor.aspx

k) statements of members of Congress on their websites, http://www.house.gov/representatives/ and http://www.senate.gov/general/contact_information/senators_cfm.cfm;

l) reports of the U.S. Govt. Accountability Office, http://www.gao.gov/browse/date/week.

Most of these materials have been downloaded, converted to pdf's, enhanced with links to the originals and navigational bookmarks, and posted to http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org to ensure that they are always available no matter what happens to the originals. Cf. this note on the Administrative Office's website: "Page Not Found. Sorry, the page you requested could not be found at this address. We've recently made updates to our site, and this page may have been moved or renamed"; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/AO_Page_Not_Found_5nov11.pdf.

[iii] Judges' wrongdoing is pervasive(xxxix§a); their unaccountability & coordination among themselves and with bankruptcy[33] & legal systems insiders[169] makes it riskless, irresistible. They:

©2012 Richard Cordero. All rights reserved.

a) systematically dismiss complaints against them, which are not public record, preventing complaint analysis to detect patterns of wrongdoing and habitual wrongdoing judges;(jur:27§2)

b) fail to report gifts from, and participation in seminars paid by, parties before them;[272]

c) routinely deny motions to recuse themselves[272] due to, e.g., conflict of interests by holding shares in, or sitting on a board of, one of the parties, fundraising for promoters of an ideology, despite violating thereby the requirement to "avoid even the appearance of impropriety"[123a];

d) hold meetings with parties in chambers without a court reporter so that no transcript of the discussion is available to challenge the judge's expression of bias or coercion on any party;

e) seal records to prevent challenges to the judge's approval of the abuse of a party by another with dominant position or of an agreement that is illicit or contrary to public policy;

f) prohibit electronic devices, e.g. cameras & camcorders, in the courthouse, even tape recorders in the courtroom, to prevent parties from filming the judges' interaction with parties or the making their own records to prove that court proceedings transcripts were doctored;

g) get rid of 9 out of 10 cases through either reasonless, meaningless summary orders or decisions so perfunctory that the judges mark them "not for publication" and "non-precedential"; both are all but unreviewable ad hoc fiats of raw judicial power serving as vehicles for arbitrariness and means for implementing a policy of docket clearing through expediency without an effort to administer justice on the facts of each case and the law applicable to them[66b];

h) in pursuit of that expediency policy, overwhelmingly affirm the decisions of their lower court colleagues, for rubberstamping an affirmance is decidedly easier than explaining a reversal and the way to avoid the same prejudicial error on remand[69 >¶¶1-3];

i) systematically deny petitions for en banc review by the whole court of each other's decisions, thus assuring reciprocal deference and the continued force of their decisions regardless of how wrong or wrongful they are(jur:45§2);

j) hold their policy-making, administrative, adjudicative, and disciplinary meetings behind closed doors, thus protecting their unaccountability and providing themselves with the opportunity to use secrecy as a means to engage in coordinated wrongdoing(jur:27§e; xxxix);

k) do not publish comments on court rules proposed by courts, thus cloaking in secrecy judges' comments, which fosters and conceals wrongful motives and coordination, and turning the request for public comments into a pro forma exercise that allows even overwhelming opposition to be kept undisclosed and disregarded without public protest[¶355e];

l) never hold press conferences, thus escaping the scrutiny of journalists and that of the public, since federal judges do not have to run in judicial elections[29](cf. jur:97§1; dcc:11); and

m) file pro forma financial disclosure reports with the Judicial Conference[91] Committee on Financial Disclosure, composed of report-filing peer judges assisted by Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts[10] members, who are their appointees and serve at their pleasure[213b].

[iv] The rewards for pioneering JUDICIAL UNACCOUNTABILITY REPORTING AND REFORM ADVOCACY(166§d) will be many, commensurable with the risk involved and the courage, leadership, and originality needed. One comes to mind: Time Magazine's person of the year. Last year's was The Protester, portrayed on the cover by the head and face of a person wrapped in a turban in Arab-like fashion. Who has a better chance of being the next Time's person of the year, a politician or journalist with his pen clenched between his teeth and his hands over his eyes and hears as he stoops down the street past a courthouse or a person who dare investigate(102§4) judges and justices to expose their coordinated wrongdoing and mutual cover-up dependent survival(88§§a-d) and thereby renders a public service to We the People, to the integrity of judicial process, and to democracy itself? That courageous person can be you.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

January 20, 2014

INFORMATION FOR LITERARY AGENTS AND BOOK PUBLISHERS
To Evaluate The Merits of the Manuscript
Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing

Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting

Can you imagine what would happen to you and those you care about if all your bosses:

a. held their jobs for life with self-policing authority that enabled them to assure their impunity by dismissing your complaints against them; were in fact above investigation, never mind prosecution, and thus had no fear of suffering any adverse consequences from their wrongdoing, not even losing their jobs or part of their salaries, because they enjoyed the unusual guarantee that their salaries could not be diminished; and

b. ruled on $100s of billions annually…

c. in the secrecy of closed-door meetings and through decisions that were overwhelmingly unpublished; need not be followed, so they could be inconsistent and arbitrary; and in effect, not reviewable but could deprive you of your rights to property, liberty, and life?

The Information below is about the contents and business potential of the manuscript that exposes your and everyone else's wrongdoing 'bosses' of the law: unaccountable federal judges.

A. Manuscript's subject matter

1. The above scenario illustrates how federal judges' officeholding conditions are qualitatively different from those of any private boss or public officer, whether a member of Congress or the President himself. Such conditions enable judges' wrongdoing.

2. So the manuscript studies the link between federal judges' officeholding conditions and their wrongdoing; analyzes cases of such wrongdoing; and proposes its journalistic and official exposure as the foundation of reform to ensure that judges hold office under transparent conditions that permit the monitoring of the discharge of their duty: to administer Equal Justice Under Law.

B. Manuscript's sources and thesis

3. The manuscript is the first to conduct a systematic analysis both of official statistics, reports, and statements[ii] of the federal courts and its judges, and of practice[107b,114c] jur:65§§1-3, in those courts and show that the conditions of holding their judgeships are free of the deterrent of suffering any detrimental consequence for committing judicial and personal wrongdoing, 5§3. This makes judges unaccountable, 21§A. Their unaccountability clears the way for them to disregard the constraints of due process of law without regard for the harm that they inflict upon litigants and the rest of the public. It leaves them free to go through the motions of their office while risklessly abusing their means and opportunity to pursue their motive for wrongdoing, i.e., to gain for themselves material, 27§2, professional, 56§§e-f, and social benefits, 62§g, a&p:1¶2nd.

4. Yet, federal judges are the most vulnerable public officers to a showing of their failure to "avoid even the appearance of impropriety"[123a]. Thus, the exposure, 97§1, of their wrongdoing will outrage the national public, 81§1. It will stir up public demand to know the nature, extent, gravity, and harmfulness of their wrongdoing; have those who have participated in, or tolerated, it resign; 92§d, and discuss new prevention and detection measures, 130§§5-8. This will open a novel news and publishing field: JUDICIAL UNACCOUNTABILITY REPORTING. Its pioneers can capitalize on entering it first. Supported by public demand for information and clamor for accountability and change, the pioneers will be able to report on wrongs and advocate reform through the principled, for-profit, and ever more structured phases of a multidisciplinary academic and business venture[256a]→119§1.

C. Judges' unaccountability and consequent riskless wrongdoing

5. Federal judges hold their office under unique conditions. They are the only public officers whose office is endowed under the Constitution and any federal or state law with life tenure and a prohibition against diminishing their salaries[12]. They earn salaries that place them in the top 2% of income earners in the U.S.[211] and such salary income does not even take into account their income from investments, their own businesses, book royalties, etc. They form the top echelon of the Federal Judiciary, the most undemocratic government branch since all of them are unelected and none can be recalled by the people. This explains why they are dismissive of "the people's right to petition for a redress of their grievances", 111§3, against judges.

6. Federal judges are the most secretive public officers, holding all their administrative, adjudicative, disciplinary, and policy-making meetings behind closed doors and never holding press conferences, 27§e. Judges protect their decisions, even wrong and wrongful ones, from review by issuing summary orders, "not for publication" and "not precedential" opinions, and denying review of even conflicting decisions, 43§1-2. Those are means enabling their arbitrary and ad hoc disposition of cases through fiats of raw judicial powers in disregard of due process.

7. Judges are the only officers in effect exempted from constitutional checks and balances by the officers of the other two branches, who fear them: In addition to the power to adjudicate controversies, judges wield the ultimate frightening power, to wit, the power to declare any law unconstitutional and thereby doom a president's and his party's legislative agenda[17]; and to turn the prosecution of any president, member of Congress, or other defendant into an opportunity for retaliation. The latter can include steering the proceedings into a conviction[15]; imposing devastating fines and the crippling loss of an asset or a right; denying discovery, thus forcing a party to litigate without access to the evidence while protecting the opposing party from having to disclose incriminating evidence, 67¶¶141-142,[141]; granting discovery requests that force the other party to disclose even privileged information, incur ruinous expense, and make such an oppressive investment of time and effort as to have its life or business operations disrupted; etc., 5§3.

8. The threat of such power enables federal judges to actually abuse the power to discipline themselves in judges-judging-judges proceedings: They dismiss without any investigation 99.82% of all the complaints filed by any persons against their judges, 24§§b-c. They have self-granted immunization for even malicious and corrupt acts, 26§d.

9. Federal judges' abuse of their power goes unreported, for not even a free press is free from fear of judicial retaliation. Therefore, the media shy away from subjecting judges to anything remotely comparable to the scrutiny to which they subject politicians and all other powerful persons. Hence, the media limit themselves to court reporting, which concerns only the conduct of trials –mostly involving celebrities or particularly shocking crimes– and a handful of written opinions among the few, about 10%, that judges do publish, 28§3.

10. As a result, federal judges have a unique historic assurance of immunity: In the 224 years since the creation of the Federal Judiciary in 1789, the number of federal judges –2,131 were on the bench on September 30, 2011– impeached and removed is 8!; 21§a. Federal judges are de facto unimpeachable, that is, as a matter of fact irremovable regardless of what they do or fail to do.

11. A factual determination follows: Unresponsive to a public that can neither elect nor remove them; insulated from media and political scrutiny; and partial to themselves as judges in their own cause, federal judges are unaccountable. Their unaccountability enables them to a greater extent than any other public officer or private boss to do wrong, for they risk no professional or personal retribution. This allows them to wield most abusively the means of their office, namely, decision-making power, give in more readily to insidious motives, and blatantly take advantage of their greater opportunity in the millions of cases that come before them, for wrongdoing, 5§3.

12. Indeed, being unaccountable, they pursue the most insidiously corruptive motive: money!, 27§2. Just the bankruptcy judges ruled on $373+ billion in controversy in only the personal bankruptcies in CY10 alone, 27§2. Yet, on average only .23% of such bankruptcies are reviewed by district courts and fewer than .08% by circuit courts[33]. Their unreviewability increases the opportunity for riskless wrongdoing, 86§4, since nobody will require judges to account for their decisions.

13. Another feature enhances the attractiveness of wrongdoing by enabling judges to engage in it more efficiently, safely, and profitably: coordination among themselves and with insiders of the bankruptcy and legal systems[169]. Coordination, 88§a, can occur implicitly, by one judge showing knowing indifference, 90§b, or willful ignorance or blindness, 91§c, to the wrongdoing of another. Thereby the judge gives assurance in fact that he will not tell and the wrongdoer receives encouragement in fact that he can keep doing wrong without fear of exposure. Coordination also occurs explicitly through agreements that provide for division of 'labor' and benefits. This explains how judges can be passive or active wrongdoers, but equally culpable of wrongdoing: One judge may look away to allow another to commit wrongs unembarrassed or even looked on but do nothing to stop him at the time or to denounce him afterwards. Thereby the passive judge aids through collusive silence the active wrongdoer, becoming accessory after the first wrongdoing witnessed and accessory before the next wrongdoing to be committed by the principal. Whether through silence or action, both judges are indispensable in their respective roles to doing wrong that erodes judicial integrity and leads to ever-graver corrupt and corruptive acts.

14. It follows that coordination broadens the scope of wrongdoing and functions as its efficiency multiplier. Through it, judges can carry out wrongdoing too complex for a single judge to commit, but which correspondingly brings all of them enhanced professional and social benefits as well as greater profit: Coordinated reciprocal cover-ups reduce the need to spend resources on costly measures to avoid detection and punishment from the outside. Conversely, it increases the risk of exposure from the inside. Every member of implicit or explicit coordinated wrongdoing has incriminating information about the wrongdoing that the others have committed or tolerated, gathered while working for the same institution for 1, 5, 10, 15, 20 or more years. They can use that information to incriminate each other as well as to tell on a 'bigger fish' and thus secure leniency for himself or herself in a plea bargain. Thereby all can fall by domino effect; 68§a. Hence, reciprocal cover-ups act as insurance of collective survival, giving every member a personal stake in preventing any other from being investigated or indicted. Consequently, coordination not only enables, but also emboldens judges to orchestrate the most complex and profitable form of wrongdoing: a scheme. Through it, federal judges run the one with the most attractive motive, money: a bankruptcy fraud scheme[60] 66§§2-3.

15. These are the historic, factual, and self-assured conditions of federal judges' office resulting in their unaccountability. In reliance thereon, they have arrogated to themselves a unique privilege as a class of persons in our society and an impermissible status in government, not of men, but of laws: Judges Above the Law. That privileged status has enabled them to turn their judgeships into safe havens for self-beneficial individual and coordinated riskless wrongdoing, 49§4. Doing wrong through participation or toleration is so pervasive and routine, 5§3, that it is their and their Federal Judiciary's institutionalized modus operandi, 10-14.

D. Manuscript's 1st purpose: to lay out the strategy for exposing judicial unaccountability and consequent riskless wrongdoing

16. Up to now, exposing wrongdoing of judges has been pursued by filing lawsuits against them or complaints[18a] with other judges. Underlying this course of action has been the assumption that judges will apply the law impartially to other judges charged with wrongdoing. This course of action has failed completely, 24§§b-d. Its inherent flaw is that judges judging judges cannot be impartial. Far from the defendants being unknown and unrelated to them, they are their peers, colleagues, and friends; instead of being disinterested in the outcome of the proceedings, they are directly interested in not ending up incriminated in them, for the defendants know too much about the wrongdoing of the judging judges themselves and all other judges. Personal relations take precedence over impartiality, which succumbs to the interest in self-preservation.

17. Moreover, let's assume that some vestige of sense of duty has survived a judging judge's collusive silence –let alone her explicit coordination for wrongdoing with others– and is causing her to lean toward finding that the defendant judge did wrong. That sense of duty will in all likelihood be overwhelmed by the daunting prospect of having to work with those defendant judges and all the other judges for the rest of her life-tenured officeholding after being branded by them on her forehead with a repellant, pariah marking: 'traitor once, unreliable forever'. Only a principled person would wear it proudly with her head up as a scar from battle for judicial integrity…and a grateful national public would transform it into an inscription of honor: Champion of Justice!

18. It follows that to expose judges, they as well as those who recommended, nominated, confirmed, or appointed them must be bypassed, for they share a common interest: their survival and avoidance of pariah treatment. The exposure of judges' wrongdoing must be made first to the public and then by public demand. In addition, the wrongdoing cannot be such that it can be dismissed as a matter of a judge's discretion or of an individual rogue judge. It must concern the conditions enabling their unaccountability that consequently renders irresistibly attractive to abuse their means, motive, and opportunity to do wrong by disregarding the rule of law, 5§3. It must be shown to be the judges' collective modus operandi. Their judiciary must be exposed, jur:xxix, as being run on wrongdoing that is grave, pervasive, and coordinated. The public must be outraged.

19. Exposing federal judges' wrongdoing, in general, and their bankruptcy fraud scheme, in particular, will outrage the public at their betrayal of trust in their commitment to their lofty mission: to administer Justice. Public outrage can shake their Judiciary to its foundation, for in spite of their unaccountability, judges are the most vulnerable public officers to their failure "to avoid even the appearance of impropriety"[123]. Conduct that does not even reach the level of a misdemeanor or offend against an ordinance can constitute an "impropriety". An act that was not unlawful to any degree whatsoever, yet was deemed an "impropriety" forced U.S. Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas to withdraw his name as nominee for the chief justiceship and then to resign on May 14, 1969, 92§d. Hence, far from any evidence, just responsibly raised suspicion of unlawful, even criminal, activity engaged in by a justice or a judge can make their hold on office all the more untenable.

20. This is the manuscript's first purpose: to present this strategy for exposing judges' unaccountabi-lity and consequent riskless wrongdoing by provoking public outrage, 83§2. The strategy appeals to the professional, business, and reputational –i.e., celebrity status and public gratitude– interests of those who through their reporting can undertake such outrage-provoking exposure, cf. xxxix. The strategy counts on self-interest, xliii, to bring about public enlightenment and then public demand for more light to be shone on the most secretive branch, the Federal Judiciary, and what that secrecy, xli§D, and its compounding due to lack of reporting of available evidence, 21§§A-B, enable: unaccountability and riskless wrongdoing. This strategy is based on a sound premise: Self-interest in not being retaliated against by judges and in extracting from them a quid pro quo for collusive silence, xviii, has kept politicians, journalists, and law professors, 81§1, from discharging their institutional duty to ensure the integrity of the judiciary and of legal process by exposing judges' wrongdoing. Similarly, self-interest in winning professional, business, and reputational rewards can be cultivated to cause people to do the right thing and expose them.

21. You can take notice of that strategy and share it with others through the publication of the manuscript. Then you together with Dr. Cordero and other competent and business-minded people can join in implementing it. That constitutes the manuscript's second purpose.

E. Manuscript's 2nd purpose: to propose articulated phases for pioneering judicial unaccountability reporting and developing it as a news & publishing field

22. The manuscript also proposes articulated phases to enact its strategy for exposing judges' unaccountability and consequent riskless wrongdoing. These phases are a realistic, for-profit, ambitious, project; enhanced by the public interest goal of reform; and inspired by what still is a noble ideal: Equal Justice Under Law. The first phase is to bring the published book to its vast market.

1. The market: an outraged public and its demand for news and publications

23. Precedent, facts, and the law support the reasonable expectation that an outraged public will be a welcoming market for the book. That public will be national, for the Federal Judiciary is national and serves as the model for its state counterparts. It has been identified at a&p:1¶3rd. It includes:

    a. parties to lawsuits, including pro ses and bankruptcy debtors and their creditors; lawyers; and amicus curie. Their contact information appears in their publicly filed papers and court dockets, both of which are accessible in the court clerks' offices and also increasingly through the courts' websites[230], jur:20; bar association rosters; and lists of attendees to seminars and conferences on law, journalism, and business subjects who are affected to a substantial degree by judicial decisions and who frequently are addressed by judges and lawyers invited, in many cases with all expenses paid[223, 272], by the organizers;

    b. victims of judicial wrongdoing, who can be contacted through their websites, and Yahoo- and Googlegroups; and those related to them, 8¶25;

    c. a national public affected by the precedential effect of judicial decisions applicable nationally –e.g., on abortion, gun control, health care, immigration, same sex marriage, etc.–, who in the aggregate are the same people who will realize how they are affected by the decisions of unaccountable and wrongdoing state judges;

    a. those concerned about the impairment of judicial process and disregard of the rule of law.

24. The public's outrage will manifest itself in the usual reaction: An ever-increasing demand for wider and deeper coverage –progressively extending to state judges– in the news as well as analytical publications, TV news magazines, documentaries, etc. Their contents will cover, for instance:

a. the findings revealing the nature, extent, gravity, and harm of judges' wrongdoing;

b. the judges who people believe abused them; before whom they appeared; or who may in future adjudicate cases of concern to people who are not even party to those cases; and

c. the politicians' and law enforcement authorities' words and actions concerning the public demand that judges be investigated and held accountable and their judiciaries be reformed.

2. Starting phase: presentations of evidence of judges' wrongdoing

25. In the starting phase, the pioneers of judicial unaccountability reporting can make public presentations, 97§1, of the available evidence, 21§A, that judges' wrongdoing is so coordinated and pervasive as to constitute an integral means for running the Federal Judiciary. The initial presentation, jur:xxvii, can be made by a personality covered by the national media, e.g., a former or incumbent politician, a candidate for public office, xvii, even a judge who can be made to realize that it is in his or her interest, xliv§§B-D, to make such presentation; a VIP from the business or entertainment world interested in the integrity of legal process and the judiciary; or a journalist reporting on a TV news magazine. Such initial presentation can provide broad though inexpensive publicity since the media will be covering the VIP presenter or making the presentation. The most memorable presentation can be a multimedia one along the lines described at dcc:11.

26. The presentations can be made to and take place at:

a. bookstores and talkshows1;

b. college and university classrooms and auditoriums to address faculty, dcc:7, jur:128§a, and students, 129§b, especially those at law, journalism, and business schools and undergraduate programs[cf.256a], particularly the members of related subject matter clubs –e.g., federal courts, investigative journalism, fraud and forensic accounting– holding meetings during the academic year and recruiting members at club fairs during club week at the beginning of the year; student job fairs and commencements, dcc:8;

c. bar, Continuing Legal Education (CLE), and law firm-sponsored, meetings; jur:172§1;

d. journalists and press club, media, and publishers conferences; jur:xxxii, xlv§§E-I; and

e. groups of judicial wrongdoing victims, xxiv, public interest advocates, monitors of public officers' conduct, think tanks, and entities that develop ethical conduct standards.

27. The pioneers and presenters can offer at the presentations a brochure containing an Emile Zola I accuse!–like denunciation, 98§2, of judges' coordinated wrongdoing; describing the novel news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting; and referring to the book for further detail, much as this Information refers to the manuscript.

3. The subsequent phases

28. The pioneers of judicial unaccountability reporting can structure and target the initial and all other multimedia public presentations to:

a. assemble an ad hoc team of field investigators, e.g. investigative journalists, and library researchers to pursue the evidence already available, 21§§A-B, of judges' wrongdoing;

b. cause journalists to pursue their own interest, xlv§§E-I, in a Pulitzer Prize and other professional rewards by launching a Watergate-like, 4¶¶10-14, generalized and first-ever competitive media investigation, 100§3, of a test case, xxxviii, of judges' wrongdoing involving a sitting U.S. Supreme Court justice, 65§§1-3, the sitting president who nominated her, 77§5, and the top senators who confirmed her, 78§6. It can be guided by a query that has proved its devastating as well as name-making effect and can be rephrased thus:

> What did the President, jur:xlviii, and the justices[23b] and judges[125a,126] know about Then-Judge Sotomayor's concealment[107a] of assets, xxxv, and tax evasion[107c] and other justices', 71§4, and judges'[213] wrongdoing, 5§3, and when, 75§d, did they know it?

c. promote a multidisciplinary academic and business venture, 119§1, that includes:

   1) appealing to the outraged public, 83§§2-3, and to judicial wrongdoing victims for feedback, which can lead to the publication of templates, 122§2, and the Annual Report on Judicial Unaccountability and Consequent Wrongdoing in America, 126§3;

   2) teaching, dcc:15, The DeLano Test Case Course, a hands-on, role-playing, dcc:18§C, fraud investigative and expository multidisciplinary, dcc:10, course for undergraduate or graduate students, dcc:1, based on its study plan, dcc:18§§D-F, and Syllabus, 23;

   3) conducting with a stable team field and library research on judges' unaccountability and wrongdoing, 102§4, to provide content for judicial unaccountability reporting;

   4) catering to the growing number[35] of pro ses, who in hard economic times cannot afford lawyers and need easy to understand self-help literature on how to prosecute their cases effectively so that they are not doomed to perfunctory treatment by judges who weigh a pro se case regardless of its merits as one third of a case, 43¶81;

   5) promoting and conducting research and development of techniques that through innovative application of statistical, 131§1, and literary and linguistic, 140§b), analysis of court decisions and other judges' writings, 136§6), will allow lawyers and pro ses to discover judges' bias and wrongdoing patterns;

   6) advocating judicial reform, in particular, and

   7) developing, in general, the multidisciplinary academic and business venture so that it matures into an institutional phase that makes it possible to…

d. create an institute, jur:130:5, of judicial unaccountability reporting and reform advocacy staffed by professionals, 128§4-a, and students, 129§b, engaged in for-profit, 156§f:

   1) research on the advanced application of Information Technology to statistical, 131§1), and linguistic and literary, 136§6), analysis of judges' performance, decisions, and other writings to develop marketable software, databases, publications, and services that will audit them for patterns of decision-making, bias, and wrongdoing;

   2) education, 153§c, and publishing, 154§d, on judicial unaccountability and reform; and

   3) public advocacy, 155§e, of reform by establishing an independent inspector general of the judiciary, 158§6, passing legislation, 158§7, and implementing it aided by citizen boards of judicial accountability and discipline, 160§8, that will publicly monitor judges' conduct by receiving and filing complaints against them, investigating them with subpoena, search, and contempt power, holding hearings on them, and imposing disciplinary measures on judges, including the compensation of victims; and

e. promote the development of a national movement, 164§9, of a people that hold as the foundation of their democratic government their right to Equal Justice Under Law.

F. Reasonable expectations the manuscript offers agents and publishers

29. The manuscript can help the pioneers of the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting to:

    a. reap the competitive advantage of establishing the first toehold in a new market by gaining experience ahead of others and giving rise to its first set of rules and standards, which can temporarily function as entry barriers to the field, and cultivate the product-provider name association that can translate into customer loyalty;

    b. become the multimedia, dcc:11, disseminators of the long-term demand for reform of a public outraged at wrongdoing judges that escape the rule of law and democratic control;

    c. participate in the reform's components, all of which have for-profit aspects, jur:156§f: publication, 122§§2-3 and 154§d; research, 131§b; education, 153§c, which includes teaching The DeLano Test Case Course, dcc:1; and public and client advocacy, 155§e;

    d. earn the reputational benefit of becoming nationally recognized and hailed by a grateful nation as its Champions of Justice, 171¶373; and

    e. create the name recognition for Dr. Cordero that would make the public more receptive to the publication or filming of his creative writings, cw:1.

G. Length of the manuscript

30. The manuscript on judges' wrongdoing is 104K-words long; the academic course is 12.6K.

H. What to include in the book and corresponding timetable for manuscript completion

31. Depending on the editorial and marketing decision agreed upon, publication can be envisaged:

    a. as the manuscript stands now;

    b. after incorporating ideas and text in Dr. Cordero's articles referred to in over 300 end- and footnotes, many with parts a, b, c, d, e, etc., separating internal links to such articles; or

    c. after some of the proposed two-pronged Follow the money! and Follow the wire! investigation, jur:102§4, xviii, of the DeLano test case of judicial unaccountability and wrongdoing, xxxv, and/or some of the research projects, 131§b, intended for the institute have been conducted by either an ad hoc team of professionals or the permanent team, 128§4, at the core of the multidisciplinary academic and business venture, 119§1.

I. Number of illustrations

32. The illustrations are statistical tables and graphs, such as those on jur:9-16; see also 24fn19b > http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/statistics&tables/judicial_misconduct_complaints.pdf. Some of the official statistical tables of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts referred to in the end- and footnotes can also be included, e.g., 24fn19a > http://www.uscourts.gov/Statistics/JudicialBusiness.aspx >Table S-22. There has been no need to include them in the manuscript since they are downloadable through the numerous links in the notes, which links are active in the manuscript's digital version at jur:i and downloadable through the footer link hereunder.

J. Summary of sections: ToC:xxii; a&p:21 K. Table of Contents: ToC:ii

L. Manuscript's Abstract: ToC:xxi: Overview; jur:1§Introduction

M. Marketing strategy: jur:119§1; dcc:11 N. Author's resume: a&p:16

O. Competing or similar books

33. The proposed book is not intended to be a practitioner treatise or a student textbook and therefore, does not compete with those published by West, Lexis-Nexis/Matthew Bender, Aspen Law, Oxford, Wolters Kluwer, Little Brown, ABA, and Emmanuel. The other kind of law books consists in commentaries on judicial decision-making, law personalities, and court functioning. They are not even similar to the one proposed, which exposes judges' unaccountability and riskless wrongdoing and demonstrates the need for judicial reform.

34. Public interest in official corruption is shown by the market success of The Corruption Chronicles, by Tom Fitton, though he deals only with corruption imputed to President Obama, a&p:18.

35. The proposed book has a broader scope and probes wrongdoing-enabling conditions deeper than the well-researched and -written Courting Failure: How Competition for the Big Cases is Corrupting the Bankruptcy Courts, by Prof. Lynn LoPucki, courageously published by The University of Michigan Press in 2005, a&p:20. It dare expose blatant judicial corruption but limited to federal bankruptcy judges competing for cases where the debtor's assets exceed $100 million. However, his book confirms the manuscript's thesis: Federal judges' corruption through abuse coordinated among themselves and with others of their decision-making means in pursuit of the money motive and exploiting the opportunity of cases before them is part of the Federal Judiciary's modus operandi.

P. Sound investment in an author and writer with more than one book in him

36. Non-fiction publications: Dr. Cordero worked as a researcher-writer on the staff of American Law Reporters Federal (ALR Fed), a&p:17, of Lawyers Cooperative Publishing, the foremost publisher of legal analytical commentaries on American law, now part of West Publishing.

37. Fiction writings: Dr. Cordero has written two novels; a treatment for a third; eight movie scripts; a short story that imaginatively storytells a proposal for a business venture in pursuit of academic excellence; and a one-act drama, cw:1. He has a lawyer's public speaking capacity to persuade and a fiction writer's ability to show rather than tell an audience the need for judicial unaccountability reporting and reform advocacy, and enthuse it to embark on a journey of the imagination, whether in pursuit of uplifting entertainment or a noble ideal, such as Equal Justice Under Law.

Q. Offer to make a presentation of the project

38. Dr. Cordero offers to present, 171§F, dcc:7, upon request this project for pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting and for developing it for profit through the articulated phases of a multidisciplinary academic and business venture. His presentation will let him show his business-like pragmatism and sober enthusiasm and his storytelling capacity, demonstrated in his novels and other creative writings, cw:1, for which he also seeks representation.

Dare trigger history! (dcc:11)

R. TABLE OF LAW RELATED BOOKS AUTHORS

1. Inside Appellate Courts: The Impact of Court Organization on Judicial Decision Making in the United States	Jonathan M. Cohen
2. Making Law in the United States Courts of Appeals	David E. Klein
3. The Supreme Court: A C-SPAN Book Featuring the Justices in their Own Words	Brian Lamb, Susan Swain, Mark Farkas et al
4. The Federalist Papers	Alexander Hamilton, James Madison, John Jay
5. A Matter of Interpretation: Federal Courts and the Law: Federal Courts and the Law	Antonin Scalia
6. Legally Speaking, Revised and Updated Edition: 40 Powerful Presentation Principles Lawyers Need to Know	David J Dempsey
7. Institutions of American Democracy : The Judicial Branch	Kermit L. Hall, Kevin T. McGuire
8. Storming the Court: How a Band of Yale Law Students Sued the President--and Won	Brandt Goldstein
9. The Supreme Court: The Personalities and Rivalries That Defined America	Jeffrey Rosen
10. The Majesty of the Law: Reflections of a Supreme Court Justice	Sandra Day O'Connor
11. Sandra Day O'Connor	Joan Biskupic
12. The Brethren: Inside The Supreme Court	Bob Woodward & Scott Armstrong
13. Judges and Their Audiences: A Perspective on Judicial Behavior	Lawrence Baum
14. When Courts and Congress Collide: The Struggle for Control of America's Judicial System	Charles Gardner Geyh
15. Ladies And Gentlemen Of The Jury: Greatest Closing Arguments In Modern Law	Michael S Lief, H. Mitchell Caldwell et al
16. A Good Quarrel: America's Top Legal Reporters Share Stories from Inside the Supreme Court	Timothy R. Johnson
17. A Court Divided: The Rehnquist Court and the Future of Constitutional Law	Mark Tushnet
18. Political Foundations of Judicial Supremacy: The Presidency, the Supreme Court, and Constitutional Leadership in U.S. History	Keith E. Whittington
19. That Eminent Tribunal: Judicial Supremacy and the Constitution	Christopher Wolfe
20. The Judges: A Penetrating Exploration of American Courts and of the New Decisions –Hard Decisions– They Must Make for a New Millennium	Martin Mayer
21. Packing the Court: The Rise of Judicial Power and the Coming Crisis of the Supreme Court	James MacGregor Burns
22. The Supreme Court	William H. Rehnquist
23. Active Liberty: Interpreting Our Democratic Constitution	Stephen Breyer
24. In the Interest of Justice: Great Opening & Closing Arguments of the Last 100 Years	Joel J. Seidemann

25. Origins of the Bill of Rights	Levy Leonard W.
26. Making Our Democracy Work: A Judge's View Supreme Court	Stephen Breyer
27. Supreme Conflict: The Inside Story of the Struggle for Control of the United States Supreme Court	Jan Crawford Greenburg
28. Making Your Case: The Art of Persuading Judges	Antonin Scalia and Bryan a. Garner
29. The Nine: Inside the Secret World of the Supreme Court	Jeffrey Toobin``
30. What the Anti-Federalists Were For: The Political Thought of the Opponents of the Constitution	Herbert J. Storing
31. Deposition Preparation - For All Kinds Of Cases, In All Jurisdictions	Edwin H. Sinclair, Jr.
32. The Judge in a Democracy	Judge Aharon Barak
33. The Supreme Court Reborn : The Constitutional Revolution in the Age of Roosevelt	William E. Leuchtenburg
34. How Judges Think [Paperback]	Richard A. Posner
35. Justice for All: Earl Warren and the Nation He Made	Jim Newton
36. The Great Justices, 1941-54: Black, Douglas, Frankfurter, and Jackson in Chambers	William Domnarski
37. The Puzzle of Judicial Behavior	Lawrence Baum
38. Strategies of Successful Litigators: Best Practices of the World's Top Litigation Lawyers	Aspatore Book Staff
39. First Among Equals: The Supreme Court In American Life	Kenneth W. Starr
40. The Wall Street Journal Guide to Business Style and Us	Paul Martin
41. Tangled Webs: How False Statements are Undermining America: From Martha Stewart to Bernie Madoff	James B. Stewart
42. Briefs of Leading Cases in Law Enforcement	Rolando V. del Carmen, Jeffery T. Walker
43. NYPD Confidential: Power and Corruption in the Country's Greatest Police Force	Leonard Levitt
44. Handbook of Digital Forensics and Investigation	Eoghan Casey
45. Interviewing and Interrogation for Law Enforcement	John E. Hess
46. Pro Se Guide to Family Court	David Bardes
47. Supreme Power: Franklin Roosevelt vs. the Supreme Court	Jeff Shesol
48. First Among Equals: The Supreme Court in American Life	Kenneth W. Starr
49. The Politics of the Common Law: Perspectives, Rights, Processes, Institutions	Wayne Morrison, Adam Gearey, Robert Jago
50. Justice Denied: What America Must Do To Protect Its Children	Marci A. Hamilton
51. Tried and Convicted: How Police, Prosecutors, and Judges Destroy Our Constitutional Rights	Michael D. Cicchini JD
52. Thinking Like a Lawyer: An Introduction to Legal Thinking	Kenneth J. Vandevelde
53. Disrobed: An Inside Look at the Life and Work of a Federal Trial Judge	Judge Frederic Block
54. America on Trial; 55. The Genesis of Justice	Alan M. Dershowitz

S. Resume Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.
2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. (718) 827-9521; Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

BAR MEMBERSHIP AND SPECIAL SKILLS: • U.S. citizen; member of the NYS Bar; specialized in field and library research and writing of legal briefs and business and IT studies

- I would like to work for you as a lawyer and researcher-writer strategist in a position where I can contribute to your business or legal problem solution a talent that gives me a competitive advantage: I can gather seemingly unconnected pieces of information, select those relevant to the prioritized objectives to be pursued, and imaginatively integrate them into a coherent new structure -expressed clearly and concisely both orally and in writing- that renders those pieces meaningful and useful, like a mosaic that depicts a realistic and decorative scene of the ancient Romans, yet originates in insignificant stone fragments expertly sifted from dirt and artfully set together to appeal to the spirit and the mind while serving the practical purpose of making money.

ADVANCED KNOWLEDGE OF: • computers and their use for word processing, graphics composition, presentations, and research; and for developing IT products to audit cases through statistical, linguistic, and literary analysis of opinions to give lawyers an informational advantage

LANGUAGES: • I speak English, Spanish, and French; and converse in German and Italian.

RELEVANT EXPERIENCE

FOUNDER OF JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE REFORM, 2008-to date New York City
- A non-partisan and non-denominational organization that advocates the study of the judiciary and the adoption of legislation to replace the inherently biased and ineffective judges-judging-judges system of judicial self-discipline with a system based on independent boards of citizens unrelated to the judges and empowered to publicly receive, investigate, and resolve complaints

RESEARCHER AND WRITER ATTORNEY, 1995-to date New York City
- Prosecution of cases from bankruptcy, district, and circuit courts to the SCt; practice in NY courts
- Developed the Euro Project, a 3-prong business package consisting of the Euro Conference, the Euro Consulting Services, and the Euro Newsletter; aimed at enabling firms to capitalize on their expertise in the euro by providing services for the adaptation of business practices and IT systems to the European Union's new common currency that replaced its national currencies

WAYNE COUNTY EXECUTIVE OFFICE, 1994 Detroit, MI
- Developed economic and marketing features of the master plan for the intermodal transportation and industrial complex of Willow Run Tradeport in Detroit
- Drafted and implemented proposals for increasing office productivity using IT and equipment

LAWYERS COOPERATIVE PUBLISHING, 1991-1993 Rochester, NY
- Member of the editorial staff of LCP, the foremost publisher of analytical legal commentaries.
- Researched and wrote articles on securities regulations, antitrust, and banking under U.S. law

COMMISSION OF THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES, 1984-1985 Brussels, Belgium
- Devised proposals for harmonizing supervisory regulations on mortgage credit and on reporting large loan exposures by one and all members of a banking system to one and related borrowers
- My proposals were adopted by the EEC Banking Division and negotiated with the national experts in the supervision of financial institutions of the Member States
- Drafted replies to financial questions put by the European Parliament to the Commission

EDUCATION

THE UNIVERSITY OF CAMBRIDGE, Faculty of Law, Ph.D., 1988 Cambridge, England
- Doctoral dissertation analyzed the existing European legal and political environment and proposed a new system for harmonizing the regulation and supervision of financial institutions

THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN, Business School, MBA, 1995 Ann Arbor, Michigan

- Emphasis on corporate strategies to maximize profitability and competitiveness through the optimal use of IT expert systems using artificial intelligence, and telecommunications networks

LA SORBONNE, Faculty of Law and Economics, French law degree, 1982 Paris, France

- Was awarded a French Government scholarship
- Concentrated on the operation of a currency basket to achieve monetary stability and on the application of harmonized regulations & antitrust rules on companies with dominant positions

RESEARCH WORKS

- Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing: Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/OL/DrRCordero-Honest_Jud_Advocates.pdf; study of the Federal Judiciary' statistics, reports, judges' statements, cases, Code, etc.
- Availability of an Implied Right of Action under the Tender Offer Provisions of §14d-f of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 USCS §78n(d)-(f)), added to the Exchange Act by the Williams Act of 1968, and Rules Promulgated thereunder by the SEC, 120 ALR Federal 145
- Venue Provisions of the National Bank Act (12 USCS §94) As Affected By Other Federal Venue Provisions and Doctrines, 111 ALR Federal 235
- Construction and Application of the Right to Financial Privacy Act of 1978 (12 USCS §§ 3401-3422), 112 ALR Federal 295
- Exemption or Immunity From Federal Antitrust Liability Under the McCarran-Ferguson Act (15 USCS §§1011-1013) and the State Action and Noerr-Pennington Doctrines for the Business of Insurance and Persons Engaged in It, 116 ALR Federal 163
- Who May Maintain an Action Under §11(a) of the Securities Act of 1933 (15 USCS §77k (a)), in Connection With False or Misleading Registration Statements, 111 ALR Fed. 83
- Judicial Conference's Reforms Will Not Fix the Problem of Abusive Judges Who Go Undisciplined, Letter to the Editor, National Law Journal, March 3, 2008, http://www.law.com/jsp/nlj/PubArticleNLJ.jsp?id=1204212424055
- The Creation of a European Banking System: A study of its legal and technical aspects, Peter Lang, Inc., NY, XXXVI, 390 pp., 1990; this book earned a grant from the Commission of the European Communities and was reviewed very favorably in 32 Harvard International Law Journal 603 (1991), http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Harvard_Int_Law_J.pdf; and 24 New York University Journal of International Law and Politics 1019 (1992), http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/NYU_JIntLaw&Pol.pdf
- Competition Strategies Must Adapt to the Euro, 17 Amicus Curiae of the Institute of Advanced Legal Studies, London, 27 (May 1999)
- Why Business Executives in Third Countries and Non-participating Member States Should Pay Attention to the Euro, European Financial Services Law 140 (March 1999)
- Some Practical Consequences for Financial Management Brought About by the Euro, 5 European Financial Services Law 187 (1998)
- Impending Conversion to the Euro Prompts New Guidelines from the IRS, New York Law Journal, pg. 1, Friday, October 2, 1998
- The Development of Video Dialtone Networks by Large Phone and Cable Companies and its Impact on their Small Counterparts, 1 Personal Technologies no. 2, 60 (Springer-Verlag London Ltd., 1997)
- Video Dialtone: Its Potential for Social Change, 15 Journal of Business Forecasting 16 (1996)
- Video Dialtone Network Architectures, by Richard Cordero and Jeffery Joles, 15 Journal of Business Forecasting 16 (Summer 1996)
- A Strict but Liberalizing Interpretation of EEC Treaty Articles 67(1) and 68(1) on Capital Movements, 2 Legal Issues of European Integration 39 (1989)

T. The Corruption Chronicles

Subject:	We're #1!
From:	Tom Fitton (info@news.judicialwatch.org)
To:	corderoric@yahoo.com;
Date:	Thursday, August 2, 2012 4:21 PM

Share this message:

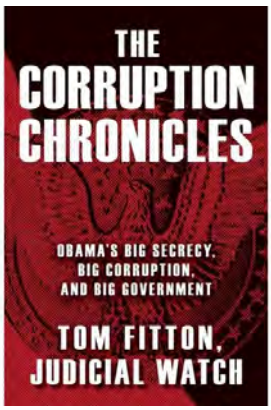

Judicial Watch®
Because no one is above the law!

Dear Judicial Watch Supporter,

We did it. My new book THE CORRUPTION CHRONICLES: Obama's Big Secrecy, Big Corruption, and Big Government (Threshold Editions; July 24, 2012; Hardcover; $26.99), is the Number 1 best-selling nonfiction hardcover book in the country (according to the industry-leading Nielsen's BookScan results for the week ending July 29).

The Judicial Watch book, released on July 24, 2012, has also debuted at #6 on The New York Times Best Sellers Nonfiction Hardcover List (to be published on August 12). Our debuting anywhere on the The New York Times list is great - but #6 is a major achievement for our cause!

The book was also featured in the lead story earlier this week on Bill O'Reilly's The O'Reilly Factor on Fox News Channel.

If you have not already ordered your copy, you can do so by clicking here. And I encourage to help keep us on the New York Times list by ordering extra copies for your family, friends, and colleagues.

a&p:18

Mark Tapscott, Executive Editor, The Washington Examiner said about THE CORRUPTION CHRONICLES, "Tom Fitton has captured his organization's exciting and important journey in THE CORRUPTION CHRONICLES, a highly readable, informative and entertaining look at how Judicial Watch lawyers and investigators have uncovered scandal after scandal..."

I suspect that there are many corrupt politicians of both political parties (such as Barack Obama) who would like this book to disappear - which is all more the reason to push for an even wider release.

Thank you very much for all of your support in helping us to achieve this organizational milestone. Now, let's keep the momentum going and keep THE CORRUPTION CHRONICLES on the bestseller lists for weeks to come!

Thank you.

Tom Fitton
President

MAKE A CONTRIBUTION

Judicial Watch is a non-partisan, educational foundation organized under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue code. Judicial Watch is dedicated to fighting government and judicial corruption and promoting a return to ethics and morality in our nation's public life. To make a tax-deductible contribution in support of our efforts, click here.

WWW.JUDICIALWATCH.ORG
425 3rd St, SW Suite 800
Washington, D.C. 20024

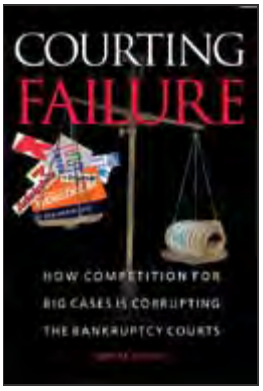

This email was sent to: corderoric@yahoo.com Unsubscribe

a&p:19

Quick Book Search go Site Search Google™ Custom Search go

The University of Michigan Press

search | our books/about us | ordering | contact info | quick links | shopping cart

6 x 9. 336 pgs. 4 charts, 13 tables. (2005)

Paper
978-0-472-03170-2
$27.95S Available
Add to Cart

Ebook Formats
978-0-472-02431-5
Available
Add to Cart

Search

Search this Book's Content

Google Preview

Description
Praise
Look Inside

Subjects Law

Courting Failure

How Competition for Big Cases Is Corrupting the Bankruptcy Courts

Lynn M. LoPucki

An eye-opening account of the widespread and systematic decay of America's bankruptcy courts

Description

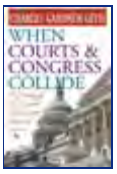

A sobering chronicle of our broken bankruptcy-court system, Courting Failure exposes yet another American institution corrupted by greed, avarice, and the thirst for power.

Lynn LoPucki's eye-opening account of the widespread and systematic decay of America's bankruptcy courts is a blockbuster story that has yet to be reported in the media. LoPucki reveals the profound corruption in the U.S. bankruptcy system and how this breakdown has directly led to the major corporate failures of the last decade, including Enron, MCI, WorldCom, and Global Crossing.

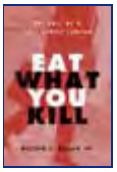

LoPucki, one of the nation's leading experts on bankruptcy law, offers a clear and compelling picture of the destructive power of "forum shopping," in which attorneys choose courts that offer the most favorable outcome for their bankrupt clients. The courts, lured by power and prestige, streamline their requirements and lower their standards to compete for these lucrative cases. The result has been a series of increasingly shoddy reorganizations of major American corporations, proposed by greedy corporate executives and authorized by case-hungry judges.

Lynn LoPucki is the Security Pacific Bank Professor of Law at the University of California, Los Angeles, and a leading expert on U.S. bankruptcy law.

Also of Interest

When Courts and Congress Collide: The Struggle for Control of America's Judicial System

Eat What You Kill: The Fall of a Wall Street Lawyer

A Good Quarrel: America's Top Legal Reporters Share Stories from Inside the Supreme Court

sitemap

Copyright © University of Michigan. University of Michigan Press homepage. ESL/ELT Michigan homepage.

V. Excerpt with a summary of sections (ToC:xxii)

16. Knowing what you know now about what judges do routinely as follows from their own statistics, if you currently have a case in court or next time that you do, are you confident that they will bother to give you a fair and impartial day in court? After all, why should they bother since they know that if they do not you can only complain to their peers, who will dismiss your complaint with no investigation at all? Can you reasonably expect a more receptive treatment from the politicians that recommended, nominated, or confirmed those judges?

4. The sections of the proposal: the evidence of unaccountability and wrongdoing, further investigation, and advocacy of judicial reform

17. Why have journalists failed to investigate the many complaints of judicial wrongdoing? Why have they disregarded even the official judicial statistics? Do journalists not want a Pulitzer Prize anymore? What can take the place today of Watergate's "garden variety burglary" and reveal itself through responsible investigation as the story of judicial wrongdoing that leads all the way to the Supreme Court and the president and the members of Congress that recommend, nominate, and confirm its justices? Can the public outrage force politicians to turn against 'their' judges and undertake effective, lasting judicial accountability and discipline reform? These questions require strategic thinking to be answered and they are the ones that this proposal endeavors to answer.

18. Section(§) A analyzes official statistics of the Federal Judiciary. They reveal that its judges abuse their unaccountable power as their means to pursue their money and other motives in practically unreviewable cases that afford them the opportunity to engage in riskless wrongdoing. These statistics are compelling because they constitute declarations against self-interest.

19. Section B illustrates those statistics with real cases that went from a bankruptcy court at the bottom of the federal judicial hierarchy to the top, the Supreme Court. They are outrageous because they show how wrongdoing pervades even routine legal procedures and administrative processes, runs throughout the hierarchy, and results from and gives rise to its most reassuring enabler: coordination among wrongdoers. Coordination is the most powerful multiplier of wrongdoing's effectiveness and thereby, its attractiveness. It ensures the wrongdoers' collective survival and returns higher profits since there is no need to spend resources in costly measures to avoid detection and punishment. Through coordinated wrongdoing judges have arrogated to themselves a status that no person in a democracy is entitled to: Judges Above the Law.

20. Section C explains how "wrongdoing" and "coordinated wrongdoing" as opposed to "corruption" are notions that encompass more conduct and impose a lower burden of proof to be borne by the proposed investigation of the §B cases. It describes the insidious explicit and implicit forms that coordination takes on. Moreover, it demonstrates the grounds in law and precedent for affirming that in spite of their coordinated wrongdoing, judges are the most vulnerable public officers to even "the appearance of impropriety". All this reliably supports the reasonable expectation for the proposed investigation to be concluded successfully and cost-effectively.

21. Section D lays out the proposal for exposing current judicial wrongdoing: the Follow the money! and Follow the wire! investigations of the §B cases, collectively referred to as DeLano. The DeLano case itself was presided over by Then-Judge Sotomayor of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 2nd Circuit[19g] (CA2) in NY City. She covered up for her lower court peers in that case. Now a justice of the Supreme Court, she will be covered by both her current[cf.144d] and former peers. They must cover up for each other. Any investigation and exposure of their peers' wrongdoing that they tolerated, never mind engaged in themselves, would indict their honesty and the credibility of their commitment to the impartial application of the law; and refute their proclaimed sense of institutional responsibility for the integrity of the Judiciary and of legal process. It would give rise to a flood of motions to review their decisions for bias and conflict of interests. It could incriminate the top politicians that vetted them, had reason to suspect and the duty to investigate, even prosecute or impeach, them upon discovering probable cause to suspect their involvement in wrongdoing, but instead nominated and confirmed them as lifetime officers with the ultimate responsibility for interpreting the Constitution and saying national law. It would be a scandal. Public outrage would demand their resignation. Their agreement, let alone their refusal, to resign and the connivance of top politicians would create an institutional and a constitutional crisis. Thus, exposing J. Sotomayor's wrongdoing can expose coordinated wrongdoing in the Federal Judiciary and create conditions requiring judicial accountability reform. Hence the importance of the investigation. It can start in CA2(jur:106§c) and move on to law firms and financial institutions (jur:103¶232b); the D.A.'s office in Manhattan, NY City[160a], and the NY State Attorney General's Office[160b]; property registries(dcc:10¶18, jur:108¶244); a disciplinary committee[161]; on to Rochester[115b,159d], Albany[160c]; the District of Columbia[64,111], and beyond(jur:102§a).

22. Section E proposes articulated phases for exposing judicial wrongdoing and advocating reform by:
    a. pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting(jur:166¶365);
    b. opening a field of research(jur:131§b) on judges to be conducted by a team of professionals (jur128§4) as part of a multidisciplinary academic and business venture(jur:119§1);
    c. teaching The DeLano Case Course based on its study plan and Syllabus(dcc:18§§D-F; 23);
    d. creating a for-profit institute(jur:130§5) of judicial unaccountability reporting and advocacy (155§e) of legislated(158§§6-7) accountability reform with citizen participation(160§8);
    e. promoting the development of a national movement(jur:164§9) of a people that hold as the foundation of their democratic government their right to Equal Justice Under Law.
23. Section F offers to present this proposal: to lay out the available evidence of judicial unaccountability and wrongdoing; propose judicial unaccountability reporting and further investigation; and describe the multidisciplinary academic and business venture that advocates judicial reform.

5. From the initial presentation of the evidence to the triggering of history!

24. The above presentation can foreshadow the initial public presentation covered by the media. It can be made at a press conference or at another public event. For instance, the presenter can secure a journalism school's agreement to join his or her investigative effort as an academic project (dcc:1) and/or have him or her make the presentation as the keynote speech at the school's job fair or commencement attended by recruiters and editors from across the U.S. or covered by the media. In turn, they are likely to disseminate the presenter's statements and investigate them further. This can launch a Watergate-like generalized and first-ever media investigation of wrongdoing in the Federal Judiciary and then in the state judiciaries. It can lead to reform that holds judges accountable. It starts with pioneering JUDICIAL UNACCOUNTABILITY REPORTING.
25. That chain of events is statistically realistic and commercially promising[4]: 2,021,875 new cases were added to the pending ones in the federal courts in FY10; and the comparable figure in the state courts for 2007 was 47.3 million![5] Since there are at least two parties to every case and annually 50 million new cases are filed in all courts, a minimum of 100 million people out of a population of over 300 million[6] go or are brought to court every year. They are added to the parties to pending cases. Additional scores of millions of people are affected during litigation and thereafter: friends and family, colleagues, clients, creditors, employees, shareholders, class action mem-bers, the stores that they patronize less or not anymore for lack of money, those who must bear lower protections or higher insurance premiums to cover money judgments or litigation costs, etc.…

 Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com, 2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500, tel. (718)827-9521

W. Developing a platform by making an offer to professional schools

Dr. Cordero has seized on what seems to be an opportunity to market to 201 American law schools, http://www.abanet.org/legaled/approvedlawschools/alpha.html, not just his manuscript's research, but also his proposal to use it as the basis for a multidisciplinary academic(jur:128§4) and business venture(a&p:9§E). That opportunity is found in law schools' dire financial situation due to dwindling enrollment; a glut of unemployed lawyers burdened with academic debts, http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Legal_news.pdf >Ln:157-175; and an increasing number of people who represent themselves in court as a result of unaffordable attorney's fees in a bleak economy[64].

Hence, he is laying out to law schools a new economic model for financing their operation(a&p:24): They can leverage their knowledge of our judicial system and their lawyering skills to explain to the public the reasons underlying its ever-growing dissatisfaction with that system: Judges disregard people's rights and the rule of law because nobody holds them accountable; as a result, they abuse their decision-making power to engage risklessly in wrongdoing. Unaccountable power is the hallmark of 'absolute power, which corrupts absolutely'[28].

The market of dissatisfied users of our judicial system is huge given that more than 100 million people are directly involved in the more than 50 million new lawsuits filed every year[4, 5], which are added to the scores of millions pending in court. That market is increased by all those people who indirectly use the system because they too are affected by the decisions of wrongdoing judges and the dereliction of their duty as public servants to administer Equal Justice Under Law. It follows that the litigants' employees, customers, friends and relatives, suppliers, etc., just as the rest of the public are also part of that market.

Law schools can turn the market that all these people form into a novel source of income by accepting Dr. Cordero's proposal to pioneer the field of judicial unaccountability reporting (jur:97§D). Then they can extend the scope of the multidisciplinary academic and business venture(jur:119§1) by advocating judicial accountability and discipline reform(jur:130§§5-8).

Law schools constitute only the first sector of this platform to be contacted. Given the nature of the proposed research(jur:131§b), other schools will be contacted subsequently, including schools of journalism, business, and computer and political science. All of them form a very enticing platform because their members are faculty who currently are and students who after completing their studies will be high earners with high ambitions and enormous drive to pursue them. An entrepreneurial agent and Dr. Cordero(a&p:24; ol:54) can turn this platform and the underlying proposal into a very engaging and profitable multidisciplinary academic and business venture.

Reading about law schools' dire financial situation, turning such news into the rationale for a business proposal, and viewing in it the foundation for a platform reveal Dr. Cordero's business approach to his research and writing career. Likewise, his capacity to do so reveals that he is in natural harmony with the approach of the best literary agents, who not only place a book with a publisher, but also help nurture an author's career to create a business from which all parties benefit.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

2014

«Address_form» «FirstName» «LastName»«Suffix» «Law_school_name» «Letter_street» «E_mail» «Letter_city_state» «Phone_fax»

Dear Dean «Greeting_name»,

This is a proposal for a multidisciplinary academic and business venture that can contribute to resolving a critical problem faced by law schools across the country: a dire financial situation due to dwindling student enrollment. The venture would allow your School to attract the favorable attention of law school applicants because it would attract that of the nation as a result of the School's defense of its interest in the integrity of our legal system: Over 100 million people are involved in the more than 50 million new federal and state lawsuits filed every year(*>jur:7§5).

The venture is based on official statistics, reports, and writings of the Federal Judiciary – the model for the state judiciaries– and its judges analyzed in my study Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing: Pioneering a novel and profitable field(jur:1). Lawyers in our adversarial legal system who zealously present both sides of every story will recognize that the concept of "free market of ideas", developed by JJ. Holmes and Brennan, is also properly applied to judges' wrongdoing. The venture focuses on for-profit(119§1) teaching(21§§A-B) and sale of research(102§4; 131§b) products and services exposing the enabling conditions and consequences of this troubling fact: In the 224 years since the creation of that Judiciary in 1789, the number of federal judges –2,131 were in office on 30sep11[13]– impeached and removed is 8![14] Such irremovability is due to and results in unaccountability that leads to riskless and profitable wrongdoing.

The nation will look up to the school that has the courage to exposes such wrongdoing (jur:5§3) to defend it from what those who have quashed the founding principle of our democracy "Nobody is Above the Law" have inflicted on it: denial of Equal Justice Under Law. Prospective students will be drawn to that school because its offering of groundbreaking knowledge and research skills will give them an edge when they hunt for a job in a legal market with ever-fewer openings for lawyers and ever more pro ses[64]. Your school can become the leader of a new type of business-savvy educational and research center(130§5) that finances itself(156§f) by:

1. teaching the study(dcc:1; jur:153§c), furthering the research(131§b), and attracting students from journalism, business, and political and computer science schools to venture-related tuition-charging courses(dcc:10) as well as faculty, thus lowering their salary demands(128§4);
2. pioneering the field of judicial unaccountability reporting and reform advocacy(a&p:9§E);
3. further researching official judicial statistics(jur:131§1) to allow their use in briefs and judicial reform advocacy(155§e) similar to the pioneering use by Then-Attorney Brandeis of social studies data in briefs to the Supreme Court that became famous as "Brandeis briefs";
4. using Information Technology to develop software that applies linguistic and literary forensics to audit the writings of judges and others in order to establish their track records and profiles, which can reveal their outcome-determinative values and biases(jur:136§§6-7); etc.

Thus, I suggest that we discuss this proposal with a view to my making to you, your faculty and students, and others a presentation(171§F; dcc:7) of a venture that offers an innova-tive model for financing a law school, prioritizing empirical research in the public interest, and becoming nationally recognized as a Champion of Justice. So I look forward to hearing from you.

Dare trigger history! (dcc:11) Sincerely, s/

Y. A message from LinkedIn augurs the development of a broad platform

LinkedIn sent Dr. Cordero and email under the subject line: Congratulations! You have one of the top 5% most viewed LinkedIn profiles for 2012.

It should be noted that Dr. Cordero posted his profile on LinkedIn on or around Thursday, June 14, 2012, when he focused it on his work on his manuscript's subject matter, namely, judicial unaccountability and consequent riskless wrongdoing; http://www.linkedin.com/pub/dr-richard-cordero-esq/4b/8ba/50.

LinkedIn's ranking of the viewership of Dr. Cordero's profile may be reliable because LinkedIn is not using it to induce him to pay it to upgrade his account to any type of enhanced account. In fact, LinkedIn is not asking him to do anything, perhaps in recognition of the practical wisdom in the saying 'if it ain't broke, don't fix it'. Apart from fostering his goodwill toward LinkedIn, its email appears to be just for his information. He copies it below for yours.

Indeed, in the body of the email, LinkedIn states: LinkedIn now has 200 million members. Thanks for playing a unique part in our community!

LinkedIn is not implying –much less Dr. Cordero– that 5% of 200 million people viewed his profile, just that his profile is among the top 5% of LinkedIn's accounts ranked by viewership.

Nevertheless, to the extent that such membership number is reliable, it can give agents and publishers a third-party's impartial indication of the interest out there among professionals, who constitute the bulk of LinkedIn's membership, in the subject matter of Dr. Cordero's manuscript. Professionals are more likely than non-professionals to pay to buy his book and to be persuasive when making any kind of recommendation about it.

You could argue that interest when pitching his manuscript to publishers or to booksellers, and when persuading bookstore and talkshow hosts and media people to book Dr. Cordero to make book presentations(jur:171§F) or to interview him on their shows and newscasts or for their written reviews of his book.

Likewise, agents and publishers can reasonably find this LinkedIn email to be a source of confidence in investing their time and effort to examine carefully the financial(a&p:1/3rd para., 156§f), public interest(jur:119§1), and reputational(jur:7§5) potential of Dr. Cordero's proposed multidisciplinary academic and business venture(a&p:9§E) based on his manuscript Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing: Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting(jur:1), supported by his academic course(dcc:1) and creative works(cw:1).

Dare trigger history! (dcc:11)

Gmail by Google

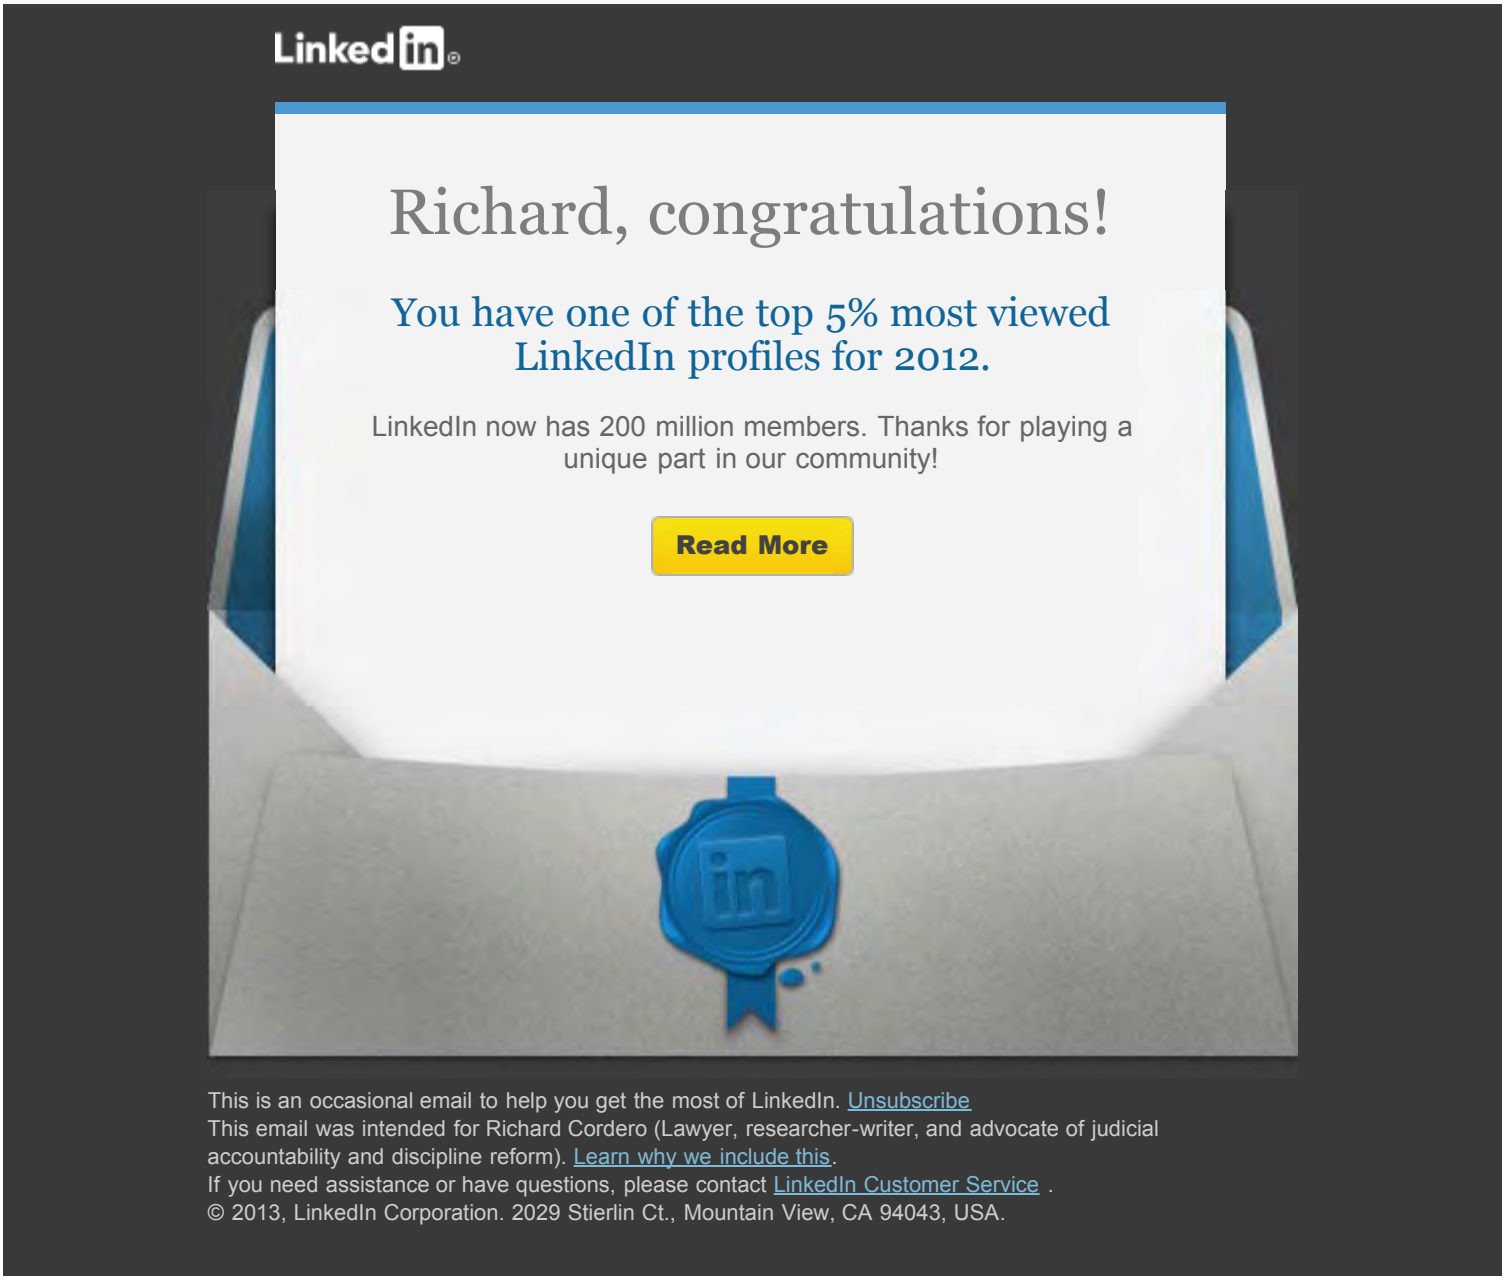

Richard Cordero <dr.richard.cordero.esq@gmail.com>

Congratulations! You have one of the top 5% most viewed LinkedIn profiles for 2012.

1 message

LinkedIn <linkedin@e.linkedin.com> Thu, Feb 7, 2013 at 4:02 PM
Reply-To: LinkedIn <donotreply@e.linkedin.com>
To: dr.richard.cordero.esq@gmail.com

LinkIn now has 200 million members.

This is an occasional email to help you get the most of LinkedIn. Unsubscribe
This email was intended for Richard Cordero (Lawyer, researcher-writer, and advocate of judicial accountability and discipline reform). Learn why we include this.
If you need assistance or have questions, please contact LinkedIn Customer Service .
© 2013, LinkedIn Corporation. 2029 Stierlin Ct., Mountain View, CA 94043, USA.

LinkedIn

Visit LinkedIn.com

Hi Richard,

Recently, LinkedIn reached a new milestone: 200 million members. But this isn't just our achievement to celebrate — it's also yours.

I want to personally thank you for being part of our community. Your journey is part of our journey, and we're delighted and humbled when we hear stories of how our members are using LinkedIn to connect, learn, and find opportunity.

All of us come to work each day focused on our shared mission of connecting the world's professionals to make them more productive and successful. We're excited to show you what's next.

With sincere thanks,

Deep Nishar
Senior Vice President, Products & User Experience

P.S. What does 200 million look like? See the infographic

A stat this delightful deserves to be shared

Hurray! I have one of the top 5% most viewed @LinkedIn profiles for 2012. http://www.linkedin.com/pub/profile/4b/8ba/050

Share

LinkedIn Corporation ©2013. LinkedIn, the LinkedIn logo and InMail are registered trademarks of LinkedIn Corporation in the United States and/or other countries. Other brands and names are the property of their respective owners. Unless otherwise noted, data presented is based on internal LinkedIn analytics. 06-LCS-003 0709
User Agreement | Privacy Policy | Use of this site is subject to express terms of use, which prohibits commercial use of this site.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com
Judicial Discipline Reform

Exposing Judges' Unaccountability
and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing

Pioneering
the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting

http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/OL/DrRCordero-Honest_Jud_Advocates.pdf

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

as of 14apr14

Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing

Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting

This study analyses official statistics, reports, and statements of the Federal Judiciary showing that its judges are unaccountable and their operation is pervaded by secrecy; consequently, they risklessly do wrong in self-interest and to people's detriment, which calls for reform.

In the last 225 years since the creation of the Federal Judiciary in 1789, only 8 of its judges have been removed from the bench[14]. They hold all their adjudicative, policy-making, administrative, and disciplinary meetings behind closed doors and never appear before a press conference(Lsch:2§A). They act with impunity. The evidence reveals their motive, means, and opportunity(jur:21§§1-3) to engage in financial and non-financial wrongdoing(jur:5§3) by abusing power to deny due process, disregard the law, and decide by reasonless summary orders[66]. They have hatched a system of wrongdoing so routine, widespread, and coordinated(88§a-c) among themselves[213] and between them and insiders[169], e.g., running a bankruptcy fraud scheme(65§§1-3), as to have turned wrongdoing into their Judiciary's institutionalized modus operandi(49§4).

The presentation(97§1) of this evidence and of the findings of its further investigation (100§§3-4) can outrage(83§§2-3) the national public and set off a Watergate-like(4¶¶10-14) generalized media investigation(ol:55). Its findings can cause the public to demand official investigations of the judges and the top politicians(77§§5-6) conniving with them. The official investigators, exercising their subpoena, search & seizure, contempt, and penal powers and holding public hearings, will be able to make even more outrageous findings. A more deeply outraged public will force politicians to undertake reform that will treat judges as what they are: public servants hired to perform a service and accountable for their performance to their masters, We the People.

Public support for the investigation of the Federal Judiciary will embolden journalists and officials to investigate state judiciaries and hold their judges accountable. Public demand for judicial reform(158§§6-7) can include the establishment of citizen boards of judicial accountability and discipline(160§8). Such boards can constitute the first mechanism through which the people conduct 'reverse surveillance'(Lsch:2) on their government. The ensuing new People-government relation can foster the formation of a Tea Party-like national civic movement(164§9) that turns government effectively ever more of, by, and for the people: the People's Sunrise.

Journalists, politicians, and advocates of honest judiciaries thinking strategically by applying dynamic analysis of harmonious and conflicting interests(Lsch:14§§b-c) can be rewarded by disseminating and further investigating the evidence presented here. They can:

a) cause one or more justices to resign, as they did J. Fortas in 1969(92§d), and win a Pulitzer Prize;

b) run on a winning platform that promises to hold all public servants accountable; and

c) be recognized as the People's Champions of Justice who brought down Judges Above the Law.

Dr. Cordero offers(Lsch:1; ol:54) to present(Lsch:9) the evidence of judges' wrongdoing and show how you and your colleagues can join his professional team to further investigate it; and how to develop the novel news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting through his proposed multidisciplinary(jur:131§b) academic(128§4) and business(119§§1-3) venture. The latter can begin with two unique stories(ol:55) involving top officers(63), an investigative plan(66), and the potential to dominate the mid-term election campaign(70) and beyond. So…

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11)…and you may enter it.

Table of Contents

Summary

I. Topical Index ..... ToC: iii

II. Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing

Introduction: The goal is not just to expose wrongdoing, but also to trigger history! jur:1

A. Means, motive, and opportunity of federal judges to engage in, and so to coordinate their, wrongdoing as to make it their institutionalized modus operandi and render their Judiciary a safe haven for wrongdoing jur:21

B. In re DeLano, Judge Sonia Sotomayor presiding, and her appointment to the Supreme Court by President Barak Obama: evidence of a bankruptcy fraud scheme and her concealment of assets dismissed with knowing indifference and willful blindness as part of the Federal Judiciary's institutionalized modus operandi jur:65

C. Nature of wrongdoing and strategy to expose wrongdoing judges and their Federal Judiciary jur:81

D. Multimedia public denunciation and investigation jur:97

E. Multidisciplinary academic and business venture and creation of institute of judicial unaccountability reporting and legislated reform advocacy jur:119

F. Offer to present evidence of wrongdoing and plan jur:171

G. Graphs jur:9

III. Summarizing articles for specific audiences and purposes ..... jur:ii

IV. Initiative to join forces with the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists ol:1

V. Offer to make a presentation to expose judges' wrongdoing and propose a plan of action to achieve legislated judicial reform Lsch:1

VI. The DeLano Case Course and the Organization of the Public Presentation dcc:1

VII. Information for Literary Agents and Book Publishers ..... a&p:1

VIII. Blurbs and Synopses of Creative Writings cw:1

© 2012 Richard Cordero. All rights reserved. The submission or availability of any link to this file –understood as a digital unit, a unit of content, a document, or any part of any of them– does not grant and does not intend to grant to any person or entity any right or license to publish this file. The link is only intended to facilitate access to the file. The link itself may be published and redistributed.

I. Topical Index

1. Abstract of manuscript ..... ToC:xxiiiii
2. Executive summary of sections ..... ToC:xxiiiv
3. Politicians and their staff ..... ii, xxvii
    a. Electoral interest in becoming The Champion of Justice ..... xxviii, xxxiv§4
    b. Key points for the public presentation of evidence of judges' wrongdoing ..... xvii§§B-D
    c. The most enduring and substantial legacy: To trigger history! ..... 7§5 4. Journalists ..... xlv§§E-I, ol:1,37
    a. The problem, objective, and strategy ..... xix, xviii
    b. Breaking the news at a multimedia presentation ..... xxxiv§4, 97§1
    c. Setting off a Watergate-like generalized media investigation ..... xviii, ... 4¶¶10-14, 100§3
    d. Outline of the investigation ..... xxxii§B; xlviii, 102§4 5. The people ol:2
    a. Making their point at political meetings and handouts for doing it ..... xix, ... xxiv, xxvi
    b. Novel strategy for exposing judicial wrongdoing ..... xxix, xxxix, 83§§-2-3 6. Objective evidence of judges' wrongdoing ..... Lsch:2§A
    a. Statistical evidence; further research ..... 21§§1-3; 131§b
    b. Forms of wrongdoing ..... 5§3, 88§a-d
    c. The story: From concealment of assets to P. Obama, J. Sotomayor & the SCt ..... xxxv, 65§B
7. Academic and business venture ..... 119§1
    a. Offer to present the investigation and the venture ..... 171§F; dcc:7
    b. The DeLano Case Course, with week to week classwork Syllabus ..dcc:1, dcc:23

II. Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing

Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting

jur:page#

Introduction: The goal is not just to expose wrongdoing, but also to trigger history!..... jur:1

1. The enabling conditions of judges' unaccountability and wrongdoing 1
2. The media's failure to report on judges' wrongdoing 2
3. Sampler of the nature and gravity of judges' wrongdoing 5
4. The sections of the proposal: the evidence of unaccountability and wrongdoing, further investigation, and advocacy of judicial reform 6
5. From the initial presentation of the evidence to the triggering of history! 7

A. Means, motive, and opportunity of federal judges to engage in, and so to coordinate their, wrongdoing as to make it their institutionalized modus operandi and render their Judiciary a safe haven for wrongdoing 21

1. The means of unaccountable power 21
   a. Only 8 federal judges impeached and removed in over 224 years: de facto unimpeachability and irremovability 21
   b. Systematic dismissal of 99.82% of complaints against judges and up to 100% of denials of petitions to review dismissals 24
   c. Complaint dismissal without any investigation constitutes automatic abusive self-conferral of the wrongful professional benefit of immunity from discipline 25
   d. Abusive self-granted immunization for even malicious and corrupt acts 26
   e. All meetings held behind closed doors; no press conferences held 27
2. The corruptive motive of money 27
3. Opportunity for wrongdoing in millions of practically unreviewable cases 28
   a. In the bankruptcy and district courts 28
      1) The power to remove clerks without cause allows judges to abuse them as executioners of their wrongdoing orders 30
         a) Provisions in the Judicial Code, 28 U.S.C.[40], enabling removal without cause 31
      2) Congress's 1979 finding of "cronyism" between bankruptcy judges and lawyers and its failed attempt to eliminate it 32
      3) Congress's finding in 2005 of "absence of effective oversight" in the bankruptcy system shows that pre-1979 "cronyism" has not changed, which explains how a bankruptcy petition mill brings in the money and a bankruptcy fraud scheme grabs it 35
      4) The incompatibility of the trustee's long list of duties with allowing him to amass thousands of cases if his overseers intend to require his discharge of them conscientiously and competently 37

5) The trustee's interest in developing a bankruptcy petition mill and the judges' in running a bankruptcy fraud scheme 39

6) The economic harm that a bankruptcy fraud scheme inflicts on litigants, the rest of the public, and the economy 42

b. In the circuit courts 43

1) Summary orders, «not for publication» and «not precedential» decisions 43

2) Systematic denial of review by the whole court of decisions of its panels 45

3) De facto unreviewable bankruptcy decisions 46

c. In the Supreme Court 47

1) Capricious, wasteful, and privacy-invading rules bar access to review in the supreme court 47

2) Unreviewability of cases and unaccountability of judges breeds riskless contempt for the law and the people 48

4. Wrongdoing as the institutionalized modus operandi of the class of federal judges, not only the failing of individual rogue judges 49

a. The absence of an independent and objective inspector general of the Federal Judiciary allows the judiciary to escape oversight and be in effect above constitutional checks and balances 49

b. Individual fraud deteriorates the moral fiber of people until it is so widespread and routine as to become the institutionalized way of doing business 50

c. A class of wrongdoing priests protected by the Catholic Church's cover up makes credible the charge of a class of judges protected by the Federal Judiciary's cover up 52

d. Life-tenured, in practice unimpeachable district and circuit judges and Supreme Court justices are fundamentally equals 54

e. Enforcing class loyalty: using a stick to subdue a judge threatening to expose their peers' wrongdoing 56

1) Not reappointing, banishing, 'gypsying', and removing a bankruptcy or magistrate judge 56

2) Ostracizing 'temporarily' a district or circuit judge to inhospitable or far-flung places 58

f. The carrot of reputational benefit among equals: rewarding class solidarity with an at-pleasure or term-limited appointment 60

g. The wrongful social benefit of acceptance in the class of judges and avoidance of pariah status due to disloyal failure to cover up peer wrongdoing rewards complicit collegiality over principled conduct.....62

5. From general statistics of the Federal Judiciary to particular cases that illustrate how wrongdoing runs throughout it and harms people 62

B. In re DeLano, Judge Sonia Sotomayor presiding, and her appointment to the Supreme Court by President Barak Obama: evidence of a bankruptcy fraud scheme and her concealment of assets dismissed with knowing indifference and willful blindness as part of the Federal Judiciary's institutionalized modus operandi..... 65

1. Justiceship Nominee Judge Sotomayor was suspected of concealing assets by The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico 65

2. Delano illustrates how concealment of assets is operated through a bankruptcy fraud scheme enabled by bankruptcy, district, and circuit judges, and Supreme Court justices.....66

3. Then-Judge Sotomayor's concealment of her own assets reveals wrongdoing as part of the modus operandi of peers and their administrative appointees, which requires justices to keep covering up their own and their peers' wrongdoing.....68

   a. Judge Sotomayor refused to investigate a bankruptcy officer's bankruptcy petition, though suspicious per se 68

   b. Then-Judge Sotomayor withheld the incriminating DeLano case from the Senate Judiciary Committee so as not to scuttle her confirmation 69

4. The investigation of other justices for reciprocally covering up their wrongdoing.....71

   a. Justice Elena Kagan: under suspicion of prejudice toward a law, but without a historic opportunity to have covered for judges 71

   b. Justice Clarence Thomas: his concealment of his wife's assets by filing for years deceptive financial disclosure reports 72

   c. The justices' historic, statutory, and institutional duty to state their peers' "error" of partiality and disregard for legality.....74

   d. Circuit Justice Ginsburg and her peer justices and judges have reciprocally known and covered up their partiality to each other and disregard for legality, specifically those of Judge Sotomayor 75

5. The investigation of what the president and his aides knew about Then-Judge Sotomayor's wrongdoing and when they knew it.....77

6. The senators received documents allowing them to suspect Then-Judge Sotomayor of concealment of assets and alerting them to her withholding of DeLano, but did nothing about it 78

C. The DeLano-Judge Sotomayor case as the basis of a journalistic story national in scope and impact but rendered manageable as an investigative project by key focusing notions 81

1. Neither Congress nor the Executive just as neither law professors and schools nor the media investigate the Federal Judiciary....81
2. A novel strategy: to investigate a story that can provoke in the national public action-stirring outrage at judicial wrongdoing and thus set in motion reformative change in the Federal Judiciary....83
3. The DeLano-J. Sotomayor case as the basis of a journalistic story revealing individual and coordinated judicial wrongdoing that can provoke action-stirring outrage in the public....85
4. Judicial unaccountability reporting rendered promising and cost-effective by its reasonable goal: to show to the public individual and coordinated wrongdoing of judges rather than prove in court to the judges' peers judicial corruption....86
    a. Wrongdoing and coordinated wrongdoing: broader notions easier to apply to judges and others 88
    b. Knowing indifference: irresponsibility that gradually degenerates into complicit collegiality....90
    c. Willful ignorance or blindness: reckless issue of a blank permit to do any wrong 91
    d. Impropriety and its appearance: the widest and tested notion, which already forced and again can force a justice to resign....92
    e. The value of third-parties insiders of the judiciary in exposing the coordinated wrongdoing of the core insiders, the judges....93

D. Multimedia public presentation made by the judicial unaccountability reporters of i) the available evidence of judicial wrongdoing and the DeLano-J. Sotomayor story; ii) their own findings through their Follow the money! and Follow the wire! investigations; and iii) the I accuse! denunciation..... 97

1. Multimedia public presentation at a press conference, a talkshow, a student job fair, a commencement, a press club meeting, a symposium at the end of an investigative course 97

2. The Emile Zola I accuse!-like denunciation of coordinated judicial wrongdoing 98

3. A Watergate-like generalized investigation of the DeLano-J. Sotomayor national story 100

4. The proposed two-pronged investigation by competent, principled, and ambitious investigative reporters of the DeLano-J. Sotomayor story: the Follow the money! and Follow the wire! investigation.....102

    a. The Follow the money! investigation 102

    b. The Follow the wire! investigation.....105

    c. Field investigation on deep background: the search for Deep Throat.....106

    d. Library investigation 108

    e. Investigation by appealing on the Internet and social media to the public 111

        1) Accounts of dealings with the Judiciary.....111

        2) Questionnaires as precursors of a statistically rigorous public opinion poll.....111

        3) Copies of past and future complaints against judges made public as an exercise of freedom of speech and of the press and of the right to assemble to petition for a redress of grievances.....111

E. Multidisciplinary academic and business venture to promote judicial unaccountability reporting and judicial accountability and discipline reform study and advocacy 119

1. The marketing premise of the venture's business plan: market behavior of people outraged by judges' wrongdoing 119

2. The brochure on judicial wrongdoing: conceptual framework, illustrative stories, local versions, and its templates for facilitating people's judicial wrongdoing storytelling and enhancing the stories' comparative analysis 122

    a. Template on detection and investigative method and its application to all those on the ring of wrongdoers 123

    b. Template to facilitate writing brief stories susceptible of comparative analysis 123

    c. Templates to request media coverage and to file judicial wrongdoing complaints.....124

3. Collection of stories for the Annual Report on Judicial Unaccountability and Wrongdoing in America 126

4. The set of professional skills needed in the multidisciplinary team of the academic and business venture 128

a. Venture activities requiring professional skills 128
b. University students as high quality assistants to the venture team 129
5. Creation of an institute of judicial unaccountability reporting and reform advocacy 130
a. Purpose 130
b. As researcher 131
1) Analysis of the official judicial statistics 131
2) Research and development in Information Technology 132
3) Judges to be the first subjects to be audited and profiled 132
4) The nature of judicial wrongdoing 133
5) Main uses and users 134
6) Auditing a judge's writings 136
a) Statistical analysis for auditing a judge's decisions 136
(1) Enhancing the usefulness of statistics on a judge through comparison with judicial baselines 138
(2) The archetype of judicial performance and the judge's decision auditing model 139
b) Linguistic and literary forensic auditing 140
(1) Linguistic auditing 141
(2) Linguistic forensic auditing 142
(3) Literary forensic auditing 142
(a) Revealing the author's character 143
(b) Detecting the author's implicit message 143
7) Judge profiling software 145
8) A judge's fairness and impartiality appearance coefficient 147
9) The ratio and coefficients concerning extra-judicial activity and the patterns of time-consuming activities 147
10) Product's arc of operation: input data > computerized analysis >output statistics 150
c. As educator 153
d. As publisher 154
e. As leading advocate 155
f. As for-profit venture 156

g. As seeker and maker of grants 156
6. Establishment of an inspector general for the Federal Judiciary 158
7. Legislative proposal to ensure judicial accountability and discipline 158
8. Creation of a citizen board of judicial accountability and discipline 160
   a. Qualifications for membership 160
   b. Nominating entity 160
   c. Open and transparent operation 161
   d. Board powers 162
   e. Review of board decisions 163
9. The precedent for considering realistic that those who expose judges' wrongdoing and call for their accountability and the reform of their judiciary may develop into of a broadly based civic movement that demands Equal Justice Under Law 164
   a. The Tea Party 164
   b. Occupy Wall Street 165
   c. Bank Transfer Day 165
   d. From pioneers of judicial unaccountability reporting to a judicial reform institute to a civic movement 166

F. Offer to present the proposal for a process of exposing judges' unaccountability and wrongdoing that launches judicial unaccountability reporting and reform advocacy 171

1. How the public presentation that pioneers judicial unaccountability reporting can be followed by a series of events and thus trigger history! 172

G. Graphs, tables, maps, and photos

1. Graph: Fraudulent coordination among the main players in the bankruptcy system 9
2. Federal judges' systematic dismissal without investigation of 99.82% of complaints against them in the 1oct96-30sep08 12-year period 10
3. 2nd Circuit Judicial Council's and Judge Sotomayor's denial of 100% of petitions for review of systematicallydismissed misconduct complaints against their peers and 0 judge disciplined in the reported 12 years 11
4. Graphs showing the decrease in the number of complaints filed against federal judges with the increase in the number of cases files in federal courts

jur:

and pointing to the manipulation of statistics 12

5. Summary of the DeLanos' income of $291,470 + mortgage receipts of $382,187=$671,567, and credit card borrowing of $98,092, unaccounted for and inconsistent with their sworn declaration accompanying their bankruptcy relief petition that at filing time they only had "in hand and on account" $535 15
6. Table: 12 requests for documents by the creditor and 12 denials by CA2 in DeLano, Then-Judge Sotomayor presiding, despite every single document requested having been denied by the bankruptcy and district courts....16
7. U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in New York City....17
   a. Map 17
   b. Picture....18
8. Map: the New York County District Attorney's Office....19
9. Interactive map: court locator for the federal courts 20

III. Summarizing articles for specific audiences and purposes

jur:

1. Letter of Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq., to politicians, journalists, and advocates of honest judiciaries to propose that they present to the public objective evidence of judges' wrongdoing and launch a process of judicial accountability and discipline reform ii

   Note on Correcting Links Broken at the End of a Line; and Endnotes iii
2. Proposed Key Points....xvii
3. Who or what caused The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico xviii
4. Overview for Talkshow Hosts, Journalists, and Anchors xx
   A. The problem....xx
   B The objective xx
   C. The strategy....xx
      1) The premise for exposing outside the courts the judges' wrongdoing xix
      2) Format of the strategy: public exposure >outrage >judicial reform xx
      3) Overcoming the media's fear of exposing judges' wrongdoing....xx
      4) The opportunity for causing politicians to launch a Watergate-like generalized competitive media investigation of judicial wrongdoing xx
      5) The enticing scoop: Justice Sotomayor's concealed assets and President Obama's lying about her integrity xxi
   D. What talkshow hosts, journalists, and anchors can do now xxiii
5. What You Can Do To Expose Judges' Wrongdoing That Harms You and the Rest of the People and Set In Motion A Process of Judicial Accountability and Discipline Reform xxiv

A. Judges' unaccountability lead irresistibly to riskless wrongdoing xxiv
B. The strategy to expose unaccountable federal judges' wrongdoing xxiv
C. What you can do to persuade a national figure to expose judges' wrongdoing xxiv
6. Advocates of Judicial Accountability and Discipline Reform xxvi
7. Proposal To a Prominent Politician or Organization to Make the Initial Presentation xxviii
A. The wrongdoing evidence to be presented xxviii
B. The initial public presentation of the available evidence xxviii
C. Strategy based on a reasonable expectation of how events will unfold xxviii
D. Initial presenter: prominent politician or personality covered by media xxviii
8. A Novel Strategy For Taking Action Against Wrongdoing Judges xxix
A. Failed strategy: fighting in court judges' wrongdoing xxix
1) Study of judges based on original research and litigation experience xxix
B. New strategy: out-of-court, investigators' self-interest, and public outrage xxix
1) The media in search of a Pulitzer Prize-worthy scoop xxix
2) Public outrage at judges' unaccountability and consequent wrongdoing xxx
3) Politicians yielding to public pressure xxx
4) Judicial wrongdoing exposed by self-interested politicians xxx
C. Prioritizing judicial reform over politics xxx
D. Embracing the new strategy to pursue the same commitment to justice xxxi
1) Feasible steps for implementing knowledgeable and realistic strategy xxxi
2) Reasonably expected rewards xxxi
9. Proposal To Journalists For An Investigation xxxii
A. My legal research and litigation experience xxxii
B. Proposal for an investigation of wrongdoing by J. Sotomayor & P. Obama xxxii
1) Federal judges protect themselves: 99.82% of complaints are dismissed xxxii
2) Money & politics: J. Sotomayor's asset concealment & P. Obama's cover-up xxxiii
3) Life-tenured justice & nominating president: stakes higher than in Watergate xxxiv
4) Wrongdoing evidence initially presented by VIP at media-permeated event xxxiv
10. The DeLano-Judge Sotomayor story: A judge-run bankruptcy fraud scheme covered up by a judge concealing assets of her own xxxv
11. The Salient Facts of the DeLano Case xxxviii
12. A Strategy for Advocates of Public Integrity To Jointly Bring The Issue of Corruptive Power, Money, and Secrecy in Politics and The Judiciary To National Attention and Lead to

Corrective Action xxxix

A. Judges' wrongdoing is more pervasive and outrageous than that of politicians xxxix

B. The statistics show how pervasisve and outrageous judges' wrongdoing is xxxix

C. Virtuous circle: public outrage >incentive for media investigation >outrageous findings xl

D. Judges' wrongdoing is due to corruptive power, money, and secrecy xli

E. Launching the investigation through the initial presentation of the evidence of judges' wrongdoing xlii

F. Thinking strategically and working together for public integrity xlii

13. The reliance of the proposal to expose judges' unaccountability and consequent riskless wrongdoing on STRATEGIC THINKING to formulate and implement its proposed action; the SELF-INTEREST of politicians and journalists to advance it unwittingly; and HISTORIC PERSPECTIVE to set judicial reform in a series of millennial impossibles that became realities xliii

Table of Contents xliii

14. Questions for An Investigation of National Interest by Principled and Ambitious Journalists and Politicians xlviii

Endnotes xlix

IV. Initiative to join forces with the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists to take advantage of its unique Follow the money! expertise

15. Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq., to Mr. Gerard Ryle, Director, International Consortium of Investigative Journalists; 10may13 ..... ol:1

16. How You Can Contribute to Exposing Judges' Wrongdoing In Light Of Offshore Leaks' Revelations Of Financial Wrongdoing; 11may13 ..... ol:2

A. Offshore Leaks: the files and report on tax evasion and money laundering ol:2

B. Judges' wrongdoing: demonstrated by a study and suspected by top journalists ol:2

C. How the Federal Judiciary has become a safe haven for wrongdoing ol:2

D. Exposing judges' financial wrongdoing will outrage the public lead to exposing their non-financial wrongdoing ol:3

E. My proposal to Offshore Leaks journalists and your contribution to their accepting it and exposing wrongdoing judges ol:3

F. Material and moral rewards for contributors to exposing wrongdoing judges ol:3

G. Email addresses for you to contribute your support for the joint publication, investigation, and venture proposal ol:4

17. Strategic thinking and historical perspective to make the media strategy work in pursuit of honest judiciaries; 15may13 ..... ol:6

Table of Contents ol:6

18. THE TRIFECTA OF DISTRUST In the context of the IRS Scandal and the Benghazi Scandal the investigation of the suspicion raised by The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico that President Obama's first nominee to the Supreme Court, Then-Judge Sotomayor, had concealed assets can have the gravest consequences, including calls for their resignation or impeachment, and the first-ever investigation of the Federal Judiciary; 25may13 ..... ol:11

19. A Call To Anonymous, E. Snowden, J. Assange, and Their Likes To Use Their Expertise Legally, Following ICIJ's Example, To Expose Judges' Financial Wrongdoing Enough to Set Rolling an Investigative Bandwagon Leading to Profound Government Reform that Subjects Public Servants to Increased Accountability to We the People; 4july13 ..... ol:13

A. Two examples of legally exposing coordinated wrongdoing ol:13

5) Woodward and Bernstein of Watergate fame Followed the money! …on shoes ol:13

6) The International Consortium of Investigative Journalists' unique IT expertise in, and knowledge about, exposing financial wrongdoing ol:13

B. A unique story that can expose wrongdoing at the top of government as its institutionalized modus operandi and its harm to the people below ol:14

1) The President's benefit from catering to voters at the cost of saddling the people with a life-tenured dishonest justice ol:14

2) Congress's benefit from neglecting to check on life-tenured judges' admi-nistration of justice to the people to ensure that it is according to law ol:15

3) Judges' unaccountability and their consequent riskless wrongdoing ol:15

C. Thinking strategically to set off a series of events leading to reform ol:15

20. Dr. Cordero to Mr. Edward Snowden, former analyst and then leaker of secret documents of the NSA on secret electronic surveillance; 2aug13 ..... ol:17

A. Proposal for you to make a preemptive move by exposing federal judges' financial wrongdoing and what the President knew about it and when he did ol:17

B. Your initial step to launch a Watergate-like generalized media investigation ol:18

C. Legally exposing coordinated wrongdoing is a realistic proposal ol:19

1) Watergate Woodward and Bernstein Followed the money!…on shoes ol:19

2) The International Consortium of Investigative Journalists' unique IT expertise in, and knowledge about, exposing financial wrongdoing ol:19

D. Exposing judges' interference with communications and the conniving quid pro quo with the Executive: the Follow the wire! investigation ol:19

E. Not just exposing wrongdoing, but a strategy to launch a process of reform ol:20

21. Dr. Cordero to The Guardian Columnist Glenn Greenwald; 29july13 ..... ol:21
22. Dr. Cordero to the Editor of The Guardian, England; 29july13 ..... ol:22
23. Dr. Cordero to the New York Bureau Chief of The Guardian; 29july13 ..... ol:23
24. Dr. Cordero to Frontline Club Founder Vaughan Smith; 29july13 ..... ol:24
25. Dr. Cordero to WeakLeaks Founder Julian Assange, England; 17dec10 ..... ol:25
26. Dr. Cordero to Interfax Group Chairman of the Board and CEO Mikhail Komissar, Moscow; 29july13 ..... ol:26
27. Dr. Cordero to Interfax America General Manager Mikhail Andelman, Colorado; 9aug13 ..... ol:27
28. What You Can Accomplish By Encouraging Journalists to Pick Up Where The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico Left Off Their Stories Suspecting President Obama's First Justiceship Nominee, Then-Judge Sotomayor, of Concealment of Assets: Provoke Such Outrage in the Public, Already so Distrustful of Government as a Result of Current Scandals and the Revelations of Edward Snowden, as to Cause It to Demand Democracy-Reformative Mechanisms for Public Accountability, Such as Citizen Boards for Monitoring the Transparent Operation of Government and Disciplining its Officers, that Can Give Rise to A New We the People-government Paradigm: the People's Sunrise; 15aug13 ..... ol:29
29. Dr. Cordero to Mother Jones Editors in Chief Monika Bauerlein and Clara Jeffery, California; 29july13 ..... ol:31
30. Dr. Cordero to The Daily Beast and Newsweek Editor-in-Chief Tina Brown; 1aug13 ..... ol:32
31. Dr. Cordero to The Smoking Gun Editor William Bastone; 3aug13 ..... ol:33
32. Dr. Cordero to Truthdig Publisher Ms. Zuade Kaufman; 19aug13 ..... ol:34
33. Dr. Cordero to Documentarist and E. Snowden Collaborator Laura Poitras;

23aug13 ..... ol:35

34. Dr. Cordero to Investigative Reporter Peter Maass; 23aug13 ..... ol:36

35. Dr. Cordero to Ms. Jill Abramson, Executive Editor of The New York Times, to propose an introductory piece on, followed by the findings of an investigation of, the lack of reverse, democratic 'surveillance' of the Federal Judiciary by We the People's representatives; 24aug13 ..... ol:37

    A. Address of The New York Times and email addresses of the editors to whom a personalized letter was sent by email and by mail ol:38

36. Dr. Cordero to Mr. Hans-Christian Ströbele, Fraktion Bündnis 90/Die Grünen, Member of the German Parliament who met with Edward Snowden; 7nov13 ..... ol:39

37. Dr. Cordero to Mr. John Goëtz, Panorama Reporter, and Frau Anja Reschke, Moderatorin Redaktion PANORAMA, Germany; 15nov13 ..... ol:40

38. Dr. Cordero to Mr. John Goëtz, Investigative Journalist, and Mr Andreas Cichowicz, Chefredakteur Fernsehen NDR Presse und Information, Germany; 15nov13 ..... ol:41

39. Dr Cordero to ALM LegalTech Conference Organizer Judy Kelly offering to speak on developing products for auditing judges' writings; 19nov13 ..... ol:42

40. Dr Cordero to Messrs. Klaus Schleisiek and Jo Becker, and Mrs. Gertrud Sivalingam, Netzkraft Movement, Germany; 31dec13 ..... ol:45

41. Dr Cordero to Former Michigan Supreme Court Chief Justice Elizabeth A. Weaver, author of Judicial Deceit, and Co-author Dr. David Schock; 6jan14 ..... ol:46

42. Dr Cordero to Michigan Conservative Political Action Conference Chairman Norman Hughes; 9jan14 ..... ol:48

43. Dr Cordero to Mr Hughes; 10jan13 ..... ol:51

44. Offer to Present a Proposal for Investigative Journalism: The need in the public interest and the leads for an exposé of judges' unaccountability and consequent riskless and coordinated wrongdoing; 21feb14 ..... ol:54

45. The Investigation of Two Unique Cases that can expose federal judges' wrongdoing as the institutionalized modus operandi of the Federal Judiciary, provoke national outrage, and cause the national public to demand that judicial public servants, such as judges are, be held accountable to and by their masters: We the People; 20jan14 ..... ol:55

    A. Two unique cases and the queries guiding their investigations ol:55

        1) The Obama-Sotomayor case and the Follow the money! investigation ol:55

        2) The Judiciary-NSA case and the Follow the wire! investigation ol:55

    B. The implications and consequences of the investigations ol:55

C. Plan of action to expose wrongdoing judges and lead to judicial reform ol:56

D. Working together to become We the People's Champions of Justice ol:57

46. Dr Cordero to Mr Hughes; 27jan14 ..... ol:58

A. My plan of action can advance your interests in the mid-term & 2016 elections ol:58

B. Taking action now that can pay off at the height of the 2016 election ol:59

47. Research proposal for statistical, linguistic, and literary analysis performed by state of the art or yet to be developed IT programs applied to past and predict judges' decisions in order to determine on an objective basis their authorship and ascertain their fairness and impartiality: judicial decision auditing; 29jan14..... ol:60

48. Do the President's lies for the personal and political gain of passing and implementing Obamacare warrant calls for his resignation or impeach-ment? The request that he release the FBI vetting report on his justiceship nominee J. Sotomayor; 26nov13 ..... ol:63

A. The President's graver lie about Judge/Justice Sotomayor's honesty ol:63

B. The Obama-Sotomayor story can reveal graver lies and wrongdoing ol:63

C. Scandal in the Presidency and the Judiciary leading to judicial reform ol:64

D. Your choice: suffer, whine, be one of many or become a Champion of Justice ol:65

49. Leads and an Investigation Plan for the President Obama-Justice Sotoma-yor case and the Follow the money! investigation and the Federal Judiciary-NSA case and the Follow it wirelessly! investigation intended to expose fed-eral judges' unaccountability and riskless wrongdoing in connivance with top po-liticians, outrage the national public, and cause it to force official investiga-tions and reform that empowers We the People, the masters in government of, by, and for the People, to hold all its public servants accountable; 5feb14 ..... ol:66

A. From "a garden variety burglary" to the Watergate Scandal and the resig-nation of a President in the pre-computer and pre-database days..... ol:66

B. Plan for the Follow the money! investigation of the P Obama-J. Sotomayor story ol:66

C. The Federal Judiciary-NSA case and the Follow it wirelessly! investigation ol:69

D. The presentation of the available evidence at professional venues..... ol:69

50. Determining the circumstances under which a lie told by the President may be deemed by We the People and our representatives in Congress to constitute an impeachable 'high crime or misdemeanor'; 12feb14..... ol:70

51. On Becoming the Organizer of Presentations of Evidence of Two Unique

National Cases of Public Wrongdoing and the Builder of a Coalition for Justiceto Enable We the People to Reverse Surveil and Hold Public Servants Accountable and Liable, Which Can Dominate the Mid-term and 2016 Elections and Lead to the Formation of a Civic Movement that Forces Government Reform: the People's Sunrise; 20mar14 ..... ol:73

A. Presentations to audiences of potential investigators as part of a process ol:73

B A series of events revealing a strategy leading to government reform ol:74

C. A Watergate-like generalized media investigation, but more outrage-provoking ol:75

D. From national outrage to a reformative civic movement: the People's Sunrise ol:75

52. A Proposal for Concrete and Realistic Action To Impeach and Remove President Obama On Legal Grounds for Wrongdoing In Coordination With Officers of the Other Branches And Bring About Substantial Reform of Government ol:76

A. Wrongdoing by the President, J. Sotomayor, the Federal Judiciary, and NSA ol:76

B. Outrageousness of wrongdoing committed for money, condoned for politics ol:76

C. Need for an outraged national public; politicians' sensitivity during elections ol:77

D. Need for the media to outrage the national public and benefits therefrom ol:77

E. 'Doing your part' by organizing presentations of the stories & their potential ol:78

F. Empowering We the People to assert our status as masters of all public servants ol:78

V. Offer to make a presentation to expose judges' wrongdoing and propose a plan of action to achieve legislated judicial reform

53. Model letter to the student president of the class at law, journalism, business, and Information Technology schools to offer to expose judges' wrongdoing and propose a plan of action to advocate legislated judicial reform Lsch:1

54. A Presentation in the Public Interest of official statistics, reports, and statements pointing to abuse of power and secrecy in the Federal Judiciary; And a call for 'reverse surveillance' by We the People of judges and their Judiciary to expose them, cause public outrage, and lead to the media, the public, and voters' forcing historic reform that can be the start of a new We the People-government paradigm: the People's Sunrise Lsch:2

    A. Statistics on secrecy and abuse of power in the Federal Judiciary Lsch:2

    B. The statistics' implications for you Lsch:3

    C. Revelation of a unique story leading to reform in the public interest Lsch:4

    D. What you can do in the public interest Lsch:4

55. CUNY John Jay College of Criminal Justice Associate Professor Jodie G. Roure, J.D., Ph.D.; 9sep13 ..... Lsch:5

56. Dr. Cordero to Media Freedom and Information Access Clinic David Schultz, Esq., Levine, Sullivan, Koch & Schultz, NY; 21sep13 ..... Lsch:6

57. Dr. Cordero to Public Interest Center and Committee Director Rachel D. Andron, Esq. , St. John's University School of Law; 15sep13 ..... Lsch:7

58. Dr. Cordero to Yale Law School Rebellious Lawyer Directors Elizabeth Chao, Ifeanyi Ojukwu, Jinju Pottenger, Yenisey Rodriguez, Ruth Swift, and Megan Wachspress Lsch:8

59. The Thesis of the Study Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting and A Plan of Action to implement it that begins with presentations to introduce that reporting and advocate legislated judicial reform that can bring about a new We the People-government relation where the people 'surveil' their public servants: the People's Sunrise Lsch:9

    A. The study's thesis and its reasonably attainable objectives Lsch:9

    B. Plan of action to expose federal judges' wrongdoing and advocate reform Lsch:10

    C. Becoming the producer of the presentation and of a Coalition for Justice Lsch:12

60. Dynamic Analysis of Harmonious and Conflicting Interests Shows The Fallacy of Citizen Grand Juries as The Remedy to Prosecutorial Partiality, and Points to The Need for Strategic Thinking to Devise a Strategy For Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing and Advocating Legislated Judicial Reform Lsch:13

A. Citizen Grand Juries said necessary for impartially holding people accountable Lsch:13

B. Judges involvement in wrongdoing by commission and condonation Lsch:15

C. Prosecutors in conflict with judges: the means of judicial retaliation Lsch:17

D. Proposal for exposing judges' wrongdoing and leading to judicial reform Lsch:20

60. Dr. Cordero to Yale Law School Professor Judith Resnik in response to her article "Renting Judges for Secret Rulings" –which criticizes Delaware legislation intended to make state courts available for a fee to companies for solving disputes through arbitration behind closed doors– to offer to present to her and her students evidence of how federal judges already cloak themselves in pervasive secrecy and abuse their unaccountability to engage in self-beneficial riskless wrongdoing; and to propose to join forces to expose them, which can so outrage the public at judges as to force politicians to adopt and apply legislation that eliminates secret rulings and establishes citizen boards to ensure judiciaries' transparency and judges' accountability to We the People and liability to their victims Lsch:21

VI. The DeLano Case Course for undergraduate or graduate students..... dcc:1

61. Description for the Faculty of The DeLano Case Course dcc:3
62. Table of Contents dcc:5
63. Presentation of The DeLano Case Course and of the Disinfecting Sunshine on the Federal Judiciary Project.....dcc:7
64. Course Description for Students.....dcc:8
65. The Salient Facts of the DeLano Case.....dcc:9
66. Multidisciplinary Academic and Business Venture: Complimentary intellectual and professionals skills.....dcc:10
67. The Public Presentation of the DeLano Case Course: an imaginative and ambitious multimedia Brandeis brief presentation dcc:11
68. Teaching The DeLano Case Course.....dcc:15
    A. Table of Contents of the Instructions for the Instructor dcc:15
    B. Key Concepts Underlying the Course.....dcc:17
    C. Role Playing Structure of The Class dcc:18
    D. Sources of Course Materials.....dcc:18
    E. Materials to analyze as two sets of conflicting interests.....dcc:19
    F. Documents to be produced during the course dcc:20
69. Syllabus of the DeLano Case Course for a 15 week semester.....dcc:23
    A. Week by week classwork.....dcc:23
    B. Week by week organization of the public presentation of the DeLano case dcc:31

VII. Information for Literary Agents & Book Publishers

70. Dr Cordero to the Publisher of Peninisula Press, which published Judicial Deceit, 6jan14.....a&p:i
71. Letter to literary agents and book publishers ..... a&p:1
72. Table of Contents..... a&p:2
73. Footnotes..... a&p:3
74. Information For Literary Agents And Book Publishers To Evaluate The Merits of the Manuscript Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing; Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting ..... a&p:5

A. Manuscript's subject matter ..... a&p:5

B. Manuscript's sources and thesis ..... a&p:5

C. Judges' unaccountability and consequent riskless wrongdoing ..... a&p:6

D. Manuscript's 1st purpose: to lay out the strategy for exposing judicial unaccountability and consequent riskless wrongdoing ..... a&p:8

E. Manuscript's 2nd purpose: to propose articulated phases for pioneering judi-cial unaccountability reporting and developing it as a news & publishing field..... a&p:9

F. Reasonable expectations the manuscript offers agents and publishers ..... a&p:12

G. Length of the manuscript ..... a&p:12

H. What to include in the book and corresponding timetable for manuscript completion..... a&p:12

I. Number of illustrations ..... a&p:12

O. Competing or similar books..... a&p:13

P. Sound investment in an author and writer with more than one book in him ..... a&p:13

Q. Offer to make a presentation of the project ..... a&p:13

R. Table of law related books and authors ..... a&p:14

S. Resume of Dr. Cordero..... a&p:16

Early Publications ..... a&p:17

Exhibits

1. The Corruption Chronicles, by Tom Fitton..... a&p:18

2. How Competition for Big Cases Is Corrupting the Bankruptcy Courts, by Prof. Lynn M. LoPucki ..... a&p:20

V. 5. From the initial presentation of the evidence to the triggering of history!..... a&p:22

W. Developing a platform by making an offer to professional schools ..... a&p:23

Y. A message from LinkedIn augurs the development of a broad platform ..... a&p:25

"Congratulations! You have one of the top 5% most viewed LinkedIn profilesfor 2012"..... a&p:26

Linked in email ..... a&p:27

VIII. Blurbs and Synopses of Creative Writings cw:1

The art of storytelling as a communication resource to arouse the imagination of readers for pleasure and jurors on duty and incite them to inspired action for everything that edifies character and builds good relations with people such as the noble cause of Equal Justice Under Law

1. Table of Contents cw:3
2. Blurbs of scripts and novels..... cw:5
3. Sample of synopses..... cw:7
4. Short story: storytelling a proposal for developing and marketing areas of academic excellence cw:32
5. Scenes from a drama..... cw:58

ABSTRACT OF THE STUDY

Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing

Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting

This study* analyzes official statistics of the Federal Judiciary, legal provisions, and other publicly filed documents. It discusses how federal judges' life-appointment; de facto unimpeachability and irremovability; self-immunization from discipline through abuse of the Judiciary's statutory self-policing authority; abuse of its vast Information Technology resources to interfere with their complainants' communications; the secrecy in which they cover their adjudicative, administrative, disciplinary, and policy-making acts; and third parties' fear of their individual and close rank retaliation render judges unaccountable. Their unaccountability makes their abuse of power riskless; the enormous amount of the most insidious corruptor over which they rule, money!, as well as other social and professional benefits make doing wrong to grab them tempting; and millions of in practice unreviewable cases make the temptation ever-present. These are the means, motive, and opportunity for judges to do wrong and for their wrongdoing to be inevitable.

Judges do wrong in such regular, widespread, and coordinated fashion as to have turned wrongdoing into their institutionalized modus operandi and the Judiciary into the safe haven for judicial wrongdoers. Their abuse of power entrusted to them by We the People is a betrayal of trust. Engaging in it and giving priority to covering it up to protect themselves and their peers injure in fact people's rights, property, liberty, and life; and deprive the People of their fundamental human, civil, and due process right of access to fair and impartial courts. Exposing the existence, scope, and gravity of their wrongdoing to the national public will cause such outrage as to enable the media and voters to force legislated, rather than voluntary, judicial reform, lest politicians be voted out of, or not into, office; this is realistic, as the Tea Party precedent shows.

The exposure is started by the study, whose publication will pioneer the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting. It can be continued at a presentation by the author held at a law school attended by its members and those of business, journalism, and IT schools, civil rights advocates, and the media. The evidence of judges' wrongdoing will introduce the call for 'reverse surveillance' over them by We the People, as opposed to the mass surveillance over the People by the NSA with judges' rubberstamping approval revealed by Edward Snowden. The presentation can give rise to the formation of a multidisciplinary team of students, professors, journalists, and civil rights advocates to conduct reverse surveillance through a Follow the money! and IT Follow the wire! investigation. The team can organize the first of a series of multimedia conferences to report to the national public its findings and expose judges' pattern of disregard of the law. It will announce the formation of a multidisciplinary academic and business venture to promote 1. the establishment of local chapters to surveil, report, and advocate reform a) based on transparency, accountability, discipline, and judges' and the Judiciary's liability to their victims, and b) implemented with the aid of citizen boards; 2. the creation of a for-profit institute to conduct IT research, educate, publish, etc.; and 3. the submission of articles on judges' abuse of power and secrecy for publication in a volume that can lead to a periodical.

Such reform will be of historic proportions although it will only implement foundational principles of our republic: We the People are the only source of sovereign power, who entrust a portion of it to each public servant and to whom each is accountable, for none is beyond our control or above the law. The reform can begin in the Federal Judiciary and extend to Congress, the Executive Branch, the states, and the rest of the world. A new We the People-government paradigm can emerge: the People's Sunrise. Those who are instrumental in its emergence can become recognized here and abroad as the People's Champions of Justice. Dare trigger history!

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Section A(jur:21) discusses the means, motive, and opportunity enabling federal judges to do wrong. They wield their decision-making power with no constraints by abusing their self-disciplining authority to systematically dismiss 99.82% of the complaints filed against them. This allows them to pursue the corruptive motive of money: In CY10 they ruled on $373 billion at stake in personal bankruptcies alone. While all bankruptcy cases constitute 80% of the cases filed every year, only .23% are reviewed by district courts and fewer than .08% by circuit courts. Such de facto unreviewability affords judges the opportunity to engage in wrongdoing, for it is riskless and all the more beneficial in professional, social, and financial terms. Yet Congress and journalists abstain from investigating their wrongdoing for fear of making enemies of life-tenured judges. Hence, federal judges enjoy unaccountability. It has rendered their wrongdoing irresistible. They engage in it so routinely and in such coordinated fashion among themselves and with others as to have turned it into the Federal Judiciary's institutionalized modus operandi.

Section B(jur:65) describes DeLano, a case that can expose one of the gravest and most pervasive forms of wrongdoing: a judge-run bankruptcy fraud scheme. The DeLano bankruptcy judge was appointed and removable by his circuit judges. The appeal was presided over by Then-Circuit Judge Sotomayor. She and her peers protected their appointee by approving his unlawful denial of, and denying in turn, every single document requested by the creditor from the debtor, a 39-year veteran bankruptcy officer, an insider who knew too much not to be allowed to avoid accounting for over $⅔ of a million. The case is so egregious that she withheld it from the Senate Committee reviewing her justiceship nomination. Now a justice, she must keep covering up the scheme and all her and her peers' wrongdoing, just as she must cover for the other justices and they for her.

Section C(jur:81) explains how judges cover up their wrongdoing through knowing indifference and willful ignorance and blindness; and how their standard "avoid even the appearance of impropriety" can support a strategy: DeLano exposed, an outraged public will cause a justice to resign, as it did J. Fortas, and the authorities to investigate judges and undertake judicial reform.

Section D(jur:97) deals with exposing judges' unaccountability and wrongdoing through the use of DeLano at a multimedia presentation targeted on opinion multipliers, broadcast to the public, and intended to launch a Watergate-like generalized media investigation of wrongdoing in the Judiciary guided by the query, "What did the President and judges know about Then-Judge Sotomayor's concealment of assets and other judges' wrongdoing, and when did they know it?" and aimed at demanding that the President release the FBI vetting report on her. The presentation will be an Emile Zola I accuse!-like denunciation to pioneer judicial unaccountability reporting.

Section D4(jur:102) proposes a Follow the money and the wire! investigation of the DeLano-J. Sotomayor story. It implements the strategy of judicial unaccountability and wrongdoing exposure, not in court before reciprocally protecting judges, but journalistically. It can be cost-effective thanks to the leads extracted from over 5,000 pages of the record of DeLano, which went from bankruptcy court to the Supreme Court. It can be confined to, or expanded beyond, the Internet, D.C., NY City, Rochester, and Albany; and search for Deep Throats in the Judiciary.

Section E(jur:119) Proposes a multidisciplinary academic and business venture to promote judicial unaccountability reporting and reform. From informing the public and assisting victims of judicial abuse tell their stories, it should lead to the creation of an institute to conduct IT research; train reformers; advocate a legislative agenda; call for citizen boards of judicial accountability and an IG for the Judiciary; and become a champion of Equal Justice Under Law.

Section F(jur:171) Offers to present at law, journalism, business, and IT schools, media outlets, and civil rights entities the evidence of judges' unaccountability and wrongdoing; call for the formation of a multidisciplinary team of professionals to conduct further investigation and develop the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting; and dare trigger history!

Blank

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

January 19, 2014

Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing

Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting

Introduction: The goal: not just to expose wrongdoing, but also to trigger history!

1. The enabling conditions of judges' unaccountability and wrongdoing

1. The 2012 presidential election has been reported to have cost well over $2,000,000,000, that is, over two billion dollars. We heard candidates running for public office at all levels in the federal and state executive and legislative branches as well as incumbents not running for reelection charge each other with having engaged in all sort of wrongdoing. Even members of the same party did that to each other. Given the enormous amount of money necessary to run an election campaign, the majority of candidates were said to be beholden to special interest groups, including superPACs, that were directly or indirectly financing their campaign. They were not deemed to be motivated by the general interest of their constituencies, let alone the interest of the country, of We the People. Since we heard the accusations of wrongdoing and of big money buying campaign messages from the mouth of politicians themselves, never mind from those of reporters and pundits, no informed and reasonable person would be taken aback by the statement that 'politics is dirty' because wrongdoing is to be expected among politicians, including, if not especially, those who win elections. Yet, nobody would dare say that because wrongdoing is pervasive in politics it is to be tolerated and that politicians who engage in it should not be held accountable and punished if found to have done wrong, because they are just being politicians.

2. By contrast, even the suggestion in the title of a book such as this one that wrongdoing among judges is so widespread or grave that it can provoke public outrage and become a national debate issue can leave even informed and reasonable people skeptical. They have never heard judges accused each other of wrongdoing; the media have reported wrongdoing in the judiciaries as approaching anything like the level that is reached in the other two branches of government. In fact, the media hardly ever report on wrongdoing engaged in by judges. It is practically unheard of for the media to report of any kind of wrongdoing in the judiciary. Consequently, readers could wonder whether they are holding in their hands the scribbling of an exaggerated view of judges and their judiciaries by a fanatic with a grudge against them, or what judges would call 'a disgruntled loser'. Is it worth reading, not to mention paying for it if that must be done first?

3. To answer that question very briefly in this Introduction it should suffice to set forth what logicians call 'the conditions of possibility' and what not only legislators and lawyers call 'enabling provisions', but also professionals that study individual and social behavior call 'enabling conditions'. The first fact is that judges are recommended, appointed, nominated, confirmed, endorsed, and otherwise supported by or affiliated with precisely those politicians who are widely and justifiably deemed to engage in wrongdoing pervasively. Is it the experience of any average person, even one informed by only some years in grade school and the rest by life in the midst of society, as opposed to a monastery or convent, that when wrongdoers have the opportunity to give power to or put somebody in an influential position they chose saints rather than people of their ilk who can pay them back by doing right and especially by being willing to do wrong? 'Birds of the same feather fly together'. Wrongdoers avoid dealing with people whom they deem "inflexible" due to their stiff integrity spine. Hence, it is reasonable to expect people who become judges thanks to politicians to be just as prone to wrongdoing and dedicated to promoting the interest of their 'constituency' as the politicians themselves.

4. In addition to the condition of possibility for judicial wrongdoing being intrinsic in the judicial selection process, it is also inextricably linked to what enables judges to perform as such. Let's take the case of federal judges, for their Federal Judiciary is not only the paradigm of state judiciaries, but also the only national judiciary and, as such, widespread wrongdoing in it can outrage the national public more readily than wrongdoing in any of its state counterparts. Once more, let's assume that the reader is an average person that lives and works among other people. Can you imagine what would happen to you and those you care about if all your bosses:

    a. held their jobs for life with self-policing authority that enabled them to assure their impunity by dismissing your complaints against them; were in effect above investigation, never mind prosecution, and thus had no fear of suffering any adverse consequences from their wrongdoing, not even losing their jobs or even part of their salaries, because they enjoyed the unusual guarantee that their salaries could not be diminished; and

    b. ruled on $100s of billions annually…

    c. in the secrecy of closed-door meetings and through decisions that were overwhelmingly unpublished; need not be followed, so they could be inconsistent and arbitrary; and in effect, not reviewable but could deprive you of your rights to property, liberty, and life

5. Federal judges enjoy the job conditions of your 'bosses'. Did you instantly realize that in that scenario it did not take even a second for judges to become fully confident that they could do to you and those you cared about and in fact anybody else whatever they wanted and neither you nor anybody else could do anything to prevent it, much less to obtain any relief from them, for their giving it to you would amount to their admission that they had wronged you? It is inherent in our experience from early on in family life and in any other social context that the big guy or a clique of influential ones who can bully us without being held accountable will bully us at every opportunity for the worst reason: because they can. In fact, if we were the ones in the position to bully others without having to account for it to anybody, we too may have bullied them at every opportunity. Without limits, power becomes boundless. It is as part of nature and of the law of the jungle as it is still of the human character. It is also intuitive that there is no effective limit to the abuse of power if you have to complain to the bully about his or her bullying you. If so, you have no reasonable basis for expecting that either your complaint or you will be dealt with justly.

6. Our experience of the human condition is what renders so understandable what enables judges to engage in wrongdoing: They wield the enormous power that comes with being the final arbiters of controversies and they are the arbiters of the limits of their own power. That constitutes the enabling condition of their wrongdoing: They exercise unaccountable power. The limits that could be imposed on judges and their power by all those whom they have wronged have not materialized because those victims have had to bear their wrong in isolation and face alone those judges. That is the result of the toleration of judges' wrongdoing by the politicians who were instrumental in putting them in office and have kept them there. It is also the result of the media's failure to report on judges' unaccountability and their consequent riskless wrongdoing.

2. The media's failure to report on judges' wrongdoing

7. There must have been at least as many wrongdoing federal judges as state judges in proportion to their total numbers. In fact, charges against both types of judges have been leveled by the public in hundreds of websites and Yahoo- and Googlegroups. They complain[1] about the judges' corruption as well as their arrogance, arbitrariness, and unaccountability. As for state judges, the complaints concentrate in areas such as probate, child custody, divorce, guardianships, foreclosures, landlord-tenant, employment, and traffic violations. Federal judges usually deal with higher stakes because cases before them concern matters so important as to be regulated nationally under federal law or to have attracted multistate parties. The higher the stakes, the higher the motive and the offer to corrupt a judge and the benefit from becoming corrupt. But material benefits that can be grabbed unlawfully are not the only motive for corruption. As shown above, power that can be exercised without limits leads to corruption by the nature of the human character.

[1] This is how Author Larry Hohol's homepage, www.TheLuzerneCountyRailroad.com,

8. To act on a wrong motive judges can abuse their vast decision-making power. No single officer of the other two branches can do what even one lowly single trial judge can, to wit, declare a law unconstitutional that a majority of the members of each legislative chamber has voted to pass and the chief of the executive has signed to enact. With that, the application of the law is suspended in the case at bar and maybe even within the judge's jurisdiction. If just two judges of a three-judge panel of a federal circuit court agree on the unconstitutionality of a law, they may render it inapplicable in all the states in the circuit. Even when a judge upholds a law, he can affect a very large number of people besides the parties before him. Through the precedential authority of his decisions, the way he interprets and applies a law can establish or influence the way other judges do so. Thereby he can impact the rights and duties of the people in his jurisdiction and well beyond it. Hence, it is accurate to state that a judge has power to affect not just the life of a defendant subject to the death penalty, but also people's property, liberty, and everyday life.

9. Power abhors idleness; it forces its use. Judges' vast power creates the conditions for its abuse. Yet, it is rare for journalists to investigate complaints against state judges brought to the media's attention by people claiming that judges disregarded the law and even the facts and behaved arbitrarily. Worse yet, it is almost unheard of for journalists to investigate a federal judge. Nevertheless, that is their professional duty. As stated in the executive summary of the report commissioned by Columbia Graduate School of Journalism on the future of journalism as it experiences tectonic changes in its structure and operation brought about by new technologies: "News reporting that holds accountable those with power and influence has been a vital part of American democratic life".[2] That way of life rests on the foundation of government, not of men, but of laws. It is dangerously undermined when the officers of the third branch, the judiciary, disregard the rule of law to decide cases wrongfully based on their bias, prejudice, interest in a conflict of interests, or without stating any reason, thus issuing ad-hoc fiats of unprincipled raw power.

---

describes his talk with Host Sue Henry as part of a Barnes & Noble Author Event about his book The Luzerne County Railroad on judicial corruption in Pennsylvania: "The scheduled 20 minute appearance was extended to two hours after the switchboard lit up solid with phone calls from listeners". It is quite rare for media stations to throw off their carefully matched schedules of shows and sponsors to respond on the fly to even overwhelming audience reaction to their current show. That this happened demonstrates that even within the limited geographic reach of an FM station, i.e., WILK-FM, 103.1, his story of judicial abuse of power and betrayal of public trust stroke a cord with the audience. This experience supports the reasonable expectation that people elsewhere would react likewise to similar accounts because judges have been allowed to engage in such conduct with impunity long enough to have victimized and outraged many people everywhere. They have become Judges Above the Law.

[2] Executive Summary by The Editors of Columbia Journalism Review, Strong Press, Strong Democracy, of The Reconstruction of American Journalism, a report released at an event at the NY Public Library; http://www.cjr.org/reconstruction/executive_summary_the_reconstr.php

10. The media have never started with the investigation for wrongdoing of a federal judge and kept investigating the conditions enabling the judge to do wrong. Nor have they ever gone up the judicial hierarchy to ask a question corresponding to one that entered our national political discourse more than a generation ago as a result of a journalistic investigation of one of the most powerful and influential men in our country: What did the President know and when did he know it?

11. That was the question that U.S. Senator Howard Baker, vice chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee, asked of every witness at the nationally televised hearings concerning the involvement of President Richard Nixon in the Watergate Scandal. The latter came to light because of two reporters with superior levels of the journalistic skills of perception, curiosity, and perseverance: Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein of The Washington Post. They wrote an article questioning how the so-called "five plumbers" caught after breaking into the Democratic National Headquarters at the Watergate complex in Washington, D.C., on June 17, 1972, could afford top notch Washington lawyers. Woodward and Bernstein were initially mocked for wasting their time on "a garden variety burglary". But they persevered in their valid journalistic investigation, an endeavor in which they were supported by their editor, Benjamin Bradlee, and the Post publisher, Katharine Graham. They found the source of the money to pay those lawyers in a 'special operations' slush fund of the Republican Committee for the Reelection of Nixon.[3]

12. Woodward and Bernstein's reporting set in motion a generalized media investigation of a "burglary" that appeared ever more like wrongdoing with the potential for a scandal at the highest level of government. The story kept feeding on readers' interest. A constantly growing number of journalists wanted a piece of the action and jumped onto the investigative bandwagon. Offer and demand in a market economy. Eventually they all contributed to finding Nixon's involvement in political espionage, abuse of power by setting the IRS and other agencies against political opponents, and illegal surveillance of those who voiced their opposition or participated in demonstrations against the Viet Nam War. Collectively they caused Nixon to resign on August 9, 1974.

13. Woodward and Bernstein were instrumental in holding accountable the most powerful executive officer as well as his White House aides; all of the latter were convicted and sent to prison. These reporters were rewarded with a Pulitzer Prize; and their account of the events in All the President's Men became a bestseller and the homonymous movie a blockbuster. More importantly, the generalized media investigation to which they gave rise helped reaffirm a fundamental principle of our democratic life: Nobody Is Above The Law. They validated the essential role that journalism plays in our society. Their keen perception of what makes an individual tic and the world turn and their never-ending curiosity about the enabling conditions of what they had already found out propelled their investigation forward as they relentlessly pursued their story wherever it led. Deservedly, they have been for over a generation icons of American journalism.

14. Yet, even Woodward and Bernstein have failed to investigate judges' wrongdoing despite the mounting complaints about it. So have The Washington Post and the rest of the media. Their failure is particularly blamable because they all have had access not just to the public's 'anecdotal' complaints against judges, but also to the official statistics of the federal and state judiciaries. These statistics should have prodded the indispensably perceptive and inquisitive minds of their journalists, editors, and publishers to analyze them critically and ask some obvious questions: What are the conditions enabling the behavior of judges underlying those statistics? What conditions for, and commission of, wrongdoing do those statistics reveal given human nature and the world we live in? What benefit has motivated judges to engage in or tolerate wrongdoing?

---

[3] All the President's Men, Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward; Simon & Schuster (1974); pp. 16-18, 34-44; cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/WP_The_Watergate_Story.pdf

3. Sampler of the nature and gravity of judges' wrongdoing

15. Judges' wrongdoing is pervasive(jur:xxxix); their unaccountability and coordination among themselves and with bankruptcy[33] and legal systems insiders[169] makes it riskless and tempting. They:

    a. systematically dismiss complaints against them, which are not public record, preventing complaint analysis to detect patterns of wrongdoing and habitual wrongdoing judges (jur:24§b);

    b. fail to report gifts from, and participation in seminars paid by, parties before them;[272]

    c. routinely deny motions to recuse themselves[272] due to, e.g., conflict of interests by holding shares in, or sitting on a board of, one of the parties, fundraising for promoters of an ideology, despite violating thereby the requirement to "avoid even the appearance of impropriety"[123a];

    d. without a court reporter so that no transcript of the discussion is available to challenge the judge's expression of bias or coercion on any party hold meetings with both parties in chambers or with only one party in the absence (ex parte) and to the detriment of the other;

    e. deny a party discovery, forcing it to litigate without evidence while protecting the opposing party from having to disclose incriminating evidence, 67¶¶141-142,[141], or grant discovery requests that force the other party to disclose even privileged information and incur oppressive expense and investment of time and effort that disrupt its life or business operations;

    f. seal records to prevent challenges to the judge's approval of the abuse of a party by another with dominant position or of an agreement that is illicit or contrary to public policy;

    g. prohibit electronic devices, e.g. cameras & camcorders, in the courthouse, even tape recorders in the courtroom, to prevent parties from filming the judges' interaction with parties or the making their own records to prove that court proceedings transcripts were doctored;

    h. get rid of 9 out of 10 cases through either reasonless, meaningless summary orders or decisions so perfunctory that the judges mark them "not for publication" and "not precedential"; both are all but unreviewable ad hoc fiats of raw judicial power serving as vehicles for arbitrariness and means for implementing a policy of docket clearing through expediency without an effort to administer justice on the facts of each case and the law applicable to them[66b];

    i. in pursuit of that expediency policy, overwhelmingly affirm the decisions of their lower court colleagues, for rubberstamping an affirmance is decidedly easier than explaining a reversal and the way to avoid the same prejudicial error on remand[69 >¶¶1-3];

    j. systematically deny petitions for en banc review by the whole court of each other's decisions, thus assuring reciprocal deference and the continued force of their decisions regardless of how wrong or wrongful they are(jur:45§2);

    k. hold their policy-making, administrative, adjudicative, and disciplinary meetings behind closed doors, thus protecting their unaccountability and providing themselves with the opportunity to use secrecy as a means to engage in coordinated wrongdoing(jur:27§e; xxxix);

    l. do not publish comments on court rules proposed by courts, thus cloaking in secrecy judges' comments, which fosters and conceals wrongful motives and coordination, and turning the request for public comments into a pro forma exercise that allows even overwhelming opposition to be kept undisclosed and disregarded without public protest(jur:162¶355e);

    m. never hold press conferences, thus escaping the scrutiny of journalists and that of the public, since federal judges do not have to run in judicial elections[29](cf. jur:97§1; dcc:11) and

    n. file pro forma financial disclosure reports[213b] with the Judicial Conference91 Committee on Financial Disclosure, composed of report-filing peer judges assisted by Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts[10] members, who are their appointees and serve at their will(31§a)).

16. Knowing what you know now about what judges do routinely as follows from their own statistics, if you currently have a case in court or next time that you do, are you confident that they will bother to give you a fair and impartial day in court? After all, why should they bother since they know that if they do not you can only complain to their peers, who will dismiss your complaint with no investigation at all? Can you reasonably expect a more receptive treatment from the politicians that recommended, nominated, or confirmed those judges?

4. The evidence of unaccountability and wrongdoing, further investigation, and advocacy of judicial reform

17. Why have journalists failed to investigate the many complaints of judicial wrongdoing? Why have they disregarded even the official judicial statistics? Do journalists not want a Pulitzer Prize anymore? What can take the place today of Watergate's "garden variety burglary" and reveal itself through responsible investigation as the story of judicial wrongdoing that leads all the way to the Supreme Court and the president and the members of Congress that recommend, nominate, and confirm its justices? Can the public outrage force politicians to turn against 'their' judges and undertake effective, lasting judicial accountability and discipline reform? These questions require strategic thinking to be answered and they are the ones that this proposal endeavors to answer.

18. Section(§) A analyzes official statistics of the Federal Judiciary. They reveal that its judges abuse their unaccountable power as their means to pursue their money and other motives in practically unreviewable cases that afford them the opportunity to engage in riskless wrongdoing. These statistics are compelling because they constitute declarations against self-interest.

19. Section B illustrates those statistics with real cases that went from a bankruptcy court at the bottom of the federal judicial hierarchy to the top, the Supreme Court. They are outrageous because they show how wrongdoing pervades even routine legal procedures and administrative processes, runs throughout the hierarchy, and results from and gives rise to its most reassuring enabler: coordination among wrongdoers. Coordination is the most powerful multiplier of wrongdoing's effectiveness and thereby, its attractiveness. It ensures the wrongdoers' collective survival and returns higher profits since there is no need to spend resources in costly measures to avoid detection and punishment. Through coordinated wrongdoing judges have arrogated to themselves a status that no person in a democracy is entitled to: Judges Above the Law.

20. Section C explains how "wrongdoing" and "coordinated wrongdoing" as opposed to "corruption" are notions that encompass more conduct and impose a lower burden of proof to be borne by the proposed investigation of the §B cases. It describes the insidious explicit and implicit forms that coordination takes on. Moreover, it demonstrates the grounds in law and precedent for affirming that in spite of their coordinated wrongdoing, judges are the most vulnerable public officers to even "the appearance of impropriety". All this reliably supports the reasonable expectation for the proposed investigation to be concluded successfully and cost-effectively.

21. Section D proposes exposing current judicial wrongdoing through a Follow the money! and Follow the wire! investigations of the §B cases, collectively referred to as DeLano. The DeLano case itself was presided[19f] over by Then-Judge Sotomayor of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 2nd Circuit (CA2) in NY City(jur:20). She covered up for her lower court peers in that case. Now a justice of the Supreme Court, she will be covered by both her current[cf.144d] and former peers.

They must cover up for each other. Any investigation and exposure of their peers' wrongdoing that they tolerated, never mind engaged in themselves, would indict their honesty and the credibility of their commitment to the impartial application of the law; and refute their proclaimed sense of institutional responsibility for the integrity of the Judiciary and of legal process. It would give rise to a flood of motions to review their decisions for bias and conflict of interests. It could incriminate the top politicians that vetted them, had reason to suspect and the duty to investigate, even prosecute or impeach, them upon discovering probable cause to suspect their involvement in wrongdoing, but instead nominated and confirmed them as lifetime officers with the ultimate responsibility for interpreting the Constitution and saying national law. It would be a scandal. Public outrage would demand their resignation. Their agreement, let alone their refusal, to resign and the connivance of top politicians would create an institutional and a constitutional crisis. Thus, exposing J. Sotomayor's wrongdoing can expose coordinated wrongdoing in the Federal Judiciary and create conditions requiring judicial accountability reform. Hence the importance of the investigation. It can start in CA2(jur:106§c) and move on to law firms and financial institutions (jur:103¶232b); the D.A.'s office in Manhattan, NY City[160a], and the NY State Attorney General's Office[160b]; property registries(jur:102¶¶230a, 108¶244); a disciplinary committee[161]; on to Rochester[115b,159d], Albany[160c]; the District of Columbia[64,111], and beyond(jur:102¶230).

22. Section E. lays out articulated phases for exposing judicial wrongdoing and advocating reform:

    a. pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting (jur:166¶365);

    b. opening a field of research(jur:131§b) on judges to be conducted by a team of professionals (jur:128§4) as part of a multidisciplinary academic and business venture(jur:119§1);

    c. teaching The DeLano Case Course based on its study plan and Syllabus(dcc:18§§D-F; 23);

    d. creating a for-profit institute(jur:130§5) of judicial unaccountability reporting and advocacy(155§e) of legislated(158§§6-7) accountability reform with citizen participation (160§8);

    e. promoting the development of a national movement(jur:164§9) of a people that hold as the foundation of their democratic government their right to Equal Justice Under Law.

23. Section F. offers to make a presentation of a) the available evidence of judicial unaccountability and wrongdoing; b) a proposal for developing the novel news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting and consucting further investigation; and c) the multidisciplinary academic and business venture that advocates legislated judicial reform.

5. From the initial presentation of the evidence to the triggering of history!

24. The above presentation can foreshadow the initial public presentation covered by the media. It can be made at a press conference or at another public event. For instance, the presenter can secure a journalism school's agreement to join his or her investigative effort as an academic project (dcc:1) and/or have him or her make the presentation as the keynote speech at the school's job fair or commencement attended by recruiters and editors from across the U.S. or covered by the media. In turn, they are likely to disseminate the presenter's statements and investigate them further. This can launch a Watergate-like generalized and first-ever media investigation of wrongdoing in the Federal Judiciary and then in the state judiciaries. It can lead to reform that holds judges accountable. It starts with pioneering JUDICIAL UNACCOUNTABILITY REPORTING.

25. That chain of events is statistically realistic and commercially promising[4]: 2,021,875 new cases were added to the pending ones in the federal courts in FY10; and the comparable figure in the state courts for 2007 was 47.3 million![5] Since there are at least two parties to every case and annually 50 million new cases are filed in all courts, a minimum of 100 million people out of a population of over 300 million[6] go or are brought to court every year. They are added to the parties to pending cases. Additional scores of millions of people are affected during litigation and thereafter: friends and family, colleagues, clients, creditors, employees, shareholders, class action members, the stores that they patronize less or not anymore for lack of money, those who must bear lower protections or higher insurance premiums to cover money judgments or litigation costs, etc.

26. People involved in or affected by lawsuits form a huge media market. The media will want to reach them with a reliable story; journalists will want to get a name-making scoop. Neither will be held back by fear of retaliation, for not even judges can take on all of them at once. That is the strategy: To reach a huge market of people demanding news, punditry, and documentaries about a story of federal judges' outrageous wrongdoing because a) it has become a national story by showing that everybody can already be among the story victims; b) the American people have been outraged upon realizing that judges' wrongdoing is so coordinated, pervasive, and routine that it constitutes their institutionalized modus operandi; and c) people's clamor keeps growing for judges and their judiciary to be investigated officially and held accountable by Congress, the Department of Justice, and their state counterparts. A national story of judges who have turned their judgeships into safe havens for wrongdoing can have such an impact by exposing an unbearable betrayal of public trust and national identity: People raised by pledging every morning allegiance to the belief that we are "one nation, indivisible…with justice for all" find out that we are very much divided into Judges Above the Law and the rest of us, who get their mockery of justice!

27. Official investigations can lead to public hearings where that key question of our political debate is asked after being rephrased thus: What did the justices know about each other's and judges' wrongdoing and when did they know it? Those who set in motion the process leading up to its being asked before the riveted eyes of a national TV audience can become this generation's Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein and win the personal and professional rewards that they did. The media, public interest entities, and politicians who pioneer the presentation of the evidence of judges' wrongdoing can become the new iconic 'editors' and 'publishers' of a political system that reconstructs itself by holding even powerful, life-tenured judges subject to the foundational principle of our democratic life: All public officials are servants of, and accountable to, We the People. The courageous pioneers can be the Champions of Justice of a people convinced that their defining, inalienable right as Americans is to Equal Justice Under Law. You can trigger history!(dcc§11)

---

[4] Caseload for the 2010 fiscal year (1oct9-30sep10 FY10): 2,021,875 = Supreme Court: 8,205 + Court of Appeals: 55,992 + District Courts: 361,323 + Bankruptcy Court: 1,596,355; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/statistics&tables/caseload/1judicial_caseload.pdf

[5] In "An Interview with Chief Justice Margaret H. Marshall, President of the Conference of Chief Justices", The Third Branch, vol.41, no. 4, p.1 and 9; April 2009, Pres. Marshall stated that "[f]or 2007… the total number of cases filed in…state courts…was 47.3 million cases, not including traffic offenses. In other words, tens of millions of Americans experience justice—or the lack thereof— in state courts." http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/num_state_cases_07.pdf. Cf. http://www.ncsconline.org/D_Research/csp/CSP_Main_Page.html

[6] http://www.census.gov/main/www/popclock.html

Fraudulent Coordination
Among The Main Players In The Bankruptcy System

http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/graph_fraudulent_coordination.pdf

Judges' Systematic Dismissal Without Investigation of 99.82% of Complaints Against Them

Table S-22 [previously S-23 & S-24].Report of Complaints Filed and Action Taken Under 28 U.S.C. §351 for the 12-mth. Period Ended 30sep97-07 &10may8, Admnistrative Office of the U.S. Courts; http://www.uscourts.gov/Statistics/JudicialBusiness.aspx >year >Table [1]

Complaints filed in the 13 Cir. and 2 Nat. Courts	'96-97	'97-98	'98-99	'99-00	'00-01	'01-02	'02-03	'03-04	'04-05	'05-06	'06-07	'07-5/8	'96-5/8	n/11.6
Complaints Pending on each Sep. 30 of 1996-2008*	109	214	228	181	150	262	141	249	212	210	241	333	2530	218
Complaints Filed	679	1,051	781	696	766	657	835	712	642	643	841	491	8794	758
Complaint Type
Written by Complainant	678	1,049	781	695	766	656	835	712	642	555	841	491	8701	750
On Order of Chief Judges	1	2	0	1	0	1	0	0	0	88	0	0	93	8
Officials Complained About
Judges
Circuit	461	443	174	191	273	353	204	240	177	141	226	112	2995	258
District	497	758	598	522	563	548	719	539	456	505	792	344	6841	589
National Courts	0	1	1	1	3	5	1	0	0	3	4	0	19	1.6
Bankruptcy Judges	31	28	30	26	34	57	38	28	31	33	46	24	406	35
Magistrate Judges	138	215	229	135	143	152	257	149	135	159	197	105	2014	174
Nature of Allegations
Mental Disability	11	92	69	26	29	33	26	34	22	30	20	16	408	35
Physical Disability	4	7	6	12	1	6	7	6	9	3	1	4	66	5.7
Demeanor	11	19	34	13	31	17	21	34	20	35	22	5	262	23
Abuse of Judicial Power	179	511	254	272	200	327	239	251	206	234	261	242	3176	274
Prejudice/Bias	193	647	360	257	266	314	263	334	275	295	298	232	3734	322
Conflict of Interest	12	141	29	48	38	46	33	67	49	43	46	25	577	50
Bribery/Corruption	28	166	104	83	61	63	87	93	51	40	67	51	894	77
Undue Decisional Delay	44	50	80	75	60	75	81	70	65	53	81	45	779	67
Incompetence/Neglect	30	99	108	61	50	45	47	106	52	37	59	46	740	64
Other	161	193	288	188	186	129	131	224	260	200	301	225	2486	214
Complaints Concluded	482	1,002	826	715	668	780	682	784	667	619	752	552	8529	735
Action By Chief Judges
Complaint Dismissed
Not in Conformity With Statute	29	43	27	29	13	27	39	27	21	25	18	13	311	27
Directly Related to Decision or Procedural Ruling	215	532	300	264	235	249	230	295	319	283	318	236	3476	300
Frivolous	19	159	66	50	103	110	77	112	41	63	56	23	879	76
Appropriate Action Already Taken	2	2	1	6	4	3	3	3	5	5	3	3	40	3.4
Action No Longer Needed Due to Intervening Events	0	1	10	7	5	6	8	9	8	6	6	4	70	6
Complaint Withdrawn	5	5	2	3	3	8	8	3	6	9	3	5	60	5
Subtotal	270	742	406	359	363	403	365	449	400	391	404	288	4840	417
Action by Judicial Councils
Directed Chief Dis. J. to Take Action (Magistrates only)	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	1	.09
Certified Disability	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Requested Voluntary Retirement	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Ordered Temporary Suspension of Case Assignments	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	.09
Privately Censured	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	.09
Publicly Censured	0	1	0	2	0	2	0	0	0	0	0	1	6	0.5
Ordered Other Appropriate Action	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	2	0	3	0.26
Dismissed the Complaint	212	258	416	354	303	375	316	335	267	227	344	263	3670	316
Withdrawn	n/a	n/a	4	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	7	0.6
Referred Complaint to Judicial Conference	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Subtotal	212	260	420	356	305	377	317	335	267	228	348	264	3689	318
Special Investigating Committees Appointed	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	7	5	2	14	1.2
Complaints Pending on each September 30 of 1997-08	306	263	183	162	248	139	294	177	187	234	330	272	2795	241

*Revised. Each complaint may involve multiple allegations against numerous judicial officers. Nature of allegations is counted when a complaint is concluded.

 [1]With statistics from 11may-30sep08; cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/JNinfo/25Committee/2DrCordero-petition_25feb9.pdf

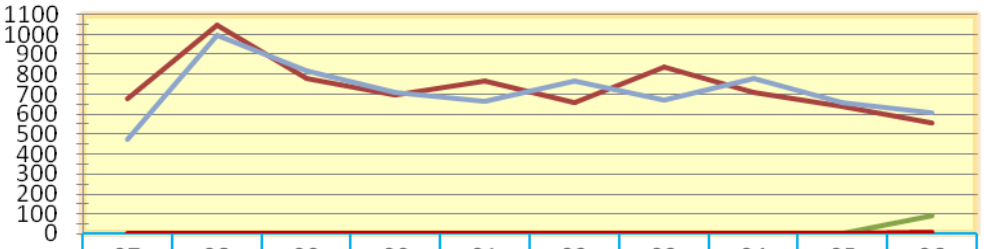

2nd Circuit Judicial Council's & J. Sotomayor's Denial of 100% of Petitions for Review of Systematically Dismissed Misconduct Complaints Against Their Peers & 0 Judge Disciplined in the Reported 12 Years[1]

Table S-22 [previously S-23 & S-24].Report of Complaints Filed and Action Taken Under 28 U.S.C. §351 for the 12-mth. Period Ended 30sep97-07 &10may8, Admnistrative Office of the U.S. Courts; http://www.uscourts.gov/Statistics/JudicialBusiness.aspx >year >Table

Data of Judicial Council 2nd Cir. for AO; 28 U.S.C. §332(g)	'96-97	'97-98	'98-99	'99-00	'00-01	'01-02	'02-03	'03-04	'04-05	'05-06	'06-07	'07-5/8	'96-5/8	avrg.
Complaints Pending on each September 30 of 1996-2008*	5	10	23	65	33	60	29	34	57	31	28	13	388	32
Complaints Filed	40	73	99	59	102	62	69	23	36	14	22	4	603	50
Complaint Type
Written by Complainant	40	73	99	59	102	62	69	23	36	0	22	4	589	49
On Order of Chief Judges	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	14	0	0	14	1.8
Officials Complained About
Judges
Circuit	3	14	23	9	31	10	8	4	7	0	6	1	116	9.7
District	27	56	63	41	52	41	49	15	23	10	12	3	392	33
National Courts	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Bankruptcy Judges	2	1	2	2	2	1	1	1	0	0	0	0	12	1
Magistrate Judges	8	8	11	7	17	10	11	3	6	4	4	0	89	7.5
Nature of Allegations
Mental Disability	1	9	26	2	5	4	6	3	3	1	1	1	62	5.2
Physical Disability	0	1	2	1	0	0	1	2	0	0	0	1	8	.7
Demeanor	2	2	2	3	14	3	4	6	0	0	0	0	36	3
Abuse of Judicial Power	25	30	7	29	28	57	20	6	3	0	1	1	207	17
Prejudice/Bias	32	36	34	28	24	40	20	35	43	28	30	5	355	30
Conflict of Interest	0	0	5	11	10	18	3	4	5	1	1	0	58	4.8
Bribery/Corruption	0	0	10	21	2	15	4	5	2	2	1	1	63	5.2
Undue Decisional Delay	0	4	0	11	6	15	9	5	8	2	3	3	66	5.5
Incompetence/Neglect	4	1	3	1	5	2	3	3	4	0	3	2	31	2.6
Other	0	11	3	5	0	0	4	33	80	38	47	14	235	20
Complaints Concluded	33	56	57	80	75	93	42	51	91	45	50	17	690	57
Action By Chief Judges
Complaint Dismissed
Not in Conformity With Statute	3	4	0	0	4	1	1	6	5	8	1	2	35	2.9
Directly Related to Decision or Procedural Ruling	12	19	19	29	17	23	14	18	46	15	10	9	231	19
Frivolous	0	1	19	0	13	9	7	3	1	3	2	1	59	4.9
Appropriate Action Already Taken	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	1	0	0	2	0.2
Action No Longer Needed Due to of Intervening Events	0	0	3	1	0	2	0	0	0	1	0	0	7	0.6
Complaint Withdrawn	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	1	2	0	0	0	5	0.4
Subtotal	15	24	41	30	34	37	22	29	54	28	13	12	339	28
Action by Judicial Councils
Directed Chief Dis. J. to Take Action (Magistrates only)	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Certified Disability	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Requested Voluntary Retirement	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Ordered Temporary Suspension of Case Assignments	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Privately Censured	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Publicly Censured	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Ordered Other Appropriate Action	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Dismissed the Complaint	18	32	16	50	40	56	20	22	37	17	37	6	351	29
Withdrawn	n/a	n/a	0	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	.08
Referred Complaint to Judicial Conference	0	0	0	0	0	0	n/a	0	0	n/a	0	0	0	0
Subtotal	18	32	16	50	41	56	20	22	37	17	37	6	352	29
Special Investigating Committees Appointed	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	1	1	0	2	.17
Complaints Pending on each 30sep of 1997-2008	12	27	65	44	60	29	56	6	2	0	0	0	301	25

*Revised.  Each complaint may involve multiple allegations against numerous judicial officers. Nature of allegations is counted when a complaint is concluded.

Number of Complaints Filed by Complainants and Systematically Dismissed by Chief Judges and Judicial Councils Between '97 and '06

	97	98	99	00	01	02	03	04	05	06
filed by complainants	678	1,049	781	695	766	656	835	712	642	555
filed by chief judges	1	2	0	1	0	1	0	0	0	88
dismissed by chief judges & judicial councils	477	995	820	710	663	770	673	781	661	609 referred to Judicial Conference	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
special investigating committees appointed[†]	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	7

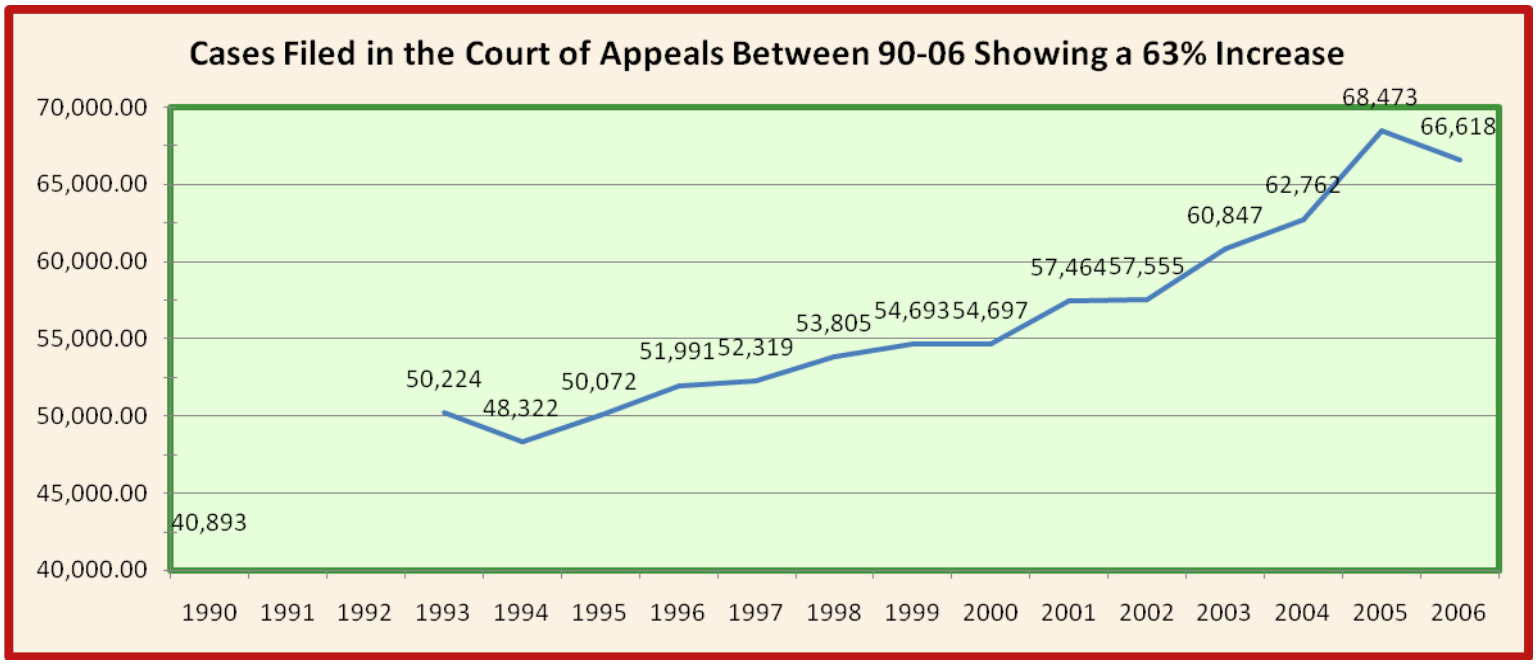

Judicial Councils' Action Against Complained-about Judges From 1997-2006

	97	98	99	00	01	02	03	04	05	06
filed by chief judges	1	2	0	1	0	1	0	0	0	88
directed chief district judge to take action (magistrate judges only)	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1
certified disability	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
requested voluntary retirement	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
ordered temporary suspension of case assignment	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
privately censured	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	0	0
publicly censured	0	1	0	2	0	2	0	0	0	0
ordered other appropriate action	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	0
referred complaint to Judicial Conference	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
special investigating committees appointed[†]	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	7

Source: Administrative Off. of the U.S. Courts; http://www.uscourts.gov/Statistics/JudicialBusiness.aspx >year >Table S-22 (formerly S-23 and S-24)

Cases Filed in the Supreme Court Between 93-06 showing a 33% increase Number of cases filed
10,000
9,500
9,000
8,500
8,000
7,500
7,000
7,245
7,786
8,100
7,565
7,602
7,692
8,083
8,445
8,965
9,176
9,406
8,882
8,588
9,608
1993 1994 1995 1996 1997 1998 1999 2000 2001 2002 2003 2004 2005 2006

Cases Filed in the Court of Appeals Between 90-06 Showing a 63% Increase 70,000.00
65,000.00
60,000.00
55,000.00
50,000.00
45,000.00
40,000.00
40,893
50,224
48,322
50,072
51,991
52,319
53,805
54,693
54,697
57,464
57,555
60,847
62,762
68,473
66,618
1990 1991 1992 1993 1994 1995 1996 1997 1998 1999 2000 2001 2002 2003 2004 2005 2006

Cases Filed in Bankruptcy Courts Between 90-06 Showing a 138% Increase at Peak
1,900,000
1,700,000
1,500,000
1,300,000
1,100,000
900,000
700,000
749,981
897,231
837,797
883,457
1,111,964
1,367,364
1,436,964
1,354,376
1,262,102
1,437,354
1,547,669
1,661,996
1,618,987
1,782,643
1,112,542
1990 1991 1992 1993 1994 1995 1996 1997 1998 1999 2000 2001 2002 2003 2004 2005 2006

[Footnotes in the originals]

NOTE: EXCLUDES COMPLAINTS NOT ACCEPTED BY THE CIRCUITS BECAUSE THEY DUPLICATED PREVIOUS FILINGS OR WERE OTHERWISE INVALID FILINGS.

* REVISED. [regarding complaints pending]

 EACH COMPLAINT MAY INVOLVE MULTIPLE ALLEGATIONS AGAINST NUMEROUS JUDGES. NATURE OF ALLEGATIONS IS COUNTED WHEN A COMPLAINT IS CONCLUDED.

Source: For Tables 1, 2, and 6, Judicial Business of U.S. Courts, 1997-2006 Annual Reports of the Director, Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts; http://www.uscourts.gov/Statistics/JudicialBusiness.aspx. For Tables 3, 4, 5, 2005-2006 Judicial Facts and Figures, Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts; http://www.uscourts.gov/Statistics/JudicialFactsAndFigures.aspx

The complaint statistics are collected in http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/statistics&tables/judicial_misconduct.pdf, where they are accompanied by links to the official S-22 (or S-23 or S-24) Tables.

Tables 1, 2, and 6, supra, report on complaints filed and processed in the Federal Circuit, the District of Columbia, the 1st-11th circuits, the U.S. Claims Court, and the Court of International Trade. (Cf. 28 U.S.C. §§351(d)(1) and 363)

†The category "Special Investigating Committees Appointed" first appears in the 2006 Table.

The number of cases in Tables 3-5 do not even include cases filed with Article I courts, which are part of the Executive, not the Judicial, Branch, such as the U.S. Tax Court, established in 1969 (after it was created as the Board of Tax Appeals in 1924 and its name was first changed to Tax Court of the U.S. in 1942). Another such court is the U.S. Claims Court, established as an Article I court in 1982, and renamed U.S. Court of Federal Claims in 1992. Likewise, the U.S. Court of Veterans' Appeals was established as an Article I court in 1989 and then renamed the Court of Appeals for Veterans Claims in 1998.

They too support the conclusion to be drawn from these statistics: The significant increase in cases filed with these courts every year attests to the litigiousness of the American society. They belie the judges' report that in the '97-'06 decade Americans have filed a steady number of complaints against them hovering around the average (after eliminating the outlier) of only 712 complaints. The explanation lies in the first footnote in the originals, above: Judges have arbitrarily excluded an undetermined number of complaints. The fact that they have manipulated these statistics is also revealed by the first table above: After 9 years during which the judges filed less than one complaint a year, they jumped to 88 in 2006…and that same year it just so happened that complainants filed the lowest number of complaints ever, 555! Implausible! Yet, the judges did not discipline a single peer, just one magistrate.

 Source: Administrative Off of US Courts; cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/statistics&tables/judicial_misconduct.pdf

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris
http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com
tel. (718) 827-9521

Summary of the DeLanos' income of $291,470 + mortgage receipts of $382,187 = $673,657 and credit card borrowing of $98,092 unaccounted for and inconsistent with their declaration in Schedule B of their voluntary bankruptcy petition (D:23)[1] that at the time of its filing on January 27, 2004, they had "in hand and on account" only $535!

Exhibit page #	Mortgages[2] referred to in the incomplete documents produced by the DeLanos[a] to Chapter 13 Trustee George Reiber (cf.Add:966§B)	Mortgages or loans
		year	amount
D[b]:342	1) from Columbia Banking, S&L Association	16jul75	$26,000
D:343	2) another from Columbia Banking, S&L Asso.	30nov77	7,467
D:346	3) still another from Columbia Banking, S&L Asso.	29mar88	59,000
D:176/9	4) owed to Manufacturers &Traders Trust=M&T Bank	March 88	59,000
D:176/10	5) took an overdraft from ONONDAGA Bank	March 88	59,000
D:348	6) another mortgage from Central Trust Company	13sep90	29,800
D:349	7) even another one from M&T Bank	13dec93	46,920
D:350-54	8) yet another from Lyndon Guaranty Bank of NY	23dec99	95,000
	9) any other not yet disclosed? Subtotal		$382,187
The DeLanos' earnings in just the three years preceding their voluntary bankruptcy petition (04-20280, WBNY; D:23)
2001	1040 IRS form (D:186)	$91,229	$91,229
2002	1040 IRS form (D:187) Statement of Financial Affairs (D:47)	$91,859	91,655
2003	1040 IRS form (D:188) Statement of Financial Affairs (D:47)	+97,648	+108,586
to this must be added the receipts contained in the $98,092 owed on 18 credit cards, as declared in Schedule F (D:38)[c]		$280,736[d]	$291,470[d]
		TOTAL	$673,657

[a] The DeLanos claimed in their petition, filed just three years before traveling light of debt to their golden retirement, that their home was their only real property, appraised at $98,500 on 23nov3, as to which their mortgage was still $77,084 and their equity only $21,416 (D:30/Sch.A) …after paying it for 30 years! and having received $382,187 during that period through eight mortgages! Mind-boggling! They sold it for $135K[3] on 23apr7, a 37% gain in merely 3½ years.

[b] D=Designated items in the record of Cordero v. DeLano, 05-6190L, WDNY, of April 18, 2005.

[c] The DeLanos declared that their credit card debt on 18 cards totals $98,092 (D:38/Sch.F), while they set the value of their household goods at only $2,810! (D:31/Sch.B) Implausible! Couples in the Third World end up with household possessions of greater value after having accumulated them in their homes over their working lives of more than 30 years.

[d] Why do these numbers not match?

3. Other relevant orders entered in the case

a. Circuit Justice Ginsburg's grant of July 30, 2008, of Dr. Cordero's application for extension of time until next October 6 to file the petition for a writ of certiorari US:2310

4. Table

Documents requested by Dr. Cordero and denial by CA2
	Requests		Denials
	page #	date	page #	date
1.	CA:1606	December 19, 06	SApp:1623	January 24, 07
2.	CA:1618	January 18, 07	SApp:1634	February 1, 07
3.	CA:1637	February15, 07	SApp:1678	March 5, 07
4.	CA:1777	March 17, 07	CA:2180	February 7, 08
5.	CA:1932	June 14, 07	CA:2180	February 7, 08
6.	CA:1975¶59a	July 18, 07	CA:2182	February 7, 08
7.	CA:2081¶c.1	August 29, 07	CA:2181	February 7, 08
8.	CA:2126¶e	November 8, 07	CA:2180	February 7, 08
9.	CA:2140¶e	November 27, 07	CA:2180	February 7, 08
10.	CA:2165¶33e	December 26, 07	CA:2180	February 7, 08
11.	CA:2179	January 3, 08	CA:2180	February 7, 08
12.	CA:2205¶25c	March 14, 08	CA:2209	May 9, 08

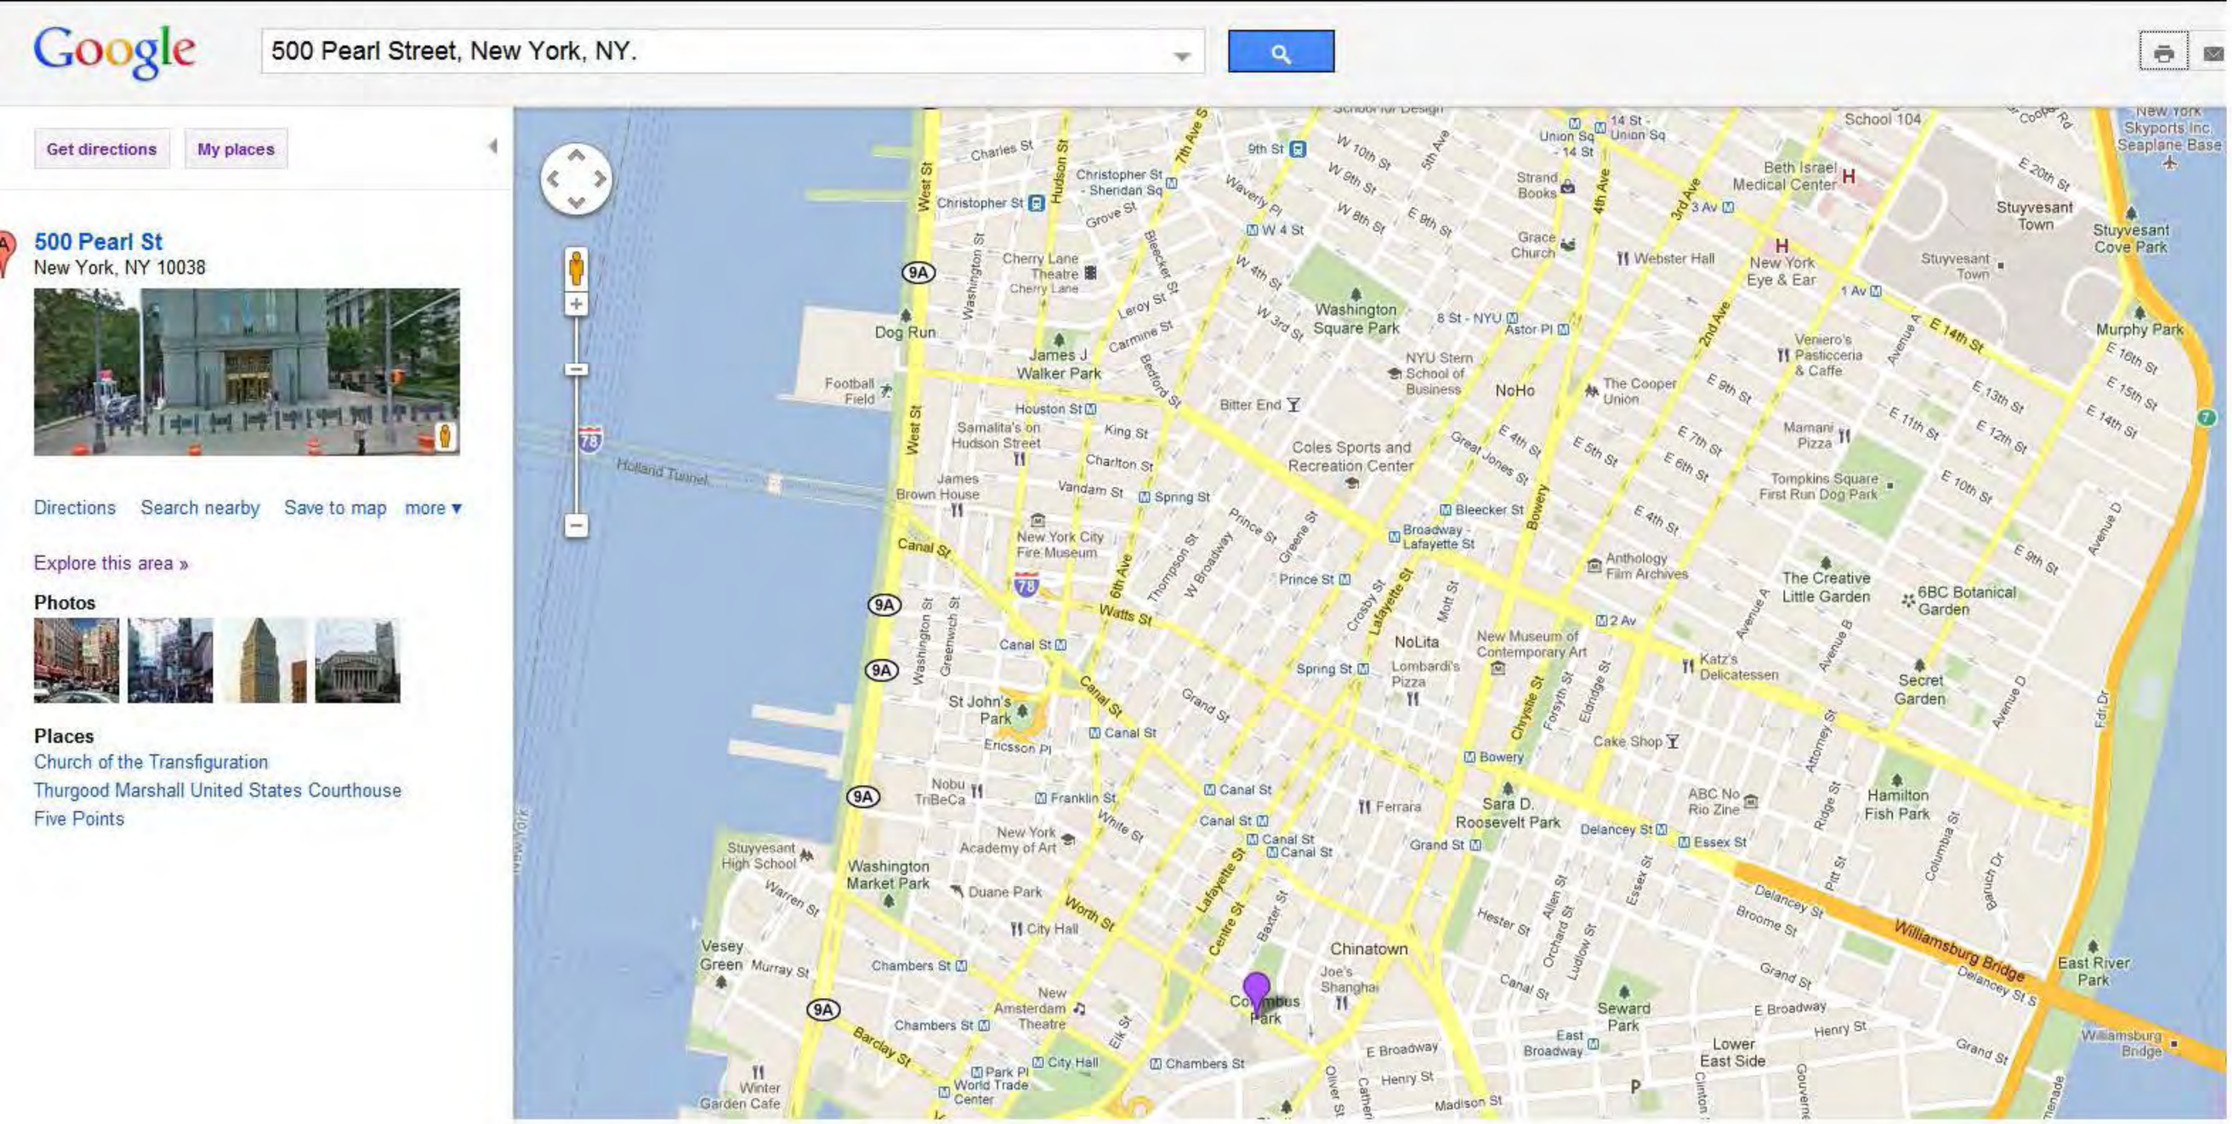

B. Table of Contents of items in the records of all courts US:2365

1. All the items: on the accompanying CD; and

2. Select items: in the separate volume filed with Dr. Cordero's in-chambers application of August 4, 2008, to the Justices for injunctive relief and a stay, referred by Chief Justice Roberts to the Court on September 10 for the Conference on September 29, 2008

C. Other relevant material

Proposed document production order..... infra at the back, bound and in a loose copy

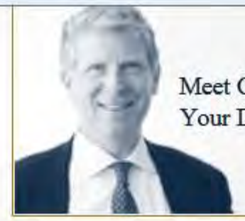

Map of downtown New York City showing where the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit is located across from Chambers Subway Station and Chambers Street near Chinatown to the north east and City Hall, Brooklyn Bridge, and Wall Street to the south. (Map by Google)

Temporary location of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit (CA2) in the building of the U.S. District Court for the Southern District (NYSD) in New York City. The tower to the right in the back is the building of the Court of Appeals, which has been under renovation for more than four years. (Photo by Google)

http://manhattanda.org/directions
Directions | The New York ...
File Edit View Favorites Tools Help Convert Select

The New York County District Attorney's Office

Meet Cyrus R. Vance, Jr., Your District Attorney

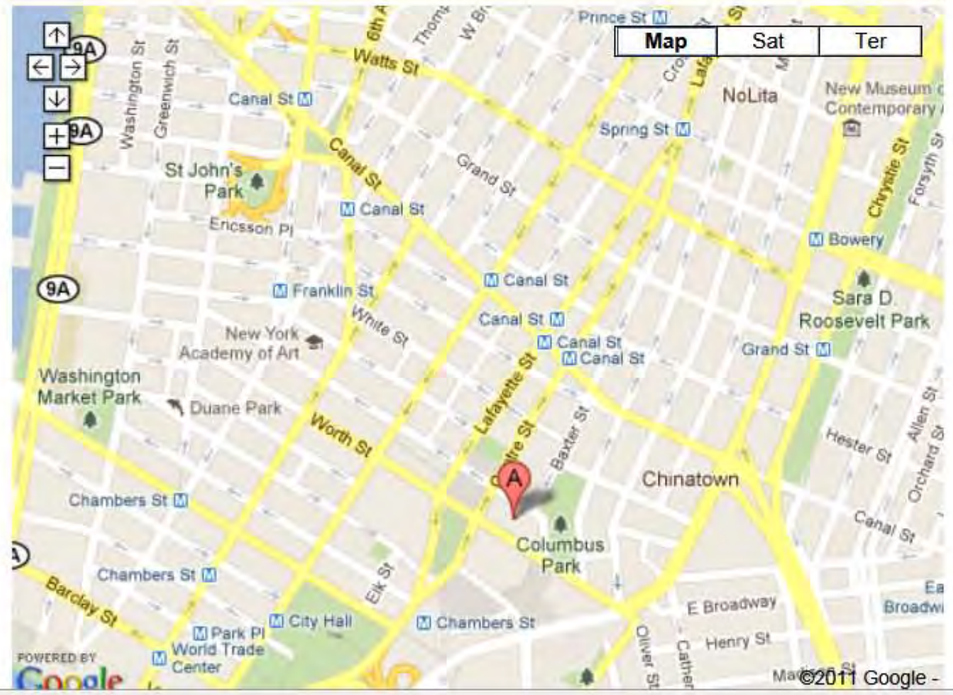

Directions

Contact Us
Directions
Case Information Twitter Facebook

Text Resize A A

Main Office

One Hogan Place
New York, NY 10013
(212) 335-9000

Hot Topic: Domestic Violence

Immigration Services Fraud

TAKE ACTION

- Find case information
- Report a crime
- Public Integrity Unit
- Get an order of protection
- Find a number for my local precinct
- Identify elder abuse
- Report child abuse
- Keeping kids safe online
- Report identity theft

125%
Web Slice Ga
Desktop
4:05 AM
10/27/2011

Map of the federal circuits, produced by the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts; http://www.uscours.gov/Court_Locator.aspx

A. Means, motive, and opportunity of federal judges to engage in, and so to coordinate their, wrongdoing as to make it their institutionalized modus operandi and render their Judiciary a safe haven for wrongdoing

28. Coordinated wrongdoing in the Federal Judiciary[7] is driven by (a) the most effective means, to wit, lifetime unaccountable power to decide over people's property, liberty, and lives; (b) the most corruptive motive, money!, staggering amounts of money in controversy between litigants; and (c) the opportunity to put both in play in millions of practically unreviewable cases.[8]

1. The means of unaccountable power

a. Only 8 federal judges impeached and removed in over 224 years: de facto unimpeachability and irremovability

29. The unaccountable power of federal judges[9] is revealed by the official statistics of the Federal Judiciary. They are published by its Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts (AO)[10] and its

---

[7] For an overview of the structure of the Federal Judiciary, see http://www.uscourts.gov/FederalCourts/UnderstandingtheFederalCourts/FederalCourtsStructure.aspx

[8] The statements made in this proposal concern directly the Federal Judiciary and its judges. However, they are indirectly applicable to state judges for similar reasons, namely, they too are held unaccountable by their peers, who expect reciprocal treatment; by the executives who appointed or nominated them and are loath to expose subsequently their own appointees' unethical or criminal conduct; and by the legislatures, who fear their power, as the executives also do, to declare their signature laws unconstitutional. Such unaccountability encourages riskless wrongdoing.

What also varies among all of them is the mode of access to a justiceship: Federal district and circuit judges and the justices are the only ones nominated by the President and confirmed by the Senate to their justiceships for life. Although federal bankruptcy judges and magistrates are appointed by life-tenured judges for renewable terms[61], their terms are routinely renewed and the effect is similar to a life appointment. All state judges are either appointed for a term, which may be renewable, or run for their judgeships in judicial elections. The practical importance of differences in mode of access to a judgeship is lessened by the similar effect of being held unaccountable and its resulting perverse assurance that their wrongdoing is riskless.

[9] Generally in this proposal, "judges" means U.S. Supreme Court justices; U.S. bankruptcy, district, and circuit court judges (the latter are those of the Courts of Appeals for the 13 federal circuits), and magistrates, unless the context requires the term to be given a more restrictive or expansive sense.

[10] a) AO assists only in the administration of the federal courts and has no adjudicative functions; http://www.uscourts.gov/ContactUs/ContactUs2.aspx.

b) It was established under title 28 of the U.S. Code, section 601 (28 U.S.C. §601); http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc601-603_Adm_Off.pdf. Its director and deputy director are appointed and removable by the chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court after consulting with the Judicial Conference [9[a]], id; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/J_THogan_Named_AO_Director.pdf.

Federal Judicial Center[11]. Although thousands and thousands of federal judges have served since their Judiciary was created in 1789 under Article III of the U.S. Constitution[12] –2,131 were in office on 30sep11[13]-, the number of those removed in more than 223 years since then is only 8![14]

30. It follows as a historic fact that once confirmed as a judge, a person can do whatever he wants without fear of losing his job. If your boss had such assurance of irremovability, would you trust her to make any effort to maintain "good Behaviour"[12] and treat you fairly rather than cut corners at your expense and abusing your rights at her whim?

31. In recent years, there have been about four times more judges than the 535 members of Congress. Yet, in those years, there have been more members showing 'bad Behaviour' than judges so doing in well over two hundred years.[15] It is not possible that those who were

---

c) AO's official statistics are posted at http://www.uscourts.gov/Statistics.aspx. Those relevant to this proposal have been collected for the various years covered by online postings, tabulated, analyzed, and together with links to the originals posted on http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org, from which they can be retrieved using the links provided hereunder.

d) For statistics on state courts, see Court Statistics Project, National Center for State Courts; http://www.ncsconline.org/D_Research/csp/CSP_Main_Page.html.

[11] The Federal Judicial Center is the Federal Judiciary's research and educational body; http://www.fjc.gov/. It was established under 28 U.S.C. §620; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc620-629_Fed_Jud_Center.pdf. The chairman of its board is the chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court; id. >§621, subsection (a), paragraph (1) (§621(a)(1)).

[12] a) Cf. U.S. Constitution, Article III, Section 1: "The Judges…shall hold their Offices during good Behaviour…and…receive a Compensation, which shall not be diminished during their Continuance in Office"; b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/US_Constitution.pdf

[13] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/statistics&tables/num_jud_officers.pdf >njo:13

[14] Federal Judicial Center, http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/statistics&tables/impeached_removed_judges.pdf. To put this in perspective, "1 in every 31 adults [in the U.S.] were [sic] under correctional supervision at yearend '08"; Probation and Parole in the U.S., 2008, Lauren E. Glaze and Thomas P. Bonczar, Bureau of Justice Statistics, U.S. Department of Justice, BJS Bulletin, dec9, NCJ 228230, p.3; http://bjs.ojp.usdoj.gov/index.cfm?ty=dcdetail&iid=271; and http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/statistics&tables/correctioneers/correctional_population_1in31.pdf.

If the "1 in every 31" statistic is applied arguendo to the 2,146 federal judges on the bench on 30sep10, then 69 of them should have been incarcerated or on probation or parole. Hence, the current number of 1 judge under any such type of correctional supervision –U.S. District Judge Samuel Kent of the Southern District of Texas, incarcerated on charges of sexual misconduct– defies any statistical refinement to bring it within the scope of the corresponding correctional supervisee number pertaining to the general population

[15] a) Some of the members of Congress who in the past few years have been incarcerated, expelled, censured, or investigated by a congressional ethics committee –let alone any investigated by the U.S. Department of Justice– or have resigned under the pall of scandal or publicly acknowledged their ethical violations are Larry Craig, John Conyers, Duke Cunningham, Tom Delay, John Doolittle, John Ensign, Mark Foley, William "Dollar Bill" Jefferson, Christopher Lee, Eric Massa, John Murtha, Bob Ney, Richard Pombo, Charles Rangle, recommended, nominated, endorsed, and confirmed to judgeships in an eminently political process conducted by politicians in "Washington[, a place that] is dominated by the culture of corruption"[16a], could have turned out to be so astonishingly consistent in their "good Behaviour". The corrupt, tainted as they are, could not have bestowed incorruptibility on those whom they chose as judges, aside from the fact that no one could do so on anybody else. It is more likely that they put in office judges whom they expected either to uphold the legislation that they had passed or would pass to enact their political agenda[17] or to be lenient toward them if on charges of their own corruption[16b] they had to face those judges or their peers in future. This explains

---

Rick Renzi, James Traficant, Ted Stevens, Anthony Weiner, David Wu; http://www.ethics.senate.gov/public/index.cfm/annualreports; Cf. http://www.crewsmostcorrupt.org/mostcorrupt; https://www.judicialwatch.org/corrupt-politicians-lists/

b) Congressional approval is up. But barely; Ed O'Keefe; Inside the 112th Congress, The Washington Post, 12jun12; http://www.washingtonpost.com/blogs/2chambers/post/congressional-approval-is-up-but-barely/2012/06/11/gJQApSiZVV_blog.html;

c) Gallup's trend line on congressional approval in Why 'Fast and Furious' is a political loser; Chris Cillizza and Aaron Blake; The Fix, The Washington Post, 26jun12; http://www.washingtonpost.com/blogs/the-fix/post/why-fast-and-furious-is-a-political-loser/2012/06/25/gJQA80p42V_blog.html?wpisrc=nl_pmfix [16] a) Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives Nancy Pelosi, in addition to so denouncing Washington, promised in 2006 "to drain the swamp of corruption in Washington"; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/corruption_culture_dominates_Washington.pdf. b) Members of Congress trade in companies while making laws that affect those same firms, Dan Keating, David S. Fallis, Kimberly Kindy and Scott Higham, The Washington Post, 23jun12; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Legal_news.pdf >Ln:111.

[17] a) President Franklin D. Roosevelt had key elements of his New Deal legislation declared unconstitutional by Supreme Court justices that advocated a free market and did not approve of his market regulation aimed at correcting both some of the excesses that had led up to the Great Depression of 1929 and the widespread poverty that the latter had brought about. He countered with his 1937 court packing proposal: He attempted to increase from 9 to 15 the number of justices with his own supporters, whose votes would nullify those of the justices opposing his legislation. His proposal failed because it was deemed an abuse of the Executive trying to manipulate the Judiciary and deprive it of its independence.

This historical event stands as a reminder to the executive and legislative branches of how vulnerable they are if the judiciary wants to retaliate against them for investigating judges for wrongdoing: The judges can close ranks and simply and without raising any suspicion declare their programmatic legislation unconstitutional. For President Obama and the Democrats in Congress such legislation would be the health care and Dodd–Frank Wall Street reform acts. Yet, the judges are even more vulnerable, as shown below.(jur:92§d).

b) This event highlights the oddity of all the 2012 presidential nominee candidates having criticized federal judges openly and harshly for being either "activist" or "liberal"; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Rep_candidates_fed_judges_12.pdf >act_j:61. Those are subjective notions that only appeal to like-minded people. By contrast, this proposal is founded on the broader basis of objective evidence of the judges' wrongdoing, which is apt to outrage people of all persuasions and stir them up to demand that the media and the authorities investigate and hold them accountable and undertake judicial reform.

why corrupt politicians and the peers who condone(jur:88§§a-d) their corruption disregard complaints about 'badly behaving' judges. If they investigated and disciplined those judges, they would antagonize not only those under investigation, but also turn into their enemy the whole class of them, a specially dangerous one: life-tenured, in practice unimpeachable, bias-longholding federal judges. Corrupt politicians and their condoners fear that if they ended up being indicted and brought before those judges and their peers, the judges would take that opportunity to retaliate against them and teach others a lesson: Don't you ever mess with us!

b. Systematic dismissal of 99.82% of complaints against judges and up to 100% of denials of petitions to review dismissals

32. Under the Judicial Conduct and Disability Act of 1980[18a] any person can file a complaint against a federal judge for misconduct. But of the 9,466 complaints filed during the 1oct96-30sep08 12-year period reported online(jur:10; cf. jur:12-14), 99.82% were dismissed with no investigation [19a,b]. Since these complaints are kept confidential, they are not available to the public, who is thereby prevented from reviewing them to detect either patterns or trends concerning any individual judge or all judges as a class, or the gravity and reliability of the allegations.

33. Moreover, in the 13-year period to 30sep09, the all-judge judicial councils of the federal circuits, charged with their respective administrative and disciplinary matters, have systematically denied complainants' petitions to review[18b] such dismissals[19c]. In fact, the district and circuit judges on the Judicial Council of the Second Circuit[18f], including Then-Judge Sonia Sotomayor during her stint there[20] as member of the Circuit's Court of Appeals[18g], denied 100% of those petitions (jur:11) during FY96-09.[19d] Thereby they pretended that in that 13-year period not a single one of their 2nd Circuit complained-against peers engaged in conduct suspect enough to warrant the review by the Council of the dismissal by the CA2 chief judge of the corresponding complaint.

34. They also pretended that all of the many judges that during that period belonged on a rotating basis to that 13-member Council happened to come through their independent exercise of personal judgment to the unfailingly consistent conclusion that, not even the same chief judge, but rather, the successive chief judges were correct in every one of their complaint dismissals whose review was petitioned to the Council. To illustrate how utterly contrived and thus impossible this permanently coincidental eye to eye seeing is it suffices to try to imagine hundreds of cases each with particular factual and legal issues within any given category of cases in which nevertheless the fewer, eight associate justices of the Supreme Court invariably agreed with the decisions made by one or successive chief justices during a 13-year period. Is there an issue with varying

---

[18] a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc351-364.pdf; b) id. >§352(c); c) >§353; d) >§354(a)(1)(A), (C); e) >§351(d)(1); 363; f) http://www.ca2.uscourts.gov/judcouncil.htm; g) http://www.ca2.uscourts.gov/

[19] a) Table S-22. Report of Action Taken on Complaints [previously Table S-23 or S-24]; AO, Judicial Business of the U.S. Courts; http://www.uscourts.gov/Statistics/Judicial Business.aspx; b) collected and relevant values tabulated, http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/statistics&tables/judicial_misconduct_complaints.pdf >Cg:1 & 5a/fn.18; c) id. >Cg:6; d) id. >Cg:3, row 63, Cg:7 and 48; e)id. >Cg:4, 6; f) fn109b >2482§XV. Appendix/CA:2180: DeLano, 06-4780-CA

[20] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/J_Sotomayor_Jud_Council_member.pdf

circumstances on which you have invariably agreed with another person for the last 13 years?

35. This denial of 100% -and even anything close to it- of petitions for review of peer wrongdoing complaint dismissal reveals perfect implicit or explicit coordination between judicial peers to reciprocally protect themselves on the understanding that 'today I dismiss a complaint against you, tomorrow you dismiss any against me or my buddies whatever the charge…no questions asked!' This establishes complicit collegiality among judicial peers: They provide to each other the wrongful benefit of such reciprocal protection at the expense of complainants, who are deprived of any rightful relief from the cause for complaint. They also impair the integrity of both the administration of justice and themselves, for partiality toward peers replaces "the equal protection of the laws" required by the 14th, and through it, the 5th Amendments[12]; and breaches the oath that they took to "do equal right to the poor [in judicial connections] and to the rich [in judicial decision-making power to reciprocate a wrongful benefit]"[90].

36. Realizing how totally rigged is the handling of complaints filed under the Judicial Conduct Act[18a] and how intolerably it condemns lawyers to keep suffering at the hands of federal judges, the two largest and most influential bar associations in New York City managed to set up an alternative complaint mechanism with the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. It provides for these three parties to appoint a "Joint Committee on Judicial Conduct [whose] mission is to serve as an intermediary between members of the bar and the federal courts"[21a]. By those terms, only lawyers can file a complaint with that Committee.[21b] This means that the pro ses that filed 49.2%[64] of the appeals in FY11 (the year to 30sep11) in the federal courts of appeals and the rest of the non-lawyer public are left out and must continue to file under the Act complaints that have an average 99.82%(jur:24¶32) chance of being dismissed.

c. Complaint dismissal without any investigation constitutes automatic abusive self-conferral of the wrongful professional benefit of immunity from discipline

37. Although a chief judge can appoint an investigative committee to investigate a complaint[18c] and a council can "conduct any additional investigation that it considers to be necessary"[18d], years go by without a single committee being appointed and any additional investigation being conducted in any of the 12 regional circuits[22a] and 3 national courts[18e]. As a result, the complained-against judges have gotten scot-free without the statistics reporting for 13 years nationwide but 1 single private censure and 6 public ones out of 9,466 complaints.[19e] This is .07% or 1 in every 1,352.

---

[21] a) Press release of Chief Judge John M. Walker of the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, jointly with Bettina B. Plevan, President of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, and Joan Wexler, President of the Federal Bar Council, announcing the continuing and new members of the Joint Committee on Judicial Conduct, originally created in 2001; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/NYCBar_FBC/Comm_JudConduct_17nov5.pdf. b) But that Committee too knows better than to even acknowledge receipt of a professionally prepared complaint supported with abundant evidence and involving even two chief circuit judges in covering up a bankruptcy fraud scheme run by judges of the 2nd Circuit; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/NYCBar_FBC/to_ComJudConduct_19jun6.pdf.

[22] a) http://www.uscourts.gov/Court_Locator.aspx; b) http://www.uscourts.gov/FederalCourts/UnderstandingtheFederalCourts/DistrictCourts.aspx

The judges have arrogated to themselves the power to effectively abrogate in self-interest that Act[18a] of Congress granting the people the right to complain against them and to petition for review of the dismissal of their complaints.[23]

38. Through complaint dismissal judges also obtain another wrongful professional benefit in addition to self-exemption from discipline, namely, the dispatch through expediency of their judicial work of administering justice. This type of benefit is increased when they resort to their means for wrongdoing, that is, unaccountable judicial decision-making power, to get rid of cases through the expedient of summary orders and perfunctory "not for publication" and "not precedential" decisions(jur:43§1).

d. Abusive self-granted immunization for even malicious and corrupt acts

39. The Supreme Court has protected its own by granting judges absolute immunity from liability for violating §1983 of the Civil Rights Act[24], although it applies to "every person" who under color of law deprives another person of his civil rights.[25] "This immunity applies even when the judge is accused of acting maliciously and corruptly".[id.] The Court has also assured judges that "A judge will not be deprived of immunity because the action he took was in error, was done maliciously, or was in excess of his authority"[26]. Appeals from decisions holding malicious judges harmless are not a remedy: Most litigants cannot afford to appeal and ignore how to, especially if pro se. Since more than 99% of appeals to the Supreme Court are denied[27], appeals offer no deterrence.

40. This self-immunization from liability is coupled with the systematic dismissal of complaints against them(jur:24§b). Through both mechanisms, judges self-ensure their historic de facto beyond prosecution status and unimpeachability. They enable them to remain unaccountable. Their unaccountability engenders an irresistible inducement to abuse their judicial power: risklessness. Their wrongdoing does not imperil either their office, their compensation, or their good repute. It has no downsize; only the upside of some illegal or unethical benefit, which may be material, professional, or social. Unaccountability renders the power that they wield not just enormous, but

---

[23] a) Complaint statistics are reported under 28 U.S.C. §604(h)(2), http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc601-613_Adm_Off.pdf, to Congress, which in self-interest ignores the Judiciary's nullification of its Act, the harm to the people that it represents notwithstanding. b) Cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/SCt_knows_of_dismissals.pdf

c) On the history leading to the sham drafting and adoption of the new rules for federal judges to process complaints against their peers so as to ensure the continued self-immunization against any investigation and discipline through systematic dismissal of complaints see fn.105b.

[24] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/42usc1981_civil_rights.pdf

[25] a) Pierson v. Ray, 386 U.S. 547 (1967); http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Pierson_v_Ray_jud_immunity.pdf; b) id.; but see J. Douglas's dissent.

[26] Stump v. Sparkman, 435 U.S. 349 (1978); http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Stump_v_Sparkman_absolute_immunity.pdf

[27] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/statistics&tables/SCt/SCt_caseload.pdf.

also absolute, which is the key element in power becoming absolutely corruptive.[28]

e. All meetings held behind closed doors; no press conferences held

41. To evade accountability, they hold all their adjudicative, administrative, disciplinary, and policy-making meetings behind closed doors[29] and never appear at a press conference. That cloaks their operations in actual secrecy. In the same vein, the unreviewability in practice of their decisions, discussed next(jur:28§3), cloaks them in virtual secrecy. The Federal Judiciary has adopted actual and virtual secrecy as its institutional policy and the cover in practice of its judges' wrong and wrongful conduct and decisions. It is the most expedient and inexpensive measure to prevent detection of wrongdoing…close the doors!…and a powerful inducement to engage in it.

2. The corruptive motive of money

42. Two chief justices have stated the critical importance that federal judges attach to their salaries.[30] Unfortunately for them, they do not fix their own salaries. However, just the bankruptcy judges in only the 1,536,799 consumer bankruptcies filed in calendar year 2010 ruled on $373 billion[31].

---

[28] Here are applicable the aphorisms of Lord Acton, Letter to Bishop Mandell Creighton, April 3, 1887: "Power corrupts, and absolute power corrupts absolutely".

[29] http://judicial-discipline-reform.org/Follow_money/unaccount_jud_nonjud_acts.pdf >2

[30] a) "I will reiterate what I have said many times over the years about the need to compensate judges fairly. In 1989, in testimony before Congress, I described the inadequacy of judicial salaries as "the single greatest problem facing the Judicial Branch today." Eleven years later, in my 2000 Year-End Report, I said that the need to increase judicial salaries had again become the most pressing issue facing the Judiciary." Chief Justice William Rehnquist, 2002 Year-end Report on the Federal Judiciary, p.2. http://www.supremecourtus.gov/publicinfo/year-end/2002year-endreport.html; and http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Chief_Justice_yearend_reports.pdf >CJr:79

b) "[Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts] Director Mecham's June 14 letter to you makes clear that judges who have been leaving the bench in the last several years believe they were treated unfairly… [due to] Congress's failure to provide regular COLAs [Cost of Living Adjustments]…That sense of inequity erodes the morale of our judges." Statement on Judicial Compensation by William H. Rehnquist, Chief Justice of the United States, Before the National Commission on the Public Service, July 15, 2002. http://www.supremecourtus.gov/publicinfo/speeches/sp_07-15-02.html; and http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/CJ_Rehnquist_morale_erosion_15jul2.pdf

c) "Congress's inaction this year vividly illustrates why judges' salaries have declined in real terms over the past twenty years…I must renew the Judiciary's modest petition: Simply provide cost-of-living increases that have been unfairly denied!" U.S. Chief Justice John Roberts, Jr., 2008 Year-end Report on the Federal Judiciary, p. 8-9. http://www.supremecourt.gov/publicinfo/year-end/year-endreports.aspx >2008;

d) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/statistics&tables/SCt/SCt_yearend_reports.pdf >yre:144-146; e) id. >yre:9-10; 29; 40-43; 52-53; 62; 109-114; 129

[31] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/statistics&tables/bkr_stats/bkr_dollar_value.pdf

To that number must be added the $10s of billions in commercial bankruptcies that they ruled on. The other federal judges also ruled on $10s of billions at stake in cases before them, such as those dealing with antitrust, breach of contract, eminent domain, fraud, patents, product liability, licensing and fines by regulatory agencies, etc. Their unaccountable power endows their wrongful ruling on such massive amount of money with the most irresistible attribute: risklessness. Judges with an 'eroded morale' and the motive to correct what they feel to be the 'inequity of their judicial salaries'[30b] can wield their means of unaccountable power to risklessly resort to helping themselves to a portion of that mind-boggling amount of money.[32]

43. The money motive also drives judges to abuse their judicial decision-making power to obtain other material benefits, such as saving money due on taxes by filing bogus annual financial disclosure reports(jur:104¶¶236,237). Whether their motive is to gain material, professional, or social benefits through the wrongful exercise of their means for wrongdoing, that is unaccountable decision-making power, judges have ample opportunity to do so.

3. Opportunity for wrongdoing in millions of practically unreviewable cases

a. In the bankruptcy and district courts

44. The opportunity for individual and coordinated wrongdoing presents itself in the cases brought before judges for adjudication. That opportunity is amplest and most irresistible in the bankruptcy courts. There litigants are most numerous and vulnerable. Those courts are the port of entry into the Federal Judiciary of 80% of all federal cases.[33] Moreover, consumers filed 1,516,971 of the 1,571,183 bankruptcy cases filed in the year to March 31, 2011.[34] The great majority of consumers are individuals appearing in court pro se, for they are bankrupt and lack the money to hire lawyers. They also lack the knowledge of the law necessary to detect bankruptcy judges' wrong or wrongful decisions, let alone to appeal.[35] As a result, only 0.23%[36]

---

[32] 1 Timothy 6:10: 'Money is a root of all evil and those pursuing it have stabbed many with all sorts of pains'. The integration of this biblical warning and Lord Acton's aphorism, fn.28, produces another insightful statement about human conduct: When unaccountable power, the key component of absolute power, strengthens the growth and is in turn fed by the root of all evil, money, the result is that both corrupt absolutely and inevitably.

[33] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/statistics&tables/bkr_stats/bkr_as_percent_new_cases.pdf

[34] a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/statistics&tables/latest_bkr_filings.pdf;

b) The most comprehensive set of statistics on cases are collected in the Annual Report of the Director of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts; http://www.uscourts.gov/Statistics/JudicialBusiness.aspx [35] a) "Pro se filings are growing around the country and it is very difficult for a pro se filer to understand and successfully traverse the system," said Chief Bankruptcy Judge Judith Wizmur (D. NJ)." Warning! Read This Before Filing Bankruptcy Pro Se, The Third Branch, Newsletter of the Federal Courts, vol. 40, Number 12, December 2008; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Warning_bkr_pro_se_filers_TTB_dec8.pdf.

b) "While individuals can file a bankruptcy case without an attorney or "pro se," it is extremely difficult to do it successfully. It is very important that a bankruptcy case be filed and handled correctly. The rules are of bankruptcy court decisions are reviewed by the district courts and fewer than .08%[37] by the circuit courts.[38]

45. Even litigants represented by lawyers do not fare much better necessarily. The bankruptcy bar is a specialized group of lawyers and they appear before the same bankruptcy judges repeatedly.[113b] Hence, it is not in the interest of those lawyers to provide their clients with zealous representation if that means challenging the judges by raising objections in the courtroom and taking appeals from their rulings and decisions. Doing so can provoke a judge into retaliating against the lawyers directly by disregarding or fabricating facts; misapplying the rules despite their clear wording or precedent; imposing burdensome requirements without any support in law or practical justification; time and again ruling and ruling untimely late against their motions; and indirectly by having court clerks enter the briefs and motions in the docket with dates that are wrong and detrimental to the lawyers' interest, when they enter those papers at all because they were not 'accidentally lost or misplaced'; schedule the hearings of their motions for the worst possible time, when it is likely that the judge will 'run out of time' and a rescheduling is needed, which may also be necessary when the clerks 'inadvertently set the hearing in conflict with the judge's previous commitment to deliver the keynote speech at the annual meeting of the bar's ethics committee'; etc.

46. This type of chicanery does happen even to the elite bankruptcy lawyers who represent the very technical, and a misstep may affect a debtor's rights….Debtors are strongly encouraged to obtain the services of competent legal counsel"; http://www.uscourts.gov/FederalCourts/Bankruptcy/BankruptcyResources/FilingBankruptcyWithoutAttorney.aspx.

---

[36] Although 6,142,076(G1) bankruptcy cases were filed during FY05-09, only 14,249 were appealed or withdrawn to the district courts(G7). These appeals (and withdrawals) represented a miniscule 0.23%(H7), less than a quarter of one percent or 1 of every 431 bankruptcy cases. Bankruptcy appeals can also be taken to the Bankruptcy Appellate Panels or BAPs, set up under 28 U.S.C. §158(b)(1)[61a], which are composed of three bankruptcy judges. However, they only exist in 5 of the 12 regional circuits; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/statistics&tables/bkr_stats/Bkr_App_Panels.pdf. In any event, there were only 4,154 BAP appeals(G8). Hence, the total of bankruptcy appeals to either the district courts or the BAPs was 18,403(G9), which still represents a miniscule 0.3%(H9) of all FY05-09 bankruptcy cases(G1) or 1 of every 334, that is, 3 of every 1,000. By either calculation, as a practical matter, whatever a bankruptcy judge decides (or rules) stands. These figures are keyed to the (Table) at fn.33. Cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc158b_BAP_unconstitutional.pdf

[37] During the 5-year period of FY05-09, only 4,097(G10) bankruptcy appeals were taken to the circuit courts; compared to the 6,142,076(G1) cases filed in the bankruptcy courts, such appeals were a meager 0.07%(H10). This means that in 99.93% of the cases, bankruptcy judges did not have to fear a challenge in the circuit courts, for only 1 of every 1,499 bankruptcy cases made it to a circuit court. To put this in perspective, although bankruptcy cases constituted 79%(H5) of all new cases during that period, they only represented 1.31% of the appeals to the circuit courts(H11). Indeed, a bankruptcy judge can do anything he wants because the odds of him being taken on appeal to the circuit court, never mind of being reversed, are negligible. These odds engender the boldness of impunity. These figures are keyed to the (Table) at fn.33.

[38] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/statistics&tables/bkr_non-biz&pro_se&appeals.pdf

creditors in big bankruptcy cases, that is, those where the assets of the debtor are worth at least $100 million and all the way to billions of dollars, involving, for example, banks; store chain retailers; communications, shipping, and multinational companies; real estate developers, etc.

> By a series of procedural maneuvers Bankruptcy Judge Balick sent the secured creditors [in the Continental Airlines bankruptcy] home with nothing at all. Two and a half months into the case, the secured creditors filed a request for adequate protection [against the decline in the value of their collateral during the bankruptcy case]. Ordinarily, a bankruptcy court will rule on such a request within 30 to 60 days. Judge Balick held the hearing…six months after the request. Then she delayed her ruling for almost an additional year. Courting Failure; How Competition for the Big Cases is Corrupting the Bankruptcy Courts, Lynn M. LoPucki; University of Michigan (2005); e-book ed., Chapter 2.
>
> When Houston-based Enron filed its bankruptcy in New York, the New York court retained the case over the objection of some of Enron's major creditors. The court allowed Kenneth Lay, the apparent perpetrator of one of the biggest frauds in history, to remain as CEO long enough to choose a successor who flatly refused to take action against him [on behalf of Enron and its shareholders]. Ignoring a motion for appointment of a trustee filed by major creditors, the New York court left unindicted members of Enron's corrupt management in control through the crucial stages of the case. Apparently pleased with what they saw, the fraudulent managements of three other big companies, Global Crossing, Adelphia, and Worldcom, [engaged in forum shopping too] and filed those companies' cases in New York. Id., Chapter 10.

47. The above concerns creditors represented by top bankruptcy lawyers, who may charge $400, $500, $600 or more per hour and in addition bill for armies of assistants researching the law and devising strategy. Even they are denied their rights and made to suffer losses in the millions and tens of millions of dollars by wrongdoing bankruptcy judges. The latter are appointed, reappointed, and upheld by appellate judges that allow them to take off on ego trips in pursuit at the very least of the non-material benefit of the power, prestige, and deferential treatment that come from favoring big, headline grabbing debtors in their courts; through such debtors the judges send the message to similar big ones that they can expect the same favor if they shop into their courts rather than into other judges' when filing for bankruptcy relief from their well-heeled creditors. Would it be consistent with human nature and its reflection in institutional systems to expect any of the bankruptcy judges, who are assured by their Judiciary of impunity, jur:21§1, for their law-contemptous and self-interested abuse of the rich, not to deal equally or even more abusively with poorer debtors and creditors, never mind if also appearing pro se[35], from whom they can extract risklessly even material benefits, jur:27§2, as well as other social and professional ones? Do mob bosses' soldiers who handle ruthlessly even the toughest of bullies turn into Mother Theresa of Calcutta when dealing with the weaklings[34] of their hoods who have no choice, jur:28§3, but to turn to them for protection?

1) The power to remove clerks without cause allows judges to abuse them as executioners of their wrongdoing orders

48. The judge can have the same retaliatory effect indirectly through their clerks. He can order them to take all sorts of damaging actions against challenging lawyers, such as lose or misplace the briefs and motions that they file; change their filing dates so that they miss their deadlines and are late and inadmissible, but make the filings of their opposing counsel appear timely filed even if they are late; doctor the transcripts and entries in the record to support the judges' predetermined decision…after all, who is there to investigate the unaccountable judges' relations to bankruptcy lawyers or anybody else, including their clerks, whom they appoint?

49. On the contrary, the open-ended conferral of power on clerks could mislead them into thinking that they can do anything. Is it likely that after reading the following provision they feel that the Nuremberg principle, i.e., following orders is no excuse for committing a crime, does not apply to them?

> 28 U.S.C. §956. Powers and duties of clerks and deputies. The clerk of each court and his deputies and assistants shall exercise the powers and perform the duties assigned to them by the court.

50. Clerks who refuse to obey a judge's order to do wrong can find themselves without a job on the spot, for they are subject to removal without cause, that is, the judges can capriciously and arbitrarily terminate their livelihood for any and no reason at all.

> 28 U.S.C. §156. Staff (a)…the bankruptcy judges for such district may appoint an individual to serve as clerk of such bankruptcy court. The clerk may appoint, with the approval of such bankruptcy judges, and in such number as may be approved by the Director, necessary deputies, and may remove such deputies with the approval of such bankruptcy judges.[39]

51. The clerks and employees of the other courts also work at the mercy of the judges, who wield over them the same power of removal without cause, as provided for in the Judicial Code:[40]

a) Provisions in the Judicial Code, 28 U.S.C.[40], enabling removal without cause

<table>
<tr><th>Supreme Court</th><th>Courts of Appeals</th><th>District Courts</th><th>U.S. Court of Federal Claims</th><th>Court of Internat'. Trade</th></tr>
<tr><td rowspan="3">§671 Clerk and deputies §672. Marshall
§673. Reporter
§677. Administrative Assistant to the Chief Justice</td><td rowspan="3">§332(f)(2) Circuit executive §711. Clerks and employees
§713. Librarians
§714. Criers and messengers
§715. Staff attorney and technical assistants</td><td>§751 Clerks</td><td>§791. Clerk and its deputies and employees §795. Bailiffs and messengers</td><td rowspan="3">§871. Clerk, chief deputy clerk, assistant clerk, deputies, assistants, and other employees
§872. Criers, bailiffs, and messengers</td></tr>
<tr><td>Bankruptcy Courts</td><td>Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit</td></tr>
<tr><td>§156</td><td>§332(h)(1)</td></tr>
<tr><td colspan="2">Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts</td><td>§601</td><td>Federal Judicial Center</td><td>§624(1)</td></tr>
</table>

52. There is no statutory provision in the Judicial Code making 5 U.S.C. Government Organization and Employees, governing appointments and other personnel actions in the competitive service, mostly in the Executive Branch, applicable to the employees of the Judicial Branch.

---

[39] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc151-159_bkr_judges.pdf

[40] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc_2011.pdf

> 5 U.S.C §2102. The competitive service. (a) The ''competitive service'' consists of— …(2) civil service positions not in the executive branch which are specifically included in the competitive service by statute….[41]

53. How precariously these court employees hang to their jobs becomes starkly evident by contrasting the curt provision for their removal without cause to those concerning magistrates:

> 28 U.S.C. §631(i) Removal of a magistrate judge during the term for which he is appointed shall be only for incompetency, misconduct, neglect of duty, or physical or mental disability, but a magistrate judge's office shall be terminated if the conference determines that the services performed by his office are no longer needed. Removal shall be by the judges of the district court for the judicial district in which the magistrate judge serves; where there is more than one judge of a district court, removal shall not occur unless a majority of all the judges of such court concur in the order of removal; and when there is a tie vote of the judges of the district court on the question of the removal or retention in office of a magistrate judge, then removal shall be only by a concurrence of a majority of all the judges of the council.…(emphasis added)

54. On the other hand, clerks can execute the orders to engage in wrongdoing confidently that no harm will come to them as a consequence. They can be sure that the judges extend to them the impunity that they have enjoyed for the last 223 years since the creation of the Judiciary in 1789 during which only 8 federal judges have been impeached and removed.[14] This explains why also lawyers find that doing wrong for or with a bankruptcy judge is completely safe. Moreover, being in the good graces of bankruptcy judges has historically proved to be very profitable.

2) Congress's 1979 finding of "cronyism" between bankruptcy judges and lawyers and its failed attempt to eliminate it

55. A corrupt and harmful relation between bankruptcy judges and the bankruptcy bar has a very long history. Congress acknowledged its existence and tried to eliminate it by adopting FRBP 2013.[42] The Advisory Committee[43] summarized the Congressional findings in its Note in 1979 to

---

[41] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/5usc_2011.pdf

[42] The Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure, FRBkrP, with the Notes of the Advisory Committee, current after incorporation of all amendments are at http://uscode.house.gov/download/downloadPDF.shtml >112th Congress, 1st Session (2011) (2006 Edition and Supplement V) [or http://uscode.house.gov/pdf/2011/] > Thursday, April 12, 2012 7:21 AM 13385045 2011usc11a.pdf; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/FRBkrP_notes_3jan12.pdf. For the Bankruptcy Code, 11 U.S.C., see fn.47a.

To find the text of a rule in force at a given point in time, go to the official link above and click on the year in question and on the equivalent of 2010usc11a.pdf for the chosen year; or consult Bankruptcy Code, Rules and Forms, 2010 ed., published by West Thomson, which also provides information on amendment and applicability dates and contains the official Notes as well as other editorial enhancements; http://west.thomson.com/productdetail/160035/22035157/productdetail.aspx?promcode=600582C43556&promtype=internal. Amended rules become effective each December 1 as proposed by the Supreme Court to Congress by the preceding May 1 and not modified by the latter; fn.40 >§§2072-2075.

[43] "The Committee on Rules of Practice and Procedure and the Advisory Committee on the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure, Judicial Conference of the United States[91a], prepared notes explaining the that rule (at the time titled Rule 2005)[44] thus:

> A basic purpose of the rule [that "The clerk shall maintain a public record listing fees awarded by the court (1) to trustees and attorneys, accountants, appraisers, auctioneers and other professionals employed by trustees[45a], and (2) to examiners"] is to prevent what Congress has defined as "cronyism." Appointment or employment, whether in a chapter 7 or 11 case, should not center among a small select group of individuals unless the circumstances are such that it would be warranted. The public record of appointments to be kept by the clerk will provide a means for monitoring the appointment process.
>
> Subdivision (b) provides a convenient source for public review of fees paid from debtors' estates in the bankruptcy courts. Thus, public recognition of appointments, fairly distributed and based on professional qualifications and expertise, will be promoted and notions of improper favor dispelled. This rule is in keeping with the findings of the Congressional subcommittees as set forth in the House Report of the Committee on the Judiciary, No. 95-595, 95th Cong., 1st Sess. 89-99 (1977). These findings included the observations that there were frequent appointments of the same person, contacts developed between the bankruptcy bar and the courts, and an unusually close relationship between the bar and the judges developed over the years. A major purpose of the new statute is to dilute these practices and instill greater public confidence in the system. Rule 2005 implements that laudatory purpose. (emphasis added)

56. To eliminate this "cronyism", Congress also deprived bankruptcy judges of the power to appoint trustees and prohibited them from presiding over, or even attending, the meeting of creditors with the debtors. Instead, it provided for the U.S. trustees, who are government officers belonging to the Executive Branch and appointed by the attorney general[46a], to appoint private trustees for chapters 7, 11, 12, and 13 cases[46b], who are paid, not by the government, but rather from commissions out of the bankruptcy estate. However, it is the bankruptcy judge presiding over a case who determines whether a private trustee earns her requested per case "reasonable compensation for actual, necessary services rendered"[47] and "reimbursement for actual, necessary purpose and intent of the amendments to the rules. The Committee Notes may be found in the Appendix to Title 11, United States Code, following the particular rule to which they relate." Rep. Lamar Smith, Chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives, Foreword to the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure, 1dec11; http://judiciary.house.gov/about/procedural.html >Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure as of 1dec11; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/FRBkrP_1dec11.pdf.

---

[44] Cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/FRBP_Rules_Com_79.pdf >Rule 2005

[45] a) fn.62 >11 U.S.C. §327. Employment of professional persons. b) Id. >§341; . c) cf. fn.169

[46] a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc581-589b_US_trustees.pdf >§581

b) Id. >§589 "(a) Each United States trustee…shall - (1) establish, maintain, and supervise a panel of private trustees that are eligible and available to serve as trustees in cases under chapter 7 of title 11…(b) If the number of cases under chapter 12 or 13 of title 11 commenced in a particular region so warrants, the United States trustee for such region may, subject to the approval of the Attorney General, appoint one or more individuals to serve as standing trustee, or designate one or more assistant United States trustees to serve in cases under such chapter."

[47] a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/11usc_Bkr-Code_11.pdf;

b) id. on compensation of trustee >§330(a)(1)(A) and (4) and 331; and (1) if under Chapter 7 >§§326(a) and 330(b),; (2) if under Chapter 13 •if a panel or standing trustee >§§326(b), expenses"[48]. If the judge finds that the trustee's request does not meet such criteria, the trustee ends up having invested her effort and time in the case for naught and paying out of her own pocket the expenses incurred; otherwise, she receives a diminished amount or even a pittance on the dollar. This is more likely to happen to trustees who challenge the bankruptcy judge than to those that, like the ones that judges used to appoint, acquiesce in whatever the judge says. Nothing has changed.

57. Bankruptcy judges can still feel it very unfair that they have to do all the hard and time-consuming work of signing trustees' requests for compensation for the trustees' services rendered or reimbursement for their expenses incurred or at least so claimed, but it is the trustees who get all the money. The judges cannot have failed to realize that all the trustees' work is worthless without their approving signature; the latter is what makes their work valuable. That signature has economic value. Why should their duty or personal integrity force them to give it for free? Given the historic and statistical near certainty that a federal judge will not be removed(jur:21§a) or even disciplined(jur:24§b) regardless of the nature and gravity of his wrongdoing, it is reasonable to infer from 'the totality of circumstances' –just as jurors are required to do when sitting on a civil case or even a criminal one, where the defendant risks forfeiture of his liberty and even his life– that bankruptcy judges may have forced trustees to enter into deals providing for the judges' approval of the trustees' compensation or reimbursement claims in exchange for a cut in cash, in kind, or a service. After all, who will be the wiser in the "absence of effective oversight"?(jur:35§3) Nothing has changed.

58. In fact, the bankruptcy judge still has the power to remove the trustee. It suffices for the judge to remove the trustee from one single case for the law to operate the trustee's automatic removal from all her cases.[47c] Although this provision requires that the judge's removal be "for cause", what constitutes "cause" is not defined or illustrated.(cf. jur:32¶53) This allows the judge to dangle over the trustee the threatening power of capricious and arbitrary removal however disguised as "cause".

59. Hence, it can prove costly for the trustee to be assertive and object to the judge's statements, let alone rulings, not to mention appeal from his decisions, as if the trustee's right and fiduciary duty to present her case zealously on behalf of the creditors that she represents actually existed in reality.[54] Refusing to share with the judge any of the money that she has legitimately worked for can be construed as an act of sanctionable ungratefulness and intolerable insubordination. It can provoke the judge into removing her 'for insufficient understanding of the intricacies of bankruptcy law revealed repeatedly during her performance before this court in this and numerous other cases'…and the trustee is out there in the cold, crowded lobby of the clerk's office begging for a discount rate appointment as the criminal defender of penniless defendants, holding in front of her eyes shot with disbelief the only thing colorful in her life: her pink slip from a retaliating unaccountable judge.

60. This power of removal –the counterpart of power of appointment– creates a relation of total

---

330(c), and 1326(a)(2)-(3); and ●if a standing trustee >§1326(b)(2) and 28 U.S.C. §586(e), fn.46a;

c) id. >§324; d) id. >§1325. Confirmation of plan [of debt repayment to creditors];

e) id >§1302(b)(2)(B) and§1326(a)(2); f) id >§322

[48] Reimbursement of expenses, id. >§330(a)(1)(B) and §331

dependence of the trustee on the judge's good will. Consequently, the trustee treats the judge's assessment or findings of facts and remarks or statements on the law with servile deference, adopting the same self-preserving attitude of a clerk who receives from the judge an order to engage in wrongdoing or be removed without cause[49]. Nothing has changed.

61. Therefore, so long as the judge keeps, for instance, confirming[47d] a Chapter 13 trustee's recommendations of debtors' plans for debt repayment[47e] and approving the trustee's final reports[50] and final accounts, and discharges her from liability on her performance bond posted in her cases[47f], the trustee will have the opportunity to keep earning a commission on her pending cases and recommending the confirmation of new ones. Every case is yet one more pretext to earn a commission[51] and file compensation and reimbursement claims. This gives rise on the part of the judge-trustee tandem to assembly line, indiscriminate acceptance of every bankruptcy petition regardless of its merits. It is condoned by the officers of the Executive Office of the U.S. Trustee(EOUST).

3) Congress's finding in 2005 of "absence of effective oversight" in the bankruptcy system shows that pre-1979 "cronyism" has not changed, which explains how a bankruptcy petition mill brings in the money and a bankruptcy fraud scheme grabs it

62. U.S. Trustees are duty-bound to ensure the conformance of bankruptcy cases to the law, prevent the latter's abuse, and prosecute fraud.[52] They are also responsible for impaneling and supervising the private trustees[53] that deal directly with the debtors as representatives of the

---

[49] a) jur:30§1); b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_DeLano_WDNY_21dec5.pdf >Pst:1281§§c-d

[50] See in jur:66§2 the analysis of the shockingly unprofessional and perfunctory "Report" on the DeLanos' repayment plan scribbled by Chapter 13 Trustee George Max Reiber and approved by WDNY Bankruptcy Judge John C. Ninfo, II; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/Tr_Reiber_Report.pdf

[51] fn.47a >§330(c) (on payment to the trustee of no less than $5/month from any distribution under a plan of debt repayment, which creates a perverse incentive to rubberstamp any bankruptcy relief petition and as many as possible)

[52] fn.46 >§586(a)(3) and (3)(F)

[53] a) Id. §586(a)(1)

b) See also U.S. Trustee Manual, U.S. Department of Justice:

> §2-2.1 Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §586(a), the United States Trustee must supervise the actions of trustees in the performance of their responsibilities.
>
> §2-3.1 The primary functions of the United States Trustee in chapter 7 cases are the estab-lishment, maintenance, and supervision of panels of trustees, and the monitoring and supervision of the administration of cases under chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Code.

http://www.justice.gov/ust/eo/ust_org/ustp_manual/index.htm >Chapter 7 Case Administration

> §4-3.1 The primary responsibilities of the United States Trustee in chapters 12 and 13 cases are the appointment of one or more individuals to serve as standing trustees; the supervision of such individuals in the performance of their duties; and the supervision of the administration of cases estate for the benefit of creditors[54]. Yet, the deficient review of the trustees' case handling by the Executive Office of the U.S. Trustees (EOUST)[159d] is a contributing factor at the root of the abuse and fraud that Congress found in the bankruptcy system when it adopted a bill in 2005 with a most revealing title:

> "The purpose of the bill [Bankruptcy Abuse Prevention and Consumer Protection Act] is to improve bankruptcy law and practice by restoring personal responsibility and integrity in the bankruptcy system…[to] respond to…the absence of effective oversight to eliminate abuse in the system [and] deter serial and abusive bankruptcy filings." (emphasis added) [55]

63. A glaring "absence of effective oversight" is revealed by the successive U.S. Trustees for Region 2 and their Assistant U.S. trustee in Rochester, NY.[159b,c] Although private, standing trustees are required by regulation to handle their cases personally under pain of removal[56], these U.S. Trustees allowed two of their standing trustees to amass an unmanageable 7,289 cases and bring them before the same judge[113a;114b]. By comparison, a judicial emergency is defined as "any vacancy in a district court where weighted filings are in excess of 600 per judgeship"[57].

---

under chapters 12 and 13.
http://www.justice.gov/ust/eo/ust_org/ustp_manual/index.htm >Ch. 12 & 13 Case Administration

c) For similar supervisory responsibilities under state law, see Rules of Professional Conduct, 22 NYCRR Part 1200 [NY Codification of Codes, Rules, and Regulations], Rule 5.1(b); http://www.courts.state.ny.us/rules/jointappellate/index.shtml; with enhanced bookmarks to facilitate navigation also at http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/NYS_Rules_Prof_Conduct.pdf.

[54] fn.47a >§323 Role and capacity of trustee. (a) The trustee in a case under this title is the representative of the estate.

Senate Report 95-989 underlay the adoption of the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978, Pub. L. No 95-598 (1978), and consequently, constitutes the foundation of the current Bankruptcy Code of Title 11. It analyzed 11 U.S.C. §704. Duties of trustee, thus: "The trustee's principal duty is to collect and reduce to money the property of the estate for which he serves…He must be accountable for all property received. And must investigate the financial affairs of the debtor.…If advisable, the trustee must oppose the discharge of the debtor, which is for the benefit of general unsecured creditors whom the trustee represents. The trustee is required to furnish such information concerning the estate and its administration as is requested by a party in interest".

[55] a) HR Report 109-31 accompanying the Bankruptcy Abuse Prevention and Consumer Protection Act, Pub. L. 109-8, 119 Stat. 23, of April 20, 2005. The Report described the Act as "Representing the most comprehensive set of reforms in more than 25 years"; http://frwebgate.access.gpo.gov/cgi-bin/getdoc.cgi?dbname=109_cong_reports&docid=f:hr031p1.109.pdf; and http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/BAPCPA_HR_109-31.pdf.

b) See also http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/ineffective_oversight.pdf >1:§I.

[56] 28 CFR §58.6(10); http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28_cfr_58.pdf

[57] "Beginning in December 2001, the definition of a judicial emergency [is] any vacancy in a district court where weighted filings are in excess of 600 per judgeship, or any vacancy in existence more than 18 months where weighted filings are between 430 and 600 per judgeship, or any court with more than one authorized judgeship and only one active judge." Federal Judicial Caseload, Recent Developments, 2001, prepared by the Office of Human Resources and Statistics of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts (AO), p. 13, fn. 15; http://Judicial-Discipline-

4) The incompatibility of the trustee's long list of duties with allowing him to amass thousands of cases if his overseers intend to require his discharge of them conscientiously and competently

64. Handling a bankruptcy case requires the trustee to discharge a wide variety of complex and time-consuming duties to liquidate estate assets under Chapter 7, reorganize the bankrupt entity under Chapter 11, or execute a repayment of debts plan under Chapters 12 and 13 of the Bankruptcy Code(11 U.S.C)[47]. Some duties are repetitive and can last for three or five (§§1225(b)(1)(C) and 1322(a)(4) and (d)(2)); a claim of fraud may keep the case open longer(§1328(e)) as does the trustee's liability on his performance bond(§322(d)). They may involve dealing with dozens, hundreds, thousands or more creditors. They and the debtors may move for a review of even agreed-upon terms allegedly impacted so substantially by an alleged change in circumstances as to warrant modification of terms(§1127(d-f), 1144; 1323(c), 1329(a)). Some duties require the trustee to exercise good judgment, which debtors or creditors may challenge as bad judgment by suing the trustee(§323), thus tying up his attention, time, and resources even more with one single case. Among the trustee's duties are the following:

a. "investigate the financial affairs of the debtor", 11 U.S.C. §704(4)[58a], and to that end

   1) review the bankruptcy petition and schedules containing the debtor's supporting statement of financial affairs, both filed under oath and the penalty of perjury;

   2) seek and cross-check corroborating documents and assets, and interview persons;

b. move to dismiss a case or convert it to one under another chapter of the Bankruptcy Code if "the granting of relief would be an abuse of the provisions of chapter", §707(b)(1);

c. "If the debtor is engaged in business, then in addition to the duties specified in §1302(b), the trustee shall perform the duties", §1302(c):

   1) "investigate the acts, conduct, assets, liabilities, and financial condition of the debtor, the operation of the debtor's business and the desirability of the continuance of such business, and any other matter relevant to the case or to the formulation of a plan";

   2) "file a statement of any investigation conducted, including any fact ascertained pertaining to

---

Reform.org/docs/FedJud_Caseload_2001.pdf >p. 13, fn.15.

Cf. 2008 Annual Report of the AO Director, p. 38; http://www.uscourts.gov/FederalCourts/UnderstandingtheFederalCourts/AdministrativeOffice/DirectorAnnualReport.aspx >Director's Annual Report, 2008; and http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/AO_Dir_Report_08.pdf.

[58] a) Most of the trustee's duties set forth in §704 of Chapter 7 are also applicable to trustees under Chapters 11, 12, and 13 together with others added therein and elsewhere in the Bankruptcy Code; fn.47 >§§1106, 1202, and 1302.

b) If the trustee is also an attorney, as many are, she must also comply with the due diligence requirement of FRBkrP 9011, fn.42, which in pertinent part provides thus: "(b) By presenting to the court (whether by signing, filing, submitting, or later advocating) a petition, pleading, written motion, or other paper, an attorney or unrepresented party is certifying that to the best of the person's knowledge, information, and belief, formed after an inquiry reasonable under the circumstances…(3) the allegations and other factual contentions have evidentiary support or, if specifically so identified, are likely to have evidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery;…"

> fraud, dishonesty, incompetence, misconduct, mismanagement, or irregularity in the management of the affairs of the debtor, or to a cause of action available to the estate; and transmit a copy thereof to…"

d. "advise…and assist the debtor in performance under the plan", §1302(b)(1);

e. "ensure that the debtor commences making timely payments under §1326", §1302(b)(4),

f. "furnish such information concerning the estate and the estate's administration as is requested by a party in interest", §704(7), which requires the trustee to satisfy the requests for such information not only from the creditors that she represents, but also from all those included in the much broader notion of "party in interest", and to that end:

   1) correspond, talk on the phone, and meet face-to-face with such parties,

   2) identify who may have such information and where it may be held,

   3) request such information, even by issuing subpoenas, defending against motions to quash them, and moving for sanctions for failure to comply;

   4) ascertain, by number crunching if necessary, the validity of the information obtained, for false information is no information at all and furnishing it does not meet the requirement of due diligence imposed on a person with fiduciary responsibility, such as the trustee[58b];

g. "convene and preside at a meeting of creditors", §341, which requires that she:

   1) ensure that notice goes out to the identified creditors;

   2) find a place large enough to accommodate them;

   3) arrange for communications equipment to ensure that creditors can question the debtor and hear his answers;

   4) conduct the meeting personally, as provided for under C.F.R. §58.6(a)(10)[56];

   5) "orally examine the debtor";

h. "collect (after adequate investigation of the debtor's inherently self-serving and thus suspect statement of financial affairs so that the trustee can establish that circumstances obtain under which "the court shall presume abuse exits", §707(b)(2)(A)(i)) and reduce to money the property of the estate for which such trustee serves (for instance, by organizing an auction that gives the widest timely notice possible of its date, place, and assets on the block to all those likely to be buyers so as to ensure that the largest percentage of the property is sold for the highest bid in a fair bidding contest so as to maximize the proceeds for the estate available for distribution to the creditors), and close such estate as expeditiously as is compatible with the best interests of parties in interest", §704(a)(1);

i. "ensure that the debtor shall perform his intentions as specified in…[his] schedule of assets and liabilities", §704(a)(3) and §521(2)(B);

j. "file…period reports and summaries of the operation of such business" "authorized to be operated", §704(8);

k. give notice and attend hearings before using, selling, or leasing estate property, §363;

l. operate the business of the debtor, §§721, 1108, 1203, 1204, or 1304;

m. "obtain unsecured credit and incur unsecured debt in the ordinary course of business",

§364;

n. “appear and be heard at any hearing that concerns the value of a property subject to a lien, confirmation of a plan or modification of it”, §1302(b)(1);

o. "make a final report and file a final account of the administration of the estate with the court and with the United States trustee", §§704(a)(9);

p. raise all sort of motions, give notice, read the opposing parties’ answer, prepare to argue them, attend the hearing and argue them, and do likewise with respect to their motions;

q. sue others and defend if sued, §323;

r. etc., etc., etc.,

65. Can the EOUST Trustees(jur:35¶62) reasonably believe that one private trustee can discharge, never mind do so competently, all those duties, many of which she is bound to perform personally, with respect to thousands of cases that may take years to close? [cf.113a,114b] Would you feel that a trustee that took on such overwhelming workload had any intention of zealously representing your interests as a creditor? If you were a debtor, would you be concerned that such trustee would make an effort, let alone a serious one, to find out whether you had concealed assets and self-servingly valued those declared or would you realize that she had spread herself so thinly as to signal that she would not investigate the whereabouts of your assets and merely rubberstamp whatever declaration you made about them?

5) The trustee's interest in developing a bankruptcy petition mill and the judges' in running a bankruptcy fraud scheme

66. A standing trustee’s annual compensation is computed as a percentage of a base, e.g., "ten percent of the payments made under the [debtor's repayment] plan"(11 U.S.C. §586(e)(1)(B) and (2))[47]. As a matter of law, "In determining the amount of reasonable compensation to be awarded to a trustee, the court shall treat such compensation as a commission, based on section 326."(§330(a)(7)) Hence, it is in the trustee's interest to increase the base by having debtors pay more so that her commission may in turn be a proportionally higher amount. Increasing the base could require ascertaining whether in the statement of financial affairs and schedules supporting his bankruptcy relief petition the debtor undervalued his assets and declared only some of them while concealing others, whose whereabouts must be determined through investigation. Any indicia that the debtor may have squirreled away assets into a rainbow pot for a post-discharge golden life must be pursued in order to enlarge the estate available for repaying the creditors.

67. Such investigation, however, takes time, effort, and money initially paid out of the trustees' pocket and reimbursed only if the judge finds that her expenses were "for actual and necessary services"(§330) The trustee may also be paid a lump sum per case or per distribution under a repayment plan.(§§330(b) and (c), and 326). Consequently, an investigation can adversely affect the trustee’s economic interest, for it can lead to the dismissal of the case due to the debtor's abuse of the provisions for bankruptcy relief(§707(b)(1)) or the non-confirmation of his debt repayment plan. If so, the case will no generate a stream of percentage commissions flowing to the trustee(§§1326(a)(2) and (b)(2)). To top it off she can be left holding the bag of investigative expenses! All the judge needs to do is state that 'no reasonable trustee would have wasted resources to investigate the good faith of a bankruptcy petition that on its face was obviously abusive and doomed to dismissal'.

68. The alternative is obvious too: Never mind investigating, not even cases patently suspect of abuse, just take in as many cases as you can as trustee and make up in the total of small easy commissions and lump sums from a huge number of cases what you could have earned in commissions from assets that you added to the estate by sweating it out and risking your money to recover. Of necessity, such a strategy redounds to the creditors' detriment since fewer assets are brought into the estate for their liquidation proceeds to be distributed to them or for those assets to be taken into account in drawing up a reorganization or repayment plan. When the trustee takes it easy, the creditors take a heavy loss, whether by receiving less on the dollar or by spending a lot of money, effort, and time investigating the debtor just to get what was owed them to begin with. Conversely, that strategy benefits the debtor…provided he is not greedy and wants to keep it all to himself and instead is willing to show his appreciation for all the hard work that the trustee is not willing to do on behalf of the estate and the creditors that she represents[54].

69. The income maximizing motive of the trustee has a natural and perverse consequence: As it becomes known that she has no time but rather an economic disincentive to investigate the financial affairs of debtors, ever more debtors with ever less deserving cases for relief under the Bankruptcy Code go ahead and file their petitions. What is worse, as people not even with debt problems yet catch on to how easy it is to get a bankruptcy relief petition rubberstamped, they have every incentive to live it up by binging on their credit as if there were no repayment day, for they know there is none, just a petition waiting to be filed in order to wipe out much of their debt.

70. The debtor begins by filing in court a voluntary bankruptcy petition, which grants him relief through the initial automatic stay of creditors' efforts to collect their debts(§§301(b); 1201(a); 1301(a)). If the creditors file the petition, it is involuntary and the court issues the order of relief.(§303(h)) The common allegation underlying a petition for asset liquidation and distribution, reorganization of a going business and debt restructuring, or debt repayment plan is that the debtor owes too much relative to the assets that he has or the income that he earns to repay his creditors. So he voluntarily asks the judge to be discharged of part or all of his debt; or he keeps living or doing business on credit until the creditors force him into involuntary bankruptcy and asks the court to require the debtor to pay them. In either scenario, the debtor may claim exemption(Form 6. Schedule C-Property Claimed as Exempt; fn.112 >D:35=W:55) of assets from the reach of creditors and dispute what creditors claim is owed them and its value.

71. For their part, the creditors may challenge the exemptions in order to keep the estate as large as possible, that is, the pool of assets that the trustee is charged with either liquidating so as to pay from the proceeds the debtors' debts or otherwise taking into account in determining the debtor's ability to repay under a plan. The creditors may also try to find any concealed assets to ensure that the largest estate is taken as the basis for determining how much they get on the dollar of debt owed them.

72. Under such adversarial circumstances, the trustee is the representative of the estate[54]. As such, she must take an active role in advocating the creditors' interest; she is not an arbiter who passively takes in the facts and claims submitted to her by the parties in controversy for fair and impartial adjudication. Yet, the U.S. Trustee allows a single trustee to amass thousands of cases.[113a,114b] This is unnecessary and unjustifiable given that any number of trustees can be impaneled. What they earn comes from the estates that they represent, not from taxpayers' money.

73. As for the judge, he keeps approving the trustee's actions by simply signing her recommendations for approving bankruptcy petitions and her claims for reimbursement. Consequently, the trustee has neither the time nor the incentive to do little more than the bare minimum. On the contrary, her interest lies in rubberstamping bankruptcy petitions for approval by the judge so as to ensure as effortlessly and risklessly as possible an ever-greater stream of percentage commissions or lump sums per case or distribution. Thereby she develops a bankruptcy petition mill…but only if the bankruptcy judge plays along. That is likely to happen, for the judge too is driven by the money motive[30]. In addition, he has the means, his unaccountable judicial decision-making power(jur:21§1), and the opportunity in thousands of practically unreviewable cases to pursue that motive by running a bankruptcy fraud scheme[60]. What is more, he is irresistibly drawn to run it because its risklessness is all but totally assured by the history of de facto unimpeachability and his peers' common interest in reciprocal cover-up dependent survival. This situation of no downside, just ever growing profits lays the basis for collegial complicity between the judge and the trustee, and by extension the "professional persons" [45a] employed by the latter. All of them benefit as wrongdoing insiders of the bankruptcy and legal systems.

74. The risklessness of their wrongdoing is further assured by the fact that nobody has both the power and the interest to challenge the judge effectively. The trustee is subservient to the bankruptcy judge, who can remove her(jur:34¶58) and who determines whether she gets any reimbursement for her expenses. So their relation becomes one of junior-senior partner connivance: The trustee develops the bankruptcy petition mill that feeds petitions into the bankruptcy fraud scheme run by the bankruptcy judge with other judges. The later include the judges to whom his decisions are appealed, that is, the district judges and the circuit judges who appointed him(jur:43¶80), all of whom share the money motive. Other bankruptcy and legal system insiders benefit too as junior partners thanks to the judges' power to decide whether they win or lose their cases before him or whether they keep their jobs or are removed without cause(jur:30§1). The fewer are involved in the scheme, the tighter the judges' control over it, the less risk that somebody becomes unruly or careless and exposes everybody else, and the fewer the shares into which the pie of profit has to be divided.

75. As for the pro se debtors, they may not even realize that they are being abused; but even if they do, their slight understanding of the law can only allow them to whimper in front of the judge or his appellate peers. Moreover, when bankruptcy is a debtor's artifice to conceal assets from his creditors and get a discharge of the debts he owes them, the debtor is already predisposed to any proposal for further wrongdoing so long as it benefits him too. He may be in that collusive mindframe even when his bankruptcy is legitimate. The enormous stress caused by his worst financial predicament ever may have made him desperate to get any relief even if by acquiescing in wrongdoing.

76. For similar reasons, creditors can be willing accomplices, for they either want to get paid for non-existent or inflated debts or risk never receiving payment on their legitimate debts or only after heavily discounted to a few cents on the dollar. Neither the debtor has money nor the creditor wants to throw good money after bad in a protracted court battle with insiders who have superior knowledge and the power to prevail. If nevertheless they challenge the trustee, they must do so before her bankruptcy judge, who has no interest in reviewing their complaints fairly and impartially only to let the trustee lose the money from which he is expecting his senior partner cut.

77. Given the enormous amount of money at stake(jur:27§2), the absence of honest and "effective oversight"(jur:35§3) causes the bankruptcy system to break down; the system of justice suffers the same profound detriment. The U.S. Trustees and the bankruptcy judges are not the only ones that have failed to provide such oversight. The chief circuit judges and judicial councils charged with the duty to process complaints against judges systematically dismiss them(jur:24§b) in the interest, not of justice, but rather "cronyism"(jur:32§2). So have the Department of Justice and the FBI[159] as they pursue the presidents' interest in not antagonizing judges that can retaliate by declaring the adopted pieces of their legislative agenda unconstitutional[17]. Consequently, the bankruptcy system has become the fiefdom of unaccountable judicial lords that risklessly abuse their power to pursue their money motive[30]. Together with other insiders, they either prey on both debtors and creditors or turn some into their accomplices to exploit others. The law of the land is replaced by "local practice"[59] to produce a bankruptcy fraud scheme mounted on individual trustees' bankruptcy petition mills. Therein begins the grinding of Equal Justice Under Law through contemptuous disregard of due process and substantive rights. It continues in the appellate courts through the judges' coordination that has turned wrongdoing into their institutionalized modus operandi.(jur:49§4)

6) The economic harm that a bankruptcy fraud scheme inflicts on litigants, the rest of the public, and the economy

78. Bankruptcy fraud causes injury in fact directly to the debtors and the creditors whose property rights are disregarded, their suppliers of goods, services, and financing who get paid late or not at all and who in turn go bankrupt or must raise their prices to recoup their loss or scale down their operation because their projected income is not coming in. A bankruptcy fraud scheme run by judges is even more harmful.[60] Instead of the law being used to prevent, discover, and eliminate fraud, the very ones entrusted with its application corrupt it into the instrument for operating and covering up fraud in a more coordinated, insidious, and efficient way.

79. A fraud scheme can wreak economic harm on so many people as to endanger the national economy itself. Just think of the tens of thousands of employees, retirees, and investors that lost their jobs, pensions, or life savings overnight when ENRON, Lehman Brothers, and Bernie Maddox went bankrupt. The economic shockwaves of their collapse reached those people first and then travelled through them to all the restaurants, transportation, leasing, credit card, and entertainment companies, hotels, landlords, and so many others who no longer had them as their patrons as they did before. Through this transmission belt mechanism, fraud losses are socialized. It is only more obvious in how it spreads when the scheme collapses, but it is also at work while the scheme is in operation, only more insidiously. A judge-run bankruptcy scheme that operated on the $373 billion at stake just in the 1,536,799 consumer bankruptcies filed in CY10 cannot fail to injure the public at large.

---

[59] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_v_DeLano_local_practice.pdf

[60] How a Fraud Scheme Works, Its basis in the corruptive power of the lots of money available through the provisions of the Bankruptcy Code and unaccountable judicial power; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/How_fraud_scheme_works.pdf

b. In the circuit courts

1) Summary orders, «not for publication» and «not precedential» decisions

80. Even when a bankruptcy decision reaches the court of appeals of the respective circuit, it is reviewed by the very circuit judges that appointed the bankruptcy judge for a 14-year renewable term.[61] They are biased toward affirmance, lest a reversal impugn their judgment for having appointed an incompetent or dishonest bankruptcy judge. Moreover, a reversal would require circuit judges to deal with the Bankruptcy Code's intricate statutory provisions and their rules of application and forms[62] and the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure[63] and write a decision identifying the reversible error, stating the extent to which it impaired the appealed decision, and setting forth how to avoid repeating it on remand. This can be avoided by rubberstamping "Affirmed"…next!

81. What is next! can very well be an appeal by a pro se, for in FY10 in the circuit courts 30.4% of all bankruptcy appeals, in particular, and a whopping 48.6% of all appeals, in general, were pro se.[64] That characterization is fatal because those courts calculate their "adjusted filings [by] weighting pro se appeals as one-third of a case"[65a]. It derives from "[w]eighted filings statistics[, which] account for the different amounts of time district [and circuit] judges take to resolve various types of civil and criminal actions"[65b]. That weight is given a pro se case at filing time, that is, not after a judge has read the brief and knows what she is called upon to deal with[65c], but rather when the in-take clerk receives the filing sheet, sees that the filer is unrepresented, and takes in the same filing fee as that paid by a multinational company that, like Exxon in the Exxon Valdez Alaska oil spill case, can tie up the courts for 20 years. The experience of "[t]he Federal Judiciary['s] techniques for assigning weights to cases since 1946"[id.] shows that right then and there judges discount the importance that they will attribute to that pro se case and, consequently, the time that they will dedicate to solving it. Would it be reasonable to expect circuit judges with this statistically based biased mindframe to accord bankruptcy pro se cases, already decided by their bankruptcy appointees, Equal Justice Under Law?

82. This perfunctory treatment of the substantial majority of all appeals to the circuit courts can be

---

[61] a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc151-159_bkr_judges.pdf >§152. Appointment of bankruptcy judges (a)(1); b) Cf. Magistrates are appointed by district judges for a term of eight years, if full time, and four years, if part time; 28 U.S.C. §631(a) and (e); http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc631-639_magistrates.pdf

[62] 11 U.S.C.; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/11usc_Bkr-Code_10.pdf

[63] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/FRBkrP_1dec11.pdf

[64] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/statistics&tables/bkr_appeals&pro-se.pdf

[65] a) 2010 Annual Report of the Director of the Administrative Office of the U.S., p.40; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/AO_Dir_Report_10.pdf; b) id. >p.26, 28; c) Pro ses do not fare any better when they are in front of the judge, as shown by a study in state courts. "Numbers are hard to come by, but what little research that exists on the topic supports the notion that going it alone [before a judge as a pro se party] is a losing proposition"; Crisis in the courts: Recession overwhelms underfunded legal services, Kat Aaron, Project Editor, Investigative Reporting Workshop at American University School of Communication; 14feb11; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/KAaron_Crisis_in_courts.pdf

inferred from the representative statement that "Approximately 75% of all cases are decided by summary order. Pursuant to Interim Local Rule, summary orders may be cited, but have no precedential authority." [66]. Summary orders have no opinion or appended explanatory statement. They are no-reason[67], self-serving fiats of raw judicial power to ensure the needed unaccountability to cover up laziness, expediency, and wrongdoing.[68] They constitute a breach of contract for adjudicatory services entered into by a court and a litigant upon the latter's payment of the required court fee but not rendered by the court and deceptively substituted with a 5¢ form rubberstamped overwhelmingly with a predetermined "Affirmed". Even an additional 15% of cases are disposed of by opinions with reasoning so perfunctory and arbitrary that the judges themselves mark them "not for publication"[69] and "not precedential"[70].

83. In brief, up to 9 out of every 10 appeals are disposed of through a high-handed ad hoc fiat of unaccountable power either lacking any reasoning or with too shamefully substandard an explanation to be even signed by any member of a three-judge panel, which issues it "per curiam". They are neither to be published nor followed in any other case by any other judge of that circuit court or any other court in that circuit or anywhere else in the country. Until 2007, they could not even be cited. They still represent the betrayal of a legal system based on precedent aimed at fostering consistency and reliable expectations and intended to require that judges adjudicate cases neither on their whimsical exercise of power in a back alley nor personal notions of right and wrong, but rather by their fair, impartial, and public application of the rule of law. Through their use, federal judges show contempt for the fundamental principle that "Justice should not only be done, but should manifestly and undoubtedly be seen to be done"[71]. Non-precedential decisions constitute an expedient contrived by the judge to satisfy his need for an outcome rather than a considered and considerate statement laying its foundation in the law as previous applied and

---

[66] a) Second Circuit Handbook, pg.17; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/CA2Handbook_9sep8.pdf. b) On circuit judges' policy of expedient docket clearing through the use of summary orders and the perfunctory case disposition that such orders mask and encourage, see http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/CA2_summary_orders_19dec6.pdf.

[67] Justice Marshall stated in his dissent in Greenholtz v.Inmates of the Nebraska Penal & Correctional Complex, 442 U.S. 1, 40 (1979): "[A]n inability to provide any reasons suggests that the decision is, in fact, arbitrary".

[68] In Ricci v. DeStefano, aff'd per curiam, including Judge Sotomayor, 530 F.3d 87 (2d Cir., 9 June 2008); http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Ricci_v_DeStefano_CA2.pdf, CA2 Judge Jose Cabranes sharply criticized the use of a meaningless summary order and an unsigned per curiam decision, id. >R:2, as a "perfunctory disposition" of that case; id. >R:6.

[69] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/SCt_nominee/JSotomayor_v_Equal_Justice.pdf >§§2-3

[70] a) Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure, Rule 32.1 (FRAP); http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/FRAppP_1dec11.pdf

b) Unpublished opinions; Table S-3; U.S. Courts of Appeals –Types of Opinions or Orders Filed in Cases Terminated on the Merits After Oral Hearings or Submission on Briefs During the 12-Month Period Ending 30sep; Judicial Business of the U.S. Courts; http://www.uscourts.gov/Statistics/JudicialBusiness.aspx, collected at http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/statistics&tables/perfunctory_disposition.pdf.

[71] Ex parte McCarthy, [1924] 1 K. B. 256, 259 (1923). Cf. "Justice must satisfy the appearance of justice", Aetna Life Ins. v. Lavoie et al., 475 U.S. 813; 106 S. Ct. 1580; 89 L. Ed. 2d 823 (1986).

providing guidance for the future conduct of not only the parties, but also the rest of the public.

84. Imagine what Thomas Jefferson would have said of 5¢ summary orders given what he did say of opinions written by the Supreme Court as a whole, i.e., per curiam, instead of the justices' traditional seriatim opinions written individually by each of them in each case: (spelling as in the original)

> The Judges holding their offices for life are under two responsibilities only. 1. Impeachment. 2. Individual reputation. But this practice compleatly withdraws them from both. For nobody knows what opinion any individual member gave in any case, nor even that he who delivers the opinion, concurred in it himself. Be the opinion therefore ever so impeachable, having been done in the dark it can be proved on no one. As to the 2d guarantee, personal reputation, it is shielded compleatly. The practice is certainly convenient for the lazy, the modest & the incompetent. It saves them the trouble of developing their opinion methodically and even of making up an opinion at all. That of seriatim argument shews whether every judge has taken the trouble of understanding the case, of investigating it minutely, and of forming an opinion for himself, instead of pinning it on another's sleeve. It would certainly be right to abandon this practice in order to give to our citizens one and all, that confidence in their judges which must be so desirable to the judges themselves, and so important to the cement of the union.
> The Letters of Thomas Jefferson: 1743-1826; Letter to Justice William Johnson Monticello, October, 27, 1822; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Legal_news.pdf >Ln:99.

2) Systematic denial of review by the whole court of decisions of its panels

85. To ensure that those decisions stand, circuit judges systematically deny litigants' petitions to have the decision of their respective 3-circuit judge panel reviewed by the whole circuit court, that is, their petitions for en banc review.[72] In the year to 30sep10, out of 30,914 appeals terminated on the merits only 47 were heard en banc, which is .15% or 1 in every 658 appeals.[73] To be sure, not every decision of a panel is followed by a petition for en banc review, after all, why waste more effort, time, and another $10,000, $20,000 or even much more on having a lawyer research, write, and file such a petition or the opportunity cost of doing so oneself since circuit judges in effect have unlawfully abrogated the right to it?[74] Thereby judges protect each other from review of wrong and wrongful decisions, implicitly or explicitly coordinating their en banc denials on the reciprocity agreement 'if you don't review my decisions, I won't review yours'.

86. To facilitate denying out of hand a petition, they use those "not for publication" and "not precedential" markings as coded messages indicating that the panel in question made such short shrift of the appeal before it that it cranked out an unpublishable or non-binding decision so that the rest of the court need not bother taking a second look at it. They all have better things to do,

---

[72] fn.70.a >FRAP 35. En banc determination

[73] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/statistics&tables/en_banc_denials.pdf

[74] CA2 Chief J. Dennis Jacobs wrote that "to rely on tradition to deny rehearing in banc starts to look very much like abuse of discretion"; Ricci, fn.68 >R:26.

such as work on an opinion where they will introduce a novel legal principle or make case law or which they hope will be praised with inclusion in a law school casebook; write their own books or law review articles; prepare for a class that they teach to earn extra income[75] and whose students will rate their performance and post the ratings for public viewing; or get ready for a seminar where they can enhance their reputation or hobnob with VIPs. Litigants are just no match for any of these 'better things'. What are they going to do? Complain in the Supreme Court to the judges' own colleagues and former peers and expect the justices to agree to review the complaint so that they can incriminate themselves by criticizing what they used to and still do?

87. Circuit judges are life-tenured. Not even the Supreme Court can remove or demote them, cut their salary –which neither Congress nor the president can cut either[12]– or, for that matter, do anything else to them. Reverse their decision? Why would they care! At least two judges concurred in any decision appealed from a 3-judge circuit court panel to the Supreme Court. Consequently, the responsibility for the reversal is diffused, that is, if any is felt. Circuit judges are not accountable to the justices –neither are district, bankruptcy, nor magistrate judges–. Instead, circuit judges take care of their appointees, the bankruptcy judges. They do so by 'taking out' any bankruptcy decision that against all odds has slipped their de facto unreviewability because the parties were able emotionally, financially, and intellectually to appeal twice, first to the district court and then to the circuit court. The circuit judges simply wield their unaccountable power to dispose of the appealed decision with another of their meaningless summary orders and non-published, in practice secret, opinions. By so doing, the circuit judges can make their bankruptcy appointee immune to his or her own wrong or wrongful decision; and they can boast about their good judgment in having appointed such a competent, fair, and impartial bankruptcy judgeship candidate.

3) De facto unreviewable bankruptcy decisions

88. In 1oct09-30sep10 FY10 there were 1,596,355 bankruptcy filings in the 90 bankruptcy courts[76a], but only 2,696[76b] in the 94 district courts, and merely 678 in the 12 regional circuit courts[76c]. Hence, the odds of having a bankruptcy decision reviewed are, approximately speaking, 1 in 592 in district court and 1 in 2,354 in circuit court. If the appeal is by a pro se, the review will be pro forma and the affirmance issued as a matter of coordinated expediency. Even if the parties are represented by counsel, the district judge knows that he can mishandle the appeal in favor of her bankruptcy colleague because if the appealed decision happens to be one of those odd ones that are further appealed, the circuit judges will take of care of their appointee with their own affirmance. All of them know for sure that the odds of a bankrupt party being able to afford an appeal to the Supreme Court are infinitesimal, let alone the odds of the Court exercising its discretionary jurisdiction to agree to take up the case for review. As a result, they all can allow themselves to give free rein to the money motive: Even a small benefit ill-gotten from some of those 1,596,355 new bankruptcy cases plus the scores pending, which form in the aggregate a mind-boggling pool of money[31], adds up quickly to a very large benefit, such as a massive amount of ill-gotten money to be divvied up in a coordinated fashion.

---

[75] Regulations on Outside Earned Income, Honoraria, and Employment, and on Gifts, Judicial Conference of the U.S.; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/jud_officers_outside_income&gifts.pdf

[76] a) fn.30 >Table F, lbf:39; b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/statistics&tables/bkr_stats/bkr_to_dis_court.pdf >bd:8; c) fn.64 >Table S-4, pr:106

c. In the Supreme Court

1) Capricious, wasteful, and privacy-invading rules bar access to review in the Supreme Court

89. The odds of seeking and obtaining review in the Supreme Court are truly infinitesimal. To begin with, just to print the brief and record in the capricious booklet format[77a] required by the justices calls for typesetting by a specialized commercial firm[78]. Neither Kinkos nor Staples sell the special paper that must be used[77b], let alone print it. That can cost $50,000 and even $100,000 depending on the size of the record, which can run to tens and even hundreds of thousands of pages.

90. The justices impose this booklet format requirement on anybody who cannot prove his destituteness. To prove it and be granted leave to print the record on regular 8.5" x 11" paper, a party must first petition for leave to proceed in forma pauperis, i.e., as a poor person. This must be done by the petitioner filing a motion disclosing his private financial information and serving it on every other party.[77c] This only works to the advantage of a served party with deep pockets or one that wants to exploit the petitioner's financial weakness. The requirement of filing and serving that financial disclosure motion in connection with a printing and stationery matter totally unrelated to the merits of the case violates the right to privacy. It aggravates the unreasonable waste of the booklet format requirement, which itself violates the controlling principle applicable in the bankruptcy and district courts: Procedural rules "should be construed and administered to secure the…inexpensive determination of every action and proceeding""[79].

91. Then one must add the cost of writing the initial brief, for instance, by petitioning for a writ of certiorari or by other jurisdiction.[80] This can cost as much as $100,000. That is money, effort, and emotional energy that go to waste in the overwhelming majority of cases: The Supreme Court exercises its discretionary power to take or reject cases for review and denies more than 97% of petitions for review on certiorari, which constitute the bulk of the filings that it receives.[81] If it takes up a case, then another brief, the brief on the merits, must be written[82a], [77] a) Supreme Court Rules, Rule 33.1. "Booklet Format: (a) Except for a document expressly permitted by these Rules to be submitted on 8½-by 11-inch paper, see, e. g., Rules 21, 22, and 39, every document filed with the Court shall be prepared in a 6⅛-by 9¼-inch booklet format using a standard typesetting process (e. g., hot metal, photocomposition, or computer typesetting) to produce text printed in typographic (as opposed to typewriter) characters.…b) (c) Every booklet-format document shall be produced on paper that is opaque, unglazed, and not less than 60 pounds in weight, and shall have margins of at least three-fourths of an inch on all sides. The text field, including footnotes, may not exceed 4⅛ by 7⅛ inches." http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/SCt_Rules_16feb10.pdf; c) id. >Rule 39. Proceedings In Forma Pauperis and Rules 12.1 and 4 and 29.3

---

[78] cf. http://brescias.com/legal_us_supr.html

[79] Rule 1001 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure, fn.63; and Rule 1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/FRCivP_1dec11.pdf

[80] fn.77 >Rules 10 and 17-20, respectively

[81] a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/statistics&tables/SCt/SCt_caseload.pdf;

which can cost even more than $100,000. In addition, there is the fee for the time that the attorney who will argue the case before the Court must invest in preparing alone and with his battery of assistants that will drill him in mock sessions, for all of whom a fee is also charged. Then there is the fee for the actual arguing and any expense of travelling to Washington, D.C., and room and board. Add to this the cost of preparing and arguing motions and applications that any of the parties may make.[82b] No wonder, having a case adjudicated by the Supreme Court can cost well over $1,000,000![83]

2) Unreviewability of cases and unaccountability of judges breeds riskless contempt for the law and the people

92. The man in the street cannot realistically think of exercising his "right" to appeal to the Supreme Court, never mind a debtor that is bankrupt or a creditor fearful of throwing good money after bad. As an approximate comparison, consider that while 2,013,670 cases were filed in the bankruptcy, district, and circuit courts in FY10[4], only 8,205 were filed in the Supreme Court, which is .4% or 1 in every 245.[84] But even as to those cases that made it to the Court, on average for the 2004-2009 terms, the Supreme Court heard arguments in only 1 in every 113 cases on its docket, disposed of only 1 in every 119, and wrote a signed opinion in only 1 in every 133.[81a] For every one of the Court's 73 signed opinions in its 2009 term –FY10– there were 27,584 filed in all courts. How the Court takes up a case for discretionary review by granting a petition for a writ of certiorari is arbitrary and even shocking, for it is not even the justices who choose which cases to hear. Instead, as many as eight of the nine justices pool their law clerks, who have just graduated from law school, and let them in the "cert pool" pick and choose the cases to be heard by the Court.[81b,c]

93. That is the fate of the overwhelming majority of cases: They die a) of complicit indifference to wrongs and cold rejection at the door of the manor of the lords of the land of law; b) by execution of summary and unpublished orders of circuit lords; c) through contempt of law and fact by district lords, who in effect 'convert'[85a] U.S. courts to their respective "my court!"[85b]; or cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/statistics&tables/cert_petitions.pdf;

---

b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Sen_Specter_on_SCt.pdf; see also

c) Legal Experts Propose Limiting Justices' Powers, Terms; By Robert Barnes; Washington Post Staff Writer; Monday, February 23, 2009; page A15; "proposal by Duke University law professor Paul D. Carrington, signed by 33 others from different stations on the political spectrum"; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Limiting_justices_powers_WP_23feb9.pdf

[82] a) fn.77a >Rule 24; b) id. >Rules 21-23

[83] A priceless win at the Supreme Court? No, it has a price, by Reporter Robert Barnes, The Washington Post, 25july11: A big victory at the Supreme Court isn't priceless, after all. It costs somewhere north of $1,144,602.64; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/WP_Price_win_at_SCt_25jul11.pdf

[84] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/statistics&tables/caseload/1judicial_caseload.pdf

[85] a) To "convert" means to detain something unlawfully that initially was held lawfully.

b) "That legal rules constrain judges and make them do things is a magnificent illusion but an illusion nonetheless. There may indeed be a rule that tells a judge to do X, but with a little effort the judge can

d) under the feet of bankruptcy lords, who are sure that however outrageously they exact money from, or mishandle it in, the cases in the fiefs with which they have been enfeoffed, practically no debtor or creditor in bankruptcy has the knowledge or resources to embark on a protracted and very costly battle of appeal, for the great majority of them are broke, pro se, or barely able to afford a lawyer to fill out the bankruptcy forms. Unreviewability breeds arrogance. Coordination assures favorable review and risklessness. Appointers' review of their appointees' decisions allows their favorable bias and self-interest to nullify their impartiality from the outset. In addition, there is the steadily growing trend of public opinion that sees even the Supreme Court not as the single branch above the political fray, but rather politicized, the last bastion where corporate America imposes its will on the rest of the people and where big money has the last word.[86] These judgeship conditions and legal process circumstances turn federal justices and judges into Judges Above the Law. As such, they administer to themselves what they deny everybody else: Unequal Protection From the Law.

4. Wrongdoing as the institutionalized modus operandi of the class of federal judges, not only the failing of individual rogue judges

a. The absence of an independent and objective inspector general of the Federal Judiciary allows the Judiciary to escape oversight and be in effect above constitutional checks and balances

94. There are 73 inspectors generals[87] established under the Inspector General Act in order:

> to create independent and objective units—
>
> (1) to conduct and supervise audits and investigations relating to the programs and operations of the establishments listed in section 12(2);
>
> (2) to provide leadership and coordination and recommend policies for activities designed (A) to promote economy, efficiency, and effectiveness in the administration of, and (B) to prevent and detect fraud and abuse in, such programs and operations; and (3) to provide a means for keeping the head of the establishment and the Congress fully and currently informed about problems and deficiencies relating to the administration of such programs and operations and the necessity for and progress of corrective action;…[88a] (emphasis added)

---

always find a rule that tells the judge not to do X. Judging is not following the rules but rather deciding which rules to follow." Courting Failure; How Competition for the Big Cases is Corrupting the Bankruptcy Courts, Lynn M. LoPucki; University of Michigan (2005); e-book, p. 42.

[86] Approval Rating for Justices Hits Just 44% in New Poll; Adam Liptak and Allison Kopicki; The New York Times; 7jun12; http://www.nytimes.com/2012/06/08/us/politics/44-percent-of-americans-approve-of-supreme-court-in-new-poll.html?pagewanted=all

[87] Cf. U.S. House Rep Darrell Issa, Chairman of the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee to Inspectors General, 3aug12; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/OGRC_Inspectors_General_3aug12.pdf.

[88] a) 5 U.S.C. Appendix; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/5usc_app_Inspector_General.Act.pdf

95. These inspectors general are established by Congress yet they supervise not only entities created by it, but also the departments of the Executive as part of the checks and balances that the Constitution allows the three branches of government to exercise upon each other. Congress learns officially about what is going on in the Judiciary through the latter's internally-prepared, and thus self-serving statements because Congress has provided:

    a. that "[t]he Chief Justice shall submit to Congress an annual report of the proceedings of the Judicial Conference and its recommendations for legislation"; under 28 U.S.C. §331, 8th paragraph,[91e] and

    b. that the Director of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts, who is "appointed and subject to removal by the Chief Justice…after consultating with the Judicial Conference", "shall…submit to the annual meeting of the Judicial Conference…a report of the activities of the Administrative Office and the state of the business of the courts, together with the statistical data submitted to the chief judges of the circuits…, and the Director's recommendations, which report, data and recommendations shall be public documents", and "submit to Congress and the Attorney General copies" thereof; under 28 U.S.C. §§601 and 604(a)(2) and (3)[10], respectively; and

    c. that "[t]he Director shall include in his annual report…a summary of the number of complaints filed with each judicial council under [28 U.S.C. §§351-364[18a]], indicating the general nature of such complaints and the disposition of those complaints in which action has been taken"; 28 U.S.C. §§601 and 604(h)(2)[10].

96. In addition, Congress learns unofficially about the Federal Judiciary because of the tradition initiated by Chief Justice Warren Burger to issue a yearend report on the Judiciary(fn.30 >yre:2).

97. However, for no constitutional reason at all, but only because of Congress's[15] and the Executive's[17a] prioritizing their own interest over that of good government and the people, there is no "independent and objective" inspector general of the Federal Judiciary to "prevent and detect fraud and abuse". As a result, fraud and abuse in the Federal Judiciary fester unchecked, corrupting its mission and what the people are entitled to receive from it: the fair and impartial administration of Equal Justice Under Law.

b. Individual fraud deteriorates the moral fiber of people until it is so widespread and routine as to become the institutionalized way of doing business

98. A series of fraudulent bankruptcies tolerated by the courts, not to mention concocted by them, contaminates with fraud every other activity of the judiciary. They provide judges and their complicit insiders with training in its operation; reveal to them their multifarious potential for securing undeserved benefits; and creepily eats away at their inhibitions to the practice of fraud. This process leads to the application of the principle that if something is good, more of it is better. Hence, they expand their fraudulent activity. From making fraudulent statements in an office or a courtroom, insiders and judges move on to handling fraudulently documents in the office of the clerk of court by manipulating whether they are docketed and, if so, when and with

---

b) Cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Sen_Sensenbrenner_on_Judicial_IG.pdf; and c) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/S2678_HR5219.pdf

what date, to whom they are made available among litigants and the public, and even whether they are transmitted to other courts. All this requires more elaborate ways of concealing fraud, of laundering its proceeds, of developing methods to ensure that everybody copes with the increased work and that nobody grabs more than their allotted share. These activities need coordination. There develops an internal hierarchical structure, with a chain of command, a suite of control mechanisms, and a benefits scale.

99. All this developed in the courts gradually, as did fraud in the industry of collateralized mortgage derivatives: questionable but profitable practices paved the way to unethical ones that led to fraudulent and even more profitable ones which were neither punished nor prohibited, but rather celebrated with smugness and envy, copied freely with enhancements, and pursued by even the best and brightest financial minds with uncritical, unrestrained greed as the new business model. So it has occurred in the courts. As the practice of fraud turns into a profitable routine, fraudsters become adept at it. Greedier too, of course. They also turn complacent and sloppier at concealing it. When they and others get into a relaxed mood at a holiday party or a judicial junket or into the stressed condition of work overload or an emergency, the fraudsters crow over how smart they are at beating the system; flaunt their inexplicable wealth; and reflexively resort to an expedient course of action in disregard of the law. With increasing speed, exceptions to the rules become the normal way of doing business. A new pattern of conduct develops because 'that's how we do things here'. It openly becomes the "local practice"[59].

100. Non-fraudsters put it together and it hits them: There are benefits to be made and injury to be avoided by going along with the wrongful "local practice". Some take the saying 'if you cannot beat them, join them' even further and either demand to be cut in or offer their own unlawful contribution as payment for their admission into the "practice". So grows the number of people participating in coordinated wrongdoing by fraud or who come to know about it but keep it quiet to avoid retaliation. Neither those who practice fraud nor those who want to stay out of trouble have any interest in reviewing according to law cases that can expose it, outrage the public, and give rise to media and official investigations.

101. With the extension of the series of fraudulent bankruptcies, fraud becomes what smart people do. No bankruptcy insiders do it more smartly than judges do. They do it risklessly in reliance on their unaccountability(jur:21§1) and through self-immunization by abusing their system of self-policing through systematic dismissal with no investigation of complaints against them (jur:24§b). Free from the constraint of due process and enjoying a lightened workload through expediency measures(jur:43§1), judges can divert energy and resources from the proper functions of administering bankruptcy relief and supervising the bankruptcy system to the illegitimate objective of practicing fraud and covering it up. In the same vein, they abuse their power to immunize other insiders of the legal and bankruptcy systems from the tortious or criminal consequences of their "absence of effective oversight".

102. Progressively, the judges and the insiders get rid of ever more ethical scruples, legal constraints, and practical obstacles. They increase their abuse of their unaccountable power to take maximum advantage of every adjudicative, administrative, supervisory, and disciplinary opportunity. Through this constantly growing fraudulent practice, they pursue their motive, whether it is to gain a wrongful benefit or evade a rightful detriment, into bankable realities.

103. As the practice of fraud increases in frequency and expands into other areas of the bankruptcy and legal systems, it eviscerates slice by slice the integrity of judges, both their personal and institutional integrity. By the same token, fraud becomes the factor that coalesces the judges into a compact class. Its members, those who have practiced it as much as those who have tolerated it, become dependent on one another to survive. Everyone is aware that each one can dare the others "if you bring or let me down, I take you with me!" Unless a judge resigns or can face the emotional and practical consequences of being ostracized(jur:62¶133 >quotation), he must go along with the others, whether doing her share or looking the other way(jur:88§§a-d).

104. By this process of practical evolution and moral abrasion judges become individually unfaithful to their oath to administer justice impartially through to the rule of law and collectively more committed to each other and the operation of the activity that has become most profitable and requires constant coordination: the fraud scheme. Neither ENRON, Lehman Brothers, and Maddox became pervasively dominated by fraud overnight. The Federal Judiciary has had 223 years since its creation in 1789 during which only 8 judges have been removed to have one practice of individual wrongdoing followed with impunity by others which in turned were followed by the coordination of wrongdoing by several of them. Gradually the conviction has developed in the institutional psyche that their members are unaccountable and immune. Step by step, the practice of wrongdoing became routine until it became their institutionalized modus operandi. Increasing coordination of wrongdoing has produced organically functioning fraud schemes, whether it is the systematic dismissal of complaints, the concealment of assets with pro forma filing of financial disclosure reports(jur:104¶¶236,237), review of cases, or the bankruptcy fraud scheme. Their operation is ensured by the judges' mutually dependent survival, which has changed the character of their institutions: the Federal Judiciary has become the safe haven for wrongdoing and its practitioners have become convinced that they are Judges Above the Law. [89]

c. A class of wrongdoing priests protected by the Catholic Church 's cover up makes credible the charge of a class of judges protected by the Federal Judiciary's cover up

105. It would be a feat of naiveté or self-interest to believe that federal judges as a class, not just individually, cannot engage in coordinated wrongdoing as their institutionalized modus operandi. Far worse than that has already been proven beyond a reasonable doubt: Priests, who dedicated their lives to inculcating in others, and helping them live by, the teachings of a loving and caring God, have been convicted of sexually abusing children. It has also been shown that while they were giving in to their abusive pedophilic desires, they were being protected by the Catholic Church as a matter of institutional policy implemented for decades. Consequently, archdioceses and dioceses of the Church, not just individual priests, in the United States alone, never mind Europe, have been held liable for compensatory damages exceeding in the aggregate $2 billion.

106. Hence, it is humanly and institutionally possible for federal judges to become corrupt as a class. To begin with, they cannot claim that God chose them for his ministry because of some special disposition of their souls toward self-denial and altruism.[30] On the contrary, they must admit that they were nominated and appointed by precisely the main political components of the "swamp of corruption" that top politicians themselves have described Washington as being[16]. Their taking their oath of office to "do equal right to the poor and to the rich [and] to uphold the Constitution and the laws thereunder"[90] did not confer upon them any more incorruptibility than did upon the priests the oath that they took to obey God and the Church on behalf of their fellow men and women. Interjecting at every opportunity when talking to them "Your Honor here" "Your Honor there" year in and year out does not in any way makes them honorable. It only makes them aware that people fear the power that they wield to make them win or lose cases, and with that dramatically affect lawyers' livelihood or their clients' property, liberty, or even lives. That address form goes to their heads and makes them arrogant: Judges Above the Fearful.

[89] The Dynamics of Institutionalized Corruption in the Courts; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Dynamics_of_corruption.pdf

107. Making it even highly probable that federal judges have become corrupt as a class is something more basic than such deferential treatment, something much more prevalent than a despicable pedophilic deviance that affects only a very small percentage of the population. Indeed, judges have allowed themselves to be driven by the most mainstream, insidious, and pernicious motive that dominates our national character just as it dominates Washington[15]: money!(jur:27§2) Money is what lies at the core of the controversy in most cases or what is used to compensate the infringement of a right or the failure to perform a duty; what is exacted to impose a penalty.

108. Moreover, judges have something else that even the movers and shakers of Washington, not to mention the rest of the population, lack: Federal judges not only have power over the inertia of money, that is, power to decide whether it stays with he who has it or flows to him who has a claim on it…or simply wants it. They also have power over the legal process in which the inertia of money is decided. In practice, their power is absolute, for it is vast and they wield it unaccountably(jur:21§1). That is the kind of power that corrupts absolutely.[32] Moreover, the absolute character of their power is special: They have been invested with the power to police themselves by handling the complaints filed against their peers[18a]. They blatantly abuse that power by systematically dismissing those complaints to self-exempt from any discipline[19]. They also enter collusive relationships with the other two branches of government[23a], which in self-interest do not hold them accountable(jur:81§1). Their power is even held beyond the investigative scope of the media, which out of fear of retaliation has shirked from their duty to investigate and expose judges' professional performance and individual conduct just as the media do the politicians'(jur:4¶¶10-14).

109. The unaccountable power of federal judges enables them to do anything they want and answer for it to nobody but themselves. In various ways similar to the priests and the Catholic Church, judges by either statute or their own election or appointment fill on a permanent or rotating basis positions with administrative functions, such as chief of court, circuit justice, and chair of a committee of the Federal Judiciary. Since they do not have outsiders dropped as wrenches into their machinery –as is the secretary of defense in the military-, when one after the other holds those positions they simply cover up the past and present wrongs that they and their peers did or are doing as judges or individuals. From those administrative positions, not only do they reciprocally ensure their mutual survival, but also wield additional power to enforce class loyalty.

[90] http://judicial-discipline-reform.org/docs/28usc453_judges_oath.pdf

d. Life-tenured, in practice unimpeachable district and circuit judges and Supreme Court justices are fundamentally equals

110. Even the most recently confirmed nominee to a district judgeship keeps her job for life…"during good Behaviour". If she behaves badly, not even the Judiciary can fire her; only Congress can remove a judge through the process of impeachment, which is hardly ever used(jur:21¶29). In addition, Congress itself cannot penalize her by diminishing her compensation, for the Constitution prohibits doing so.[12] No judge is the employer of any other judge with the right to tell her how to perform or not to perform her job, with the exception of remanding a decision to a court for 'further proceedings not inconsistent with this order of reversal' and the granting of a mandamus petition filed by a litigant. Even the chief justice of the Supreme Court, who is also the Chief Justice of the United States, is not the boss of any other judge, not even of a bankruptcy judgeship appointed for a 14-year term by the circuit judges of the respective circuit court or a magistrate judge appointed for a shorter term by the district judges of the respective district court.[61] After all, the Constitution does not set one court over another; instead, it reserves to Congress almost the exclusive power to determine the relative exercise of jurisdiction between the courts.

> Const. Art III. Section 1. The judicial Power of the United States, shall be vested in one supreme Court, and in such inferior Courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish….
>
> Section 3.…In all Cases affecting Ambassadors [or where] a State shall be a Party, the supreme Court shall have original jurisdiction. In all the other Cases before mentioned, the supreme Court shall have appellate Jurisdiction, both as to Law and Fact, with such Exceptions, and under such Regulations as the Congress shall make.

111. In fact, the highest policy-making and disciplinary body of the Federal Judiciary, the Judicial Conference of the U.S.[91a-f], has no more statutory authority than to "submit suggestions and recommendations to the various courts to promote uniformity of management procedures and the expeditious conduct of court business"[91g].

---

[91] a) The 27-judge Judicial Conference is composed of 14 chief judges, that is, those of the 12 regional circuits (circuits 1-11 and the D.C. circuit), the national Federal Circuit, and the Court of International Trade as well as a representative district judge chosen by the circuit and district judges of each of the 12 regional circuits; see map of the circuits(jur:20). Its presiding member is the chief justice of the Supreme Court. A bankruptcy and a magistrate judge attend its meetings as non-voting observers. The Conference only deals with administrative and disciplinary matters. As the highest such body of the Federal Judiciary it makes policies for the whole Judiciary, which are developed at its behest by its all-judge committees, which report to it at its biannual meetings in March and September.

b) Cf. http://judicial-discipline-reform.org/statistics&tables/JudConf_Reports.pdf

c) The Conference also supervises the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts[10], which implements those policies; d) http://www.uscourts.gov/FederalCourts/JudicialConference.aspx and

e) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc331_Jud_Conf.pdf. f) Some members of the Conference are replaced at its September meeting[221] when their 3-5-year service ends; http://www.uscourts.gov/FederalCourts/JudicialConference/Member ship.aspx.

g) e) > §331 4th para.

112. But the Judicial Conference has no authority, whether constitutional or statutory, to demote a judge for having many opinions reversed on appeal or promote her for having a perfect score of opinions upheld. She can sell just as many well-argued books explaining her reversed decisions. Her arguments can subsequently be adopted by other judges and courts. In fact, no judge, justice, or body of the Federal Judiciary has any authority to permanently promote a judge to a higher court or demote her to a lower one and modify her title and salary accordingly. Neither judges nor the Judiciary are authorized to recommend to the President whom to nominate for such elevation and not even the President can demote a judge. If circuit judges do not like a lower court decision, that is tough luck for them. In such event, they cannot get rid of it by merely rubberstamping an order of dismissal as if it were the Supreme Court's ridding itself of a petition for certiorari by a having a clerk issue its denial form. Instead, circuit judges have to negotiate among themselves the grounds for reversal and then sit down to write a decision identifying the reversible error to make it possible to avoid it on remand. It is much easier for circuit judges to affirm a lower court decision that they do not like but cannot easily agree on the reason therefor and be done with it.[68] A district judge does not have to negotiate an agreement with anybody to dispose of a bankruptcy judge's decision however he wants. It follows that being reversed is career-wise inconsequential as is being affirmed. No number of remands is going to force a life-tenured district or circuit judge to resign. Given the historical record(jur:21§a), no impeachment is going to be commenced on that ground against her, let alone end in her removal.

113. The same holds true for everything else they do or do not do. Life-tenured judges cannot be fired or have their compensation diminished because they do not keep 9-5 hours. Working 60 hour/weeks does not get a judge promoted to a higher court by a chief judge. The latter does not wield over his peers anything remotely similar to a company CEO's power over his employees. The chief earns no commendation from anybody from squeezing higher productivity from his peers; he only gets animosity and ill will from them. Thus, there is no upside or downside for a judge for doing or letting others do more or less than what he or they are supposed or want to do. Judges are not going to protest too loudly because one of theirs is lazy, sloppy, or uses 'court time' for his own activities, for they too want to enjoy the same freedom to manage their time however they want. A mumbled snide remark, a frown while looking away, a cold shoulder is basically the way for a judge to protest his colleague's failure to carry his own burden while taking too many liberties with his time management. Litigants cannot force any of them to work hard and write meaningful decisions. They are for all practical purposes equals and free agents.

114. However, it is not wise for those judges' career to turn a peer into an enemy. That peer may become an enemy for life given that federal district and circuit judges and the justices can stay put forever, their 'bad Behaviour' notwithstanding[12]. Quibbling about legal points and policy matters is perfectly acceptable. But disturbing the collegiality among professionally conjoined brethren and sisters by exposing the wrongdoing of any of them is an attack against the very survival of the whole judicial class and its privilege: Their unaccountability and in effect unimpeachability, which have rendered them Judges Above the Law.(jur:21§1) An investigation by outsiders of any one judge may take a life of its own that can soon get out of control, causing a judge to give up many more or one higher up 'honcho' in plea bargaining in exchange for leniency, who could in turn do the same. Soon everybody is tarnished or even incriminated for their own wrongdoing or their condonation of that of others. That the judges are determined to prevent or stop at all costs, whether with a stick or a carrot.

e. Enforcing class loyalty: using a stick to subdue a judge threatening to expose their peers' wrongdoing

1) Not reappointing, banishing, 'gypsying', and removing a bankruptcy or magistrate judge

115. Bankruptcy judges can hardly have gotten the idea that they were term-appointed to exercise independent judgment and apply the law to ensure due process of law with disregard for what is really at stake in bankruptcy court: money!(jur:27§2) To begin with, a bankruptcy judge can exercise authority under the Bankruptcy Code, that is, 11 U.S.C.[62], "except as otherwise provided by…rule or order of the district court"[92a]. This means that a district court can order the withdrawal to itself of any bankruptcy case in the hands of one of its bankruptcy judges.[92b] Consequently, a bankruptcy judge has little incentive to do the right thing in handling a case before him, for he knows that it can be undone after the case has been withdrawn from him by the district court. Likewise, he is aware that the district court and the circuit's judicial council are keeping tabs on whether to allow him to remain on his job depending on his understanding of his real role: to direct the flow of money according to, not the Code or the Rules of Procedure[63,79], but rather "local practice"[93]: The district court, which can uphold decisions appealed to it from the bankruptcy judge, and the judicial council, which can deny petitions to review the dismissal of misconduct complaints against him(jur:24§b), assure the judge's riskless exercise of judicial power to take advantage of the opportunity afforded by every case to make the money(jur:27§2) at stake flow[60] among bankruptcy system insiders[169]. From the point of view of that court and the council, the judge has no excuse not to do what he is supposed to regardless of what the law or any general or local rule[94] may require him to do.

116. Nevertheless, assume that the bankruptcy judge is principled enough to refuse to deviate from the law or the rules. In that event, the stick may run him away:

> 28 U.S.C. §152(b)(1) The Judicial Conference…shall, from time to time…determine the official duty stations of bankruptcy judges and places of holding court.
>
> §152(d) With the approval of the Judicial Conference and each of the judicial councils involved, a bankruptcy judge may be designated to serve in any district adjacent to or near the district for which such bankruptcy judge was appointed.

117. Those "places of holding court" may be nothing more than a stool and a rickety table with no connection to the bankruptcy court's Case Management/Electronic Case Files System[95], a subtle warning of what happens when a bankruptcy judge becomes fully 'disconnected' from the goodwill of those who decide whether he remains stationed in the Judiciary or is banished to a punishing place. Indeed, since the federal bankruptcy system has nationwide coverage, what exactly is "near" the appointment district? Pursuant to that vague provision, the headstrong bankruptcy judge can be banished so far from his home as to make it impossible for him to commute every day, thus forcing him to find accommodations there, come home perhaps on weekends, and suffer the consequent disruption to his personal and family life.

---

[92] a) fn.61a >28 U.S.C. §151; b) id. >§157(d); c) id. >§152(e)

[93] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_v_DeLano_local_practice.pdf

[94] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero-JudCoun_local_rule5.1h.pdf

[95] http://www.uscourts.gov/FederalCourts/CMECF.aspxf; cf. http://www.nywb.uscourts.gov/cmecf.html

118. An exceptional bankruptcy judge may refuse to resign as intended by the banishers. Instead, he may insist on safeguarding his personal integrity and that of the bankruptcy system. Dealing with him may require the swinging of a bigger stick. To begin with, the circuit court may not reappoint him at the expiration of his 14-year term. What is more, the circuit council[96] may remove him during his term. The council includes district judges, one or more of whom are members of the district court to which the bankruptcy judge belongs[cf.18f]; hence the importance of the tabs that the district court keeps on the bankruptcy judge's performance or rather his docility. The council may remove him on charges of "incompetence, misconduct, neglect of duty, or physical or mental disability" [92c].

119. The risk to the council may require it to swing its authority hard enough to effect his removal: Circuit judges on the council together with other peers on the circuit court constituted the majority that chose a person to be appointed bankruptcy judge, thereby vouching for his integrity and competence. Quite obviously, those appointing judges as well as the council would be highly embarrassed, perhaps even incriminated, if their own bankruptcy appointee turned around and exposed the wrongdoing of any other judge, never mind a member of the circuit court or the council itself. The fear of embarrassment or incrimination may be so justified as to be a constant and conduct determining factor: The appointing circuit judges and the circuit and district judges on the council may have known about such wrongdoing but tolerated it or should have known about it had they performed with due diligence their duty to uphold personally the integrity of the institution of which they are members, the Judiciary, and to supervise collectively the administration of justice in the circuit, as provided for in the Code of Conduct for U.S. Judges[123a]:

> Canon 1: A Judge Should Uphold The Integrity and Independence of The Judiciary.
>
> > An independent and honorable judiciary is indispensable to justice in our society. A judge should maintain and enforce high standards of conduct and should personally observe those standards, so that the integrity and independence of the judiciary may be preserved. The provisions of this Code should be construed and applied to further that objective.

120. It follows that the circuit judges have an interest in appointing as bankruptcy judge a person who they know will play by the "local rules"[93], as opposed to the law of the land adopted by Congress, for bankruptcy judges to handle money. A bankruptcy trustee, lawyer, or clerk may fit the bill if he has consistently acquiesced in the rulings and 'rules' of the bankruptcy judges before whom he practices or for whom he works. If upon his appointment to a bankruptcy judgeship he instead starts to object to and expose the wrongdoing of judges, the council, out of the self-interest of its members or under pressure from other judges, will rather sooner than later consider his removal as a preemptive damage control measure.

121. That constant threat of being removed weighs on the bankruptcy judge. He would really show "mental disability" if he thought for a nanosecond that, if removed, he would simply go back to

---

[96] Each federal judicial circuit has a judicial council, which is composed only of circuit and district judges of that circuit, in equal numbers, to whom is added its chief circuit judge as presiding and voting member. The council has administrative and disciplinary functions only; it does not adjudicate cases, although its members, as judges, do. The council's circuit judge members may have been among the members of the circuit court at the time that that court appointed(fn.61a) the bankruptcy judge whose removal is under consideration by the council; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc332_Councils.pdf.

practice bankruptcy law as any other lawyer before the same bankruptcy and district courts because they would not hold a grudge against him. Instead, he must picture his post-removal subsistence with him in the queue before a dilapidated public defender's office scrounging for an appointment to defend at a discounted, public rate a penniless criminal defendant. How many people have the strength of character to risk a salary of $160,080[97a] to do the right thing in the face of such dire consequences rather than simply flow with the current and the money by treating judicial wrongdoing with knowing indifference(jur:90§b) and willful ignorance(jur:91§c)?

122. Similarly, the district judges of the district court that appointed a magistrate judge have the authority both not to reappoint and to remove him[97c]. However, a more subtle means can be adopted to teach a too-by-the-book magistrate to get real or quit: If the Judicial Conference of the United States has provided that the magistrate may be required to serve on an itinerant basis, the district judges can 'gypsy' him and specify that he perform menial, humiliating duties. To stick can be made to be felt on his pocket too.[97b] If that does not do it, the Conference can simply beat his office out of existence.

> 28 U.S.C. §631(a)…Where the conference deems it desirable, a magistrate judge may be designated to serve in one or more districts adjoining the district for which he is appointed. Such a designation shall be made by the concurrence of a majority of the judges of each of the district courts involved and shall specify the duties to be performed by the magistrate judge in the adjoining district or districts. (See also fn.100)
>
> §631(i)…a magistrate judge's office shall be terminated if the conference determines that the services performed by his office are no longer needed.
>
> §635(a) Full-time…magistrate…shall be allowed their actual and necessary expenses incurred in the performance of their duties, including the compensation of such legal assistants as the Judicial Conference, on the basis of the recommendations of the judicial councils of the circuits, considers necessary, and the compensation of necessary clerical and secretarial assistance.

2) Ostracizing 'temporarily' a district or circuit judge to inhospitable or far-flung places

123. A district or circuit judge who did not understand that judges do not turn on judges and certainly not on justices, who are allotted to the circuits as circuit justices[98], could find himself or herself designated and assigned 'temporarily' to another court under 28 U.S.C. §§291-297[99];

---

[97] a) fn.61a >§153(a) "Each bankruptcy judge shall…receive as full compensation for his services, a salary at an annual rate that is equal to 92 percent of the salary of a judge of the district court…", which is $174,000, as provided for under 5 U.S.C. §5332 Schedule 7. Judicial Salaries; fn.211. b) Full-time magistrate judges receive "salaries to be fixed by the [Judicial C]onference pursuant to section 633 [entitling the Conference to "change salaries of full-time and part-time magistrates judges, as the expeditious administration of justice may require"] at rates…up to an annual rate equal to 92 percent of the salary of a judge of the district court" ; fn.61b >§634(a). c) fn.61b >§631(a) and (i)

[98] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc41-49_CAs.pdf >§42. Allotment of Supreme Court justices to circuits

[99] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc291-297_assign_judges.pdf

28 U.S.C. §291(a) The Chief Justice of the United States may, in the public interest, designate and assign temporarily any circuit judge to act as circuit judge in another circuit upon request by the chief judge or circuit justice of such circuit.

§292(d) The Chief Justice may designate and assign temporarily a district judge of one circuit for service in another circuit, either in a district court or court of appeals, upon presentation of a certificate of necessity by the chief judge or circuit justice of the circuit wherein the need arises.

124. Thanks to global warming, winters in the federal judicial district of Alaska are quite pleasant, the temperature seldom dropping below -30°F. Being transferred there not only provides a refreshing start from zero for a judge's career, but also has a rather cooling effect on his temperament after he has unhealthily heated up by holding on to trifling disciplinary matters normally disposed of promptly, such as misconduct complaints dispatched through systematic dismissals(jur:24§b). If the judge prefers a tropical climate where in a brighter sun he can learn to make light of his peers' wrongdoing, he can be accommodated with an assignment to any of the Freely Associated Compact States, i.e., the Federated States of Micronesia, the Republic of the Marshall Islands, or the Republic of Palau. No doubt all the other judges will learn a lesson from his post cards about his laid-way-back and certainly very Pacific life. It is obvious why those courts are more appropriately referred to as 'reeducation' courts rather than dump courts, which is not a nice name. Being nice to each other is key in the Federal Judiciary…unless a judge is packed with integrity and ready to travel the narrow road to godforsaken courts.

28 U.S.C. §297 Assignment of judges to courts of the freely associated compact states.

(a) The Chief Justice or the chief judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit may assign any circuit or district judge of the Ninth Circuit, with the consent of the judge so assigned, to serve temporarily as a judge of any duly constituted court of the freely associated compact states…[100]

125. Moreover, a circuit judge who gets the idea that she can reform the Judiciary from her elevated position inside it can be disabused by being 'demoted' 'temporarily' to hold district court in any distant district in her circuit or even in another circuit to which she has already been transferred to from her own circuit. What exactly is 'temporary' with respect to district and circuit judges, who have life appointments? Since all it takes is to invoke the standard most easily satisfied, namely, "in the public interest", is an assignment to hold trials between inmates in a district centered around a penitentiary lost in the middle of the dessert within the scope of 'temporary' if it is for 5 years?

28 U.S.C. §291(b) The chief judge of a circuit or the circuit justice may, in the public interest, designate and assign temporarily any circuit judge within the circuit, including a judge designated and assigned to temporary duty therein, to hold a district court in any district within the circuit.

126. It is true that the chief justice, as presiding member of the Judicial Conference, and the other members of it, whether chief circuit judges or elected district judges, are equals. Aside from the chief justice being the one who calls its biannual meetings as well as special meetings[101], they all have one vote and no one has a statutory right to draw up exclusively the agenda of their meetings.

[100] If a recommendation of the Judicial Conference for amendment of §297 is adopted, "magistrate judges and territorial judges may be assigned temporarily to provide service to the freely associated compact states"; Judicial Conference Report, 15mar11, page 14; fn.91b >jcr:1036.

[101] fn.91b >jcr:822; 901

127. However, no judge has an interest in antagonizing the chief justice, or for that matter his associate justices. For one thing, complaints cannot be filed against a justice since the justices are not subject to the Judicial Conduct and Disability Act[18a]; nor can it somehow be claimed that a justice violated the Code of Conduct for U.S. Judges[123a] because the justices are not subject to it either[102]. Moreover, the chief justice has an interest in protecting the associate justices because they hold the votes that can give him a consistent majority capable of becoming known as the [Chief Justice] Doe Court. The justices can retaliate against judges that attack or disrespect them by banishing or 'demoting' them(jur:58¶¶123,125). They can also agree to review their decisions appealed to them only to reverse them or lash out against them in a majority opinion upheld on other grounds or a dissent opinion. Both types of opinions carry more prestige and are more widely read and quoted than any opinion issued by lower court judges. They can be used to shame and embarrass a judge that needs to be taught a lesson: a judge is not to cross a justice.

f. The carrot of reputational benefit among equals: rewarding class solidarity with an at-pleasure or term-limited appointment

128. Judges' unaccountability and de facto unimpeachability(jur:21§1) have generated irresistible attraction toward wrongdoing…ever more of it and more boldly as the impunity following an act of wrongdoing increases their confidence that no harm will come to them if they repeat the same or similar type of wrongdoing and even if they engage in wrongdoing that is bolder to the same extent as their impunity confidence is greater. This self-reinforcing process has caused wrongdoing to become pervasive. It explains why no judge may be willing to agree to be hit with the stick for his wrongdoing when he knows that everybody is actively doing some type of wrong or passively looking the other way from the wrongdoing of others. Hence the need also for the carrot as conduct modifier or inducer.

129. Judges that go with the flow of their peers rather than stand on principles can reap a benefit in several manners in addition to getting away with their own wrongdoing and its profit. For instance, a district judge can be 'promoted' to temporary duty on a circuit court under 28 U.S.C. §292(d)(jur:48¶84). Carrots can also be dangled before the eyes of judges or fed to them in the form of appointment to prestigious administrative positions and committees within the Judiciary. While being so appointed does not bring an increase in salary, the prestige that it carries amounts to public recognition of not only a judge's competence, but also his forgiving attitude toward his peers: He or she will stick by them no matter what, even by dismissing 100% of petitions for review of complaint dismissals(jur:24¶33).

130. No such recognition need be expected by sticklers for applying to their peers the valuable, integrity-enhancing requirement to "avoid even the appearance of impropriety"[123a]. In practice, it is devalued by the judges, who pay to it only lip service[109c]. In fact, district judges who may even think that in the interest of judicial integrity they should expose their peers' improprieties and wrongdoing are likely to have that thought dispelled by a self-interested consideration: It is the circuit and district judges in the circuit who choose the district judge that will represent them in the Judicial Conference[103]. Those judges would certainly not vote for a judge that would put principles ahead of the reciprocal cover-up required by complicit collegiality, which provides the basis for their awareness of their mutually dependent survival.

[102] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/teams/AFJ/11-12-10DrRCordero-DFranco-Malone.pdf

131. Among the most prestigious appointments are to the at-pleasure directorship of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts and the chairmanship of the term-limited Executive Committee of the Judicial Conference of the U.S. The presiding member of the Conference is the chief justice, who makes those appointments just as he appoints the term-limited chairs of each of the 25 committees of the Conference[91b], such as the Committee on Financial Disclosure, on Judicial Conduct and Disability, and on Codes of Conduct.[cf.104a] Appointment to some committees, such as that on international judicial relations, involves travel abroad or hosting delegations of foreign jurists and judicial personnel.[104b] The chief justice can also create special committees, each of which can become known by the name of the judge that he appoints to chair it. For example, on May 25, 2004, Chief Justice Rehnquist created a committee to review the application of the Judicial Conduct and Disability Act and appointed Justice Breyer as its chairman; it became known as the Breyer Committee, which issued the Breyer Report in September 2006.[105] Chief circuit judges can also make similar appointments in their respective courts.

132. "The Chief Justice has sole authority to make committee appointments"[106] and bestow the concomitant reputational benefit on appointees…as well as a 'distraction' from the monotonous grind of deciding case after case of Joe Schmock v. Wigetry, Corp. A judge who wants to receive such benefit had better be on good terms with the chief justice as well as with the respective circuit justice and all the other justices, for they can put in a good word for him with the chief justice.

---

[103] fn.91c >2nd paragraph

[104] a) http://www.uscourts.gov/News/TheThirdBranch/10-10-01/New_Chairs_Head_Five_Conference_Committees.aspx; b) fn.91 >jcr:1039 [105] a) http://www.uscourts.gov/RulesAndPolicies/ConductAndDisability/JudicialConductDisability.aspx >Implementation of the Judicial Conduct and Disability Act(fn.18a). A Report to the Chief Justice; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/judicial_complaints/Breyer_Report.pdf.

b) See also a critical comment on the Report's history and its progeny, i.e., the new Rules Governing Judicial Conduct and Disability Proceedings concerning misconduct and disability complaints against federal judges; drafted by the Committee on Judicial Conduct and Disability of the Judicial Conference of the U.S. and adopted by the latter on March 11, 2008:

(i) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/7-9-19DrRCordero-JRWinter_complaint_rules.pdf;

(ii)http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/7-10-14DrRCordero-JRWinter_draft_rules.pdf;

(iii) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/8-2-25DrRCordero-AO_JDuff_revised_rules.pdf;

(iv) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/8-3-27DrRCordero-CA2_CJ_Jacobs.pdf

[106] http://www.uscourts.gov/FederalCourts/JudicialConference/Committees.aspx

g. The wrongful social benefit of acceptance in the class of judges and avoidance of pariah status due to disloyal failure to cover up peer wrongdoing rewards complicit collegiality over principled conduct

133. In addition to ensuring reciprocal exemption from discipline through complaint dismissal, judges fail to investigate each other in the self-interest of preserving their good relations with the other members of the class of judges as well as out of fear of being outcast as traitors. Camaraderie built on complicit collegiality trumps the institutional and personal duty(jur:57¶119 >quotation) to safeguard and ensure the integrity of the Judiciary and its members.

> Cir. J. Kozinski [presently Chief Judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 9th Cir.], dissenting: Passing judgment on our colleagues is a grave responsibility entrusted to us only recently. In the late 1970s, Congress became concerned that Article III judges were, effectively, beyond discipline because the impeachment process is so cumbersome that it's seldom used.…Disciplining our colleagues is a delicate and uncomfortable task, not merely because those accused of misconduct are often men and women we know and admire. It is also uncomfortable because we tend to empathize with the accused, whose conduct might not be all that different from what we have done -or been tempted to do- in a moment of weakness or thoughtlessness. And, of course, there is the nettlesome prospect of having to confront judges we've condemned when we see them at a judicial conference, committee meeting, judicial education program or some such event. 28 U.S.C. §453.[90] (Internal citations omitted.) In re Judicial Misconduct Complaint, docket no. 03- 89037, Judicial Council, 9th Cir., September 29, 2005, 425 F.3d 1179, 1183. http://www.ca9.uscourts.gov/opinions/ >Advance Search: 09/29/2005 >In re Judicial Misconduct 03-89037; and http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/CA9JKozinski_dissent.pdf

134. Judges can also wrongfully obtain the social benefit of acceptance by a clique of legal and bankruptcy systems insiders through the exercise of their means of wrongdoing, that is, their decision-making power to confer on the insiders a material benefit(jur:32§2), from which, of course, they can also extract a benefit for themselves in the form of kickbacks.

5. From general statistics of the Federal Judiciary to particular cases that illustrate how wrongdoing runs throughout it and harms people

135. The above is an example of dynamic analysis of harmonious and conflicting interests[187] among the judicial officers of the Federal Judiciary. Based thereon, a judge that determines her conduct on purely pragmatic considerations would see no benefit in either refusing to dismiss or voting to review a misconduct complaint against a peer. Only a highly principled judge whose conduct was determined by her duty to do what was legally, ethically, or morally right even if she had to suffer for it would dare expose a wrongdoing judge or the coordinated wrongdoing of the class of judges. To do so, she could not merely file a judicial misconduct complaint against her peer, which would be doomed to dismissal from the outset. The only action reasonably calculated to have a chance at effectiveness would be to bring the evidence or her reasonable suspicion of wrongdoing or impropriety outside the Judiciary to the attention of the public at large, whether by publishing it herself, for example, on her website, or through the media, that is, if she found a media outlet willing to become the object of retaliation of every member of the Federal Judiciary but for the complaining judge. The latter would cast herself out of the class of judges, who would deem her action treasonous and treat her as a traitor to be socially outcast(jur:26¶133; 107¶242, 243).

136. Therefore, if one is neither naïve nor compromised by self-interest, one can consider with an open mind the evidence in the next section, 65§B, of wrongdoing by the class of federal judges and their Judiciary. It shows how unaccountable power, the money motive, and the opportunity for wrongdoing in effectively unreviewable cases have enabled them to engage in individual and coordinated wrongdoing. The evidence in §B concerns federal judges involved in concealment of personal assets and a collective bankruptcy fraud scheme for concealing or misappropriating assets at stake in particular bankruptcy cases that went all the way from a bankruptcy to a district to a circuit court and on to the Supreme Court just as the judicial misconduct complaint against the bankruptcy judge went from a chief circuit judge to the circuit council and to the Judicial Conference and the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts. Moreover, that wrongdoing was compounded by other forms of wrongdoing necessary to cover it up. The prevalence and routine character of all such wrongdoing throughout the judicial and disciplinary hierarchies reveal that wrongdoing has become the institutionalized modus operandi of the Federal Judiciary.

Blank

B. In re DeLano, Judge Sonia Sotomayor Presiding, and her appointment to the Supreme Court by President Barak Obama: evidence of a bankruptcy fraud scheme and her concealment of assets dismissed with knowing indifference and willful blindness as part of the Federal Judiciary's institutionalized modus operandi

1. Justiceship Nominee Judge Sotomayor was suspected of concealing assets by The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico

137. The evidence hereunder concerns what The Washington Post, The New York Times, and Politico suspected in articles contemporaneous with President Barak Obama's first justiceship nomination, to wit, that Then-Judge Sonia Sotomayor of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit (CA2) had concealed assets of her own[107a]. The evidence is in the financial statements that she filed with the Senate Committee on the Judiciary holding hearings on her confirmation.[107b] They show that in 1988-2008 she earned and borrowed $4,155,599 + her 1976-1987 earnings; but disclosed assets worth only $543,903, leaving unaccounted for $3,611,696 - taxes and the cost of her reportedly modest living[107c]. Thereby she failed to comply with that Committee's request that she disclose "in detail all [her] assets…and liabilities"[107b]. Her motive was to cover up her previous failure to comply with the requirement of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 to file a "full and complete" annual financial disclosure report[107d]. The President disregarded the evidence of her dishonesty just as he did that of his known tax cheat nominees Tim Geithner, Tom Daschle, and Nancy Killefer[108]. The fact that the President is wont to nominate tax cheaters lends credibility to those respectable newspapers' suspicion that Judge Sotomayor too cheated on her taxes on the assets that she concealed.

138. Judge Sotomayor's concealment of assets of her own is consistent with evidence of her cover-up of concealment of assets of others through a bankruptcy fraud scheme[94] run by judges and bankruptcy system insiders[169] in a case in which she was the presiding judge: DeLano[109].

---

[107] a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/SCt_nominee/JSotomayor_integrity/6articles_JSotomayor_financials.pdf;

b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/SCt_nominee/JSotomayor_integrity/2SenJudCom_Questionnaire_JSotomayor.pdf;

c) (i) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/SCt_nominee/JSotomayor_integrity/12table_JSotomayor-financials.pdf; (ii) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/SCt_nominee/14SenJudCom_investigate_JSotomayor.pdf

d) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/5usc_Ethics_Gov_14apr9.pdf [108] a) http://judicial-discipline-reform.org/docs/Geithner_tax_evasion_jan9.pdf;

b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Tom_Daschle_tax_evasion_feb9.pdf; and

c) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Nancy_Killefer_3feb9.pdf [109] a) DeLano, 06-4780-bk-CA2, dismissed per curiam, J. Sotomayor, presiding; fn.131 >CA:2180

b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_v_DeLano_SCt_3oct8.pdf >US:2442§IX;

Although she and her CA2 peers were made aware of the scheme[110], they dismissed the evidence and protected their bankruptcy judge appointee[61a] that ran the scheme in DeLano. How they dismissed it is most revealing.

2. DeLano illustrates how concealment of assets is operated through a bankruptcy fraud scheme enabled by bankruptcy, district, and circuit judges, and Supreme Court justices

139. DeLano[111] concerns a 39-year veteran banker who in preparation for his debt-free retirement to a golden nest filed his personal bankruptcy[112a], yet remained employed by a major bank, M&T Bank, as a bankruptcy officer! He was but one of a clique of bankruptcy system insiders: His bankruptcy trustee had 3,907 open cases[113a] before the WBNY judge hearing the case; one of his lawyers had brought 525 cases[113b] before that judge; his other lawyer also represented M&T and was a partner in the same law firm[113c] in which that judge[113d] was a partner at the time of his appointment[61a] to the bench by CA2; when he was reappointed in 2006[114a], Judge Sotomayor was a CA2 member. M&T was likely a client of that law firm and even of the judge when he was a bankruptcy lawyer and partner there. The analysis of M&T cases[114b-c] and DeLano revealed the bankruptcy fraud scheme and these insiders' participation in it[115a]. The very large number of cases that these two trustees and lawyer have brought before Judge Ninfo and the "unusually close

---

c) cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_v_DeLano_SCt_rehear_23apr9.pdf

110 http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/motion_en_banc.pdf >CA:1947§§I, III

111 For a more detailed account of DeLano, see http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/HR/11-4-25DrRCordero-HR_ComJud.pdf >GC:41§D

112 a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/DeLano_docs.pdf >§V >W:43;

b) id. >§I.B=W:2

113 a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Trustee_Reiber_3909_cases.pdf;

b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Werner_525_before_Ninfo.pdf;

c) http://www.underbergkessler.com;

d) http://www.nywb.uscourts.gov/judge_ninfo_202.html >About [NY Western District] Bankruptcy J. John C. Ninfo, II, and fn.124 114 a) fn.111 >GC:32/fn.72; b) id. >GC:17§§B-C, describing bankruptcy cases to which M&T was a party and whose trustee had 3,382 cases before Judge Ninfo, http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/TrGordon_3383_as_trustee.pdf, and one of the lawyers 442, http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/MacKnight_442_before_JNinfo.pdf. The M&T cases went from bankruptcy court all the way to the Supreme Court, c) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_v_TrGordon_SCt.pdf, as did DeLano, fn.109b.

115 a) That analysis was set forth in support of the request of 25apr11 to the H.R. Judiciary Committee to investigate the scheme; fn.111. It was turned into the 25may11 request made for a similar purpose to Rep. Michelle Bachmann and each of the Tea Party Caucus members; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/HR/7Tea_P/11-5-25DrRCordero-Tea_P&Caucus.pdf.

b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero-Att_Grievance_Com.pdf

relationship between the[m]" and these other parties have provided for the development of the driver of their relation dynamics: "cronyism"(jur:32§2). Money and its sharing provide them with convergent motivational direction. [116]

140. In reliance thereon, the co-scheming 'bankrupt' officer declared that he and his wife had earned $291,470 in the three years preceding their bankruptcy filing[117a]. Incongruously, they pretended that they only had $535 "on hand and in account"[117b]. Yet, they incurred $27,953 in known legal fees, billed by their bankruptcy lawyer, who knew that they had money to pay for his services[117c], and approved by the trustee and the judge. They also declared one single real estate property, their home, bought 30 years earlier[117d] and assessed for the purpose of the bankruptcy at $98,500, on which they declared to carry a mortgage of $77,084 and have equity of only $21,416[117e]…after making mortgage payments for 30 years! They sold it 3½ years later for $135,000, a 37% gain in a down market.[118f] Moreover, they had engaged in a string of eight mortgages from which they received $382,187, but the trustee and the judge refused to require them to account for it[117g].

141. For six months the bankruptcy officer and his wife, their lawyers, and the trustee treated a creditor that they had listed among their unsecured creditors as such and pretended to be searching for their bankruptcy petition-supporting documents that he had requested[118a]. It was not until the creditor brought to the judge's attention[118b] that the 'bankrupts' had engaged in concealment of assets that they moved to disallow his claim[118c]. The judge called on his own for an evidentiary hearing on the motion only to deny discovery of every single document that the creditor requested, even the bankrupts' bank account statements, indispensable in any bankruptcy[119a]. Thereby the judge deprived the creditor of his discovery rights, thus flouting due process. He turned the hearing[119b] and his grant of the motion into a sham[120]. The judge also stripped the creditor of standing in the case so that he could not keep requesting documents, for they would have allowed tracking back the concealed assets. On appeal, the judge's colleague in the same small federal building[121a] in Rochester, NY[115b], a WDNY district judge(jur:236), also denied every single document requested by the creditor[121b].

---

[116] For the names and contact information about the trustees, attorneys, and judges referred to here, see Complaint to the Attorney Grievance Committee for the New York State Seventh Judicial District [of the Appellate Division, Fourth Department, of the NYS Supreme Court] against attorneys engaged in misconduct contrary to law and/or the NY State Unified Court System, Part 1200 - Rules of Professional Conduct, GC:1§I; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/NYS_att_complaints/16App_Div/DrRCordero-AppDiv4dpt.pdf.

[117] a) fn.112 >§I.B >W:2; b) id. >§V >W:51; c) id.>§XI >W:148; d) id.>§VIII >W:93; e) id.>§V >W:50; f) id.>§X >W:145; g) id.>§VIII >W:89-112 and fn.111>HR:217

[118] a) fn.111 >GC:47:§3; b) id. >GC:45§2; c) id. >GC:49§4

[119] a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/docs_denied.pdf; b) fn.111 >GC:51§5

[120] a) 'Hear' the judge's bias: http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/transcript_DeLano_1mar5.pdf; b) cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/Analysis_Trustee_report_23aug5.pdf

[121] a) fn.65. >GC:11¶11; b) fn.119a >de:28; and http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_v_DeLano_WDNY.pdf >Pst:1255§1 and 1281¶62; c) fn.111 >GC:58§8; cf. GC:54§7

3. Then-Judge Sotomayor's concealment of her own assets reveals wrongdoing as part of the modus operandi of peers and their administrative appointees, which requires justices to keep covering up their own and their peers' wrongdoing

a. Judge Sotomayor refused to investigate a bankruptcy officer's bankruptcy petition, though suspicious per se

142. When DeLano reached CA2, Judge Sotomayor, presiding[109b], condoned those unlawful denials and even denied in turn every single document in 12 requests by the creditor-appellant[122a]. However, she too needed those documents, e.g., bank and credit card statements, real estate title, home appraisal documents, etc., to find the facts to which to apply the law[122b]. Thus, she disregarded a basic principle of due process: The law must not be applied capriciously or arbitrarily[122c] in a vacuum of facts or by willfully ignoring them. Her conduct[121c] belied her statement before the Senate Judiciary Committee that her guiding principle as a judge was "fidelity to the law"[132f].

143. Judge Sotomayor also condoned the refusal of the bankruptcy judge to disqualify himself for conflict of interests(jur:66¶139) and "the appearance of impropriety"[123a-b], just as she refused to disqualify him[123c]. During her membership in the 2nd Circuit's Judicial Council[123d], she too denied the petition to review the dismissal without any investigation of the misconduct complaint against him[124]. This formed part of her pattern of covering up for her peers: As a CA2 member she condoned, and as a Council member she applied, the Council's unlawful policy during the 13-year period reported online of denying 100% of petitions to review dismissals of complaints against her peers[125a]. Thereby she contributed to illegally abrogating in effect an act of Congress giving complainants the right to petition for review[18b]; and also condoned the successive CA2 chief judges' unlawful practice of systematically and without any investigation dismissing such complaints[125a]. She did not "administer justice" [to her peers] rich"[90] in judicial connections, but rather a 100% exemption from accountability[125b]; and the "equal right" [126] that she did to them was to disregard all complaints against them, no matter their gravity or pattern, whether the allegation was of bribery, corruption, conflict of interests, bias, prejudice, abuse of power, etc.[127] Her unquestioning partiality toward her own was "without respect"[90] for complainants, other litigants, and the public. Instead of Equal Justice Under Law[126], Judge Sotomayor upheld Judges Can Do No Wrong. She breached her oath.

---

[122] a) fn.109b >US:2484 Table: Document requests & denials; jur:16; b) fn.119 >de:18§II; c) fn.33 >mp:3§A [123] a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Code_Conduct_Judges_09.pdf >Canon 2;

b) cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/ABA_Code_Jud_Conduct_07.pdf >Canon 1, p.12;

c) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_v_DeLano_06_4780_CA2.pdf >CA:1725§A, 1773§c;

d) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc332_Councils.pdf

[124] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero_2v_JNinfo_6jun8.pdf >N:36 and 48

[125] a) fn.111 >HR:214; b) other ways of judges self-assuring their unaccountability, id. >HR:3/fn.10

[126] fn.69 >§§4-6

[127] a) fn.19b >Cg:1-4; b) fn.111 >HR:219

144. By so doing, Judge Sotomayor rendered wrongdoing irresistible: She assured her peers of its risklessness, insulating it from any disciplinary downside while allowing free access to its limitless scope and profitability upside. So she emboldened them to engage ever more outrageously in the bankruptcy fraud scheme[94] and other forms of wrongdoing. By removing wrongdoing's stigmatizing potential and allowing its incorporation into the judges' modus operandi, she encouraged their resort to its efficiency multiplier: coordination. Through it, wrongdoing becomes institutionalized and wrongdoers' benefit from it becomes interdependent. Collective survival must be coordinated too since it requires their continued reciprocal cover-up[128]. Then-Judge Sotomayor thus ensured that they would cover up her concealment of assets. Now a Justice, she is not a champion of the Judiciary's integrity, but rather their accomplice[129a].

145. Indeed, the DeLano bankruptcy officer had during his 39-year long banking career learned who had turned the skeletons in the closet into such. The risk of his being indicted and trading up information about a higher-up wrongdoer in exchange for some immunity, which could be repeated by others and have domino effect, motivated Judge Sotomayor and her peers to allow the bankruptcy officer to retire to a golden nest with at least $673,657(jur:15) in known concealed assets[112b]. To protect peers, other insiders, and herself, she failed in her duty under 18 U.S.C. §3057 to report to the U.S. attorneys, not hard evidence, but just 'a belief that bankruptcy fraud may have been committed'[130a]. In how many of the thousands of cases[113a-b,114b] before their appointed[61] bankruptcy judges have she and other judges complicitly let the bankruptcy fraud scheme fester with rapaciousness[130b] and who benefited or was harmed thereby?

b. Then-Judge Sotomayor withheld the incriminating DeLano case from the Senate Judiciary Committee so as not to scuttle her confirmation

146. Then-Judge Sotomayor also took wrongful action to secure the benefit of her nomination to a justiceship by President Obama through its confirmation by the Senate. She so clearly realized how incriminating[131] the DeLano case was that she withheld it from the documents that she was required by the Senate Judiciary Committee to submit in preparation for its confirmation hearings[132]. By so doing, she committed perjury since she swore that she had complied with the

---

128 http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Dynamics_of_corruption.pdf

129 a) fn.111 >GC:61§1; b) fn.111 >HR:215; c) id. >HR:219, GC:63§2 130 a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/make_18usc3057_report.pdf >§3057(a) and fn.110 >CA:1961¶¶28-31; b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/18usc_bkrp_crimes.pdf

131 http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_v_DeLano_CA2_rehear.pdf, 14mar8

132 a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/SCt_nominee/JSotomayor_withheld_info.pdf;

b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/SCt_nominee/Senate/7DrCordero-SenJudCom_docs.pdf, 3july9 >sjc:1;

c) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/SCt_nominee/Senate/18DrCordero-SenReid_SenMcConnell.pdf, 13july9;

d) Sample of the letter sent to each Senate Judiciary Committee member, 13july9; fn.159e;

e) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/SCt_nominee/Senate/18DrCordero-SenJudCom.pdf,

Committee's initial and supplemental document requests[107b].

147. Indeed, the Committee requested in its Questionnaire for Judicial Nominees that she "13.c. Provide citations to all cases in which you were a panel member, but did not write an opinion" and "13.f. Provide a list of all cases in which certiorari was requested or granted".[133] The Judge referred the Committee to the Appendix[134] for her answer and stated in her letter of June 15, 2009, that "In responding to the Committee Questionnaire, I thoroughly reviewed my files to provide all responsive documents in my possession". However, she did not include the DeLano case in the Appendix or in either of the supplements with her letters to the Committee of June 15 or 19[135] following its requests for more precise answers.

148. Then-Judge Sotomayor was fully aware of DeLano, for she was the presiding judge on the panel that heard oral argument on January 3, 2008, when she also received the written statement by the attorney arguing the case, Dr. Cordero, that he filed with her and each of the other members of the panel.[136] By then she had been made aware of the importance of the case by the motions judge referring to the panel many of the 12 substantive motions that he had filed in that case.[137] She was also the first judge listed on the order dismissing the case the following February 7.[138] She had to further handle the case because of the petition for panel rehearing and hearing en banc filed by the attorney on March 14.[131] Moreover, after she and her colleagues denied both on May 9 by reissuing the order as the mandate[138], the attorney filed an application with Justice Ginsburg on June 30[139], and then with all the Justices for injunctive relief and a stay of the order on August 4, 2008.[140] Thereafter, a petition for certiorari was filed on October 3.[137] What is more, a petition

---

14july9 >p.2§2;

e) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/SCt_nominee/Senate/20DrCordero-SenJudCom_14jul9.pdf, 14july9;

f) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/SCt_nominee/Senate/1DrCordero-Senate.pdf, 3aug9 [133] a) http://judiciary.senate.gov/nominations/SupremeCourt/Sotomayor/SoniaSotomayor-Questionnaire.cfm >Committee Questionnaire > p.88§c and 98§f;

b) with added bookmarks useful for navigating the file containing the materials relating to cases and financial affairs submitted by Judge Sotomayor in response to the Questionnaire, also at http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/SCt_nominee/JSotomayor_integrity/2SenJudCom_Questionnaire_JSotomayor.pdf.

[134] http://judiciary.senate.gov/nominations/SupremeCourt/Sotomayor/SoniaSotomayor-Questionnaire.cfm > Committee Questionnaire - Appendix; and fn.133b.

[135] Fn.133a and fn.133b >JS:304 and 313.

[136] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_v_DeLano_CA2_oralarg.pdf

[137] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/US_writ/1DrCordero-SCt_petition_3oct8.pdf >US:2484. Table: Document requests by Dr. Cordero and denials by CA2.

[138] fn.131 >CA:2180, as subsequently reissued as mandate.

[139] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/SCt_chambers/2injunctive_relief/DrCordero_JGinsburg_injunction_30jun8.pdf

[140] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/SCt_chambers/8application_injuction_stay/1DrRCordero-SCtJustices_4aug8.pdf

for rehearing was filed on April 23, 2009, of the denial of certiorari, which was denied the following June 1.[141]

149. All these proceedings were exceedingly sufficient to make the case stand out in Then-Judge Sotomayor's mind. Nonetheless, she had to deal with it once more after the attorney filed with the Judicial Council of the Second Circuit, of which she was then a member, a petition for review of the dismissal by Chief Circuit Judge Dennis Jacobs of the judicial misconduct complaint for bias, prejudice, and abuse of judicial power in DeLano, 02-08-90073-jm.[142] The complaint's subject was, not just any judge, but rather her and her colleagues' appointee to a bankruptcy judgeship, i.e., Bankruptcy Judge John C. Ninfo, II, WBNY. This could only have made her all the more aware of the need to submit also DeLano to the Senate Judiciary Committee in the context of its confirmation hearings on her justiceship nomination. However, the risk for her of the Committee reviewing it was too high because what was at stake was a cover-up of a judge-run bankruptcy fraud scheme involving lots of money.[60]

4. The investigation of other justices for reciprocally covering up their wrongdoing

a. Justice Elena Kagan: under suspicion of prejudice toward a law, but without a historic opportunity to have covered for judges

150. Forty-nine U.S. representatives requested the House Judiciary Committee to investigate the involvement of Justice Elena Kagan while Solicitor General in the defense of Obamacare to determine whether she lied about it during her confirmation and should recuse herself now.[143] This supports the call for Justice Kagan to be investigated also for her past and present role in covering up Justice Sotomayor's and other Justices' wrongdoing.[144] However, she was never a

---

[141] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/US_writ/2DrCordero-SCt_rehear_23apr9.pdf

[142] a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/JNinfo/21review_petition/2DrCordero_JudCoun_10nov8.pdf. All the documents of this judicial wrongdoing complaint are collected at fn.124.

b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/JNinfo/25Committee/2DrCordero-petition_25feb9.pdf >N:51¶¶1-4 and N:39, which collects on one table the statistical complaint tables of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts and provides links thereto. See also N:146, which describes how its Director, James Duff, refused to discharge his "self-explanatory" duty under Rule 22(e) of the Rules for Judicial Conduct and Disability Proceedings to "distribute the petition [for review of the Judicial Council's mishandling of the complaint against Judge Ninfo] to the members of the Committee [on Judicial Conduct and Disability] for their deliberation". http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Rules_complaints.pdf

[143] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/RepMBachmann_Tea_Party_Caucus_jul10.pdf >mb:19-24

[144] a) The investigation of J. Sotomayor can lead to J. Ruth Bader Ginsburg, who as the 2nd Circuit's Circuit Justice[98], has responsibility for its integrity, and to other justices;

b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero-JGinsburg_injunction_30jun8.pdf;

c) They were informed of evidence of corruption therein, such as a judge-run bankruptcy fraud scheme and her concealment of assets, but in self-interest dismissed it with knowing judge. Thus, she comes to the Supreme Court without the baggage that the other justices and lower court judges must keep carrying of their participation in, or condonation of, individual and coordinated wrongdoing. Hence, she might see it in her interest not to join in its cover-up and instead denounce it from the inside and advocate measures to combat and prevent it.

b. Justice Clarence Thomas: his concealment of his wife's assets by filing for years deceptive financial disclosure reports

151. As for Justice Clarence Thomas:

> [In February 2011], 74 Democrats in Congress cited the threat to the court's authority when they asked Justice Thomas to recuse himself from an expected review of the health care reform law. This came after an announcement by his wife, Virginia, a lobbyist, who said she will provide "advocacy and assistance" as "an ambassador to the Tea Party movement," which, of course, is dedicated to the overturning of the health care law. The representatives based their request on the "appearance of a conflict of interest," because of a conflict they see between his duty to be an impartial decision-maker and the Thomas household's financial gain from her lobbying." The Thomas Issue, Editorial, The New York Times, 17feb11;
>
> http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/justices_improprieties.pdf >imp:13
>
> Under pressure from liberal critics, Justice Clarence Thomas of the Supreme Court acknowledged in filings released on Monday that he erred by not disclosing his wife's past employment as required by federal law. Justice Thomas said that in his annual financial disclosure statements over the last six years, the employment of his wife, Virginia Thomas, was "inadvertently omitted due to a misunderstanding of the filing instructions."…While justices are not required to say how much a spouse earns, Common Cause said its review of Internal Revenue Service filings showed that the Heritage Foundation paid Mrs. Thomas $686,589 from2003 to 2007. Thomas Cites Failure to Disclose Wife's Job, Eric Lichtblau; The New York Times; 24jan11; id. >imp:1.

152. Justice Thomas's excuse has two equally unflattering implications: The first is that he was making an admission against self-interest of his incompetence to understand the vastly more intricate Tax and Bankruptcy Codes, the complexities of multistate class action litigation on securities fraud and product liability, the clash between abstract notions and public policy considerations of constitutional law, etc. The second implication is that he was being disingenuous by pretending that for six years he just could not figure out the simple requirement of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978[145a] –adopted sufficiently long ago for its interpretation to have become indifference and willful blindness; fn:123b >CA:1721. Cf. jur:90§§b,c.

---

d) Cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/journalists/CBS/11-5-18DrRCordero-ProdCScholl.pdf re Former Arizona Superior and Appellate Court Judge and Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor and alleged corruption in Arizona courts. Cf. fn.249 on two-acts patterns.

[145] a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/5usc_Ethics_Gov_2011.pdf >"§102(e)(1)…each report required by section 102 shall also contain information…respecting the spouse…(A) The source of items of earned income earned by a spouse from any person which exceed $1,000 and the source and amount of any honoraria received by a spouse…" and b) Cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/

well established– underlying the financial disclosure form entry "III. Non-investment income (Reporting individual and spouse; see 17-24 of filing instructions)"[145b]. This would mean that he was perfectly aware that if he disclosed the source of his wife's income, he would reveal his conflict of interests in cases where the conservative causes that she represented were at stake, thereby giving motive for parties to ask for his recusal and becoming less effective as an inconspicuous advocate for Supreme Court decisions that would benefit his household financially.

153. In determining whether Justice Thomas acted 'knowingly and willfully to falsify information or fail to file or report any reportable information', as provided for under the Ethics Act, 5 U.S.C. §104[145a], it can prove extremely valuable to speak, even if on the condition of anonymity, with those who not only worked for him daily and closely, but who also engaged in research and writing precisely for the purpose of shaping or expressing his thinking on the application of the law to issues and cases: their law clerks(jur:106§c). They can shed light on whether they or other clerks ever helped Justice Thomas directly or indirectly fill out his annual financial disclosure report, discussed it with him or heard him discuss it; if so, whether he gave them the "appearance" (jur:92§d) of being overwhelmed by the difficulty of understanding the requirement of disclosing his wife's income or rather of being clever enough to realize the obvious: For years he and his peers justices and judges have gotten away with filing pro forma disclosure reports[213]. So he could perform a simple cost-benefit analysis that would lead him to this conclusion: He could keep omitting his wife's income in order to derive a benefit that would become his and his wife's permanently because even if he ever got caught, he would merely file amended disclosure reports and go on holding his justiceship for life, whose salary cannot be diminished(jur:54¶110), and experience no other adverse consequence for 'bad Behaviour', let alone the civil and criminal penalties provided for by the Act, such as a penalty of up to $50,000 and/or up to one year in prison.

154. The justices' law clerks, like those of the lower court judges, may have been observers or even enforcers of the wrongdoing that the justices asked them to carry out. They may have kept silent about it or done wrong as asked to in order not to incriminate themselves or risk not receiving a glowing letter of recommendation with which a justice can make "a clerkship [] a ticket to a law firm job that can include a $250,000 signing bonus"[146]. That money was not gifted as a recognition prize for the achievement of clerking for a justice; rather, it was paid as the purchase price of the inside information about the justices that the former clerk gained while working among them. The former clerk was expected to divulge to his or her new bosses everything learned about the old one and the other brethren and sisters.

155. Therefore, one can only dread the impact on the clerks' integrity of their first-hand knowledge, and subsequent fat check, of justices' or judges' modus operandi as 'the richest in judicial power doing unequally well for themselves and performing with poorest impartiality all the wrongs expected of them under the agreements and implications necessitated by their reciprocal cover-up dependent survival so help me and I'll help you'(cf. jur:75¶160). What kind of persons and professionals did they go on to become after their clerkship ended and they had to discharge the duties incumbent upon them according to their own oath as officers of the court and attorneys at law? Have the justices, as well as their law clerks, become inured to giving precedence to complicit collegiality over principled conduct (jur:62§g)? Have they incorporated into their own modus operandi knowing indifference, willful ignorance and blindness(jur:88§§a-c), and coordinated wrongdoing (jur:69¶144) as means of rendering their office liability-proof? Let's compare some early and current facts.

---

SCt_nominee/JSotomayor_03-07_reports.pdf

[146] A Sign of the Court's Polarization: Choice of Clerks: The Roberts Court, Adam Liptak, The New York Times; 6sep10; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/SCt_justices-clerks.pdf >Scj:2

c. The justices' historic, statutory, and institutional duty to state their peers' "error" of partiality and disregard for legality 156. Each of the justices is allotted to one or more of the circuits as circuit justice. This allotment traces its origin to the creation of the Federal Judiciary by the Judiciary Act of 1789[147]. It assigned to the justices appellate duties, from which supervisor functions derive.

> Sec. 4. …there shall be held annually in each district of said circuits, two courts, which shall be called Circuit Courts, and shall consist of any two justices of the Supreme Court, and the district judge of such districts, any two of whom shall constitute a quorum: Provided, That no district judge shall give a vote in any case of appeal or error from his own decision; but may assign the reasons of such his decision."

157. Holding circuit court in district after district within a circuit gave rise to the 'riding circuit' duty of the justices. They had to make right whatever they found wrong "in any case of appeal or error" from a district judge's decision. It stands to reason that if any of the justices or the judge that joined them found that the wrong in the case had been conduct by the appealed-from judge entailing partiality or disregard for the law or the Constitution, either of which may be motivated by a bribe, bias, prejudice, conflict of interests, ignorance, etc., they had to state and correct it.

158. To begin with, such conduct, then as well as now, contravenes the very premise of adopting laws and a constitution in order to render justice according to them. In government, not of men, but by the rule of law, justice is not administered when the judge rules in self-interest, on a whim, or arbitrarily. Such biased conduct denies a fundamental justification for adopting law, namely, to give public notice to the people of the standard of conduct expected of them under the applicable circumstances. However, litigants had no notice before the events originating the controversy at bar of the judge's personal standards or any other decisional basis that he may conjure up on the spur of the moment in the courtroom or when writing his decision; nor did litigants have any opportunity or legal duty to adjust their conduct to them. For a judge so to rule amounts to applying to litigants an ex post facto law of his own making and based on his own conception of right or wrong, good or bad, or just his own personal interest, thus unfairly surprising the litigants.

159. It constituted an "error" under the 1789 Judiciary Act for a judge to decide a case by giving in to his bias as did by definition disregarding the law or the Constitution; this is still the case. By so doing, the judge violated any common or statutory law prohibiting such conduct on the part of, in particular, judges or, in general, public officers, which judges were and are, such as the constitutional provision of Article II, Section 4[12b], making it impeachable for such officers to commit "Treason, Bribery, or other high Crimes and Misdemeanors". Justices 'riding circuit' had to correct it. In modern times, since 1948, the law at 28 U.S.C. §144[40] so clearly recognizes "Bias or prejudice of judge" to be inimical to the administration of justice that under that caption it provides for the automatic replacement of the judge so charged, not by a justice reviewing his decision,

---

147 http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Judiciary_Act_1789.pdf

but rather by a party before the case has even started:

> Section 144. Whenever a party to any proceeding in a district court makes and files a timely and sufficient affidavit that the judge before whom the matter is pending has a personal bias or prejudice either against him or in favor of any adverse party, such judge shall proceed no further therein, but another judge shall be assigned to hear such proceeding.…

160. Likewise, biased or law-disregarding conduct violated the oath of office that Section 8 of the Judiciary Act required justices and district judges to take:

> Sec. 8. …the justices of the Supreme Court, and the district judges, before they proceed to execute the duties of their respective offices, shall take the following oath or affirmation, to wit: "I, A. B., do solemnly swear or affirm, that I will administer justice without respect to persons, and do equal right to the poor and to the rich, and that I will faithfully and impartially discharge and perform all the duties incumbent on me as…, according to the best of my abilities and understanding, agreeably to the constitution, and laws of the United States. So help me God."

161. That oath is still essentially the same as the one that the current Judicial Code provides today at 28 U.S.C. §453[90], except that the subjective standard of the judges' "abilities and understanding" has been eliminated and replaced with the objective, more stringent standard "discharge and perform all the duties incumbent on me as…under the Constitution and laws of the United States. So help me God". From the start of the Federal Judiciary when justices 'riding circuit' realized that the appealed-from district judge had breached his oath, they had a duty to assign it as "error".

162. Today justices 'ride to the circuit or circuits' to which they are allotted, where they "shall be competent to sit as judges of the court", §43(b)[40]. They attend meetings of the circuit's judicial council[96] and are bound to learn, whether formally or informally, about its processing of petitions to review the chief circuit judge's dismissal of misconduct complaints against judges in the circuit. The justices also attend the circuit's judicial conference of all the judges in the circuit and invited members of the bar[148], where council reports on the handling of those complaints are discussed[23b]. Hence, the justices must be deemed to have constructive knowledge that the chiefs systematically dismissed 99.82% of complaints during the reported 1oct96-30sep08 12-year period(jur:24§§b-c) and that the councils have denied up to 100% of those petitions during the same reported time.[19] Indeed, the chief justice of the Supreme Court is the chairman of the publisher of those statistics, namely, the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts[10], which must report them annually to Congress under 28 U.S.C. §604(h)(2)[23a].

d. Circuit Justice Ginsburg and her peer justices and judges have reciprocally known and covered up their partiality to each other and disregard for legality, specifically those of Judge Sotomayor

163. Second Circuit Justice Ginsburg must know that the Circuit's judicial council denied each and every one of those petitions for review during that 96-08 12-year period, and that during part of that time Then-Judge Sotomayor was a member of it[20]. She bears institutional responsibility for judicial integrity(cf. jur:57¶119 >Canon 1), that is, for judges ruling free of the "error" of partiality and disregard for the laws and the Constitution. Her responsibility concerns the integrity of, particularly, the 2nd Circuit judges and, generally, the Federal Judiciary. Yet, she too, like her 2nd Circuit peers and the other circuit justices, failed to discharge that responsibility by not stating publicly, as 'justice seen to be done' requires[71], that they had shown discipline-exempting partiality toward their complained-against peers by systematically dismissing complaints against them and denying 100% of petitions to review such dismissals or condoning such actions, whereby they had not only disregarded the underlying Judicial Conduct and Disability Act[18a], but had also in fact abrogated it.

---

[148] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc331-335_Conf_Councils.pdf >§333

164. Circuit Justice Ginsburg knows that any witness, including a criminal defendant, caught in a lie on the stand impeaches his character for truthfulness and can reasonably be doubted as to any other statement that he makes, have his testimony disbelieved, and be found guilty and sentenced to death. Hence, she must be conclusively presumed to know that those judges that showed systematic and even 100% partiality toward their peers as well as law-abrogating disregard for the law impeached their impartiality and respect for the rule of law and could reasonably be expected to show partiality and disregard for the law in every other case. As a circuit justice and a taker of the judicial oath of office, she had a duty to administer equal justice to her influence rich peers and the influence poor complainants and litigants by publicly finding their decisions in "error" for partiality and disregard of the law. Instead, she covered up their "error", thereby breaching her oath and denying justice to the people, that is, to everybody already and in future affected directly or indirectly by the decisions of partiality-prone, law-disregarding judges.

165. Likewise, Justice Ginsburg failed to discharge her statutory duty under 18 U.S.C. 3057(a)[130a] to make a report to the U.S. attorney whenever she had, not hard evidence, but just 'a belief that bankruptcy fraud may have been committed' or that an investigation thereof must be had (jur:69¶145). She was bound to have that belief if she had proceeded as a reasonable person who had repeatedly received notice[149] together with supporting evidence of Judge Sotomayor's concealment of her own assets[107a,c] and cover up of those involved in the bankruptcy fraud scheme[60] in the DeLano case[109a], which was presided over by Judge Sotomayor[131]. The latter's peers[150] on the court[110; 207-209] and the judicial council[151], other justices, including Chief Justices Rehnquist[152] and Roberts[153], and J. Breyer[154], the Supreme Court[109b,c; 155], and all the 27 top

---

149 a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero-JGinsburg_injunction_30jun8.pdf;

b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero-Justices&judges.pdf

c) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero-CirJus_JudCoun_11feb4.pdf 150 a) fn. 105(b)(i)(ii),(iv);

b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/3DrCordero_v_reappoint_JNinfo.pdf 151 a) fn.149a,b;

b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero-JudCoun_local_rule5.1h.pdf 152 a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_to_Jud_Conference_18nov4.pdf;

b) On C.J. Rehnquist's character and honesty see http://www.nytimes.com/2012/03/20/us/new-look-at-an-old-memo-casts-more-doubt-on-rehnquist.html, Adam Liptak, NYT, 19mar12; also at c) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Legal_news.pdf >Ln:1.

153 a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/JConf_systematic_dismissals.pdf

b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero_2v_JNinfo_6jun8.pdf >N:6, 28

154 http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero-Justice_SBreyer_Com_26nov4.pdf

judges on the Judicial Conference[156], had similarly received such notice repeatedly[157].

166. Each and all of them had a duty to expose as "error" J. Sotomayor's partiality toward herself and the bankruptcy fraud schemers; and her disregard for the law and her oath. They failed to do so, allowing instead their own 100% bias toward their peers and disregard for legality to determine their conduct. They all intended the reasonable consequences of their act of showing knowing[23b] indifference(jur:90§b) to the wrongdoing that their peers were complained about: They aided and abetted them in doing wrong ever more egregiously and in ever wider areas of their conduct, whereby they facilitated their turning wrongdoing into the Federal Judiciary's institutionalized modus operandi. They enabled their making a federal justiceship a safe haven for Wrongdoing Judges Above the Law.

5. The investigation of what the President and his aides knew about Then-Judge Sotomayor's wrongdoing and when they knew it

167. President Obama too disregarded DeLano despite the evidence therein incriminating his nominee in the cover-up of the bankruptcy fraud scheme and the schemers. His vetting of Judge Sotomayor through his staff and the FBI must have found that case, for it was in the CA2's public record. He too had a duty: to vet justiceship candidates and choose among them, not in his interest, but rather for their fitness. He was not entitled to have his staff and the FBI vet them only for him to hush up[158] their finding[107a] of Judge Sotomayor's concealment of her assets[107c] and of those trafficked through the fraud scheme. Had he acted responsibly in the public interest, he would have realized that she had withheld(jur:69§b)[132] DeLano[109] to prevent her cover on the scheme from blowing up and scuttling her nomination. Thereupon he had a duty to stop vouching for her integrity and either withdraw her nomination or disclose the incriminating information to enable others to make informed decisions, whether it was senators to confirm her or the public to request her confirmation.

168. Instead, the President buried the incriminating information in DeLano and in his staff's and FBI's vetting report under lies about her integrity in order to curry favor with Latino and feminists voters, who wanted a Latina and another woman on the Supreme Court, and whose support he needed to cajole in preparation for another 'confirmation' far more important to him: 155 a) fn.109b,c; 114c;

---

b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_to_Justices_4aug8.pdf 156 a) fn.91a; b) fn.153 >N:6, 41, 92; c) fn.285

d) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_2complaints_JConf.pdf

157 http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_to_Justices_4aug8.pdf

158 a) Rep. Darrell Issa says Obama administration is 'one of most corrupt', Philip Rucker, The Washington Post, 2jan11; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/WPost_RepDIssa_2jan11.pdf; b) Complaint about judicial wrongdoing and supporting evidence filed with Rep. Darrell E. Issa, Chairman, and Rep. Elijah Cummings, Ranking Member, H.R. Committee on Oversight and Government Reform; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/HR/11-4-7DrRCordero-HR_COGR.pdf

the passage by Congress of his signature piece of legislation, Obamacare. In his self-interest, President Obama fraudulently got a dishonest nominee confirmed and misled the Senate and We the People. Thereby he saddled this country with a dishonest justice for her next 20 or 30 years on the Supreme Court. From there she will contribute to making the law of the land, which she must continue to break through her continued concealment of assets, whose sudden appearance on her financial reports would incriminate her. Therefore, the offense of the President against the country is a continuing one as is J. Sotomayor's.

169. A.G. Eric H. Holder, Jr., also had a duty. By taking the oath of office, he bound himself to uphold the Constitution and enforce the laws thereunder in the interest of, not the President, but rather the people[159a]. Similarly duty-bound were the other federal[159b-f] and state officers[160] who vetted Judge Sotomayor or received complaints about her, the schemers[161], and their condoners. But they would not even ask those complained-against to answer the complaint or request any evidence-corroborating document[160d].

6. The senators received documents allowing them to suspect Then-Judge Sotomayor of concealment of assets and alerting them to her withholding of DeLano, but did nothing about it

170. The same investigation should include all those Democrats and Republicans on the Senate Judiciary Committee[162] and the Senate leadership[132b] that requested and received financial

---

[159] a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/DoJ-FBI/DrRCordero-DoJ_FBI_08-09.pdf. The latest complaint to DoJ has the statement of facts about the fraud scheme; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/DoJ-FBI/11-3-10DrRCordero-AUSALGerson.pdf >GC:14§III.

b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero-Tr_Schmitt_Martini_Adams.pdf;

c) Cf.http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero-Tr_Schmitt_Schwartz.pdf;

d) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero-AG_JAshcroft_24mar3.pdf;

e) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/SCt_nominee/Senate/DrRCordero-SenCSchumer.pdf;

f) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/midterm_e/DrRCordero-SenKGillibrand_16oct10.pdf [160] a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/DANY/9DrRCordero-NYCDACVance_11nov10.pdf;

b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/midterm_e/DrRCordero-AGACuomo_22oct10.pdf;

c) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/AG/1DrRCordero-AGESchneiderman_4feb11.pdf = fn.111 >HR:7, 251;

d) id. >HR:233§E

[161] a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero-Disciplinary_Com.pdf;

b) which invokes supervisory responsibilities under state law, contained in the Rules of Professional Conduct, 22 NYCRR Part 1200 [NY Codification of Codes, Rules, and Regulations], Rule 5.1(b); http://www.courts.state.ny.us/rules/jointappellate/index.shtml; with enhanced bookmarks to facilitate navigation also at http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/NYS_Rules_Prof_Conduct.pdf.

[162] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/SCt_nominee/Senate/DrRCordero-list_Sen_mem_28

documents[107b] from Judge Sotomayor but disregarded their glaring inconsistencies[107c] and the suspicion of her concealment of assets raised by The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a]. They continued to do so even after they were alerted repeatedly by hardcopy, fax, email, and telephone both to such inconsistencies through the analysis[132] of those documents and to the evidence of her personal and coordinated wrongdoing. The senators were so determined neither to confront Judge Sotomayor publicly during the hearings[163a] with her own financial documents and their inconsistencies nor to allow the public to do so on their own that they refused to post either that analysis or the letters sent to them and the Committee[132] on the Committee website[163b] where they were posting the letters of citizens sent to them on the issue of the Judge's confirmation. By so doing, they engaged in unequally treating a member of the public and depriving all of the public of evidence that such public needed to make an informed decision on the confirmation of Judge Sotomayor.

171. The investigation should also probe into the senators' motive for allowing Judge Sotomayor to withhold DeLano from them even though they were alerted also to this withholding[132b-f] and were furnished with a copy of the CA2 summary order dismissing DeLano and bearing her name as presiding judge[id.]. By allowing her to withhold DeLano, they engaged in wishful blindness that knowingly allowed her to commit perjury, for she swore under oath that she had submitted to the Senate Judiciary Committee all the documents that it had requested[132].

172. The investigation must search for partisan and personal interests so strong that even the Republican senators protected them by pulling their punches rather than pursuing their purported opposition to Judge Sotomayor's confirmation through her impeachment with her own documents. Those interests include the connivance between Congress and the Judiciary in which both Republicans and Democrats have participated for decades by allowing the Federal Judiciary to dismiss 99.82% of complaints against wrongdoing judges[19b], thereby making a mockery of an Act of Congress[18a] and depriving people of the protection that it intended to provide them against such judges[164]. For the sake of those interests, they all contributed to saddling our country with a dishonest justice, who for her next 20 or 30 years on the bench will be shaping the law of the land for everybody but her and her peers, all of whom will be mindful of who nominated and confirmed them.

173. For instance, Senator Charles Schumer knew[159e] but disregarded the evidence of Judge Sotomayor's wrongdoing submitted to him. He recommended her to the President, vouched for her integrity, and was rewarded with the prominent mission of shepherding the President's nominee through the Senate as his point man.[165] Senator Kirsten Gillibrand showed the same disregard[159f]. Although she, as Sen. Schumer's protégé, knew the incriminating evidence or

---

aug9.pdf

163 a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Senate_hearing_JSotomayor_09.pdf;
b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Sen_postings_JSotomayor_21sep11.pdf

164 a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/Champion_of_Justice.pdf b) >1:§A

165 "Charles E. Schumer, New York Democrat. Leading the confirmation effort in the Senate as the White House-designated "sherpa" to guide Judge Sotomayor on Capitol Hill. Urged the president to nominate a Hispanic to the Supreme Court in a letter, recommending Judge Sotomayor and Interior Secretary Ken Salazar." Key Players in the Sotomayor Nomination, The New York Times, 19jun9; http://www.nytimes.com/interactive/2009/06/19/us/politics/0619-scotus.html and http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/key_players_JSotomayor.pdf

should have known it had she reviewed with due care the documents publicly filed by the Judge with the Committee[107b], she recommended her to the President, introduced her to the Senate Judiciary Committee, and endorsed her to New Yorkers and the rest of the American public[166]. For their dereliction of duty and betrayal of public trust by lying to the public about the Judge's integrity so as to enhance their standing with voters, the President, reelection donors, and within their party[128a], they too should be investigated.

[166] Sen. Gillibrand states on her website, http://gillibrand.senate.gov/, "Throughout her time in Congress, Senator Gillibrand has been committed to open and honest government. When she was first elected, she pledged to bring unprecedented transparency and access to her post" (emphasis added); http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Maragos_v_Gillibrand.pdf >ms:21

C. The DeLano-Judge Sotomayor case as the basis of a journalistic story national in scope and impact but rendered manageable as an investigative project by key focusing notions

1. Neither Congress nor the Executive just as neither law professors and schools nor the media investigate the Federal Judiciary

174. The axiom of power states that he who has power will use it and also abuse it unless others enforce upon him limits on his use and penalties for his abuse of it; but they will not dare do so if they fear either retaliation or self-incrimination due to complicity or connivance through which they have advanced their self-interest by resorting to agreement with the abuser, knowing indifference, willful blindness, or improper conduct.

175. The evidence shows that neither the Executive Branch nor Congress dare exert constitutional checks and balances on the Judiciary.(jur:22¶31) They have failed to both investigate complaints[167] about wrongdoing judges and exercise oversight of all judges to ensure their fair and impartial application of the law to others as well as themselves and their abidance by the high standards of honesty and integrity applicable to them[123a], in particular, and to all public officers, in general. Politicians have been the enablers of wrongdoing federal judges by implicitly or explicitly coordinating their own wrongdoing with theirs under the unprincipled, self-interested, and corruptive policy of live and let live.

176. Law professors too have abstained from exposing judicial wrongdoing. To meet the 'publish or die' requirement of their schools they could have directed their scholarship toward the inside of the legal profession and even their own particular experience. Indeed, many clerked for judges. But that is the problem, for while clerking they either aided the judges in their wrongdoing or kept quiet so as not to risk a glowing recommendation from the judge that would open the doors to a subsequent plush job and sign-up bonus.[168] Their exposing them now could lead to self-incrimination.

177. In addition, most law professors were and to some extent continue to be practicing lawyers. Attorneys are insiders of the legal and bankruptcy systems.[169] As such, they have the opportunity

---

[167] Cf. a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero_FBI_USAtt_may-dec4.pdf;
b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/DoJ-FBI/9-3-30DrRCordero-DoJ.pdf;
c) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero-Sen&HR_Jud_Com_11jun4.pdf;
d) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero-SenJudCom_3july9.pdf;
e) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero-Senate_3aug9.pdf
f) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/HR/11-4-25DrRCordero-HR_ComJud.pdf;
g) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/HR/11-4-7DrRCordero-HR_COGR.pdf

[168] fn.30d >yre:43

[169] In addition to judges and bankruptcy trustees, id. §704, the insiders of the legal and bankruptcy systems include "attorneys, accountants, appraisers, auctioneers, or other professional persons", such as bankers, testamentary executors and administrators, guardians of the elderly, the incompetent, and infants, mortgage holders, and others that work closely with and for them; collectively they are generally referred to as bankruptcy professionals. Together with clerks of judges and clerks of court as well as lawyers who represent debtors or creditors and lawyers in general they are referred to herein as insiders of the legal and to engage in wrongdoing as well as the most enticing motive to do so: riskless enormous benefits. The benefits may be material, for federal judges rule on $100s of billions every year[31]; or they may be social, that is, avoidance of being shunned as treacherous pariahs for abiding by their duty to file complaints against wrongdoing colleagues or judges[170], and gain of the valuable interpersonal relations of camaraderie, complicit confidentiality, and reciprocal support from grateful colleagues whose wrongdoing they have covered up as accomplices before or after the fact(jur:88§a), been knowingly indifferent to(jur:90§b), willfully blind to(jur:91§c), or handled with impropriety(jur:92§d). If they keep quiet as insiders do, they too, as law professors and lawyers, can receive the benefit of the extension to them[171] by unaccountable judges of their impunity(jur:21§1). If they are not yet tenured professors or are seeking a deanship, they can even ask for a formal or informal word to be put in on their behalf by judges, whose unaccountable power has many ways of expressing gratitude and resentment, which explains why judges are sought after as members of academic boards.

178. Hence, law schools will not encourage research on wrongdoing judges either and may even prohibit it. They may fear judges closing ranks to boycott their moot court and fund raising activities, refuse clerkships to their students and service on their boards, and retaliate against them in court.

179. By protecting federal judges from exposure, also law professors and schools have enabled them to continue coordinating their wrongdoing among themselves and with other insiders of the legal and bankruptcy systems[169] ever more closely and routinely. As a result, they have failed to safeguard a legal system that cannot serve the people if those who administer it abuse their power unaccountably, holding themselves above the law as they pursue the motive of money and other unlawful, unethical or improper benefits while denying everybody else under them the fair and impartial application of the law. They have contributed to making it possible for judges to turn wrongdoing into the Federal Judiciary's institutionalized modus operandi.

180. Yet, law professors and schools stand as educators of a people that committed themselves to "justice for all" through the rule of law. Had they remained true to their calling, they would have been the foremost advocates of judicial accountability and discipline reform. If only they had proceeded in accordance with the wisdom of Dr. Martin Luther King's principle: "Injustice [not just] anywhere [but from the Supreme Court down] is a threat to justice everywhere [in the Judiciary and all its courts]".

181. The media too, as a matter of fact, have failed to expose judicial wrongdoing, particularly of federal judges.(jur:4¶9) The media have abdicated their professional duty to keep the people informed so that they may be in a position to assert their right to hold "government of the people, by the people, for the people"[172] accountable to them and thereby defend the very nature and bankruptcy systems.(cf. jur:9)

---

[170] a) E.g., New York State Unified Court System, Part 1200 -Rules of Professional Conduct, Rule 8.1(a) on Reporting Professional Misconduct; 22 NYCRR Part 1200; http://www.courts.state.ny.us/rules/jointappellate/index.shtml; with enhanced bookmarks to facilitate navigation at http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/NYS_Rules_Prof_Conduct.pdf; b) 18 U.S.C. §3057(a) on Requesting Bankruptcy Investigations; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/18usc3057.pdf

[171] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/NYS_att_complaints/1DrRCordero-Disciplinary_Com.pdf

[172] Abraham Lincoln's Address on the Battlefield at Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, 19nov1883;

practice of a democratic republic. Instead, they have sought in self-interest to remain in good terms with life-tenured federal judges and avoided antagonizing them with investigations that could give rise to their retaliatory reaction. Nevertheless, the media know from experience that those same judges are the most vulnerable public officers to the most easily demonstrable journalistic charge, "the appearance of impropriety", let alone wrongdoing. (jur:92§d) Why did The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico drop without any explanation their investigation into the concealment of assets that they themselves suspected[107a] Then-Judge Sotomayor of having engaged in?[173] Was pressure exerted on them? Was there a quid pro quo?

2. A novel strategy: to investigate a story that can provoke in the national public action-stirring outrage at judicial wrongdoing and thus set in motion reformative change in the Federal Judiciary

182. Those duty-bound to hold public servants, including judges, accountable have failed to do so. Now the task defaults to those for whose benefit that duty is supposed to be performed. In a democratic society governed by the rule of law, they have the right to hold all public servants accountable: the people. Foremost among them are the entities that have made it their mission to advocate in the public interest 'equal justice under law for all'. They must expose those who frustrate that mission, namely, federal judges that by exempting themselves from any discipline, and being exempted by politicians from compliance with the legal and ethical requirements of their office and being spared by the media from exposure of their failure to comply, have become Judges Unequally Above the Law who dispense what is under them to all: justice trampled underfoot.

183. For that exposure to take place, public interest entities need the investigative skills of principled, competent, and ambitious journalists. Since the latter may not be acting as representatives of a media organization, they need to enhance their resources with the meticulous work of, and multimedia technology available to, journalism students. The latter are held to rigorous compliance with the highest standards of professional quality and integrity by graduate schools of journalism, which center their pedagogical method on learning by doing and apply it by either assigning journalistic projects to their students or approving those proposed to them.

184. These public interest entities, journalists, and journalism students can advance toward their professional and academic goals and rewards(jur:5¶¶13-14) by jointly pursuing a novel strategy in a new field of activity: PIONEERING JUDICIAL UNACCOUNTABILITY REPORTING IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST. This involves the programmatic investigation of all judges individually and of their respective judiciary as an institution. The purpose is to determine whether they have pursued a

---

http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/ALincoln_Gettysburg_Address.pdf

[173] Cf. a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero-NYTPubASulzberger_jun-jul9.pdf
b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero-WP_DGraham_16jun9.pdf
c) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero-Politico_12jun9.pdf;
d) cf. fn.144d;
e) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero-NewsHour_Jim_Lehrer.pdf
f) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero-Sen&HR_Jud_Com_11jun4.pdf
>p72

wrongful motive, such as money in controversy or offered to buy a decision or influence one, or any other wrongful material, professional, or social benefit; and whether to advance such pursuit they have taken advantage of the opportunity of cases before them to abuse their means of unaccountable judicial power to make wrongful decisions in the interest of themselves and of insiders of their judiciary, such as those of the legal and bankruptcy systems. Judicial unaccountability reporting can render a valuable public service. It can provide the public with information about its judicial public servants that it needs to protect its own fundamental interest in "Equal Justice Under Law". The latter must be administered by servants that are honest and perform their job according to their foundational instruction: to ensure due process of law so that judicial decisions follow from the application of the rule of law.

185. Information showing how that interest in "Equal Justice Under Law" has been injured by wrong-doing judges can provoke action-stirring outrage. Generally, this is the type of outrage that causes the man in the street, voters too, to take action by demanding that politicians address a problem of vital public concern under pain of being voted out of office or not being voted in. In this context, such outrage can cause the public to demand that politicians officially investigate the federal and state judiciaries and legislate effective judicial accountability and discipline reform. That demand is likely to be successful. The latest opinion poll confirms the trend toward an ever-diminishing public approval rating of the Supreme Court. The growing unfavorable attitude toward it predisposes the public to believe unfavorable news about the justices, such as their condonation of, even their participation in, wrongdoing.

> Just 44 percent of Americans approve of the job the Supreme Court is doing and three-quarters say the justices' decisions are sometimes influenced by their personal or political views, according to a poll conducted by The New York Times and CBS News. Those findings are a fresh indication that the court's standing with the public has slipped significantly in the past quarter-century, according to surveys conducted by several polling organizations. Approval was as high as 66 percent in the late 1980s, and by 2000 approached 50 percent. Adam Liptak and Allison Kopicki, The New York Times; 7jun12; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Legal_news.pdf >Ln:4.

186. In the same vein, the public disapproves in ever-growing numbers Congress[174] and the President for their incapacity to do their jobs. The failure of the congressional Super Committee to reach a deficit reduction agreement has only depressed even further the low esteem in which Congress and the President are held. The public would indignantly excoriate them if it learned that, in the self-interest of being in the good graces of powerful, life-tenured judges who could frustrate their political agendas and retaliate against them if they ever appeared before the judges in court, Congress and the President also failed in their duty to exercise constitutional checks and balances on the Judiciary to hold its judicial officers accountable, while showing blamable indifference to the harm that the unaccountable officers, the judges, inflicted on people's property, liberty, and lives.

187. The public pressure thus generated will only be increased by political challengers who will seize

---

[174] a) Congressional approval is up. But barely; Ed O'Keefe; Inside the 112th Congress, The Washington Post, 12jun12; http://www.washingtonpost.com/blogs/2chambers/post/congressional-approval-is-up-but-barely/2012/06/11/gJQApSiZVV_blog.html;
b) Gallup's trend line on congressional approval in Why 'Fast and Furious' is a political loser; Chris Cillizza and Aaron Blake; The Fix, The Washington Post, 26jun12; http://www.washingtonpost.com/blogs/the-fix/post/why-fast-and-furious-is-a-political-loser/2012/06/25/gJQA80p42V_blog.html?wpisrc=nl_pmfix the opportunity to attack incumbents for their individual or party responsibility for enabling judges' wrongdoing. Members of Congress and the President, fearing for their political survival, are likely to give in and open judicial wrongdoing investigations. The authorities, such as congressional committees holding public hearings, DoJ-FBI, and their state counterparts, wielding their subpoena, contempt, and penal powers, unavailable to investigative journalists, can make findings yet more outrageous. As a result, the people will be stirred to demand and make it politically impossible for politicians not to undertake, a legislative process that brings about a far-reaching judicial accountability and discipline reform. It must contain a transparent mechanism beyond the reach of conniving politicians and judges to ensure in practice that judges are investigated for wrongdoing, wrongdoers are punished, and further wrongdoing is prevented as much as possible. Such mechanism can be an independent government agency, namely, a citizen board of judicial accountability and discipline.

188. The current campaign for the 2012 presidential election can only heighten the likelihood that outrage at judicial wrongdoing will stir the public into such action. It has started to mobilize the public into passing judgment on politicians to decide whether to vote them in or out of office and how to vote in the primaries and the general election. By the same token, the 2012 campaign has made politicians more sensitive to the demands of the public. Hence, this is a most propitious time for public interest entities, journalists, and journalism students to investigate coordinated judicial wrongdoing and make a public presentation of their findings that can provoke such action-stirring outrage…just as a fleeting occasion is now available to a presidential candidate with the courage to criticize federal judges to bring to national attention the objective evidence of their institutionalized wrongdoing.

3. The DeLano-J. Sotomayor case as the basis of a journalistic story revealing individual and coordinated judicial wrongdoing that can provoke action-stirring outrage in the public

189. Imagine the impact on a national audience of a journalistic story of concealment of assets to evade taxes, a judge-run bankruptcy fraud scheme, and their cover-up that involves President Barak Obama; his first justiceship nominee, Then-Judge Sonia Sotomayor of the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit (CA2) and Now-Justice Sotomayor (J. Sotomayor); the Federal Judiciary, which enables its judges' wrongdoing and engages in it itself; and Congress, which has covered for those judges before and after the Senate confirmed their nominations. This story will provoke in the public action-stirring outrage.(jur:83¶184)

190. The journalistic investigation of the DeLano-J. Sotomayor story can expose tax evading concealment of personal assets and a bankruptcy fraud scheme involving judges from the bottom of the Federal Judiciary hierarchy all the way to the Supreme Court.[109] It shows how judges disregard the law in substantive, procedural, administrative, and disciplinary matters, whether by doing wrong themselves or by doing nothing to stop their peers' wrongdoing. It illustrates how judges dash the reasonable expectation of parties that they will see justice done according to law[71] by dismissing a case not only with a "perfunctory"[68] summary order, but also by merely citing cases that objectively have nothing to do with the facts or the law of the case at bar[121c]. Thus, that story concerns the vital interest of every person and entity in this country in having, not just a 'day in court', but also a true, meaningful one so that once there they are afforded due process of law.

The satisfaction of that interest presupposes that of its underlying requisite, to wit, having honest[175] judges that perform their duty to apply the law. The judges' character and law abidance determine their decisions, which through their in-case as well as their precedential value affect profoundly every aspect of the lives of the litigants in court and everybody else outside it.

191. The DeLano-J. Sotomayor story also reveals how judges engage in wrongdoing individually as well as collectively through the more insidious and pernicious coordination with each other and with insiders of the legal and bankruptcy systems[169], and how they do it so routinely as to have made of wrongdoing their institutionalized modus operandi. It also reveals coordination among judges and politicians to lie to the American people about their official actions so as to advance their personal, partisan, and class interests. To all of those officers applies a principle of torts that springs from common sense: A person is deemed to intend the reasonable consequences of his actions. They all have intentionally harmed the people by enabling judges to wield unaccountable, in effect unreviewable, and thereby riskless, irresistible, and inevitably corruptive power over people's property, liberty, and lives. Their wrongdoing and the harm that they have inflicted will outrage the people. In their defense, the people will take action to demand that the judges be officially investigated and that judicial accountability and discipline reform be undertaken.

4. Judicial unaccountability reporting rendered promising and cost-effective by its reasonable goal: to show to the public individual and coordinated wrongdoing of judges rather than prove in court to the judges' peers judicial corruption

192. The DeLano-J. Sotomayor story is at its core a bundle of related legal cases litigated all the way from U.S. bankruptcy, district, and circuit courts to the Supreme Court[109b;114c]; taken through all the competent administrative bodies of the Federal Judiciary[124;283a]; and supported by broad and thorough research[ii]. Hence, it rests on solid evidence already available.(jur: 21§§A-0) It can also be further investigated to get to the bottom of it all and, more importantly, to get to the very top: institutionalized coordinated wrongdoing participated in, and tolerated, by the President and the Supreme Court justices. The investigation can be conducted in a cost-effective, narrowly focused fashion(jur:97§1) to be presented as an engaging and compelling journalistic story to the public at large.

193. This proposal aims to have the further investigation of the DeLano-J. Sotomayor story and the reporting of its findings conducted as a team effort by: a) a politician courageous enough to take on both his or her party and judges on the issue of judicial unaccountability and consequent individual and coordinate wrongdoing; b) public interest entities, such as United Republic, Get Money Out!, and Rootstrikers[176]; c) investigative organizations, such as Think Progress[177], the

---

[175] On public officers' implied promise of honest service, see 18 U.S.C. §§ 1341, 1343, and 1346.

[176] a) http://www.unitedrepublic.org/; b) http://www.getmoneyout.com/contact; c) http://www.rootstrikers.org/; d) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/teams/UR/11-12-15DrRCordero-CEOJSilver.pdf; e) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/teams/GMO/11-12-17DrRCordero-HostDRatigan.pdf

[177] a) http://thinkprogress.org/about/; b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/teams/TP/11-12-5DrRCordero-FShakir.pdf

Center for Public Integrity[178], and ProPublica[179]; and d) journalism schools, which as part of their learning-by-doing pedagogy can have their students join those entities' investigation to work under their supervision as an academic project for credit, while the schools and students enhance the entities' manpower and multimedia resources[cf.256e]. Among these schools are the Investigative Reporting Workshop of the School of Communication of American University[180] in Washington, D.C.; and in New York City Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism[181], City University of New York Graduate School of Journalism[182], and New York University Journalism Institute[183]. All of them can work together on the strength of both their professed commitment to the theoretical principle that only an informed citizenry can preserve and play their proper role in a healthy democracy; and their realization of the wisdom in the pragmatic consideration "the enemy of my enemy [including those who conceal information from me] is my friend".

194. Investigating the DeLano-J. Sotomayor story is an appropriate goal of any media outlet that advocates "progressive ideas and policies"[177a], as Think Progress does. It is particularly so for those that, like United Republic, are committed to providing information to the citizens in order to empower them[176a]; and that, like Alliance for Justice, are thereby "[d]irecting public attention and our own advocacy resources to important issues that affect American life and justice for all"[184a-b], and have

---

178 a) http://www.iwatchnews.org/about; b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/teams/CPI/11-11-14DrRCordero-ExecDirBBuzenberg.pdf 179 a) http://www.propublica.org/about/;

b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/teams/PP/11-11-7DrRCordero-EdinCPSteiger.pdf 180 a) http://www.american.edu/media/news/20100309_AU_Fills_Investigative_Journalism_Gap.cfm; b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/teams/AU/11-11-1DrRCordero-ProfCLewis.pdf

181 a) http://www.journalism.columbia.edu/page/88/88; b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/teams/GSJ/11-10-3DrRCordero-ProfSCoronel.pdf; c) Cf. fn.256e-f 182 a) http://www.journalism.cuny.edu/faculty/robbins-tom-investigative-journalist-in-residence-urban-investigative/; b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/teams/CUNY/11-11-8DrRCordero-ProfTRobbins.pdf 183 a) http://journalism.nyu.edu/about-us/; b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/teams/NYU/11-10-24DrRCordero-DirPKlass.pdf 184 a) http://www.afj.org/about-afj/afj-vision-statement.html;

b) Just as the other "progressive" entities, Alliance for Justice must decide whether its "steadfast [commitment to] protecting and expanding pathways to justice for all…" and "the selection of judges who respect…core constitutional values of justice and equality…and the rights of citizens", id., is more important than the Hispanic ethnicity of Then-Judge Sotomayor [cf.69] that it made the central point of its support for her confirmation as a justice. At stake is whether Alliance possesses the integrity to acknowl-edge that on the basis of old and new evidence, such as that presented here, it must hold Now-Justice Sotomayor accountable for her concealment of assets(jur:65§1) and her cover up of the bankruptcy fraud scheme(jur:68§a). The decision is between being a Democratic Political Action Committee disguised as a public interest entity, with as little attachment to ethical values as the Supreme Court Justices Alito, Scalia, and Thomas that it chastised in its documentary "A Question of Integrity" for being Republican fundraisers disguised in robes, and being an honest advocate of "justice for all"

recognized the need "to cultivate the next generation of progressive activists"[184c] and "expose students to careers in public interest advocacy"[184d] through a "Student Action Campaign, which provides year-round opportunities for students to engage in advocacy to ensure a fair and independent judiciary."[184e]

195. A courageous politician, public interest entities, journalists, and journalism schools can jointly investigate the DeLano-J. Sotomayor story as a political, professional, journalistic, and academic project to perform their mission and duty: to keep the public informed so that it may know about the conduct of public officers, its servants, including judges, and hold them accountable for the public trust vested in them. They can do so effectively within the scope of their respective endeavor because they will not try to demonstrate that the officers engaged in corruption. This is the term usually employed by public interest entities and the media when exposing politicians and by politicians themselves when attacking each other. It is also the term most frequently used by litigants and their groups and supporters who complain against judges. However, corruption is most difficult to prove because it constitutes a crime and, consequently, requires meeting the highest legal standard of proof, that is, 'beyond a reasonable doubt'.

196. Rather, the goal of the investigators will be to apply professional standards of journalism to find facts and circumstances showing that public officers, specially judges, engaged in individual as well as coordinated wrongdoing. The choice of the notion of 'wrongdoing' is of fundamental importance because it is broader, easier to apply; therefore, it lowers the bar to the investigators' successful search for journalistic necessary and sufficient facts and circumstances to develop a story. The investigators will report them together with a reporter, that is, one who commands greater attention of both the rest of the media -particularly outlets with national reach, like the national networks and print/digital newspapers, such as The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico- and a national audience, which is what a politician of national stature can do: communicate more broadly and convincingly. If the journalistic investigators and reporter, collectively referred to hereinafter as the investigative reporters, succeed in the arduous and no doubt risky pursuit of finding and exposing the facts and circumstances of judicial unaccountability, they can receive the recognition and gratitude owed to, and attain the historic, iconic status(jur:5¶¶13-0) as, the people's Champions of Justice[164a].

a. Wrongdoing and coordinated wrongdoing: broader notions easier to apply to judges and others

197. Wrongdoing is a broader notion than corruption because it includes also forms of conduct that are civilly liable, unethical, abusive of discretionary judgment, or that entail impropriety. Its field of applicability extends to what judges do in their official capacity, in non-judicial public life as citizens, and even in their private lives. Hence, wrongdoing is an essential notion for cleansing federal and state judiciaries of wrongdoing judges through media and public pressure rather than lawsuits in court, where judges watch out for their own. However, wrongdoing could be thought of as being limited to what an individual does alone.

---

and its foundation, fairness and impartiality, one that will not waver from or conceal the truth on political considerations and will hold all judges and politicians to the same high standards of legal and ethical conduct.

c) http://www.afj.org/about-afj/; d) http://www.afj.org/resources-and-publications/films-and-programs/; e) http: //www.afj.org/about-afj/the-first-monday-campaign.html

198. By contrast, the notion of coordinated wrongdoing is much broader. Besides including the idea of two or more persons working together to do wrong, it embraces also the idea of enabling others to do wrong. Therefore, it is broad enough to include what judges:

a. actively do wrong as:

1) principals with others, that is, personally doing wrong in explicit (handshake) or implicit (wink and a nod) agreement with others or becoming

2) accomplices through enablement

a) before the fact by creating conditions that are or are not wrong in themselves (providing the password to the judges' confidential website section v. intentionally leaving confidential documents on the desktop within view of the 'cleaning' crew) but that facilitate the wrong done by others, or

b) after the fact by covering up their wrongs (dismissing complaints against judges or denying discovery of incriminating documents); and

b. passively enabling the continuation or undetection of wrongdoing by adopting the 'three monkeys' conduct' of seeing nothing, hearing nothing, and saying nothing, either because the judge

1) knows about the wrongdoing of others but is so indifferent to it that she says nothing, e.g., she fails to make a report to the competent authority despite her statutory duty to do so[130] or her institutional duty as a member of the judiciary to safeguard the integrity of the court and of the administration of justice; or she actually

2) ignores it because she has willfully closed her eyes and plugged her ears, for instance, by failing to open an investigation in order not to have her knowledge pressure her into saying something, thus preserving the excuse of 'plausible deniability', that is, 'I just didn't know so I didn't have anything to say or do'.

c. Third-party beneficiaries of the judge's three monkeys' conduct are able to continue doing wrong or keep their wrongdoing undetected, regardless of whether they

1) ignore that the judge engaged in knowing indifference or willful ignorance with respect to the third-parties' wrongdoing or

2) know because they saw the judge look on and walk away (onlooking passerby) or because they realize that if the judge had only looked into the matter with due diligence[94], she would have found out about the third-parties' wrongdoing but she was too negligent or incompetent to do so (skylooking passerby).

199. It follows that the coordination among the wrongdoers can be:

a. explicit, such as through round-table agreement among primary and accessory wrongdoers; or

b. implicit among them but

1) pattern inferable from a series of acts so consistent in timing, participants, amount, result, etc., as to reveal a pattern of intentional conduct that negates the unreasonable explanation of an improbable chain of coincidences;

2) statistically inferable from the randomness of acts with equal chances of resulting in opposite (head/tail coin tossing) or cross-cancelling (over charge/under charge) results, e.g. all the mistakes of the clerks of court benefit the insiders and harm the outsiders rather than just 50% of mistakes do so and the other 50% the inverse.

200. A judge that knows or through due diligence could have found out that a wrong had been done but chose to do nothing becomes an accessory after the fact. Moreover, by giving implicit or explicit reassurance that he will not denounce wrongdoing to the authorities or expose it to the public, he eliminates the deterrence of adverse consequences to the commission of more wrongdoing, thereby becoming an accessory before the fact.

201. The modes of coordination include, in addition to round table coordination, a hub and spoke system organized by a central wrongdoer that imparts instructions to several others with the result that the wheel of combined effort turns in a given direction divergent from the normal one. For example, a judge may tell individually to each of some clerks of court and law clerks what to do when a person comes to court expressing the intention to file for bankruptcy and they find out that the person is unrepresented, has a home in a certain geographic area, and its estimated value is above a certain figure. The clerks may follow her instructions, regardless of whether they realize who ends up buying the foreclosed home at a private auction for under a certain amount (hub and spoke with rim because the clerks realize the connection between the intervening acts necessary to produce the ultimate result; or hub and spoke without rim when they do not know the ultimate result or do not realize how improbable such result is but for somebody's pulling strings to produce it).

b. Knowing indifference: irresponsibility that gradually degenerates into complicit collegiality

202. Knowing indifference gradually raises the threshold of tolerance of wrongdoing: Another slim 'salami slice' of wrongdoing is easier to swallow than a whole chunk of the salami stick. But slice by slice, a judge can stomach even a nauseating crime. Nibbling on wrongdoing sickens his judgment and compromises his integrity, for it lays him open to reverse blackmail:

> "You knew what I was doing was wrong, but you simply stood aside and let me go ahead to where I am now. You knew the harm that I was causing others, but you wanted to keep my friendship and the friendship of my friends, of all of us judges. You enabled me either for the moral profit of continued camaraderie while letting me get the material profit that I wanted or you did it out of cowardice so that we would not gang up on you as a traitor.
>
> Whatever motive you have had up to now, let this warning motivate you from now on: I know enough about your own wrongdoing. If you even sit back and let others take me under, I bring you down with me! So stand up and do whatever it takes to make this complaint go away."

203. Knowing indifference to the wrong or wrongful conduct of others also produces another profit that may be deposited in a bank automatically to grow in value effortlessly as with compound interest: a chip to be traded in for favors. Unexpectedly the need arises or the opportunity presents itself and the search for cash notices the golden gleams of those chips:

> "I let it slide when you received a loan from a plaintiff at an unheard of low rate, got free use of a hall for your daughter's wedding and for a judicial campaign meeting from parties with big cases before you, boasted of having gone on an all-paid judicial seminar cum golf tournament without reporting it, and on and on. Remember?! Now it's my turn. I need you to lean on your former classmate on the zoning board to > rezone this lot commercial so that a company in which I am an unnamed investor can develop a shopping mall on it".[185]

204. Knowing indifference is not ignorant of its value; it only bids its time to realize it. In the process, it corrupts the moral fiber of he who extends it as a benefit while opportunistically watching its value grow at a loan shark rate of interest. Simultaneously, it raises the compromising debt owed by its beneficiary, who in most cases is aware that although her benefactor is staring at her wrongdoing with his mouth shut, his hands are open to collect an implicit IOU that at some point will become due and will have to be paid at any cost, for knowing indifference has its counterpart: payable collusive gratitude. Hence, it turns both the benefactor and the beneficiary into complicit colleagues in wrongdoing.

c. Willful ignorance or blindness: reckless issue of a blank permit to do any wrong

205. Willful ignorance refers to the objective state of not knowing about wrongdoing because the judge suspected that if he had looked into the matter in question, he might not have liked what he might have seen so he abstained from looking into it.

206. In willful blindness, the ignorance is subjective in that the judge knew the facts but willfully failed to draw reasonable conclusions that would have led him to at least suspect wrongdoing. Hence, he was blind to the facts willfully. Willful blindness is a broader notion and easier to apply because a person cannot claim to be competent and at the same time pretend that he just did not realize the implications of known facts which would have been realized by, in general, a reasonable person that can put 2 and 2 together and, in particular, a person to whom knowledge of such implications is imputed as a result of his professional training and daily experience of 'doing the math' as part of his work. While the *willfully ignoran*t crosses his arms to cover his ears with his hands and block his view with his forearms to avoid taking into his mind the noise or image of wrongdoing that may be lurking or crawling in front of him, the willfully blind is in front of wrongdoing that is staring at her, but she shuts her mind's eyes to avoid staring back at it. When the news anchor announces that a terrorist attack caused a carnage, the willfully ignorant changes the TV channel; whereas the willfully blind waits until the anchor warns that "the images that you are about to see are graphic" and then she looks up to the right and fantasizes about a lakeside picnic on a sunny day.

207. Willful ignorance/blindness constitutes a form of wrongdoing even in the absence of probable cause to believe that a crime has been committed. The wrong lies precisely in the willfully ignorant/blind person's decision to look the other way from where such cause might be found and thereby avoid finding it and having to take action to expose and punish the wrongdoer, whom the person actively wants to protect or passively wants to avoid having to accuse. This lower standard is illustrated by the statutory duty imposed on federal judges under 18 U.S.C. §3057(a) to report to the respective U.S. attorney "reasonable grounds for believing [not just] that any violation [of bankruptcy laws] has been committed [but also] that an investigation should be had in connection therewith [to ascertain whether any violation has occurred]"[130a]. A judge who does not call for an investigation when a reasonable person would have enables, for instance, the bankruptcy fraud of concealment of assets to go on undetected.

---

[185] fn.128 & http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/JudReform_from_outside.pdf

208. Through willful ignorance/blindness, a judge avoids an investigation that can make her and others learn about, and take action against, the wrongdoer. The latter may be a peer, a clerk, an insider, or a lawyer who may be a voter or donor in a state judicial election. Friendship with a colleague for 1, 5, 10, 15, 20 years is given precedence over duty(jur:62¶133 >quotation from C.J. Kozinski). By so doing, the judge intentionally violates her shared, institutional duty to uphold the integrity of the courts and their administration of justice. That is a defining duty of her office.(cf. jur:57¶119 >Canon 1) Such conduct detracts from public confidence in her as well as other judges' impartiality and commitment to the rule of law. It gives rise to the perception that they cover for each other regardless of the nature and gravity of the wrong that may have been done. It casts doubt on their sense of right and wrong. Whatever the wrong committed by one of their own, they exonerate him from any charge before they even know its nature and his degree of moral responsibility or legal liability. Their attitude is "a judge can do no wrong". So they shut their eyes or turn them away to conjure up the defense of plausible deniability: They did not do anything because they had not seen or heard anything requiring them to take action. Such 'no action due to lack of knowledge' is a pretense. As such, it is dishonest. It is also blamable because it amounts to engaging in a blanket cover up.

209. Willful ignorance/blindness not only covers up wrongdoing that already occurred by ensuring that it goes undetected, but also ensures that more of it will occur in future: By removing the fear of detection, it facilitates and encourages the occurrence of more wrongdoing. In reliance on a judge's willful ignorance/blindness in the past, the wrongdoer expects that the judge will also cover her future wrongdoing. Hence, it renders a judge liable as an accessory also before the fact. It empowers the wrongdoer to repeat the same wrong because he has something on the judge, that is, the latter's blameworthy toleration of it. Worse yet, it emboldens the wrongdoer to increase the degree of wrongness of the same wrong and to dare commit wrongs of a different nature, for he has not yet reached the limit of toleration of those who should have called him on his wrong or even exposed him. As the wrongdoer keeps pushing the limit, he further weakens the moral resolve of the tolerators and compromises their individual or institutional responsibility and legal positions. Gradually, the tolerators are the ones who cross the boundary of denunciation and enter into self-incriminating territory, where speaking out against the wrongdoer would bring against themselves substantial adverse consequences and even punishment. Their realization of their own culpability turns their moral weakness into complicit fear. By that time, the wrongdoer realizes that he has managed to push the limit of toleration so far away that in effect it has disappeared. From them on, an ever more powerful wrongdoer strides boldly into new territory as he drags along the morally impotent bodies of the tolerators: They are now where everything goes.

d. Impropriety and its appearance: the widest and tested notion, which already forced and again can force a justice to resign

210. Impropriety enhances substantially the usefulness of the notion of wrongdoing, particularly since there is precedent showing that it actually does. To begin with, it is the most flexible 'I recognize it when I see it' form of wrongdoing. It derives directly from the federal judges' own Code of Conduct, whose Canon 2 requires that "A Judge Should Avoid Impropriety And The Appearance Of Impropriety In All Activities"[123a]. Moreover, while federal judges are de facto unimpeachable (jur:21§a) and thus irremovable, the notion of "impropriety" has been applied with astonishing effect.

211. Indeed, impropriety led U.S. Supreme Court Abe Fortas to resign on May 14, 1969. He had not committed any crime given that the financial transaction that he was involved in was not criminal at all; nor was it clearly proscribed as unethical. Yet it was deemed 'improper' for a justice to engage in. The impropriety was publicly ascertained after it became known that he…

> "had accepted fifteen thousand dollars raised by [former co-partner] Paul Porter from the justice's friends and former clients for teaching a summer course at American University, an arrangement that many considered improper. Republicans and conservative southern Democrats launched a filibuster, and the nomination [to chief justice by President Lyndon Johnson] was withdrawn at Fortas's request. A year later Fortas's financial dealings came under renewed scrutiny when Life magazine revealed that he had accepted an honorarium for serving on a charitable foundation headed by a former client [Louis Wolfson]. Fortas resigned from the Court in disgrace.…his old firm refused to take him back…Fortas's relationship with Wolfson seemed suspect, and the American Bar Association declared it contrary to the provision of the canon of judicial ethics that a judge's conduct must be free of the appearance of impropriety."[186]

212. This precedent leaves no doubt that the resignation now of a current justice, and all the more so of more than one and of judges, is a realistic prospect. Public interest entities, journalists, and their supervised journalism students can endeavor to realize it where warranted by the facts and circumstances discovered through their pioneering judicial unaccountability reporting. Justice Fortas's resignation also shows that the notion of impropriety turns judges into the public officers most vulnerable to media and public pressure despite the fact that individually and as a class they wield the power that can most profoundly affect people's property, liberty, and lives. Therefore, the competent and principled application of the impropriety notion by the investigators can make the difference between their merely completing their professional and academic project successfully and shaking the Federal Judiciary to its foundations, making history in the process.

e. The value of third-parties insiders of the Judiciary in exposing the coordinated wrongdoing of the core insiders, the judges

213. Coordination among wrongdoers results from an explicit or implicit meeting of the minds of people that intend to accomplish or permit what they know is illegal or unethical. It reveals premeditation. It acts as a multiplier of the usefulness and effectiveness of wrongdoing: Even some individual wrongdoing cannot be engaged in without the reliance by the wrongdoer in fact on those who know what he is about to do and those who may find out not exposing him, whereby they become accomplices before and after the fact, respectively. They share an interest in a cover-up, on which they can rely to do further wrongs. Worse yet, coordination enables them to commit wrongs that none could do alone.[84]

214. Unaccountable judges are, of course, the core parties to the Federal Judiciary's individual and coordinated riskless wrongdoing. They are the quintessential insiders of the Judiciary. One single judge could bring down a whole court without the need to provide proof beyond a reasonable doubt of her peers' wrongdoing. All she had to do was to show that they had failed "to avoid even the appearance of impropriety"(jur:92§d). Her status as judge and her access as such to insider information would lend credibility to her denunciation or exposition of their wrongdoing.

---

[186] The Oxford Companion to the Supreme Court of the United States, 2nd edition, Kemit L. Hall, Editor in Chief; Oxford University Press (2005), pp. 356-357.

215. But judges are not alone. They are supported by a panoply of third party insiders. Some are near-core insiders. Among them are those that recommend, nominate, and confirm candidates for justiceships. They have the most to lose if the judges' wrongdoing is exposed. They are also the ones who have gained the most from those whom they helped to the bench and the ones who in future can elevate judges to a higher court or the chief justiceship of the Supreme Court.(jur:77§§5,6)

216. There are also peripheral third party insiders. They are an essential component of the wrongdoing. In many instances, they are the executioners of the judges' instructions to do wrong. Without them, the wrongdoing could not be effected. Some are employees of the Judiciary, such as law and administrative clerks(jur:106§c) and court reporters[263]. Others are not employees. While they also execute wrongdoing, they are more important as feeders of wrongdoing, that is, they bring in opportunities to do wrong from which they and the judges benefit. They include lawyers, prosecutors, bankruptcy professionals[169], and litigants, particularly wealthy or powerful ones.

217. Third-party insiders can play a key role in exposing coordinated judicial wrongdoing.(jur:88§§a-d) They have intimate knowledge of the wrongdoing because they participated in it; otherwise, they knew about it but looked the other way, thereby tolerating it and becoming accessories after the fact as well as encouraging further wrongdoing by reassuring wrongdoers that no harm would come to them through denunciation or exposure if they committed further wrongdoing, whereby they became accessories before the fact. No doubt, they have something or even a lot to lose as principals of, or accessories to, the judges' wrongdoing. However, there is something that they do not have, namely, loyalty to the judges to the same extent that other judges do. They have neither the protection of life-appointment or removal from office only through the cumbersome and in effect useless process of impeachment nor the credibility attached to the prestige of a federal justiceship nor the connection to people in high places that can help them escape investigation, prosecution, and even conviction. Since their risk of suffering criminal penalties is much higher, so is their interest in cooperating either with law enforcement authorities by providing information or testimony in exchange for leniency obtained in plea bargain…if ever federal judges were at risk of being investigated.

218. Moreover, third party insiders may also feed to non-official investigators, such as journalists, information even on a confidential basis about the nature, degree, and full extent of the wrongdoing. They may be disgusted with the wrongdoing that goes on in the Judiciary and want to expose it. Also, they may want to provide enough information while they are still inside so that the full story of wrongdoing can be pieced together and reveal that their role was merely as the teeth that did the grinding work on cogs rotated by the judges as shafts and near-core insiders as levers in the Judiciary's coordinated wrongdoing machinery.

219. Peripheral third-parties[164] are the weak links. They can neither harm or benefit judges nor be harmed or benefitted by them as other judiciary insiders can, e.g., politicians and big donors. So they do not owe the judges the same loyalty that judges owe each other. They know, of course, their own wrongdoing. In addition, they, as insiders, are likely to know other insiders from whom they sought advice upon realizing that a judge was doing wrong or whose participation they needed when a judge asked them to do something wrong. In addition, insiders may boast to each other about the judges' wrongs that they know of or participated in.(jur:105§3) They are easier to turn into accusers of judges in exchange for some immunity on 'a small fish giving up a big fish' deal. Moreover, the context in which they can be turned need not be an openly declared investigation of judges' wrongdoing, which would give judges the opportunity to call in their IOUs or threaten near-core insiders with cross-incrimination in order to have them prevent or terminate such investigation.

220. For instance, a judiciary committee may hold hearings on the need to include court proceedings among the public body meetings that may be audio recorded. The committee may subpoena court reporters to testify under oath about changes that they were required by judges to make to their transcripts. How many court reporters would risk the penalties of perjury to cover for wrongdoing judges? If need be, they can be given immunity to remove their 5th Amendment right against self-incrimination. Their refusal to testify or do so truthfully could lead to their being held in contempt and even imprisoned. Their testimony could provide both leads to other insiders that have incriminating information. The progressive revelation of judicial wrongdoing could provide the necessary justification for a proposal for legislation on judicial transparency, accountability, and discipline.

Blank

D. Multimedia public presentation made by the judicial unaccountability reporters of i) the available evidence of judicial wrongdoing and the DeLano-J. Sotomayor story; ii) their own findings through their Follow the money! and Follow the wire! investigations; and iii) the I accuse! denunciation

1. Multimedia public presentation at a press conference, a talkshow, a student job fair, a commencement, a press club meeting, a symposium at the end of an investigative course

221. The investigative reporters(jur:88¶196) –a courageous politician who wants to become a Champion of Justice[164a]; professional and citizen journalists; the law, journalism, business, and IT students of a multidisciplinary course(Lsch:1, 54); public interest entities– can make a presentation(cf. dcc:7)[187] of the statistics of judges' unaccountability and consequent coordinated wrongdoing(jur:21§A), the evidence of it available in the DeLano-J. Sotomayor story(jur:65§B), and what they found through their own Follow the money! and Follow the wire! investigation[198] of that story(xxxv). The presentation should take place at a widely advertised multimedia public event(dcc:11)[188]. It will be intent on provoking outrage at judicial unaccountability and wrongdoing(jur:84¶185) so intense and in an audience so broad as to stir up the people to action: The people must make such a vehement demand that judges be held accountable and prevented from further engaging in wrongdoing that politicians will not be able to disregarded it and will give in by candidates calling for, and incumbent launching, official investigation.(jur:xliii) The outrage and its action-stirring effect will be magnified by the media in attendance at the presentation and an ever-growing number of other media outlets creating and satisfying public demand for news about the extent of judicial wrongdoing and the responsibility of politicians in its development and their steps to expose and prevent it. Thereby a market incentive(jur:7¶¶22-26) will emerge for, and be reinforced by, a Watergate-like generalized and first-ever media investigation of judicial wrongdoing. Its aim will be to find out how far high such wrongdoing reaches and how widespread it is in the Federal Judiciary and among its insiders, such as those of the legal and bankruptcy systems[169]. In so doing, the media will follow the lead of the investigative reporters who made the presentation, the pioneers of the new field of journalism and public interest activity: judicial unaccountability reporting.

222. The presentation can be held at a university auditorium, a theater, or news network studio. (dcc:11) It can be a press conference or a more elaborate academic conference on coordinated wrongdoing among federal judges and its institutionalization as the Federal Judiciary's modus operandi(jur:49§4). In addition to advertising it to the public, the presenters can also extend individual invitations to other public interest entities, including civil rights and public defender organizations, and their philanthropic supporters; investigative journalists, legal reporters, network anchors, and pundits; talk show hosts; owners of judicial victims websites; bloggers; newspaper, popular magazine, professional journal, and book publishers; similar public opinion shapers with multiplier effect; incumbent politicians and their challengers; judges and their

---

[187] Also at http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/DCC/DrRCordero_DeLano_Case_Course.pdf

[188] The week by week Syllabus of the organization of the public presentation by students of both the available evidence of judges' wrongdoing and that found by them as part of their study of The DeLano Case Course is at id. >dcc:31.

clerks; lawyers and law enforcement officers; law, journalism, business, and IT school professors and student class officers and organizations; etc.

223. A presentation at a journalism student job fair will offer an additional and exceptional opportunity in itself. It will allow the presenting students –and others, e.g., a reporter or a candidate invited to deliver a keynote speech– to display their acquired professional skills and turn a job fair into their personal job interview.(cf. dcc:8)[187] Furthermore, they will act on their recognition that journalism, besides being an essential public service entity by strengthening our democracy on the foundation of an informed citizenry, is also a business. Hence, the students(dcc:7¶8) will lay out to the recruiters, editors, and other business people a business and academic venture proposal(jur:119§0). Thereby the students will show that they can bring to their future employer the new business of judicial unaccountability reporting in the public interest together with a plan to grow it into a more ambitious business entity.(jur:130§5)

224. An event as a job fair that gathers many representatives of the media will greatly facilitate educating them on the evidence of coordinated judicial wrongdoing and the application to it of judicial unaccountability reporting. Thereby it will boost the effort to launch a Watergate-like generalized media investigation of the DeLano-J. Sotomayor national story in the reasonable expectation of getting a scoop: the resignation of one or even more justices(jur:92¶¶210-211) due at the very least to their failure to "avoid even the appearance of impropriety"(jur:68¶¶143-145)[189], if it is not because wrongdoing is shown or evidence of corruption makes holding on to office untenable. Such an arresting act can provide the incentive for other entities and people to conduct similar investigations of state judiciaries.(jur:7¶22) Regardless of who gets that scoop, it will remain a fact that it was the investigative reporting team of a courageous politician, public interest entities, journalists, and journalism deans, professors, and students, who recognized the potential for advancing their commitment to an informed citizenry and the public significance – both heightened substantially by an ongoing presidential election campaign– of the DeLano-J. Sotomayor national story, investigated it through their pioneering practice of judicial unaccountability reporting, and first presented its outrageous and action-stirring findings to the media and the American public.

2. The Emile Zola I accuse!-like denunciation of coordinated judicial wrongdoing

225. Unchecked and thus, riskless judicial wrongdoing becomes irresistible because of the professional, material, and social benefits that it makes available. It leads to a more insidious form, coordinated wrongdoing, which develops into its most harmful expression, schemes. The evidence thereof can be presented by the investigative reporters to the public in a series of expository articles widely published on their own websites and social media accounts as well as by traditional media, the hundreds of websites and Yahoo- and Googlegroups that complain about judicial wrongdoing, bloggers[190], and blawgs[191], etc.

---

189 http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/ABA_Prof_Respon_links.pdf

190 http://judicial-discipline-reform.org/docs/from_bloggers_to_media.pdf

191 a) http://blawgreview.blogspot.com/; b) http://www.blawg.com/; c)http://aba.journal.com/blawgs; d) http://www.scotusblog.com/; e) http://www.loc.gov/law/find/web-archive/legal-

a. The initial article can lay out the official statistics that reveal the federal judges' exercise of unaccountable power that enables judicial wrongdoing. It can narrate the DeLano-J. Sotomayor national story to show how the judges' unaccountability and pursuit of their money motive in practically unreviewable cases have allowed them to turn their Judiciary into a safe haven for wrongdoing. Their coordination has enabled them to multiply the instances and scope of wrongdoing so that it has become part of their accepted working routine: It is their institutionalized modus operandi. The article can describe the most structured, hierarchical, and profitable stage of wrongdoing, a scheme, such as the bankruptcy fraud scheme that appears in that story.

b. Another article can detail how judges' unaccountability has enabled them risklessly to:

1) dispose of cases by disregarding law and facts;

2) dispense with discovery rules and due process requirements;

3) arbitrarily and deceitfully dispose of even unread cases by issuing no-reason summary orders and perfunctory "not for publication" and "not precedential" opinions;

4) tolerate and participate in the running of a bankruptcy fraud scheme;

5) tolerate and participate in concealment of assets and its objective, tax evasion;

6) make and accept pro forma financial disclosure reports that cover tax evasion and require money laundering;

7) dismiss systematically complaints against judges and petitions for dismissal review;

8) wrongfully deny motions to recuse so as to retain control of a case that can lead to their and their associates' incrimination if transferred to another judge;

9) cover up wrong and wrongful circuit panel decisions by systematically denying en banc petitions to review them by the whole court;

10) change court rules with disregard for the public comments that they receive but do not publish so that their request for such comments is purely pro forma;

11) disregard their duty to file complaints against judges and/or investigate them based on information acquired through means other than complaints, the harm to the integrity of the administration of justice notwithstanding[192]; and

12) disregard their statutory duty to report to law enforcement authorities their belief rather than evidence that an investigation for violation of the law should be had[130].

226. The initial evidence-exposing article can constitute a manifesto against judicial unaccountability and its consequent coordinated wrongdoing in the Federal Judiciary. It can become the modern version of I accuse!, the open letter to the French President that novelist Émile Zola published in a newspaper. In it, he dared denounce the conviction of Jewish French Lieutenant Alfred Dreyfus for spying for the Germans as based on false accusations stemming from an Anti-Semitic conspiracy among French army officers.[193] Zola's courageous denunciation is credited with not blawgs.php; f) http://blawgsearch.justia.com/blogs/categories/judiciary

---

[192] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/KGordon/11-8-18DrRCordero-CJDJacobs.pdf

[193] J'Accuse…!, I accuse!, Open letter to the President of the French Republic, Émile Zola, L'Aurore; 13jan1898; Chameleon Translations, ©2004 David Short; http://Judicial-Discipline-only bringing about the exoneration and rehabilitation of Lt. Dreyfus, but also setting off a historic critical examination of many French officers' above-the-law sense of superiority in contradiction to the ideals of Liberty, Equality, and Fraternity that constituted the standard-bearers of the collective French soul.

227. The I Accuse! denunciation can likewise launch a reformative debate in our country on the evidence of the Federal Judiciary as the safe haven for coordinated wrongdoing of Judges Above the Law.[194] It can expose how the Judiciary is left undisturbed by a self-preserving Congress and Executive Branch pretending deference to the doctrine of separation of powers. In fact, all the three branches complicitly protect their interests with reckless disregard for the material and moral harm that they inflict upon a people whose government is by and for them and who are entitled to have it operate in reality on the foundational principle of the rule of law. However, the representative nature of our democratic government trumps the separation of powers, whose benefit must inure primarily to the people, not the powers at the expense of the people.[195] The right of the people to govern themselves by holding accountable their public servants, which is what judges are, prevails upon the relationship between those powers with each other. The people can hold judges accountable to them as their public servants in government of and for the people through the creation of a citizen board of judicial accountability and discipline. (jur:160§8)

3. A Watergate-like generalized investigation of the DeLano-J. Sotomayor national story

228. The investigative reporters at the public presentation of the available evidence of judicial wrongdoing and the findings of their investigation of the DeLano-J. Sotomayor story can urge the audience as well as the rest of the media, that is, traditional and digital media, bloggers, and citizen journalists, to pick up the investigation of such wrongdoing and the story where they left off and to that end:

a. pursue the numerous leads[198] in:

   1) the findings of their investigation and their I accuse! denunciation(jur:98§2)

   2) the public record of DeLano[109a], Pfuntner, and Premier[114c], and their analysis[111];

   3) the articles in The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a];

b. investigate:

   1) the concealment by Then-Judge and Now-Justice Sotomayor of assets of her own and of others involved in the bankruptcy fraud scheme;[107a-c]

   2) J. Sotomayor's participation in the cover-up of the bankruptcy fraud scheme and other forms of judicial wrongdoing;(jur:24§b)

   3) what President Obama(jur:77§5), the senators that recommended her and

---

Reform.org/Follow_money/Emile_Zola_I_Accuse.pdf

194 http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/DrCordero-journalists.pdf

195 http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/no_judicial_immunity.pdf

shepherded her nomination through the Senate[159,e,f;160e], and the Senate and its Judiciary Committee[132] knew about her concealment of assets and her perjurious withholding of DeLano from them(jur:78¶170) and when they knew it;

4) the pro forma filing and acceptance of judges' financial disclosure reports;[213b]

5) the participation of other justices in reciprocally covering up their individual and coordinated wrongdoing(jur:71§4) and that of the circuits[26a] to which they are allotted as circuit justices[144b; 23b];

6) the role of court staff as enforcers of wrongdoing rather than Workers of Justice;

7) the state judiciaries by applying, to the appropriate extent, the conceptual framework on which the investigation of the Federal Judiciary rests –i.e., judges' means of unaccountable judicial decision-making power(jur:21§1); the money motive (jur:27§2); and the opportunity to do wrong in millions of practically unreviewable cases(jur:28§3), while taking into account a new element: judicial election as a frequent state method of access to the bench, which has as its corollary the required fundraising to run a campaign and its impact on judges' impartial treatment of parties and faithful application of the law rather than pandering to voters' sentiments;

c. present a petition for the appointment of a special counsel to investigate officially, which includes power of subpoena, everything that the media is asked above to investigate unofficially with only professionally accepted journalistic means of information gathering;[196]

d. encourage the audience, the media, and the public to:

1) endorse the I accuse! denunciation(jur:98§2);

2) sign the petition for the appointment of a special counsel;

3) distribute the I accuse! denunciation and the petition widely through their websites, by email and social media to all their contacts and to the websites and Yahoo- and Googlegroups that deal with judicial corruption and wrongdoing;

4) ask their political representatives to take a public stand on the I accuse! denunciation and the petition and hold town halls on judicial unaccountability, wrongdoing, and reform;

5) blog about those issues;

6) ask for Justice Sotomayor to resign, just as U.S. Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas was asked to resign for his failure to "avoid even the appearance of impropriety", and did resign on May 14, 1969(jur:93¶211);

7) search for the modern day Senator Howard Baker[197a], who became nationally

---

[196] Title 28 of the Code of Federal Regulations, Part 600 (28 CFR Part 600); http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28cfr600_Independent_Counsel.pdf

[197] a) fn.111 >HR:257/ent.38; b) Similarly, the proposed investigation can inquire into what Justice Kagan knew when she was Solicitor General about J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets, tax evasion, and cover-up of the bankruptcy fraud scheme; and whether her answers known for asking of every witness at the nationally televised Senate Watergate Committee hearings a question that today would be rephrased thus:

> "What did the President and the senators that recommended, endorsed, and confirmed Judge Sotomayor know about her concealment of assets of her own and of the bankruptcy fraud scheme and its cover-up and when did they know it?"

4. The proposed two-pronged investigation by competent, principled, and ambitious investigative reporters of the DeLano-J. Sotomayor story: the Follow the money! and Follow the wire! investigation

229. The investigation of the DeLano-J. Sotomayor story has two prongs: One is the Follow the money! investigation. This is understandable since the actors in the story are driven by the most insidiously corruptive motive: money! In addition, there is probable cause to believe that the email, mail, and phone communications of those trying to expose the judges' wrongdoing have been interfered with. This calls for a Follow the wire! investigation.[214]

a. The Follow the money! investigation

230. The investigative reporters –a courageous politician, public interest entities, journalists, and journalism schools and students(jur:88¶196)– can start off their investigation by pursuing the many leads[198] that the prosecution of DeLano and related cases from bankruptcy, district, and circuit courts all the way to the Supreme Court[199a] has already produced(jur:65§0; cf. jur:9).

231. They can search for:

---

during her own confirmation for a justiceship were truthful and complete; id. >GC:61§A [198] a) Valuable leads for the Follow the money! investigation: http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/DeLano_docs.pdf >W:1§§I-III and W:29§§V-VIII personal and financial data; W:148¶¶3-4 contact information.

b) Contact information with detailed index to exhibits, organized by categories listed in the order in which the Follow the money! investigation may proceed; id. W:271

c) fn.111 >HR:215-218; and d) the guidance provided by a proposed subpoena identifying key documents to trace back concealed assets, id. >HR:233§E and http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/HR/11-4-25DrRCordero-HR_ComJud_subpoena.pdf

e) How to Conduct A Watergate-like Follow the Money! Investigation To Expose Coordinated Wrongdoing in the Judiciary While Applying the Highest Standards of Investigative Journalism; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/how_to_follow_money.pdf ;

f) Cf. 2 Ex-Timesmen Say They Had a Tip on Watergate First, Reporter Richard Pérez-Peña, who rightly remarked that "If [Mr. Phelps's] and Mr. Smith's accounts are correct, The Times missed a chance to get the jump on the greatest story in a generation"; NYT; 24may09; fn.173a.

[199] a) fn.114b; b) jur:24¶32; 68¶143; and fn.111 >HR:214

a. J. Sotomayor's –the Then-2nd Circuit Judge and Now-Justice Sonia Sotomayor[200a]– unaccounted-for earnings[107c] earned or acquired during the following periods:

1) 1976-1979: jobs held while a law student, including at a NY City top law firm[200b];

2) 1979-1984: Assistant District Attorney in the NY County District Attorney's Office[107b >JS:1¶6];

3) April 1984-December 1987, associate, and January 1988-September 1992 partner at the high-end boutique law firm Pavia & Harcourt;

4) October 1992-October 1998: District judge of the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of NY(SDNY; jur:17,18);

5) November 1998-July 2009: Circuit judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit[201];

6) August 2009 to date: Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. [202]

232. The table of Then-Judge Sotomayor's financial affairs[107c] is based on the documents that she filed with the Senate Committee on the Judiciary[107b]. To supplement it with additional information about her earnings, assets, and liabilities, the investigators can:

a. address a request under the NY Freedom of Information Law (FOIL)[203] to the Records Access Officer at the NY County District Attorney's Office(jur:19) for the documents concerning the payment of her salary when she was an assistant district attorney there from 1979-1984[204];

b. interview her former employer, the high-end boutique law firm of Pavia & Harcourt, to find out, in general, her earnings there from April 1984 to September 1992 and, in particular, her receipts after quitting that firm. To determine the latter account should be had of the contrast made in the article "For a justice, Sonia Sotomayor is low on dough", by Josh Gersten of Politico, between 'the about $25,000 that she was due for her partnership interest' in that firm and 'the more than $1,000,000 that chief justice John Roberts was paid in salary and compensation for his interest when he left his law firm, Hogan & Hartson, in 2003'[205];

c. interview her law clerks and court clerks when she was a district and then a circuit judge

233. Then-Judge Sotomayor can be investigated for her condonation of the systematic dismissal of misconduct complaints against her peers and her cover-up of them through the denial in the Second Circuit council of 100% of dismissal review petitions during the 1oct96-30sep08 12-year

---

200 a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/judges_bionotes.pdf; b) fn.107b >JS:1-3, et seq.

201 http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/98-11-6JSotomayor_induction_proceedings.pdf

202 http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/judges_bionotes.pdf

203 http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/NY_FOIL&court_records.pdf

204 Cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero-DANY_june09.pdf

205 a) fn.107a >ar:7; b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/SCt_nominee/Pavia&Harcourt_7feb10.pdf; c) Pavia & Harcourt, LLP, 600 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10022; tel. (212)980-3500, fax (212)980-3185; http://www.pavialaw.com period199b.

234. The investigators can Follow the money! unaccounted for by:

   a. WBNY U.S. Bankruptcy Judge John C. Ninfo, II,[114b,124];

   b. the judge to whom his M&T decisions[206] and DeLano were appealed, i.e., WDNY U.S. District Judge David G. Larimer[207];

   c. the 2nd Circuit judges, including Then-Judge Sotomayor; and

   d. the Supreme Court on behalf of themselves and legal and bankruptcy system insiders[113a,b;114b].

235. Those judges:

   a. helped conceal at least $673,657(jur:15) in DeLano[112b] by:

      1) denying every single document requested by the outsider-creditor and needed by the judges and justices themselves to find the facts on which to decide the case, including 12 denials in circuit court in DeLano, over which Judge Sotomayor presided[109], and

      2) J. Sotomayor's withholding DeLano from the Senate and its Judiciary Committee[132], lest the blatant violation of due process and discovery rights in that case lead to those documents and expose their bankruptcy fraud scheme[94]; and

   b. caused assets to disappear in Premier and Pfuntner[206], which the CA2 panel that heard the appeal, presided over by CA2 Chief Judge John M. Walker, Jr., maintained concealed by dismissing the appeal on a contrived summary order[208] and denying the mandamus writ[209] to remove those cases from Judge Ninfo and transfer them to another U.S. district court that could presumably be fair and impartial.

236. The investigators can search for Judge Larimer's unaccounted-for money in the mandatory[107d] annual financial disclosure reports that he filed with the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts[210]. In 2008, his judicial salary alone was $169,300[211], placing him in the top 2% of

---

206 fn.114b >GC:17§B and 21§C

207 a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_v_TrGordon_CA2.pdf, 9july3, >A:1304 §VII, A:1547¶4, and

b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_DeLano_WDNY_21dec5.pdf > Pst:1255§E;

c) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_v_DeLano_06_4780_CA2.pdf, 17mar7, >CA:1702§VII and 1735§B

208 http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_v_TrGordon_CA2_rehear.pdf, 10mar4

209 http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_mandamus_app.pdf, 12sep3

210 http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/J_Larimer_fin_disclosure_rep.pdf

211 5 U.S.C. §5332; http://uscode.house.gov/pdf/2011/ Wednesday, April 11, 2012 7:53 PM 5677799 2011usc05.pdf >pg. 414 §5332, Schedule 7, Judicial Salaries; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/5usc_2011.pdf: "(Effective on the first day of the first applicable pay period beginning on or after January 1, 2012)

income earners in our country[212]. Yet, in his available financial disclosure reports, he disclosed for the reported years up to 5 accounts with $1,000 or less each, no transaction reported in a mutual fund or the other accounts, and a single loan of between $15K-$50K. Where did his money go?

237. The investigators can likewise examine the financial reports of Judge Ninfo[213], who presided over all the Premier, Pfuntner, and DeLano cases and more than 7,280 of only two insider trustees[113a, 114b].

b. The Follow the wire! investigation

238. This investigation will seek to determine whether the anomalies in the behavior of email accounts, mail, and phone communications[214] are traceable to the Judiciary's abuse of power by ordering its own and other technical personnel to illegally[215] intercept people's communications

---

Chief Justice of the U.S. $223,500
Associate Justices of the Supreme Court 213,900
Circuit Judges 184,500
District Judges 174,000
Judges of the Court of International Trade 174,000"

Bankruptcy judges' salary is 92%, 28 U.S.C. §153(a)(fn.61(a)), and magistrates' is "up to an annual rate equal to 92%" of that of a district judge, §634(a)(fn.61(b)), i.e., $160,080. Such well-above average salary(fn.212) provides a strong motive for them to do whatever it takes to earn reappointment and avoid removal by their circuit and district peers(jur:56§e).

By comparison, the median income in the U.S. for a household rather than an individual was $50,054 in 2011, a 1.5 per-cent decline in real terms from 2010; http://www.census.gov/prod/2012pubs/p60-243.pdf >page 5.

212 http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/US_Census_Income_2010.pdf >Table 689. Money Income of People--Number by Income Level: 2007

213 a) His financial disclosure reports and those of all other federal judges can be retrieved for free from Judicial Watch; http://www.judicialwatch.org/judicial-financial-disclosure.

b) Their examination can help determine the pro forma character –or charade– of their filing by the judges and their acceptance, as part of the Judiciary's coordinated wrongdoing, by the Judicial Conference of the U.S.[91] Committee on Financial Disclosure, a committee of judges, who are their peers and filers of similar reports, assisted by members of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts(fn.10), who are their appointees and serve at their pleasure; http://www.uscourts.gov/SearchResults.aspx?IndexCatalogue=AllIndexedContent&SearchQuery=Committee%20on%20Financial%20Disclosure.

214 http://judicial-discipline-reform.org/HR/11-4-25DrRCordero-HR_ComJud.pdf >HR:266§II

215 a) Obama administration warns federal agencies that monitoring employees' e-mail could be violating the law, by Lisa Rein, The Washington Post; 21jun12; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Legal_news.pdf >Ln:101;

b) Stepped-up computer monitoring of federal workers worries privacy advocates; by Lisa Rein, The Washington Post; 16aug12; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/fed_gov_computer_monitoring.pdf with the intent to:

a. impede the broadcast of facts regarding its abusive discipline self-exemption and resulting riskless coordinated wrongdoing;

b. hinder the formation of an entity for the advocacy of journalistic and official investigations of such wrongdoing; and thus

c. forestall the adoption of effective judicial accountability and discipline reform.

c. Field investigation on deep background: the search for Deep Throat

239. The investigative reporters(jur:102¶230) can continue their investigation in the field. There they can approach a source of information[216] that is essential to expose coordinated judicial wrongdoing: the judges' law clerks[217] and the clerks of court[218]. They have inside knowledge of what goes on in chambers. But they will not talk openly. That would put at risk what every law clerk works for: a glowing recommendation from their judge that they can cash in for a job with a top law firm and an enticing sign-up bonus.[146] But law clerks are young and still have the idealism of young people. Some even studied law because they believed in our system of justice and the power of the rule of law to make a better world. In this frame of mind, they can only feel disgusted at all the wrongdoing that they must witness in silence in their judges' chambers and in the courtroom and are even required to execute as the judges' agents of wrongdoing.

240. Likewise, clerks of court know what goes on among the court judges. They are aware of the divergence between what they are supposed to do according to the internal operating rules[219] and what they are told by judges to do and even the reason for it. For example, clerks are supposed to spin the wheel to assign judges to cases randomly so that their biases do not influence which cases they pick or pass up and their prejudices do not predetermine their decision-making. But if a judge asks for a case, what is a lowly clerk going to do?, risk being reassigned from the sunny documents in-take room to the moldy archive warehouse? He may choose to do as told and keep quiet about his realization that…

241. Judge Brypen always asks for cases to which a certain land developer is a party, which owns the hotel chain where a bank holds its semi-annual meetings at which the Judge is always invited to speak. The day the Judge told the clerk to declare the court closed due to a flash flood, the Judge blurted that he would go "to my room at the Bella Vita", the local unit of that hotel chain. The following day he arrived on time at the court wearing a suit and a tie that the clerk had seen

---

[216] A Journalist's Guide to the Federal Courts, Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts; p.10. Types and Sources of Court Information; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/AO_Journalists_Guide_sep11.pdf

[217] Law Clerks Handbook: A Handbook for Law Clerks to Federal Judges, 2nd ed., edited by Sylvan A. Sobel; Federal Judicial Center (2007); http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/law_clerk_handbk_07.pdf.

[218] a) National Conference of Bankruptcy Clerks; http://ncbc.memberclicks.net/;
b) Federal Court Clerks Association; http://www.fcca.ws/

[219] Cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/CA2_Local_Rules_IOP_8sep11.pdf

before. Judge Brypen could not have brought those clothes from home the day before in anticipation of an unexpected flood or go home and change early that day, because the road to his home was still flooded. The clerk put it together: The Judge has a permanent room at the hotel where he keeps clothes; the land developer always wins his cases. The clerk will not talk about this for the record. However, on a promise of anonymity he can provide information that the investigative reporters cannot find as, or from, outsiders. He can help them find out whether Judge Brypen uses the room for free as payment of a bribe in kind, what he uses it for, whether the judge and the land developer meet in chamber or have scheduled meetings elsewhere, whether the former is an investor in the latter's business; etc.

242. Law clerks and clerks of court can be assured that if they want to contribute to exposing individual and coordinated wrongdoing in the Judiciary by confidentially communicating inside information to the investigative reporters, their existence and anonymity will be held so confidential as to turn the clerks into the modern version of a historic figure: Deep Throat, the deputy director of the FBI, William Mark Felt, Sr., who provided guidance to Washington Post Reporters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein in their Watergate investigation and whose identity they kept secret for 30 years until Mr. Felt himself revealed it in May 2005.[220] The same assurance can be extended, of course, to current and former legal and bankruptcy system insiders[169](cf. jur:9) and members of the Judiciary as well as members of the Executive Branch and Congress.

243. This type of investigative reporting has hardly ever been practiced with the Federal Judiciary as the target, yet its potential is enormous. Just consider the amount of valuable information that can also be provided by waiters and waitresses, maids, concierges, drivers, and other personnel at hotels and resorts where judges attend or stay overnight when they participate in the semi-annual meetings of the Judicial Conference of the U.S.[221], circuit conferences[222], private seminars[223], and meetings of classes of judicial officers and employees[224]. What did these service personnel

---

[220] a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/FBI_No2_Deep_Throat.pdf;
b) http://www.citmedialaw.org/state-shield-laws; and http://www.firstamendmentcenter.org/

[221] The Judicial Conference[91] meets in Washington, D.C., in March and September[cf.fn.29] for two or three days at the Supreme Court and the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts[10], which maintains its secretariat. At the latter venue, its circuit and district members meet with the judges that form the Conference's many committees, e.g., on financial disclosure reports, judicial conducts, and the code of conduct; http://www.uscourts.gov/FederalCourts/JudicialConference/Committees.aspx. Its meetings are always held behind closed doors, http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero-investigators_leads.pdf, after which it issues an anodyne press release on miscellanea, http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/JConf_systematic_dismissals.pdf.

[222] a) Each circuit holds a conference annually and in some cases biennially to deal with administrative matters, as provided for under 28 U.S.C. §333, http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc331-335_Conf_Councils.pdf; cf. http://www.ca9.uscourts.gov/judicial_council/judicial_council.php. b) Circuit map: jur:20 and http://www.uscourts.gov/Court_Locator.aspx

[223] On the duty of judges to disclose attendance at seminars and who pays its cost; http://www.uscourts.gov/RulesAndPolicies/PrivateSeminarDisclosure.aspx

[224] a) Federal Judges Association; http://www.federaljudgesassoc.org/; b) Federal Magistrate Judges Association; http://www.fedjudge.org/; c) National Conference of Bankruptcy Judges; http://www.ncbj.org/; d) Supreme Court Fellows Program; http://www.supremecourt.gov/

hear and whom did they see when they were serving the chief judge and his guests in his hotel suite at midnight after their inhibitions had been washed away by potent torrents of brandy and cognac and their boisterous conversation was littered with the flotsam of their wrongdoing: stories of how they had outsmarted the IRS by using offshore accounts set up by big banks with cases before them; how the day before leaving for the meeting they had cleared their desk of unread[224e] pending cases by signing a bunch of summary orders so they could feel free to enjoy the 'holiday'; how the next day they would meet privately with some bidders for the contract to remodel the courthouse; how they are planning for the judge to make an 'unexpected' cameo appearance at a political fundraising event where she will pronounce a few words of gratitude for the support of the audience and their contributions to the event organizers' good work…'for our veterans and those still fighting for our shared principles and constitutional values…umm in Afghanistan'; etc.(cf. jur:22¶31)

d. Library investigation

244. The investigative reporters(jur:102¶230) can also conduct a library investigation. Starting with the leads already available[198], they can search for relevant information in:

a. commercial databases[225], e.g., Accurint, Dialog, Dun & Bradstreet, EDGAR (financial filings), Hoover, LexixNexis, Martindale & Hubble (directory of law firms and biographies of lawyers)[226], Proquest, Saegis and TRADE-MARKSCAN, Thomson Reuters CLEAR;

b. WestLaw[227], a division of the private company Thomson Reuters, and Lexis-Nexis[228], also a private company, but both report under contract with federal and state governments court procedural rules, case decisions, and legislation, as well as vast amounts of information on an extensive list of topics, including judges, lawyers, companies, people, commercial and financial transactions, etc.;

c. credit reporting bureaus, e.g., Equifax, Experian, TransUnion; Privacy Guard;

d. federal government databases, e.g.:

1) Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts[229],

2) PACER (Public Access to Court Electronic Records, particularly rich in bankruptcy fellows/default.aspx; e) cf. fn.123c >CA:1749§2

---

225 Cf. commercial databases with links at fn.254a >¶10

226 http://www.martindale.com/

227 a) http://government.westlaw.com/nyofficial/;

b) see also http://www.nysl.nysed.gov/collections/lawresources.htm and http://public.leginfo.state.ny.us/MENUGETF.cgi?COMMONQUERY=LAWS+&TARGET=VIEW;

c) http://directory.westlaw.com/

228 https://www.lexisnexis.com/

229 http://www.uscourts.gov/Home.aspx filings)[230],

3) Code of Federal Regulations (regulations and decisions of federal agencies)[231],
4) Council of the Inspectors General on Integrity and Efficiency (73 I.G.s that act as watchdogs of federal government operations)[232],
5) General Accounting Office (the investigative arm of Congress, reputedly impartial and thorough)[233],
6) Office of Management and Budget (attached to the White House, i.e. the Executive Branch)[234],
7) Securities and Exchange Commission (filings of publicly traded companies)[235],
8) the U.S. Senate[236] and the U.S. House of Representative[237] (which contain a treasure trove of reports on the investigations and hearings that normally precede and provide the foundation for federal law);
9) U.S. Code[238] (the thematic collection of all public and private laws of the federal government),
10) US Tax Court (where litigants' filings may disclose otherwise confidential tax information)[239],
11) THOMAS (the Library of Congress)[240],
12) U.S. Code Congressional & Administrative News[241a] (U.S.C.C.A.N.; containing the transcripts of congressional sessions; published by WestLaw)[241b];
13) government offices at the federal, state, county, city, and local levels with which documents must be filed and that may issue licenses, certificates, permits; etc., e.g.:

---

230 http://www.pacer.uscourts.gov/index.html

231 http://www.gpoaccess.gov/cfr/index.html

232 http://www.ignet.gov/

233 http://www.gao.gov/

234 http://www.whitehouse.gov/omb/

235 http://www.sec.gov/

236 http://www.senate.gov/

237 http://house.gov/

238 http://uscode.house.gov/download/download.shtml

239 http://www.ustaxcourt.gov/

240 http://thomas.loc.gov/home/thomas.php; cf. the Legal Information Institute of Cornell University Law School, http://www.law.cornell.edu/

241 a) http://www.westlaw.com/search/default.wl?db=USCCAN&RS=W&VR=2.0; b) http://directory.westlaw.com/default.asp?GUID=WDIR000000000000000000000000105257&RS=W&VR=2.0

a) National Association of Counties[242],
b) National Association of County Recorders, Election Officials and Clerks[243],
c) National Center for State Courts[244]
d) Drug and Food Administration and similar state agencies;
e) the departments of labor;
f) departments of vehicles;
g) departments of buildings;
h) departments of vital statistics, such as births, weddings, divorces, deaths, etc.;
i) departments of educations that record enrollment in, and employment at, schools and other educational institutions;
j) land registries

e. state sources of information:
   1) state family courts (where divorce and child custody dispute may reveal hidden assets, unpaid taxes, and money laundering)[245],
   2) Private Library Associations[246];
   3) State & Regional Library Associations[247];

f. other sources of information:
   1) social networks, e.g., Facebook, Twitter, UTube;
   2) accounts of dealings with judges and insiders posted by the public on websites that complain about judicial wrongdoing;[248]
   3) rosters of marinas, airports, and landing strips that register docking, maintenance services, and landing rights; etc.

---

242 http://www.naco.org

243 http://www.nacrc.org/

244 http://www.ncsc.org/

245 http://family.findlaw.com/family/family-law-help/state-family-courts.html

246 http://www.plabooks.org/

247 http://www.libraryconsultant.com/associations.htm

248 Alliance for Justice, www.afj.org/; Citizens for Judicial Accountability, http://www.judicialaccountability.org/; Citizens for Responsibility and Ethics in Washington, http://www.crewsmostcorrupt.org; National Association of Court Monitoring Programs, http://www.watchmn.org/; Judicial Watch, http://www.judicialwatch.org; National Association to Stop Guardian Abuse; http://nasga-stopguardianabuse.blogspot.com/2010/05/probate-judge-violates-ethics-code.html; National Forum on Judicial Accountability, http://www.njcdlp.org; Victims of Law, http://victimsoflaw.net/

e. Investigation by appealing on the Internet and social media to the public

1) Accounts of dealings with the judiciary

245. The investigative reporters can also make innovative use of the Internet and social media to appeal to the public to submit their accounts of their dealings with the Federal Judiciary, in particular, and also the state judiciaries, in general. While those accounts may be anecdotal and not necessarily factually accurate or legally correct, they can help sound out the depth and nature of the problem of coordinated judicial wrongdoing. From this perspective, they can provide assistance by educating the investigative reporters on the forms of wrongdoing. The frequency and consistency of account details can prove invaluable in detecting patterns[249] of conduct that reveal intentional conduct and coordination among judges, insiders, and others. This in turn can help figure out the most organized and pernicious form of coordinated wrongdoing: a scheme[94]. Likewise, responses to neutral questionnaires can help determine public perception of the fairness, impartiality, and honesty of judges and the degree of public satisfaction with, and trust in, their administration of justice as what they are: judicial public servants of, and accountable to, the people.

2) Questionnaires as precursors of a statistically rigorous public opinion poll

246. No doubt, such accounts and completed questionnaires will be submitted by a self-selected segment of the population. Submitters will most likely be people who bear a grudge against judges because of negative experiences with them. Such experiences have charged them emotionally to take advantage of the opportunity to vent their feelings toward judges and criticize their performance. Since responders need not constitute a representative sample of the general public, their responses cannot be equated with those of a public opinion poll conducted according to statistics principles to ensure randomness and population representativeness. Yet, their accounts and completed questionnaires can provide the groundwork for devising such a poll in a subsequent, more institutional phase254 of the investigation of coordinated judicial wrongdoing.

3) Copies of past and future complaints against judges made public as an exercise of freedom of speech and of the press and of the right to assemble to petition for a redress of grievances

247. Another type of accounts of dealings with judiciaries that can prove useful even if submitted in a smaller number than general accounts of dealings with the judiciary is formal misconduct complaints against judges filed under federal[18] or state law. In the Federal Judiciary, as revealed by its official statistics[250], a) these complaints are systematically dismissed by chief circuit judges(jur:24¶¶32-§c); b) petitions to review those dismissals are systematically denied by the circuit and district judges of judicial councils;[127b] and c) petitions to review those denials have never been addressed by those chiefs and district judges that are members of the Judicial Conference[221]. This consistent and unconditional partiality of judges toward their own provides evidence of coordinated conduct, whether through agreement(jur:89¶¶198-199), knowing indifference(jur:90§b), or willful blindness(jur:91§c), aimed at reciprocally covering up their wrongdoing regardless of the nature and gravity of the allegations(jur:68¶143) or the detriment to complainants and the administration of justice.

---

[249] Under the federal Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO) a pattern of racketeering can be established by two acts of racketeering activity occurring within 10 years; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/18usc1961_RICO.pdf >18 U.S.C. §1961(5).

248. Judges' systematic dismissal of complaints against them allow the inference that judges a) have become accustomed to their practice of covering up their complained-about wrongdoing; b) have developed such practice into their express or tacit policy to tolerate and participate in each other's wrongdoing and, consequently, c) have no scruples about applying it when they become aware of their peers' wrongdoing through sources of information other than complaints regardless of the nature and gravity of such wrongdoing. What obtaining copies of the complaints themselves can add is concrete, even if unverified, details of the nature and gravity of such wrongdoing and the names of judges, insiders, and others alleged to be engaged in it. As in the case of general accounts, these details can prove invaluable in detecting patterns and figuring out schemes, such as the bankruptcy fraud scheme[60]. Therefore, copies of these complaints can contribute to establishing that coordinated wrongdoing has become the Judiciary's institution-alized modus operandi.

249. Complaints against judges are not placed in the public record or otherwise made available to the public by the courts, which keep them secret even from Congress. But however much the judges would like to pretend that complaints are confidential, they are simply to be kept confidentially by them upon complainants filing them with the courts.[251] Congress itself cannot prohibit the media from publishing such complaints, for that would be an unconstitutional violation of freedom of the press. It follows that Congress cannot indirectly achieve that result through a prior restraint on publication by prohibiting every person in this country from sharing his or her complaint, whether in writing or orally, with anybody else, including the media. Doing so would be in itself an unconstitutional violation of freedom of speech. Therefore, the investigative reporters can invite the public to exercise their constitutional right under the First Amendment to "freedom of speech, of the press, [and] peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances"[12] by submitting to them copies of their past, pending, and future complaints against judges for review and possible publication.[252]

---

[250] fn.19a and b >Cg:1-10F

[251] fn.18 >§360(a)

[252] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Programmatic_Proposal.pdf >5§C. Organizing and posting evidence

E. Multidisciplinary academic and business venture to promote judicial unaccountability reporting and judicial accountability and discipline reform study and advocacy

1. The marketing premise of the venture's business plan: market behavior of people outraged by judges' wrongdoing

250. The initial multimedia public presentation of evidence of judges' wrongdoing(jur:97§1) can pioneer a new field of profit-making journalism(jur:7¶¶22-26) and public interest advocacy: Judicial unaccountability reporting and legislated reform with citizen-implementing participation. It will encourage journalists to investigate, in general, the evidence already available of judges' unaccountable power, money motive, and opportunity in practically unreviewable cases, and their consequent riskless wrongdoing that is all the more self-beneficial through coordination among judges and between them and insiders of the legal and bankruptcy systems(jur:21§A); and, in particular, the DeLano-J. Sotomayor case(jur:65§B; jur:xxxv), as a concrete, especially egregious instance of wrongdoing involving a sitting justice nominated by sitting president who vouched for her honesty. The presentation will offer an abundance of leads(jur:102§4) and hold out the realistic(jur:81§1) prospect of the investigations' producing national stories that can cause the resignation of one or more justices and judges(jur:92§d), and earn coveted rewards: a Pulitzer Prize, a bestseller account of the stories, a portrayal by a Hollywood star on a blockbuster movie, and being studied in every journalism, law, and business school in the country.

251. Moreover, the multimedia public presentation(cf. dcc:13§C) can set the stage for announcing a business and academic venture to pursue judicial unaccountability reporting and reform.[253a] Its operative core will be formed by a team of professionals engaged in for-profit multidisciplinary research, investigation, education, and publishing as well as monitoring, consulting, representing, and lobbying. All their activities will be aimed at bringing about and implementing legislated reform that allows the people to exercise democratic control of the federal and state judiciaries through citizen boards of judicial accountability and discipline. The venture will be open to the media, public interest entities, teaching institutions[cf.256e], investors, and philanthropic sponsors. All of them are likely to recognize the public service and business potential of methodically investigating the Third Branch at the federal and state levels for coordinated judicial wrongdoing, as opposed to journalistically covering courts to report on cases pending before them or landmark decisions. Exposing judges' coordinated wrongdoing will provoke action-stirring outrage in at least 100 million litigants that are parties to 50 million new cases filed annually and the scores of millions that are parties to the cases already on the dockets(jur:3¶22).

252. The rest of the people too will be outraged upon learning that wrongdoing judges who disregard the law are the ones affecting their rights concerning foreclosures, abortion, the bearing of arms, privacy, whom they marry, voting, equal pay, immigration, the quality of the air that they breathe or the food, water, and drugs that they take in or medical care that they receive, in short, every aspect of their property holding, liberty, and life. All of them, the people, are likely to become avid consumers of judicial unaccountability news. They may also feel the need to acquire services and products that can help them defend themselves from abusive unaccountable judges. They may wield them as swords to assert their constitutional rights to due process of law and equal protection thereunder just as they go on the offensive to hold judges, their public servants, accountable. They may also hire lawyers, lobbyists, and public relations consultants to advise them on how and where to demand individual and class compensation for the harm inflicted upon them by wrongdoing and abusive judges and their respective judiciary. They may help financially those engaged in advancing the cause of judicial accountability and discipline reform. Outrage at those judges will stir up people to take action, whether to follow the news or spend money to act on it, because what is at stake is central to Americans' system of values as individuals and a nation and a source of commitment to defend it at whatever expense of effort, time, and money: the birthright to Equal Justice Under Law.

---

253 a) fn.187a >ddc:10; b) id. >dcc:¶8

253. Outraged people feel a driving need for news of the outrage-causing event(jur:4¶12)[254], which need becomes a compelling urge when the outrage harms them as individuals, with the urge becoming compulsive when the harm is not only to their property or their bodies, but also offends their sense of fairness and justice and insults their dignity by humiliating them as objects of abuse; and people who have been harmed will pay for protection and invest to recover what was taken from them, with unwavering determination investing themselves in the recovery when what they want back is their personal worth: their self-image as equal to others and deserving of equal treatment, especially by those whose duty as public servants it is to serve the people and administer to them their entitlements, the overriding one of which is Equal Justice Under Law. That is the marketing premise underlying the business plan of the multidisciplinary academic and business venture. It is as pragmatically justified and morally acceptable as when lawyers charge attorney's fees to help people who have been sued solve their legal problems; when doctors bill for helping sick people regain their health; and when priests collect a service fee from bereaved relatives for officiating at a burial or holding a memorial service for the deceased; or when you as an engineer, a plumber, an electrician, a boilerman, or a mechanic charge victims of a storm for repairing their ravaged home or flooded car.

254. The outrage of people victimized or offended by judges' wrongdoing will generate demand for the products and services of the venture's two components:

    a. The DeLano Case Course, a hands-on, role-playing, fraud investigative and expository multidisciplinary course for undergraduate or graduate students(dcc:1 and [187]); and

    b. The Disinfecting Sunshine on the Federal Judiciary Project, the first professional and methodical study of wrongdoing in Federal Judiciary (and eventually of that in its state counterparts) aimed at pioneering judicial unaccountability reporting as a means of advocating and monitoring judicial accountability and discipline reform. The projects' elements are discussed below(jur:130¶¶5-8).

255. Conceived as precursors to the venture but also capable of being further pursued by it are:

    a. the multimedia public presentation of the available evidence of judges' wrongdoing(jur:97§1);

    b. the I accuse! denunciation presenting such evidence and calling for the investigation of judges and the legislated reform of judicial accountability and discipline(jur:98§2);

    c. the two-pronged Follow the money! and Follow the wire! investigations of the DeLano-J. Sotomayor story(jur:102§4); and

    d. the brochures that can follow the initial public presentation and resulting first bout of public outrage, particularly from judicial wrongdoing victims, whom the brochures should assist in providing feedback in a value-enhancing format and in taking concrete, realistic, and feasible action to expose their victimization and seek redress and compensation (jur:122§§2-3).

[254] See also fn.187 >dcc:7, 10

256. The discussion of these venture components and elements as well as their precursors can provide substantive contents to the initial multimedia public presentation and its subsequent informative and advocacy activities. Likewise, they constitute necessary subjects of the pitch to promote the venture in order to raise financial and intellectual capital and manpower for it.

2. The brochure on judicial wrongdoing: conceptual framework, illustrative stories, local versions, and its templates for facilitating people's judicial wrongdoing storytelling and enhancing the stories' comparative analysis

257. The DeLano-J. Sotomayor national story can lead right into the Supreme Court and throughout the Federal Judiciary. Hence, it can attract the attention of the public at all levels and of media outlets of all sizes. Its presentation can afford the opportunity to compare it with other stories of wrongdoing in state and local[255] judiciaries. This can be done by inviting the public to call in[1] and by having local professionals comment on the incidence of wrongdoing in their respective judiciary.

258. Local professionals, the public, and the media can be provided with a brochure on coordinated judicial wrongdoing. It can be short, written for laypeople[256a-d], and explain[256e-f] the conceptual and statistical framework(jur:21§A) for understanding such wrongdoing(jur:88§a-d). It can contain real-life stories illustrating categories of wrongdoing in the federal and state judiciaries. It can be widely distributed by digital means as well as in print at the public presentation. Given

---

[255] Not all states have unified court systems. Although New York does, http://www.courts.state.ny.us/, it has village and town courts, city courts, district courts, county courts, NY City Civil Court, NY City Criminal Court, Court of Claims, Family Court, Surrogate's Court, Appellate Term, Supreme Court, Appellate Division, and the Court of Appeals, which is the highest in the NY court system. See, in particular, NY Practice, 4th edition, David Siegel, Thomson West (2005); and, in general http://west.thomson.com/jurisdictions/default.aspx?promcode=600004P25963SJ&contid=73163469999999&RMID=20110927-CYBER-V9_REACT_DOTS_L369567&RRID=73163469999999&PromType=external and choose the jurisdiction of interest. Even a citizen journalist with limited resources can investigate judicial wrongdoing in his or her local court and elicit considerable public response, for whatever judges do affects people's property, liberty, and lives.

[256] Cf. a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/strategy_expose_judicial_wrongdoing.pdf;

b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/judicial_wrongdoing_investigation_proposal.pdf

c) jur:9 and http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/graph_fraudulent_coordination.pdf

d) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/why_j_violate_due_pro.pdf

e) ""[T]he genre of "The Explainer," [is] a form of journalism that provides essential background knowledge to follow events and trends in the news….The Explainer project aims to improve the art of explanation at ProPublica's site and to share what is learned with the journalism community. New York University's contributions will stem from [its] Carter Journalism Institute's Studio 20 concentration for graduate students, which runs projects on Web innovation. "An explainer is a work of journalism, but it doesn't provide the latest news or update you on a story," said NYU Professor Jay Rosen, detailing the concept. "It addresses a gap in your understanding: the lack of essential background knowledge. We wanted to work with the journalists at ProPublica on this problem because they investigate complicated stories and share what they've learned with other journalists. It seemed like a perfect match." "Orienting readers and giving them context has long been a key component of good journalism," said Eric Umansky, a senior editor at ProPublica.…Bringing clarity to complex systems so that non-specialists can understand them is the "art" of the explainer." NYU Carter Journalism Institute, ProPublica Team Up - "The Explainer"; 1dec10; http://journalism.nyu.edu/news/2010/fall/nyu-carter-journalism-institute-propublica-team-up-the-explainer/;

f) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/teams/NYU/11-10-24DrRCordero-ProfJCalderone.pdf

its availability in digital format, which allows its content to be easily recomposed, the brochure can gradually have a version for each of different judiciaries[257] so that the stories in each version can be about ascertained wrongdoing that occurred or is occurring in the respective judiciary. This can heighten the brochure's impact on those currently or potentially most directly affected by the featured stories. Hence, the brochure can be conceived of as the serialization of the I accuse! denunciation(jur:98§2). A flier about the brochure and with the link to it can also be distributed at the presentation and similar events.

259. The brochure can have templates to facilitate readers' application to their own stories of the brochure's conceptual framework and the storytelling techniques that make its sample stories impactful, relevant, and in compliance with applicable legal requirements of substance and form.

a. Template on detection and investigative method and its application to all those on the ring of wrongdoers

260. A template can set forth a method for non-journalists to detect and investigate several categories of judicial wrongdoing and impropriety[258] anywhere or in certain specialized courts or at certain levels of a judicial hierarchy. It can have recommendations on how to expand their investigation to include all the members of the local ring of wrongdoers, that is, from judges to clerks, circuit executive officers, members of the legislature and insiders of the legal system who recommended, endorsed, supported, appointed, nominated, and confirmed those judges, and bankruptcy system insiders, who handle hundreds of billions of dollars[31] worth of creditors claims, debtors' exemptions, estate appraisal and administration, etc. Ring members establish and tighten relationships among themselves as they capture the power of the courts. They help judges with or for whom they work to turn the money motive into both cash and other benefits in kind. Meanwhile, they keep outsiders from accessing what the courts are supposed to dispense: equal justice by application of the rule of law.

261. Expanding the investigation to encompass all those on the ring of wrongdoers is intended to accomplish two objectives. On the one hand, it puts pressure on incumbent politicians to heed the public's outrage at judicial wrongdoing that holds them responsible for putting in office judges accused of wrongdoing. On the other hand, it alerts their challengers to recognize such wrongdoing as an issue on which incumbents can be fatally vulnerable. This is specially so if challengers can show that the incumbents covered for wrongdoing judges through agreement, knowing indifference, willful blindness, or improprieties.(jur:88§§a-d)

b. Template to facilitate writing brief stories susceptible of comparative analysis

262. Many victims of judicial wrongdoing are pro se or have little or no writing experience or skill.

---

[257] Cf. Table of Judicial Ethics Advisory Committees by State; American Judicature Society; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/state_ethics_committee.pdf

[258] Conference of Chief Justices: "Appearance of Impropriety" Must Remain Enforceable in the Model Code of Judicial Conduct [applicable to state judicial officers]; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/state_appearance_impropriety.pdf

Accordingly, another template can have prescriptive content on how to tell their real life stories of judicial wrongdoing in writing and orally in a meaningful, concise, responsible and verifiable way.[259] The template can persuade readers to follow its prescriptions by illustrating them with well-told stories and describing the audiences' reaction to their telling.[1] So it can list the key elements that should be included in their stories and the class of documents useful to support them.[260] Likewise, it can provide samples of the kinds of comments that should be left out as not within the scope of judicial wrongdoing, irrelevant, unprovable, speculative, exaggerated, extravagant, scurrilous, or potentially defamatory. This should lead to stories that are concise. They would also be brief enough[261] for their authors to post on blogs in order to call readers' attention to ongoing forms of judicial wrongdoing and bring together those that have had similar experiences[262]. The brevity of stories enhances their submittal by increasing their likelihood of compliance with technical MB size limits and editorial length restrictions. It also favors their odds of being read at all, for recipients are unlikely to read hundreds of pages of rambling text and court documents in hopes of finding nuggets of useful information or making sense out of them all.

263. The standardization of key story elements improves the feasibility of a comparative analysis that can yield an invaluable result: detection of patterns of wrongdoing. Such patterns may concern the same wrongdoers, types of victims, courts, issues, amount in controversy, timing of events, means of execution, modus operandi, etc. Pattern detection facilitates the understanding of likely underlying wrongful causes and effects shared by stories; of the intentional nature of improbably coincidental acts; and of coordination among story characters. Patterns can allow people to recognize themselves and others as similarly situated judicial wrongdoing victims and prompt them as well as local professionals, blog owners, and citizen and professional journalists to undertake their own investigations of those stories.[263] By so doing, they all contribute to further provoking the public's action-stirring outrage that should energize its demand for judicial accountability and discipline reform while simultaneously supporting the business and academic venture.

c. Templates to request media coverage and to file judicial wrongdoing complaints

264. Another template can describe how to request the media to cover in newscasts, talk shows, and print and digital articles local judicial wrongdoing stories as well as the latest developments in the DeLano-J. Sotomayor national story. Thereby it can help story authors and their audience to make the most effective use of the media to impart to the stories an ever-greater echo effect that intensifies the outrage that they provoke. That outrage is the indispensable reaction to those that will stir the public into action to demand that incumbents and challengers investigate judicial

---

259 Cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/how_to_follow_money.pdf

260 http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/building_record&fact_statement.pdf

261 Cf. a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Summary_&_synoptic_paragraph.pdf;
b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/summarize_complaint_350words.pdf; and
c) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/case_summary.pdf

262 Cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/disseminate_criticism_misconduct_rules.pdf

263 Cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/DrCordero-journalists.pdf

unaccountability and wrongdoing, hold wrongdoers accountable, and undertake judicial accountability and discipline reform.

265. Yet another template can illustrate the steps for filing a judicial misconduct complaint that complies with the form and substance requirements of the Federal Judiciary[264]. As local versions of the brochure and templates are produced, templates can provide guidance on complying with the local requirements for filing judicial misconduct complaints.[265]

266. As offspring of the I accuse! denunciation(jur:98§2), the brochure and its templates can in turn be conceived of as prototypes of, and advertisement for, the writing seminars and classes that in due time the proposed venture can offer[254] as it pursues its business mission both to prepare a class of professional advocates of judicial accountability and discipline reform and to educate the public on how to defend our democratic life by subjecting judges to the control of "We the People", of whom they are public servants.

---

[264] a) Rules For Judicial Conduct and Disability Proceedings [on complaints against federal judges], Judicial Conference of the U.S.; 11mar08; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Rules_complaints.pdf; But see:
b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/new_rules_no_change.pdf and
c) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/judicial_complaints/DrCordero_revised_rules.pdf

[265] Cf. a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/complaint_advice.pdf and b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/complaint_steps.pdf; c) For a list of state judicial conduct authorities see http://www.ajs.org/ethics/eth_conduct-orgs.asp

3. Collection of stories for the Annual Report on Judicial Unaccountability and Wrongdoing in America and its supporting database

267. Another incentive(cf. jur:123¶262) can prompt judicial wrongdoing victims as well as the rest of the public to follow the templates. It can be furnished by announcing that the most representative stories whose reliability has been ascertained to the satisfaction of the investigative reporters and whose exemplary or informative value makes them outstanding will be included in the latest version of the constantly updated brochure. The most outrageous stories can be developed into books by either the victims themselves or the investigative reporters and published under the imprint of the joint venture.[254] In addition, victims' summaries of their stories can provide the basis for the more formal and ambitious Annual Report on Judicial Unaccountability and Wrongdoing in America:[266a] How an outraged people turned into a movement[266b] for Equal Justice Under Law.

268. The Annual Report will be a key evidentiary instrument and a main product of the venture.. Its underlying support will be a professionally built database of cases of judges' wrongdoing as well as their statements. It will list in a column the states for which there are to report incidents of egregious and thus unambiguous judicial wrongdoing. They must also be significant from a journalistic and legal standpoint. The row of each incident will have cells to provide essential docket information and hyperlinks to the most relevant court documents if a case relating to the incident has been filed. News articles, if any, will also be hyperlinked.

269. One of the cells will provide the incident-type identifier that will hyperlink to the incident synopsis, similar to the abstract of an article in a professional journal. This will be the most important paragraph, frequently the only one to be read by those choosing which incident to investigate or interested in an overview of judicial wrongdoing nationwide. The synopsis will describe in 150 or fewer words the kind of information that enables the first paragraph of a well-written news article to grab the attention of the reader and make her want to read on for details, the so-called 6-W's: what, where, when, who, how, and why. This should suffice to state the nature and gravity of the incident. However, understanding, analyzing, integrating, and summarizing information obtained from court documents, victims' letters, and phone or face-to-face interviews in order to compose a sober, accurate, and fair statement demand a high degree of professional competence. Such work also requires keen awareness of what is at stake: the responsible portrayal of all those involved in the incident and the reputation of the venture and its advocacy.

270. For the venture professionals and their supporting staff to be able to write clearly, concisely, and instructively, whether it be the incident synopsis, its longer account, or briefs, petitions, and articles for the courts, the authorities, and the media, they will perform several essential information-processing, highly detail-oriented, but imagination-demanding and creative tasks:

    a. Broth reduction summarizes the essential informational nutrients of scores or even hundreds of documents to a synoptic paragraph, an executive summary, a word limited news article, a table, a chart, or a diagram by submitting those source documents to the boiling down heat of the objectives at hand, the audience being addressed, and the reasonable calculation that in such size and format the piece will get read and its information assimilated.

    b. Boomerang scrutiny identifies statements in orders, decisions, speeches, press releases,

---

[266] a) fn.252 >7§f; and b) jur:162§9

and articles of wrongdoing judges as well as those who have been remiss in their duty to hold them accountable in order to detect patterns of bias or intrinsic inconsistencies or extrinsic incongruities and use their own words to impeach their credibility or knowledge and hold them to their views and promises.

c. Database creation applies standard or devise new structure and search functions of relational databases to manage efficiently and make easily accessible the documents being gathered and the informational elements that they contain so that they will assist in understanding and writing other documents.

d. Springboard analysis of documents analyzes documents, e.g., reports on previous investigations by authorities and civilians into official corruption and influence peddling, as well as legislative hearing and debate transcripts and reports on relevant subjects and laws, to gain inductive insight into judicial wrongdoing that allow the intellectual journey from the particular incident under consideration to wrongdoing as a judiciary's institutionalized modus operandi, by 1) analyzing the dynamics of the harmonious or conflicting interests of those engaged in, or affected by, wrongdoing in that incident and in general; 2) identifying the means, motive, and opportunity enabling the wrongdoing of the judge in question and of all his peers; 3) picking up leads to further the investigation; and 4) formulating particular and general investigative hypotheses, explanations of the incident and of judicial wrongdoing, and realistic proposals to deal with the incident or reform the judiciary.(cf. dcc:8)

e. Mosaic integration of bits and pieces of data is performed by reading a document to 1) gain an understanding of the workings of its statements and discern between its lines its assumptions, implications, and hidden message; 2) mine it for bits and pieces of data whose potential importance is more sensed by sensitive fingers than realized by trained eyes; and 3) in light of their relative shades and shapes of relevance and credibility place them in the mosaic being developed with the bits and pieces of many other documents, whose placement in the mosaic sometimes is suggested by the picture that gradually reveals itself as the bits and pieces fall into place like those of a puzzle, and sometimes is prompted by intuition that causes an associative leap between apparently meaningless bits and pieces of data and some other element of knowledge that allows recognizing data as information and permits the reconfiguration of the developing mosaic into a different, even totally unsuspected, picture of meaning. Built on the support of the previous four items, this is the type of insightful analysis that will be most needed to penetrate the secrecy-ridden Federal Judiciary(jur:27§e; xl), establish the Annual Report as a piece of scholarship of the highest caliber, and illustrate the distinctive educational contribution that the academic component of the venture can make to the education of students(jur:153§c; dcc:15).

4. The set of professional skills needed in the multidisciplinary team of the academic and business venture

271. It is a wide set of skills that the academic and business venture will need to perform the above-described activities in its more mature phase, that is, as an institute of judicial unaccountability reporting and reform advocacy(jur:130§5). The entry into, and in-house performance of, all those activities will be progressive, of course, as happens whenever a new entity with a complex mission is formed, funds are hard to come by, and their allocation has to be very pragmatic. Progress will be made along the steps of an ambitious yet well laid out prudent and affordable plan of development flexible enough to take into account ever-changing internal and external realities. So, it is useful to identify the professional skills needed by the people that will be called upon both to devise and implement the plan.

a. Venture activities requiring professional skills

272. The fundamental skills that the venture needs are in the areas of the law, journalism, business, and social sciences. Therefore, the venture promoters welcomes inquiries from professionals that can multitask at a high level of proficiency in the largest number of the following activities:

a. legal, economic, corporate, and news and social networks research and analysis;
b. computer forensics;
c. database correlation;
d. literary and linguistic forensics[267];
e. fraud & forensic accounting and auditing;
f. statistics;
g. business management, psychological, and sociological analysis of close-knit groups and its members as they interact among themselves and with others driven by a 'black robe family first' and 'code of silence we-they' mentality;
h. public integrity and law ethics;
i. investigative journalism's techniques for interviewing and developing sources;
j. private investigators' personal and technical surveillance techniques;
k. nonviolent civic action planning and deployment[291] in conjunction with social media as a means of spreading a message, shaping public opinion, and galvanizing people into action;
l. good writing, creative non-fiction, and self-editing;
m. mass communications techniques for designing a public message and implementing a public relations campaign;
n. multimedia and marketing techniques for the life presentation, packaged distribution, and sale of research products and services;
o. public speaking and advocacy, and lobbying;

[267] http://www.forensicpage.com/new33.htm

p. multidistrict, class action, federal/state, constitutional law litigation;

q. fundraising.

b. University students as high quality assistants to the venture team

273. There is no doubt that the venture needs seasoned professionals with advanced knowledge and rich experience in the activity in which they are supposed to take a leading role as part of the venture team. However, the venture can also benefit significantly from the assistance that it can receive from a special group of promising and enthusiastic people: university students, particularly those in graduate schools(cf. dcc:10). Though still acquiring knowledge and having little experience in the venture-related activity in which they can work, they bring with them a set of mindframe and attitudes of great value: a need to prove to themselves and others what they are worth; the determination to meet that need by striving relentlessly for excellence; the capacity to take on with masochist gusto excruciating pressure in competition with themselves and others; and the still unblemished idealism of young people who believe that they can start now to change the world for the better by sacrificing their present personal interests in order to join a noble cause greater than themselves and beneficial to the common good, as is Equal Justice Under Law owed and demanded by We the People.

274. Students can be brought in as venture assistants through a variety of paid or unpaid arrangements:

a. after-school part-time job that students search for and obtain on their own initiative;

b. placement with the venture after the latter or the university student financial aid office took the initiative to contact the other;

c. externship or internship in the context of a more or less structured academic program that may include a project with identified quantitative or qualitative objectives with or without academic credit upon evaluation by either the venture supervisor or the university professor to whom the students submit a report or a completed project, e.g.. collecting judicial and non-judicial writings for database building(jur:150¶10)).

d. a semester-long academic course taught by either a venture instructor or a university professor geared toward completing a learning by doing project of academic value to the students and of professional relevance to the venture, e.g., judges' decisions auditing through statistical analysis(jur:136§a)); legislative drafting(jur:158§7).

e. "clinics" where students under the supervision of a venture instructor or a university professor offer services to certain types of members of the public, i.e. investigating or documenting their experience as victims of judges' wrongdoing for incorporation in a report(jur:126§3) or filing with an official judicial misconduct body;

f. case study where an individual or group of students goes to, for instance, a court, a legal defenders' office, or an organization of victims of judges' wrongdoing, to study it and submit for academic credit to venture or university supervisors intermediate and final reports that may be intended for publication and/or for use as teaching material (jur:122§§2-4);

g. joint project where a group of students work together with venture team members and university professors to accomplish a specific task, e.g. research and development of software for identifying the presence or absence of variables in the written or verbal items of a database in order to perform literary and linguistic forensic analysis(jur:140§b)); public advocacy of judicial reform(jur:155§e);

h. collaborate with the students and their professors that at journalism schools, in particular, or universities, in general, run radio and TV stations; are learning to use the facilities and apply the techniques for making photo and video commercials and documentaries (dcc:13§C); are learning to develop public relations campaigns(dcc:14§D); and can integrate all the crafts of journalism and communications to produce a multimedia presentation of a message188[a];

i. full-time summer job.

5. Creation of an institute of judicial unaccountability reporting and reform advocacy

275. The business and academic venture[254] includes the creation of a for-profit institute of judicial unaccountability reporting and reform advocacy[253].

a. Purpose

276. The purpose of the institute is to act as:

a. an investigative journalist that detects, investigates, and exposes concrete cases of judges' unaccountability and their participation in, or toleration of, the consequent riskless wrongdoing engaged in individually or in coordination among themselves and with third parties, such as law and court clerks, lawyers, bankruptcy professionals[169], litigants, politicians, and other enablers and beneficiaries of judicial wrongdoing;

b. clearinghouse of complaints about judges' wrongdoing by any person who wants to exercise his or her constitutional right to "freedom of speech[,] of the press[, and] the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances"[268] by sending to the clearinghouse a copy of the complaint that the person filed with the competent federal or state authority or sending the complaint original only to the clearinghouse for analysis, information about judicial wrongdoing, and comparison with other complaints that may allow the detection of patterns, trends, and coordination, and possible publication and investigation by the institute;

c. prototype of a citizen board of judicial accountability and discipline(jur:160§8) that through its official investigation of both complaints against judges received from the public and information about judges' wrongdoing obtained through its exercise of its subpoena, search and seizure, and contempt power as well as the exposure of its findings of judges' wrongdoing, impropriety, appearance of impropriety, or criminal activity can justify its call for their resignation or official investigation by the U.S. Department of Justice and the FBI, and Congress, or their state counterparts, all of which can also exercise their power of criminal prosecution; and

---

[268] First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/US_Constitution.pdf

d. public advocate, lobbyist, consultant, and litigator for both effective legislation on judicial accountability and discipline reform, and the establishment of a citizen board of judicial accountability and discipline and of an inspector general for the Federal Judiciary as key instruments for enforcing such legislation and implementing the reform.

b. As researcher

277. As researcher[269] the institute of judicial unaccountability reporting and reform advocacy will conduct advanced statistical analysis and work in information technology.

1) Analysis of the official judicial statistics

278. The official statistics of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts[10] constitute the main data source of the analysis of the means, motive, and opportunity of federal judges' unaccountability and consequent coordinated riskless wrongdoing.(jur:21§A) Those statistics lie at the basis of the tables(jur:10,11) showing the chief circuit judges' systematic dismissal without investigation of 99.82% of misconduct complaints against their peers and the out of hand denial, even reaching 100% during a 13-year period, by the respective judicial council of the petitions for review of dismissed complaints.(jur:24§b) The tables already prepared concern only either the aggregate statistics for the 13 circuits or the individual statistics for the 2nd Circuit.

a. The institute can update those tables and perform the corresponding statistical analysis and tabulation for each of the other 12 circuits.

b. It can also research the records to establish which judges were holding the chief circuit judgeships or membership in the judicial councils and therefore participated in such unlawful and self-interested abrogation in effect of the Act of Congress[18a] conferring upon people the right to complain about judges.

c. Those judges' participation can be confronted with their statements about their "fidelity to the law"[132f] and their impartiality(jur:68¶143).

d. Similarly, judges' record of voting to deny ever more systematically petitions for panel rehearing and hearing en banc can also be researched in every circuit to establish the extent to which judges indulge in such "abuse of discretion"[74] and reciprocal cover up on the ground of the explicit or implicit agreement "if you don't rehear or review the decisions of the appellate panels on which I sat, I won't rehear or review those of the panels that you sat on, and never mind the appellants whining that the decisions were wrong or wrongful".(jur:45§2)

e. The suspicious stability year after year of the number of such complaints filed with judges-judging-judges has been compared with the remarkable trend of increasing number of cases filed at all levels of the federal courts hierarchy(jur:12-14) as the population increases and America becomes an ever more litigious society. This comparison can be updated and refined by comparing the increasing number of whistleblowers complaining against their employers as well as the increase in the number of wrongdoing public officers in the other two branches of government, who are persons and members of the same society as judges are where lawful and ethical principles give way ever more blatantly to greed and expediency, as most recently shown by wide spread institutionalized fraud in the subprime mortgage debacle involving both lenders and borrowers.

---

269 Cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/DeLano_course/17Law/DrRCordero_proposal_synopsis.pdf

279. Similar and other types of statistical work can be performed using current statistical methods while the advanced Information Technology software product proposed below is being researched and developed.

2) Research and development in Information Technology

280. The purpose of the institute's IT work will be to research and develop a software product capable of auditing the writings of or about subjects of the legal system and profiling them thereon. To that end, it will develop metrics of personal and official behavior and algorithms to identify instances, patterns[249], and trends of behavior that have predictive function for the outcome of a case to be filed or already at bar; and that reveal the subjects' underlying motive, means, and opportunity to engage in such behavior(cf. jur:21§A). Thereby the product will provide objective, factual information that can help private users to reliably develop their legal strategy and public users to obtain probable cause to open and conduct official investigations involving the subjects.

281. The metrics of behavior will measure the subjects' suitability to play their role in the legal system. Suitability will be a function of the subjects' fairness, impartiality, competence, and integrity, or the lack thereof due to evidence or appearance of wrong or wrongful behavior, which may be motivated by a wrongful attitude, that is, bias, prejudice, actual or potential conflict of interests, or personal agenda. In short, this software product will enable users to evaluate a subject's past and probable future behavior and proceed accordingly.

3) Judges to be the first subjects to be audited and profiled

282. The product will concentrate initially on auditing the writings and profiling the subjects that play the single most outcome-determinative role in the legal system and as to whom the available written materials are most abundant and reliable as matter of public record that also has precedential value, namely, judges. There is no implicit prejudgment in stating that a judge will be audited for wrongdoing. It is obvious that if the judge is discharging her judicial duty to administer justice according to law and is an otherwise law-abiding and ethical person, then there is no problem. But it is not reasonable to assume that judges, who are entrusted with an enormous amount of power over people's property, liberty, and lives, remain immune to the inherently corruptive effect of such power[28]. This is particularly so with regard to judges, who wield power to decide who gets or loses the most insidious corruptor: money!(jur:27§2) This is even more so because judges, as individuals and especially reciprocally as members of a class of similarly situated people, have the means to self-exempt from accountability and discipline to ensure the risklessness of their wrongdoing(jur:21§1).

283. Under those circumstances, the temptation to engage in wrongdoing and the pressure from other class members to tolerate the wrongdoing of any and all members of the class can be irresistible. This is the result of their wrongdoing having only an upside: It can be substantially beneficial in professional(jur:25§c; 60§f), social(jur:62§g), and material(jur:27§2; 32§§2) terms yet carries no adverse professional, social, or material consequences. One statistic proves this: In the 223 years since the creation of the Federal Judiciary in 1789, the number of federal judges impeached and removed is 8!(jur:21§a) Nevertheless, of course, for those outside the judicial class and its enabling outsiders[169], judges' wrongdoing has a substantial downside, whether it be concrete adverse consequences on their property, liberty, and lives, or on the integrity of the judiciary and the rest of government by the rule of law.

284. Therefore, the only reasonable assumption that is supported by an understanding of the forces at play among a tight-knit class of people such as judges –cf. the police, political party leaders, sport teams– and that is not undermined by the naïve or partisan attribution to them of incorruptibility before or after becoming judge, is that wrongdoing by judges is, not waiting to happen, but rather waiting to happen again and to be exposed.

285. Moreover, for each judge there are numerous data sources that can be audited for analyzable data(jur:150¶337). That is so about the judge assigned to the case at bar as well as one likely to be assigned to it in a court where there are more than one judge or there is a schedule of panels of appellate judges to whom all cases are assigned that are filed during certain dates. Hence, the information obtained through auditing can allow legal strategizing and produce broadly based, reliable probable cause to initiate an official investigation, not to mention unofficial, journalistic ones. Eventually, the product can be applied to other legal system subjects with fewer data sources to mine for data, such as attorneys(jur:46¶46); clerks(73¶¶153-155; 106§c); bankruptcy professionals[169]; those who recommend, nominate, and confirm judges(77§§5,6); types of cases, etc.

4) The nature of judicial wrongdoing

286. The term 'wrongdoing' is ample, comprising both judicial performance, i.e., a judge's behavior in his capacity as such, and personal conduct, i.e., the rest of the judge's behavior in any other capacity. Judicial performance may be either wrong, thus possibly pointing to the judge's incompetence, or wrongful because it is driven by an ill motive, such as bias or prejudice concerning a person, a cause, or a type of case; self-interest in a conflict of interests; or a personal agenda pursued with disregard for the law, a sense of proportion, or the bounds of discretion. A judge's personal behavior can be as criminally or civilly unlawful or unethical as that of any non-judge. Judicial performance and personal conduct have some overlapping.

   a. Judicial performance centers on a judge's fairness, impartiality, and competence in the conduct of judicial proceedings and decision-making; e.g., whether he has been fair by not imposing sentences or allowing damages that are disproportionately harsh or mild compared with the defendant's culpable act and the punishment meted out to, or the compensation demanded from, similarly situated defendants in previous cases; impartial by not depriving a party of its right to discovery so as to protect the opposing party from incriminating material being discovered; and competent by not ignoring that a controlling case has been overturned by a recent case or overruled by legislation or not failing to integrate such new piece of information into his handling of the case at bar.

   b. Personal conduct centers on the judge's integrity in her private and official capacity. It concerns personal conduct such as her concealing assets and evading taxes; breaching a contract, e.g., by failure to pay rent or to buy or sell stock as agreed to; or using her connections to secure admission to a college for a child despite the latter's disqualifying low grades or admission test score; and tolerating or even covering up other people's similar criminal, civilly unlawful, or unethical conduct.

c. i. Overlapping judicial performance and personal conduct occurs, for example, when a judge dismisses a complaint against another judge to cover up the latter's wrongdoing; takes advantage of confidential information learned in chambers or submitted under seal to purchase or sell property in a time-sensitive fashion or on more favorable terms; asks for or accepts a bribe to throw a case one way or another; or resorts to a defense lawyer that has appeared before her to have the lawyer set up offshore bank accounts to conceal the judge's illegal assets or engage in money laundering.

ii. There is also overlapping in the wrongful pursuit with judicial power of a personal agenda, as when a judge goes on a mission against police searchless warrants, although the Fourth Amendment only requires that searches not be unreasonable, not that they be executed only upon a search warrant; or a mission against computer hackers, such as those that hacked his private website and embarrassed him by exposing his collection of erotic pictures, whereupon he treats hackers as if they were terrorists, systematically denying them bail for posing a continued hacking threat to society and authorizing the tapping of their phone conversations, even with their lawyers, under color of measure to prevent the use of a phone for hacking.

287. Wrongdoing also includes failure to "avoid even the appearance of impropriety"[123a]. That concept has two points of emphasis: "Impropriety" bears on the nature of the behavior, which may fall anywhere along the spectrum ranging from clearly criminal to unbecoming of a person holding judicial office, such as becoming drunk and boisterous at a party. "Appearance" bears on the very low 'burden of proof' that must be carried by any person, for example, a journalist or a hotel concierge, for their allegations to create such an unfavorable or suspicious impression of the judge as to make her hold on office untenable and require her resignation(jur:92§d), such as discreetly rewarding her law school student who in her opinion is the best of the month with an all-paid weekend trip to the Cayman Islands bearing a gift for a friend of the judge who picks it up at the hotel front desk; or eating diner alone with a married law clerk in a restaurant's private room.

5) Main uses and users

288. The main uses of the initial software product that concentrates on judges will be:

a. to discharge an official duty both to hold judges accountable by monitoring their judicial performance and relevant personal conduct and to act on complaints about judicial misconduct by determining whether there is probable cause –not liable to attack as partisan animus– to believe that a judge has engaged in wrongdoing and should be investigate and, if warranted, disciplined or prosecuted; and

b. to detect any instance, pattern, or trend of behavior on the part of the judge or judges in the case to be filed or already at bar, which may or may not be wrong or wrongful but which may reveal the judge or judges' way of thinking and handling similar cases in the past, and devise legal strategy accordingly, for example, by deciding either to go ahead and litigate before them or petition on an objective, factual basis that the judges recuse themselves without incurring the risk of having the petition denied as a frivolous tactical move that can provoke retaliation from the petitioned judges and their peers, or appeal their petition denial in order to have the judge or judges disqualified for cause.

289. The main users of the product will fall into two categories:

a. public

1) law enforcement agencies that must determine whether there is probable cause to believe that a judge has engaged in any wrongdoing, including failure to "avoid even the appearance of impropriety"(jur:134¶287), for which he or she should be investigated and held accountable; and

2) judicial performance commissions and citizen boards of judicial accountability and discipline(jur:160§8) empowered to:

a) monitor judges' performance on a regular basis; and

b) receive complaints against any judge from a judge or any other person and process them; and

b. private

1) attorneys, their clients, and pro ses who must devise their legal strategy for proceeding in their own cases; and

2) entities, such as the proposed institute for judicial accountability and reform advocacy, that

a) on commission from a third party audit for a fee a trial or appellate judge; or

b) audit judges, publish the results on the entities' websites, and make them accessible either on subscription or for free in the public interest and to attract webvisitors[cf. 213a].

290. All the main users must decide whether to spend months or years and thousands, tens of thousands, even hundreds of thousands or millions of dollars[83] in litigation. This can be emotionally-draining, for the stakes can include being sentenced to death, going to prison for the rest of one's life or for many years, plea bargaining, or being acquitted; being held liable for a high money judgment and even devastating punitive damages; establishing an adverse controlling precedent or a public perception contrary to a party's interest; or settling to dispose of the case with certainty as opposed to having it dismissed or reversed. At present, law enforcement officers, judicial performance commissioners, and attorneys base their decision on how to proceed on either their personal and thus limited and subjectively evaluated experience of practicing before a judge augmented by hearsay about such experience of others or base their decision only such hearsay alone if the decision-makers have never practiced before that judge. The decision may also be made by a client or a pro se relying on nothing more substantive than his passion-driven wishful thinking or fear-induced gut feeling. The toss of a coin may also be the decision-maker.

291. An advanced IT-based software product that evaluates a judge's past behavior by auditing vast amounts of data from a wide variety of sources constantly added to can provide users with a more reliable foundation for predicting how the judge is likely to handle the case to be filed or already at bar and whether users should petition the judge to recuse himself; appeal a denial in order to have him disqualified; settle or plea bargain.

292. For instance, using this product, a private user could find out that the judge assigned to his case ruled in 87.2% of her cases in favor of women suing their employers for promotion discrimination as opposed to the initially assigned judge, whom the user caused to recuse himself because the product audited judicial and extra-judicial writings of both the judge and other people and found expressions of ideas –not decisions– that gave the "appearance"[123a] of bias against women that work rather than stay home doing what they are supposed to do as wives. In reliance on that information, the user could decide to try his case more confidently rather than settle.

293. Likewise, the product can enable public users to discover the suspicious coincidence that a judge has been assigned purportedly by the luck of the draw conducted by the clerk of court whom he appointed(jur:30§1) to six involuntary bankruptcy petitions that any of three financial institutions, which financed the library annex of the law school of whose advisory board the judge was a member at the time of the annex construction, filed against debtors who were owners of land in the northern region of the judge's judicial district and who protested to the judge to no avail his approval of the sale by the same bankruptcy trustees of their land at below market price at private auctions to thinly capitalized international companies formed only weeks after the filing of the petitions and which have had no more activity after they sold the land to one of the members of a consortium that recently announced plans to build a freight train-airplane-truck intermodal transportation hub and merchandise distribution center in the district's northern region.(cf. jur:32§§2)3); 46§3) Based on this probable cause to believe that the judge has in effect engaged in a conspiracy to expropriate land for private use without due compensation, the public user can decide to open an investigation of the judge and others involved in this series of suspicious transactions.

6) Auditing a judge's writings

294. The auditing feature of the software product will audit a judge's judicial decisions in the case intrinsic data sources as well as his non-judicial writings constituting his case extrinsic data sources.(jur:150¶337) Its purpose will be to detect how a specific feature of a variable feature of cases, that is, the value of a variable –e.g., a parties' wealth, level of education, subject matter–, relates to the outcome of the judge's cases and whether that variable is controlled by a judge's behavior, which may or may not be wrong or wrongful, but which may result from a wrongful attitude, such as bias, prejudice, conflict of interests, and personal agenda. The product will calculate the statistical probability that such variable value will determine the judge's decision in a case that is or may come before that judge. Based on that information, a private user will be able to devise its legal strategy and a public user will be able to determine whether there is probable cause to investigate a judge for wrongdoing.

a) Statistical analysis for auditing a judge's decisions

295. The auditing feature of the software program only audits a judge's decisions and does so only through statistical analysis. This auditing is mostly in the nature of an accounting: A layout similar to a balance sheet is used, with the column on the left for plaintiffs and prosecutors and the column on the right for defendants. Under each column is set forth the same list of heading-like variables, each of which is subdivided into values. For instance, the variable 'party gender'

is subdivided into the two values of male and female; and the variable 'party representation' is subdivided into counseled and pro se; while the variables 'religion', 'race', 'ethnicity', 'company size', or 'subject matter' may each have three or more values. Next to each value is the frequency number, that is, the total number of cases before the audited judge where the party was, let's say, Catholic, Protestant, Jewish, Moslem, or None, followed by the winning frequency or number of cases where the parties with that value won; and the frequency percentage, or winning frequency expressed as a percentage of the frequency number. Other mathematical and statistical relations can be calculated in order to perform a more sophisticated analysis, but the ones named above suffice for the illustrative purpose here.

296. Let's consider the variable of political party affiliation and let's assign to it only two values, that is, affiliation to party A or to party Z. If either variable value has no bearing whatsoever on case outcome, then an A affiliated party opposing a Z affiliated party has the same 50%, toss of a coin chance of winning as of losing. That variable is outcome-irrelevant; it is a dependent variable because its influence on case outcome, if any, depends on the value of other variables. The opposite speaks for itself: If in 100% of cases the A party won when opposing a Z party, then the A value of the party affiliation variable is outcome-determinative. That variable is independent because its influence on the outcome of cases is not dependent on the value of any other single variable or set of variables. That variable is controlled by a judge's bias, prejudice, conflict of interests, or personal agenda, for there is no rational explanation in a system of justice governed by the rule of law that accounts for A parties winning 100% of cases when opposing Z parties, even where any two A parties have diametrically opposite values for all other variables, that is, they are completely different in every other respect, nevertheless they win merely because each is an A party opposing a Z party.

297. In this illustration, the political affiliation variable allows for proof of a judge's bias or prejudice: When opposing parties were both A parties or Z parties, there was no single variable that accounted for a party winning or losing 100% of cases. However, parties that were war veterans opposing non-veterans won 7 out of 10 cases; parties suing for, let's say, breach of contract won in 8 out of 10 cases; and parties defending against a charge of domestic abuse won in 9 out of 10 cases. Each of these three variables is dependent variables because none of each could determine the outcome of 100% of cases. Nonetheless, in combination they could become independent variables, and thus outcome-determinative: In litigation before the judge being audited where both parties were either A or Z parties, if a party was a war veteran and was suing for breach of contract, it won in 100% of cases.

298. The above makes the usefulness of the software product for auditing a judge's decisions patently obvious: An A party opposing a Z party could be all but certain of prevailing. Consequently, it would have no interest in either having the judge recuse himself or in settling with the opposing Z party on terms any lesser than the full relief requested. The same would hold true for a war veteran suing a non-veteran for breach of contract. The opposite would be the case for a Z party and for a non-veteran being sued for breach of contract: They would have every interest in petitioning the judge to recuse himself and doing so by invoking the evidence of his bias; otherwise, they would want to settle even by agreeing to the relief requested and thereby avoiding the expense of a judicial proceeding with a predetermined outcome adverse to them.

299. In the same vein but to varying degrees, a war veteran who learned that he had a 70% probability of winning over a non-veteran; a party suing for breach of contract with an 80% probability of winning; and a party defending against a domestic abuse charge with a 90% winning probability would find such information significant in devising their respective litigation strategy. By the same token, a retired policeman suing an employed civilian; a party suing on reasonable reliance on an implied promise or estoppel by laches; and a party defending against a charge of assaulting another company executive officer could devise their litigation strategy by applying by analogy those statistics in the absence of statistics bearing on the specific variable values of their respective cases.

300. Likewise, law enforcement authorities, judicial performance commissions, and the proposed citizen boards of judicial accountability and discipline will use this product to determine whether there is probable cause to investigate a judge that has a record of ensuring a win for 100% of A parties opposing Z parties. Their attention will also be drawn to a judge whose record shows a pattern of partiality toward certain types of parties and subject matters.

(1) Enhancing the usefulness of statistics on a judge through comparison with judicial baselines

301. The statistics on auditing a judge's decisions take on much more significance when they are compared with their equivalent for all judges of her court, district, circuit, and judiciary. Each such level in the hierarchy of aggregates of judges can have its own winning frequency average and frequency percentage for each variable value. These comparative statistics represent baselines. The more a judge's winning frequency and, particularly, her frequency percentage for a given value deviate from the corresponding baseline, the more they point to the judge's anomalous behavior, which may signal wrongdoing.

302. To determine whether an audited judge's anomalous behavior results from wrongdoing the statistics on her can be vetted through a series of reasonable factual considerations; e.g., her unusually high number of winning defendants of Chinese descent is due to the fact that her judicial district includes China Town; the unusually high percentage of white collar convictions in cases before her is the result of the election of a district attorney who ran on a platform of holding accountable financial institution officers who organized or tolerated abusive subprime mortgage lending and, in addition, a pool of jurors particularly outraged by a notorious case of egregious abuse involving the husband of the state senate majority leader; her unusually high percentage of doctors held liable for high medical malpractice judgments is related to her having lost her kid brother when the apartment building that he was visiting collapsed due to a negligent engineering design.

303. Other patterns and trends may underlie a judge's decisions and come to light by auditing those decisions. The resulting statistics are revealing in themselves and even more so when compared with those on each level in the hierarchy of aggregates of judges, such as:

   a. the winning or losing of parties and:

      1) their wealth as well as the deciding judge's or panel judges';

      2) their pro se or counseled status, and if the latter, whether representation was provided by a solo practitioner or a small or medium firm or rather a large law firm capable or with a history of appealing unfavorable decisions and bringing their appeals to the attention of the media;

      3) their race; sexual or political orientations; religion; area of residence; employment status, type, and level; ethnicity; nationality; celebrity status and connection to important people; etc.;

4) similarities between the investment portfolios of the judges of a court that cannot be explained by separate but coincidental investment decisions, and that point to either a group of people trading on inside information or acting as an investment syndicate and may having as their priority, not the administration of justice according to the rule of law, but rather the preservation of their portfolio value and enhancement of their return on investment[30];

b. granting or denying of bail, its amount, and imposition of other conditions restricting movement to a house, a geographic area, the wearing of an electronic bracelet[270], their consideration of the sentencing guidelines when imposing terms of imprisonment and other criminal punishment; etc.

(2) The archetype of judicial performance and the judge's decision auditing model

304. The auditing of individual judges' decisions and the calculation of baselines on aggregates of judges can provide a data rich, fact-based understanding of the qualitative and quantitative metrics of judges' performance realistic enough to enable the development of an archetype of judicial performance with disciplinary and prescriptive function.

305. The auditing statistics and the objective, factual considerations applied to test a judge's anomalous deviations from the baselines can provide the basis for developing a judge's decision auditing model. Its ever-greater sophistication can be the result of an ever more complex algorithm that takes into account general judiciary variable values adjusted by extra-judicial or judge-specific considerations. An algorithm can identify the one variable value or set of variable values that is most highly correlated to the respective case outcome.

306. The model's usefulness will be established to the extent to which it will produce full range predictive statistical probabilities that are reliable, to wit, that the model can predict with a degree of probability ever closer to 100% not only the final win or loss outcome of any given case before the audited judge for any given party, but also the content and outcome of the many intervening rulings on motions and objections and such predictions are correct in 100% of cases or a percentage ever closer thereto. The capacity to predict such range of probabilities will require, of course, that in addition to auditing the writings of a judge, the writings of or about other subjects of a case, such as attorneys, jurors, and circumstantial considerations, be audited and that all of them be profiled.

307. Such a vastly complex statistical model, whose most important variables are eminently psychological and sociological, is theoretical possible without the need to assume that human beings are predetermined to behave in a certain way. Rather, it suffices to assume that every individual is motivated by a hierarchy of harmonious and conflicting interests, that he or she pursues such interests in a sufficiently rational way to manifest them in patterns and trends of behavior characterized by constant elements, and that the interaction of a group of individuals is a system of interests susceptible to dynamic analysis of harmonious and conflicting interests.[187] That analysis can be infinitely refined incrementally by the dynamic reconfiguration of the system as not only existing interests exit it, new ones enter it, and those in it are modified by the constant flow of knowledge, but also as the relative position of the interests on that hierarchy and the strength of their hold on that position are constantly recalibrated more accurately through an ever more perceptive analysis of the patterns and trends through which they manifest themselves. While this means that the system of interests of an individual and of a group is neither close nor stable so that even theoretically no analysis will ever be able to predict the system's behavior with 100% accuracy, it also means an analysis that dynamically takes into account changes and is ever more perceptive of the patterns and trends that give constancy to the system will be able to predict ever more accurately the system's behavior. The set of rules that allows such analysis to be performed constitutes a model.

---

[270] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Legal_news.pdf >Ln:147, 152

308. Computer models of hurricane behavior are used today to warn millions of people that they are in harm's way and advise them on how to protect themselves. Those models have become more reliable than watching birds fly away from a cloudy sky. Medical expert systems are being developed to make patient diagnoses more accurate than those made by doctors with different degrees of training, amount of information, and mental acuity due to sleep deprivation, emotional problems, sympathy for the patient, etc. The principles and techniques underlying those models and systems as well as others will be applied in an innovative way to the field of law by this software product as part of the pioneering work of the institute of judicial unaccountability reporting and reform advocacy and its development of this auditing and profiling software product.

b) Linguistic and literary forensic auditing

309. This feature of the software product focuses its auditing on the idiosyncratic use of language by an author –who in the early stages of product development and use will be the judge(jur:132§3) in the case to be filed or already at bar; eventually other subjects of the legal system will also be audited–. It searches for patterns of speech to construct text, done by linguistic auditing, or for the message in the text and its meaning, done by literary auditing. The forensic versions of these two types of language-centered auditing aim to determine authorship of judicial decisions and reveal traits of the author's character as well as formal elements and substantive components of his writing.

310. A better understanding can thus be gained of the audited judge's way of reasoning, beliefs, expedient statements (those that he makes for reasons other than because he believes in them) and attitudes, all of which may have influenced or even determined the outcome of previous cases and may likewise affect the current case. Such understanding can enable private parties to devise legal strategy accordingly. It may bear on whether to file a case in a court where it may come before the audited judge or whether to pursue his recusal or disqualification. But the strategy may also deal with how to argue a case to that judge as a result of having gained a better understanding of him. Likewise, a better understanding of the judge gained through this auditing can enable public parties to determine whether there is probable cause to investigate the judge for wrongdoing and, if warranted, hold him accountable and liable to discipline or impeachment.

311. The data sources of linguistic and literary forensic auditing are broader than those used to audit a judge's decisions(jur:150¶337). They include:

    a. the audited judge's judicial and non-judicial writings, such as articles in law journals and newspapers of more or less reputation; books; etc.; and

b. available writings of other people, such as:

1) his clerks' letters, memos, and articles;

2) motions and briefs of lawyers that have appeared before the judge or his peers;

3) law research and writing papers, student notes for law journals, moot court briefs, and articles by other people submitted at law schools to law school journals, moot court competitions, and other publishers where the judge and his peers teach or to which they are connected as moot court judges or law article reviewers or submitters.

312. The search function of a computer can only perform the very limited aspect of linguistic auditing of finding the recurrence of previously identified words and phrases. Boolean terms and connectors can only serve to find some variations of the search term and its relation to another or to the context. A natural language search engine operates by searching for text that contains terms already contained in the search query or variations thereof and ordering the resulting text by highest frequency. Neither of these search methods is capable of performing the type of analysis that linguistic auditing is intended to do: analyze the structure of language used in a piece of text and detect its fine peculiarities so distinctly as to be able to identify who is or is not its author. The above statements apply even more squarely to performing literary auditing, for it analyzes text to reveal its author's character and intention as well as his message and its meaning. These two types of auditing call for the innovative application of the discriminating capacity, which mimics critical judgment, of artificial intelligence.

(1) Linguistic auditing

313. Linguistic auditing is the more mechanical analysis of these two types of language-based auditing. It deals with an author's idiosyncratic use of language. The auditing begins with her choice of words, which reflects the level, extent, and geography of her vocabulary, and her spelling of those words, which concerns their morphology; moves on to her use of those words as the grammatical units of language –articles, nouns, pronouns, adjectives, prepositions, verbs, adverbs, conjunctions, and interjections–; to arrive at her linkage of those words through syntax, that is, the lineal, one-after-the-other order, affected by punctuation, in which she places her words to construct sentences that contain the logical components of linguistic communication: a subject, a predicate, and their complements. The author's choice of words and the syntactical structure in which she puts them together are supposed to be understood, that is, to convey a message in a given language, English in our case, as opposed to being nothing but an incomprehensible string of words although each separately may have some meaning.

314. Linguistic auditing limits its analysis to the choice of words and their structure, and does not reach the message or its meaning. But that is enough to be richly informative. This is so because those words and their structure have so many features that their particular combination can be special enough, if not unique, to allow the author to be identified: A piece of writing whose author is not known can be compared to exemplars, that is, other writings whose authors are known, and the similarities between the former and at least one of the latter can identify the author of both. However, such identification may not be possible because the author has not written any other piece or none of his other pieces is in the pool available for comparison. Even so, the linguistic auditing of an unidentifiable author can still be richly informative. It can indicate whether the author is a native speaker of the language of the writing, his level of education and social status, age, attention to detail, where he has lived, his intended audience, etc.

(2) Linguistic forensic auditing

315. Linguistic forensic auditing allows the determination whether a judicial decision purportedly written by a judge was actually written by someone else. This can reveal the judge's dereliction of duty by making an unlawful delegation of judicial power in order not to make the effort to deal with certain types of parties, such as pro ses, or subject matters, such as those found distasteful or too complex, or to free up her time for other activities, such as court administrative tasks or self-promoting writing and public speaking.

316. To that end, linguistic forensic auditing can compare the judges' writings and those of others in order to establish or provide foundation for the queries:

    a. whether the judge or a clerk, who may have just graduated from law school, a law student clerking for a summer or only part-time during the academic year wrote the text in question;

    b. whether the nature and amount of judicial authority delegated to a clerk allowed him through his research, legal thinking, and writing to:

        1) decide a thorny or novel legal issue;

        2) create or depart from precedent;

        3) deprive parties of their property and liberty and harm substantially or even dramatically their lives by impairing their medical, parental, privacy, stockholder, voting, and similar rights and thereby injure their means, manner, and opportunity to do business or gain their livelihoods; and through the precedential effect of decisions, also affect similarly non-parties, even the rest of the people;

    c. whether a contributing or the determining factor in delegating the writing of a decision was the preceding marking of it "not for publication" or "not precedential"(jur:43§1) or whether being so marked was the consequence of the decision's substandard quality resulting from having been written by someone else less competent than the judge[131];

    d. what the judge was doing to earn his well above the average salary of Americans[212] when he was having someone else write the decision.

(3) Literary forensic auditing

317. Literary auditing performs the more subtle analysis of one piece of writing and most effectively of many pieces, such as transcripts, opinions, and articles, of the same author. It deals with their semantic aspect, that is, the explicit message that the author conveys to his interlocutor or reader and the implicit message that he sends intentionally or unwittingly in his subtext and that reveals his reasoning, interests, and attitudes, including wrongful ones, such as bias, prejudice, conflict of interests, and personal agenda. Thus, literary auditing allows the understanding of the author's character as well as his message.

(a) Revealing the author's character

318. Literary forensic auditing can reveal a judge's (and eventually other legal system subjects'):

a. preference for deductive or inductive reasoning;

b. deference to, or defiance of, precedent and personal reputation of legal authority;

c. understanding of scientific, mathematical, and statistical evidence and embrace of it, which may come to light in a judge's reference to it in the jury instructions or reluctance to make the effort to understand it and deal with it;

d. reliance on personal opinion and conclusory statements or logical arguments, which may point to a dogmatic or professorial attitude;

e. richly or scantly detailed presentation of evidence and theories of the case;

f. propensity or reluctance to accord credibility to testimonial, physical, and circumstantial evidence and its effect on a judge's decisions on admissibility;

g. laziness or hard-working ethos and lack or abundance of self-confidence that determine her propensity to:

1) remain in the safety zone of precedent;

2) depart or overturn precedent;

3) accept or reject new legal theories and the request to create new rights;

4) uphold or strike down the constitutionality of a law;

5) accept a proposed brief with an innovative argument that she may incorporate in her opinion or law journal article to make it appear as her own and be given credit for it as if it were such or ignore it in reliance on her own intellectual capacity and out of pride in her own intellectual accomplishments;

h. leniency or harshness in her decisions.

(b) Detecting the author's implicit message

319. Reading a piece of writing for its explicit message requires choosing a meaning among various possible meanings of each word in the context of the various meanings of each of the other words in a string of words forming a unit of thought, such as a sentence or a paragraph. Through this mental exercise, it is possible to determine the composite, explicit message of all the words together. That is a difficult task for a human mind, let alone for a software product. For such a product to replicate this exercise, it must be capable of 'understanding' the same explicit message that would be understood by the average speaker of that language who is a member of the author's intended audience. That presupposes reason and the exercise of critical judgment. It calls for the software to run on artificial intelligence. But even if the product can recognize the writing's explicit message, that remarkable accomplishment alone is not enough to qualify as literary auditing, never mind its forensic version.

320. The valuable contribution of literary auditing lies in using that explicit message that is literally – or visibly, as it were– conveyed by a string of words forming text –thus, a comprehensible piece of writing– as a stepping stone to the implicit message carried by its subtext. That requires an even more sophisticated reading. It must analyze the explicit message of a string of words or compare that of two or more strings in order to detect what is not explicitly in any one string, but rather only implicitly. That implicit message may consist in the author's true, consistent revelation of his character or meaning that runs in the subtext of his explicit message or his development, refinement, and modification of that meaning, as well as his misconceptions, ambiguities, inconsistencies, contradictions, misrepresentations, and lies. Therein lies the value of literary auditing: in detecting an author's implicit message in one or more of his writings that he may not even be aware of, would not want to convey if he were aware of it, or that he is very much aware of but sends out in the expectation that the same writing will not reach his different audiences so that he can convey to each audience different, even inconsistent and contradictory messages.

321. It should be apparent that the user of the forensic version of literary auditing, whether she be a lawyer, not to mention a skillful one, or a person similarly situated, can make a powerful argument based on her detection of the implicit message of an author, whether such author is the judge in the case to be filed or already at bar, opposing counsel, the writer of a contract, a letter, a complaint, or any other document that may be introduced into evidence or otherwise used in the case, or of course, those who wrote laws, regulations, or opinions that may come into play or are already referred to in the case. What is more, well before the literary forensic auditing user makes any argument in writing or orally, she can put what she has learned through it to work very advantageously: She can use it to devise legal strategy or as a source of probable cause to open an official investigation of either the author, his peers, or other people.

322. However, literary auditing comes at a high cost. For one thing, it relies heavily on comparative analysis. Consequently, it should review the largest amount possible of the author's writings in order to increase the probability of stumbling upon unknown passages that when compared with known passages will reveal in greatest detail, and thus, with greatest reliability, his character and implicit message. Such comparative analysis is most effectively performed by one mind, that is, one person. It is inefficient, if not impossible, for a team of persons to exchange constantly between them everything in an author's writings that each has read in a joint effort to paint with many hands the picture of his character or for each team member to recognize that a passage that standing alone does not reveal any implicit message should nevertheless be brought to the attention of the team so that it can puzzle that passage and all other passages together into the author's implicit message.

323. Moreover, literary forensic auditing must be performed by people that have at the very least enough legal training or experience to recognize the potential in an implicit message: The message may reveal what the author must have known at the time of writing; provide a foothold for a persuasive argument based on what appears to be a point of honor or pride for the author; allow drawing up an alternative theory of the case; hint at a new line of questioning; expose a psychological pressure point, an evidentiary trump card, or a financial vulnerability of the author or another person; open the door to pin down the author to his consistent message or impeach his credibility with inconsistent messages; etc. If the user lacks the capacity or the contextual knowledge and imagination to use the implicit message creatively, detecting such message will serve no purpose. Making comparative analysis between string of words, passages, and pieces of writings possible and cost-effective in search of the author's character and valuable implicit messages is what justifies the development and use of a software product that runs on artificial intelligence and is able to perform literary forensic auditing. It can give the user an outcome-determinative competitive advantage grounded in the axiom "Knowledge is Power".

7) Judge profiling software

324. Profiling is what the FBI and other intelligence-gathering entities do to detect past and potential criminal and terrorist behavior of any American citizen and any other person. It is what jury consultants do: In light of their client's case and the legal interests of the parties, they draw up questionnaires for veniremembers, taking into account their past and present socio-economic, educational, family, and employment circumstances; case-related experience and criminal record; and even their race, ethnicity, gender, and sexual orientation as well as information obtained by conducting their own investigations. Based on the veniremembers' answers, the consultants establish the profile of those that their clients should accept or challenge, and if the latter, whether for cause or as a peremptory strike. After the jury has been seated, the consultants advise their client on how to tailor its presentation of the case to the jury given its individual and collective psychological make-up; the probability based thereon that it will return a verdict one way or another; and whether to go to verdict, settle, or plea bargain.

325. This means that profiling is not a per se pejorative term reserved for the use by police of suspect categories to decide whom to stop, frisk, and arrest. Rather, profiling is a technique for behavioral analysis. Its purpose is to identify the fundamental and constant character traits of an individual in the context of his circumstances in order to draw up a picture of him that has a behavioral predictive function, that is, how his character and circumstances forecast his future behavior. Profiling:

    a. gathers extensive data of various types on the universal set of the population under study and individual members of it;

    b. analyzes that data scientifically to detect patterns of general and individual behavior; and

    c. calculates the statistical probability that certain character traits and circumstances influenced or determined a person's behavior in the past as well as the probability that they will do likewise when dealing with situations similar to those in the past or with new ones.

326. As such, profiling is a scientific technique accepted by the relevant expert community, including lawyers. Consequently, the institute researchers will apply these accepted profiling principles and techniques, mutatis mutandis, to provide a scientifically objective basis for calculating the statistical probability that the character and circumstances of a trial or appellate judge(jur:132§3) will influence or determine his handling in a certain way of a case to be filed or already at bar given the case's features. A software product that can output such behavior-analyzing profile with predictive function will be indisputably valuable. Today, parties estimate the likely impact of a judge on a case by venturing an educated guess or relying on a layperson's impression. The product will enable private users to make the qualitative quantum leap of devising legal strategy on the solid platform of extensive data on a judge's past written and verbal conduct scientifically analyzed by computer models to calculate the statistical probability of the judge behaving in a certain way. It will also enable public users to rely on statistical probability to determine the strength of their probable cause to open an official investigation for wrongdoing(jur:133§4). Users' reliance on the product will depend on its empirically demonstrated degree of accuracy, that is, how accurately its profile and behavioral probability forecast future behavior and the facts that a subsequent investigation would find.

327. Profiling a judge may also include the following types of research:

    a. legal analysis to determine whether the judge's decisions, non-judicial writings, and activities abide by, or disregard, the law, whether due to his wrong or incompetent understanding of it or to his wrongful attitudes –bias, prejudice, conflict of interests, personal agenda–; for this type of critical analysis to be performed by computers so that its result is objective enough to win the approval of a majority of reasonable and fair-minded critics there will have to be developed a highly advanced software program that relies on artificial intelligence; meantime, that legal analysis will be performed by researchers;

b. interviews with people for inside information about judges, clerks, their relation to insiders, etc., initially concerning the Federal Judiciary and progressively state judiciaries too(jur:106§c);

c. opinion polls and surveys;

d. use of facial recognition software to match photos in yearbooks, newspapers, the Internet, in court publications, taken at interviews and other meetings, etc., to establish the identity of people that may have legally changed their names or assumed new names to hide their identity, which may reveal the members in the judge's social circles and help draw up the sociogram showing the flow of influence[271];

e. computer and field search for evidentiary documents concerning wrongdoing, including:

   1) unreported trips[272] or attendance to seminars;

   2) non-disclosed receipt of gifts;[275]

   3) refusal to recuse so as to prevent discovery of wrongdoing or advance an improper interest;[271b]

   4) hidden assets and money laundering(jur:65§§1-3);

   5) other forms of illegal activity that support civil or criminal charges(jur:71§4); [271] a) The spectacular finding of a photo showing a state justice socializing at a posh seashore resort in southern France with a party who had contributed over $3 million to his judicial race and who subsequently won a case before him where scores of millions of dollars were at stake led to litigation all the way to the Supreme Court and to vacating the decision in favor of that party; Caperton v. Massey, slip opinion, 556 U. S. __(2009), http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Caperton_v_Massey.pdf.

---

b) The Supreme Court has indicated that recusal does not require proof of actual bias, but rather a showing of circumstances "in which experience teaches that the probability of actual bias on the part of the judge or decision-maker is too high to be constitutionally tolerable." (emphasis added) Withrow v. Larkin, 421 U.S. 35, 47 (1975).

c) In Caperton it "stressed that it was not required to decide whether in fact [the judge] was influenced [by one of the litigants]. The proper constitutional inquiry is whether sitting on the case then before [him] would offer a possible temptation to the average judge to lead him not to hold the balance nice, clear and true…[where] the probability of actual bias rises to an unconstitutional level [recusal is required]." (internal quotations omitted; Caperton, pages 8-9, 16) "Circumstances and relationships must be considered." (id., 10); d) See also fn.272

[272] Chief Judge Hogan, chair of the Executive Committee of the Judicial Conference of the U.S., admits that some judges fail to report trips and to recuse themselves despite having investments in companies that are involved in cases before them; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/J_Hogan_JudConf_Exec_Com_aug8.pdf

f. establishment and operation of an 800 hotline number for reporting judicial wrongdoing and receiving other investigative tips.

8) A judge's fairness and impartiality appearance coefficient

328. A judge's fairness and impartiality appearance coefficient will express in a numerical value people's expectation of the capacity of a judge to conduct a fair and impartial judicial proceeding. The coefficient will be a function of the attribution to the judge of bias, prejudice, conflict of interests, and his personal agenda as well as the congruence of the judge's declarations, e.g., his financial disclosure reports and filings with property registries.

329. The data sources of this coefficient will be those used for auditing decisions and profiling. The calculation of the coefficient will be based on a balancing test of the weight to be assigned[273] to the different data sources given the nature of the information obtained from them and its impact on the fact and appearance of a judge's ability to conduct fair and impartial proceedings. For instance, the results of auditing a judge's decisions will be most objective and useful because by their own nature they will be expressed in sums and percentages. By contrast, assigning weights to other people's opinions about a judge will be a more subjective exercise. It will require the detection in the largest possible database of judges' auditing and profiling results of patterns of correlation between objective auditing values and subjective opinions.

330. The coefficient will allow comparison between judges through the development of a rating system based on the realistic determination of a minimum level of acceptable judicial fairness and impartiality as well as ranges of acceptability above the minimum that attract ever greater levels of reward and recognition or below the minimum that warrant advice and training, monitoring, admonition, censure, suspension, and referral to the U.S. House of Representatives (or equivalent state body in the case of state judges) for impeachment and removal.

9) The ratio and coefficients concerning extra-judicial activity and the patterns of time-consuming activities

331. The judicial to extra-judicial activity ratio will compare the amount of time and effort that the audited judge dedicates to his extra-judicial activities relative to the time and effort that he dedicates to his judicial ones. An objective basis for calculating the ratio can be found, on the one hand, in the judge's calendar and docket and, on the other hand, the time of day of the courses that he teaches as an adjunct professor at a law school; the moot court sessions that he judges; the presentations that he makes of his books, reports, etc., together with the travel time to and from the respective places.(jur:54§d) Likewise, the number of a judge's written decisions and their number of words can make it possible to estimate the time it must have taken the judge to write them.[274]

---

[273] A similar statistical exercise is performed by the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts in determining "weighted filings" "Under this system [of weighted filings], average civil cases or criminal defendants each receive a weight of approximately 1.0; for more time-consuming cases, higher weights are assessed (e.g., a death penalty habeas corpus case is assigned a weight of 12.89); and cases demanding relatively little time from district judges receive lower weights (e.g., a defaulted student loan case is assigned a weight of 0.10)." 2008 Annual Report of the Director of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts; http://www.uscourts.gov/Statistics/JudicialBusiness/JudicialBusiness2008.aspx >PDF version and also Judicial Business >pp. 23 and 38; and http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/AO_Dir_Report_08.pdf >23 and 38.

332. By taking into account the extent to which the extra-judicial activities take place during regular business hours it should be possible to calculate a coefficient of extra-judicial activities impact measuring the impact of a judge's extra-judicial activities on his judicial ones[273]. The calculation of the coefficient is warranted by the intuitive correlation that arises from the indisputable fact that a worker's effort, attention span, and time are finite resources and cannot be dedicated simultaneously to two or more activities that the worker is required to perform personally rather than by delegation. Therefore, it is to be expected that:

    a. the higher a judge's:

        1) number of articles and books published as a private person;

        2) time and effort dedicated to researching and writing them;

        3) participation in judicial committees and non-judicial committees and activities, such as:

            a) teaching courses;

            b) moot court judging;

            c) public speaking;

            d) attendance at judicial seminars and conferences;

            e) attendance at non-judicial meetings of boards of charities, universities, law schools, and other entities, etc.,

    b. the higher the number of the judge's summary orders and "not for publication" and "not precedential" decisions(jur:43§1); and

    c. the lower the judge's:

        1) coefficient of administered justice, which expresses the number and quality of reasoned published decisions satisfying the need for "Justice [that is] manifestly and undoubtedly [to] be seen to be done"[71]; and

        2) coefficient of judicial service rendered, which expresses the time dedicated to the judicial activities for which the judge is compensated by the taxpayer with a salary in the top 2% of income earners in our country[212] relative to the baselines, namely,

---

274 Lawyers Cooperative Publishing used to estimate that it took the lawyers on the staff of its American Law Reports Federal series (ALR Fed) four hours to research and write a page of their annotations. Law schools normally allow the full time instructors that join their faculty to prepare for and teach during their first academic semester or year only one 3-hour per week course in addition to holding a similar number of office hours to meet with their students and attending faculty meetings. Print media measure the work required of reporters in terms of, let's say, two weekly articles each of X no. of words or Y no. of inches of standard column width. Just as it is possible to calculate "reasonable attorney's fees" and the cost of writing an appellate brief, it is possible to calculate the time that it takes a judge to research and write so many words per decision.

the average time spent on judicial activities by the judges in her court, district, circuit, and judiciary, and the non-judicial officers in their judiciary, and the time spent on official activities by officers in the other branches of government who earn the closest salaries to the judges'.

333. It may be difficult for outside researchers to measure the time that a judge dedicates to different activities if the researchers do not have access to the time sheets or similar managerial devices that record time spent by judges on each activity and that are used by courts and the Administrative Office of the U.S. Court to calculate "weighted filings"[273]. Nevertheless, valuable insight into judges' time management can be gained by establishing patterns of time-consuming activities, such as:

   a. the signing of summary orders and "not for publication" and "not precedential" opinions (jur:43§1) just before or after a judge:

      1) goes on holiday;

      2) attends a seminar or a judicial conference, particularly if she must prepare to present a paper or a committee report;

      3) needs to grade the exams of the students that she teaches as an adjunct professor;

      4) is engaged in a series of presentations of her newly released book;

      5) is occupied by her own or a friend or family member's:

         a) medical treatment;

         b) divorce or wedding;

         c) death or child birth;

         d) money-making activities, such as a company incorporation or a merger or acquisition, which may be signaled by changes in investment portfolios and other items of personal and family wealth;

   b. handling of recusal motions, particularly those that are granted and thereby lessen the weight of the case load and free up time for other activities;

   c. attendance at seminars, conferences, and political meetings;

   d. participation in fundraising, whether by just 'attending' a political party's fundraising activity[275] or that of a school, charity, etc.

334. As in the case of totals and other statistics calculated in decision auditing(jur:138§(1), the ratio, coefficients, and patterns used here will gain in significance when compared with their equivalents and averages for the judges of a court, district, circuit, or judiciary. The latter can be

---

[275] In light of mounting reports of improper conduct by U.S. Supreme Court justices, such as JJ. Scalia, Thomas, and Alito, Congressman Chris Murphy and 42 other members of the US HR called on the House Judiciary Committee to hold hearings on HR 862, the Supreme Court Transparency and Disclosure Act, which aims to subject the justices to the Code of Conduct for U.S. Judges[123a]; to require that justices state their reasons for granting and denying motions that they recuse themselves from hearing certain cases; and to require the Judicial Conference of the U.S. to draw up a procedure for reviewing such denials; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/HR_SCt_ethics_reform_9sep11.pdf used as baselines, the deviations from them measured, and the effort to explain them undertaken. This comparative exercise may find that the greater a judge's extra-judicial activities, the greater the deviation of his metrics from the corresponding baselines. It may be possible to express those deviations in a single, composite metric called a judge's judicial performance coefficient.

335. For instance, it can be found that a judge that teaches a course at a law school has an 84% probability of deviating from the average performance more than 90% of all other judges. Expressed in simpler illustrative terms, it could be found that 8 out of every 10 of those 'teaching' judges write decisions whose average length is 500 words while the average word count for non-teaching judges is 2000 words; that on average they have only 1 citation to authority as opposed to the average 12 for non-teaching judges; and that they cite no page of any brief or motion in the case while the average for non-teaching judges is 7. These statistics would support the argument that a judge with such time-consuming outside commitment gives short shrift to her writing of opinions, which are more likely to be arbitrary because the judge did not have enough time to pay due regard to the law or enough sense of professional responsibility to bother to read the briefs and motion.

336. A further statistical refinement could establish that the higher the judge's evaluation by her law school students and the higher the reputation of the school, the lower her opinions' count of words and citations. This would indicate that the focus of her attention is her teaching job, where the students' evaluations of her performance may be publicly posted, and it is merely as a secondary job for extra cash that she deals with her judgeship, where she is not evaluated by either litigants or her peers and the quality of her judicial performance has no positive or negative consequence on her tenure or salary. Yet, she, like the other 'teaching' judges, collects the same salary from taxpayers as non-teaching judges do. A similar analysis can be carried out to determine any correlation between judges that are prolific writers of articles in prestigious law journals and of books that receive public acclaim but scribble judicial decisions. After all, there are only so many hours in a day. Something has to give.

10) Product's arc of operation: input data > computerized analysis >output statistics

337. The data sources supporting the product will be of several types:

   a. the product for auditing a judge's decisions will be based only on the judge's case-intrinsic sources, that is, her decisions, which include:

      1) holdings and dicta in her published and "not for publication" as well as precedential and "not precedential" opinions(jur:43§1);

      2) concurrent and dissenting opinions;

      3) rulings written and signed by the judge;

      4) transcribed orders issued orally from the bench or elsewhere, such as in chambers, as well as all her comments made in such context;

      5) summary orders;

      6) letters relating to cases before the judge;

      7) per curiam decisions of panels on which the judge sat

8) the judge's voting on petitions for:

a) panel rehearing and hearing en banc(jur:45§2);

b) review of dismissals by the chief circuit judge of misconduct complaints against judges(jur:24§§b,c);

b. the profiling of the judge will be based on the above case-intrinsic sources and also on:

1) the judge's case-extrinsic sources, such as his:

a) books and articles in law journals, magazines, newsletters, and newspapers;

b) appearances and postings on the Internet, including emails, blogs, social media, websites, chat rooms;

c) financial disclosure reports213[a] and documents filed with county clerks' offices and other public registries242 of chattel, real, and time share property as well as land, sea, air vessels and rights, such as leases, patents, and contracts;

d) speeches, panel participation, comments, and statements at his or other judges' induction into the court and other court ceremonies, judicial conferences, hearings before Congress and other official federal or state bodies, seminars, bar association meetings, university or law school activities, charity board sessions, radio and TV appearances;

e) school where the judge held or holds an adjunct professorship;

f) submissions to commissions and committees tasked with recommending, nominating, and confirming candidates for judgeships and with reviewing judicial performance;

g) recommendations, including those in support of a job search, a lawyer's admission to the bar, or to a court pro hac vice;

h) letters unrelated to his cases, whether or not they are on his official letterhead;

i) previous private or public sector positions;

j) honorary titles and memberships;

k) department of vehicles driving licensing registration;

l) membership in clubs, charity boards, and law school committees;

m) photos and movie clips and journalistic footage[276];

n) yearbooks and records of the judge's alma matter law school, college, and high school; etc.;

2) judiciary sources that shed light directly or indirectly on the judge or on the

---

276 "Caperton sought rehearing, and the parties moved for disqualification of three of the five justices who decided the appeal. Photos had surfaced of Justice Maynard vacationing with Blankenship in the French Riviera while the case was pending. Justice Maynard granted Caperton's recusal motion." Caperton v. A. T. Massey Coal Co., 129 S. Ct. 2252 (2009), at page 4 of the Opinion of the Court.

background of her activities or particular acts, such as

a) dockets and judges' calendars;

b) memoranda, notes, and letters of the judge's law clerks and clerks of court;

c) court or court administration bodies' statistics, reports, newsletters, biographic notes on judges;

d) statements before Congress and other official bodies;

e) statements by third parties at the judge's induction in the court and similar court ceremonies;

f) a court's or peers' recognition of the judge's performance or public censure;

g) statements by other judges reflecting their opinion of the judge, such as those contained in concurrent and dissenting opinions[68];

h) the types of case-extrinsic sources, such as publications and media, listed at jur:150¶337; etc.;

3) non-judiciary sources[277] that directly or indirectly reflect the opinion on the judge:

a) held by:

(1) lawyers;

(2) journalists;

(3) parties;

(4) academic superiors;

(5) peers;

(6) students where the judge studied or where he has taught;

(7) friends, family, and neighbors;

(8) other members of the public; etc.

b) contained in:

(1) motions and briefs, including amicus curie briefs;

(2) students' and peers' evaluation of the judge's performance as instructor;

(3) laudations accompanying prizes, awards, and other forms of recognition bestowed upon the judge;

---

277 "Canon 2: A Judge Should Avoid Impropriety And The Appearance Of Impropriety In All Activities; A. Respect for Law. A judge should respect and comply with the law and should act at all times in a manner that promotes public confidence in the integrity and impartiality of the judiciary"; fn123a. The words with emphasis added underscore the fact that the judges themselves state in their own Code of Conduct for U.S. Judges that it is fair to hold them to high standards even in the extra-judicial sphere of their lives. This justifies including in their profiles non-judiciary sources.

(4) brochures and annual reports of law firms and companies;

(5) biographic notes on the judge found in Martindale-Hubbell and other legal directories;

(6) websites that rate or comment on judges;

(7) the type of case-extrinsic sources, such as publications and media, listed at jur:151¶b.1); etc.

4) public non-judiciary sources that can place the judicial and personal activities of the audited judge and of parties that have appeared or may appear before him in context (jur:108¶244), particularly those sources that can provide financial(jur:27§2) information about them, such as:

a) county clerk's offices and similar property registries[242, 243];

b) rosters of marinas, airports, and landing strips that register docking, maintenance services, and landing rights.

338. Data entry will be made by scanning print data sources to digitize and enter them into the computer system that will run the auditing program on them together with the sources already available in digital format. Spoken-to written transcribing software will be used to enter judges' original spoken statements. Optical character recognition (OCR) software will be used to turn text digitized as picture into searchable text. Both OCR and transcribing software will be further developed by institute researchers as need be.

339. Data mining text will be performed using, in addition to Boolean terms and connectors and natural language, the auditing program developed by the institute. Face recognition software will be run on pictures and movies to establish who was where, when, and with whom.

340. Data analysis will rely on the most part on innovative application of artificial intelligence. Institute researchers will develop and run the algorithms of a computer-based expert system capable of auditing a judge's decisions(jur:136§6); performing linguistic and literary auditing(jur:140§b); drawing up a judge's profile(jur:145§7); and to the extent necessary, calculation the proposed ratio, coefficients, and averages(jur:147§§8)-9))

341. The output statistics will consist in a set of metrics with predictive function on a judge's profile and her judicial performance that will allow private users to devise their legal strategy regarding the case to be filed or already at bar; and will enable public users to determine whether there is probable cause to officially investigate a judge for wrongdoing and, if warranted, hold him accountable and liable to discipline.

c. As educator

342. As educator, the institute will offer courses, such as The DeLano Case Course(dcc:1), and promote its offering by other educational institutions(dcc:7). It will also journalistically explain[256e] to the public, in general, and common-purpose entities(jur:155¶344a), in particular:

a. the forms that their unaccountability and wrongdoing take and the ways in which they manifest themselves;

b. the means, motive, and opportunity for judges to do wrong;

c. their harmful impact on litigants, the public, and government by the rule of law;

d. the conceptual and practical resources to bring about judicial accountability and discipline reform, such as:

e. democratic and ethical values, policies, and strategies, and

f. their implementing interactive multimedia and live educational, advertising, coalition-building, and lobbying activities and campaigns,

g. methods for evaluating practices, identifying the best, training in their application, and applying them;

h. development and training in the use of software applications; interactive multimedia and social networking tools and techniques; and equipment;

i. organization and teaching of seminars and courses on:

j. basic writing skills;

k. legal research and brief and article writing;

l. complaint storytelling;

m. investigative[278] and 'explainer'[256e] journalism;

n. forensic investigation and deposition taking;

o. book editing, publishing, and marketing;

p. public speaking and advocacy;

q. coalition building;

r. legislative lobbying;

s. documentary production;

t. conference organization and administration;

u. grant writing;

v. organization of meetings and conferences to develop, share, and integrate conceptual and practical resources.

d. As publisher

343. As publisher, the institute would engage in:

a. development and web publishing of an electronically accessible knowledge database of judicial unaccountability and wrongdoing that contains:

b. descriptions of their manifestations;

c. complaints about judicial wrongdoing;

d. cases on point that have been decided or are pending;

---

[278] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/DeLano_course/17Law/DrRCordero_course&project.pdf

e. the record and position of incumbent politicians, candidates for political office, and law enforcement officers on investigating, exposing, and disciplining wrongdoing judges;

f. production and sale of news, newsletters, tipsheets, articles, books, programs, and documentaries(jur:122§§2-3);

g. their publication on its own and third-party websites, newspapers, magazines, TV and radio programs, movie theaters, and other digital and electronic media;

h. research, writing, and publication of the Annual Report on Judicial Unaccountability and Wrongdoing in America: How an outraged people turned into a movement for Equal Justice Under Law(jur:126¶267).

e. As leading advocate

344. As leading advocate of judicial accountability and discipline reform, the institute will endeavor to:

a. unite in a coalition and then develop into a national movement, victims of judicial wrongdoing and common-purpose organizations, that is:

1) entities that complain about judicial wrongdoing;

2) those that act as watchdog of the whole government or only the judiciary;

3) those that can offer legal aid to complaining individuals and entities; and

4) those willing to contribute funding, technological, journalistic, and investigative know-how, logistics, advertising, and means to lobby incumbents and candidates for political office;

5) nascent movements of protest against unequal wealth distribution and abuse by banking, mortgage, and other large institutions;

b. lead:

1) the development with them of conceptual and practical resources(jur:153¶342d);

2) the organization of implementing activities and campaigns, such as advertising, public advocacy, lobbying, and litigation, to achieve the common purpose (jur:130§a); and

3) compile and maintain rosters of:

4) common-purpose organizations;

5) people likely to have experienced or witnessed judicial unaccountability and wrongdoing; and

6) attorneys willing to assist pro bono or for a fee victims of judicial wrongdoing.

f. As for-profit venture

345. As a for-profit venture, the institute will finance its activities or those of others through:

a. sale of its statistical and investigative research, reports, publications, and documentaries;

b. joint ventures and partnerships with media outlets, educational entities, investigative and publishing companies, government agencies, and nonprofit organizations;

c. fees for enrollment in its seminars and courses(dcc:1), and attendance to its conferences;

d. fees for its advocacy, consulting, and litigation services for individual or class clients;

e. subscriptions to its database of judicial unaccountability and wrongdoing;

f. donations received in response to the likes of passive "donate" web button requests on its website and the active request to the public in live programs and one-on-one contacts made during donation drives;

g. support in cash and in kind from its alumni.

g. As seeker and maker of grants

346. The seed money for the venture or complementary source of funds for its general or specific activities can come from common-purpose organizations(jur:155¶344a), as well as entities known to make philanthropic grants to others engaged in investigative journalism and certain public service endeavors -some entities facilitate contacting those that make such grants- such as:

1) Adessium Foundation
2) Annie E. Casey Foundation
3) AT&T Foundation
4) Benton Foundation
5) Bill and Melissa Gates Foundation
6) Carnegie Foundation
7) Council of Foundations
8) David and Lucile Packard Foundation
9) Entertainment Industry for Peace and Justice
10) Eugene and Agnes Meyer Foundation
11) Ford Foundation, providing funds as part of its Public Media Initiative
12) Ford Foundation's Independent Documentary Fund
13) Freedom Forum
14) John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation (provides fellowships)
15) The John S. and James L. Knight Foundation: based in Miami, funds efforts to enhance journalism and the functioning of American communities
16) Kohlberg Foundation
17) McCormick Tribune Foundation
18) Microsoft Foundation
19) National Endowment for the Arts
20) National Press Foundation
21) New America Foundation, part of a cohort of academics and journalists exploring the future of journalism, and its Media Policy Initiative
22) New America Media
23) Nieman Foundation, Harvard
24) Oak Foundation
25) Omidyar Foundation
26) Open Society Foundations

27) Packard Foundation
28) Park Foundation
29) Pew Charitable Trusts
30) Public Welfare Foundation
31) Richard Driehaus Foundation
32) Robert Wood Johnson Foundation
33) Rockefeller Foundation
34) Sandler Foundation
35) Surdna Foundation
36) Wallace Genetic Foundation
37) Waterloo Foundation

347. The institute will also engage in grantmaking to common-purpose organizations(jur:155¶344a).

348. Before the end of the presentation, the presenters can announce the next event on judicial unaccountability reporting and the formation of the business and academic venture, thus signaling a planned and sustained effort to promote its launch.

6. Establishment of an inspector general for the Federal Judiciary

349. There should be an inspector general of the Federal Judiciary (I.G.J.)[88b] and:

a. should be as independent as the members of the citizen board(jur:160¶a);

b. the board must have the exclusive right to nominate a candidate for I.G.J. to the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee for confirmation by the whole House;

c. charged with the duty to investigate the administration of the Federal Judiciary by its courts; the councils and conferences of the circuits; the Judicial Conference of the U.S.; the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts; any other similar body or officer appointed by any such body; and their utilization of the funds that they manage from whatever source they may come, whether it be congressional appropriations, court fees, or wrong-doing engaged in by a judge, any other employee of the Judiciary, or any third party;

d. empowered to exercise subpoena power to compel the appearance before it of any member of the Federal Judiciary and any other third party, and the production of documents and other things by any of them; and to enter without notice upon any premise of the Judiciary, any third party under its control or warehousing, archiving or otherwise holding any documents or other things produced or obtained by or entrusted to the Judiciary or by it to any third party; and with notice upon any premise of any other third party for inspection and discovery;

e. empowered to recommend based on information obtained from any source that any judge be criminally or civilly prosecuted by a federal or state law enforcement authority;

f. required to operate openly and transparently as the citizen board, mutatis mutandis, is(jur:161¶c).

7. Legislative proposal to ensure judicial accountability and discipline

350. The investigative reporters can use the public presentation to explain to the media and the public the content and nature of judicial accountability and discipline reform. To that end, they can identify what needs to be eliminated from the system governing the Federal Judiciary and outline what needs to be introduced therein:

a. The law[18a] that established the current system of self-policing in the Federal Judiciary must be repealed, for it is an inherently self-serving buddy system of judges judging judges who are their friends and colleagues. Their bias toward their own dooms undermines the system's trustworthiness and renders it incapable of attaining its objective. It has the pernicious defect of allowing judges, in expectation of reciprocal treatment, to dismiss systematically all complaints against their peers for wrongdoing, even such that has become gross, habitual, and widespread through coordination. Hence, it provides motive for judges to prejudge their peers' wrongdoing as harmless, which gives rise to the pervert assurance of risklessness that renders wrongdoing so irresistible as to make it inevitable.

b. In keeping with Justice Lewis D. Brandeis's dictum "Sunshine is the best disinfectant" [279], the judicial councils and all sessions of the judicial conferences of the circuits as well as the

[279] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero_proposal_synopsis.pdf

Judicial Conference of the U.S. must be open to the public.[280] Making the Federal Judiciary's internal functioning and its administration of justice open and transparent will substantially reduce the darkness of secrecy under which its judges engage in coordinated wrongdoing and cover-ups. Would anyone consider even for a nanosecond that it would be democratic to allow Congress to hold all its sessions behind closed doors, never to allow the media at cabinet meetings or the Oval Office, and to close down the White House press room because neither the president nor his aides would ever again hold press conferences or meet with journalists? Why is the Federal Judiciary allowed to engage in the equivalent conduct?

c. All procedural and internal operating rules proposed for national application or for local courts must be widely announced; comment must be requested; all comments submitted by judges and the public must be made easily available to the public on all court websites and in the clerk of court offices and other official websites(jur:160§8); and a rule must not be adopted which receives a majority of negative comments from the public.

d. The use of summary orders, which makes possible unaccountable, arbitrary, and lazy disposition of cases even without reading[281] their briefs and motions, must be prohibited. Judges must be required to provide their reasons in writing for their decisions, orders, and rulings, which must be precedential and citable in any other case. This is intended to prevent judges from issuing ad hoc fiats of abusive raw power that put an end to what in effect is a star chamber proceeding.[69]

e. The sealing of court records by judges must be prohibited because justice abhors secrecy and the abuse that it breeds so that it requires that its administration be public. However, all the parties to a case may jointly apply to a judge other than the judge presiding over the case for specific language, numbers, and certain personally and commercially sensitive information to be redacted in accordance with a set of national rules adopted for that purpose. The fundamental principle underlying those rules should be that the judge deciding on the application must take into account not only the interest of the parties, but also any sign of undue pressure by one party on the other to agree to the redaction as well as the right of the public to know all the facts of the case at bar so as to determine whether "Equal Justice Under Law" is being or was administered.

f. All members of the Federal Judiciary, including judges, clerks, other administrative personnel, and all other employees, must be duty-bound to report to both the citizen board of judicial accountability and discipline(jur:160§8) and the Oversight and Government Reform Committee of the U.S. House of Representatives[282] any reasonable belief that:

---

[280] a) On a failed attempt to do so see bill S.1873, passed on October 30, 1979, and HR 7974, passed on September 15, 1980, entitled The Judicial Councils Reform and Judicial Conduct and Disability Act of 1980; Congressional Record, September 30, 1980; 28086; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Jud_Councils_Reform_bill_30sep80.pdf. b) The Reform part of the bill included a provision for opening the councils, but was excluded from the version that was adopted; 28 U.S.C. §332(d)(1), fn.148. c) The Conduct and Disability part of it as adopted is at fn.18a.

[281] a) fn.66b; b) fn.123c >CA:1749§2;

[282] a) http://oversight.house.gov/; b) The members of the Senate Judiciary Committee, in

1) any member of the Judiciary or other third party related to the business of the courts or to any Judiciary member may have violated or may be violating or preparing to violate any constitutional, statutory, or ethical provision or may have engaged or may be engaging or preparing to engage in any impropriety; or

2) an investigation should be undertaken to determine whether such may be the case.[130] (While the devil is in the detail, the intent of the whole is divinely lucid: to replace wrongdoing-fostering, mutual survival-ensuring reciprocal cover-ups with the inside court duty and outside court information to hold judges individually and collectively accountable.)

8. Creation of citizen boards of judicial accountability and discipline

351. A citizen board of judicial accountability and discipline must be created through legislation to act as a jury of judges' layperson "peers" with the investigative and reporting duty and subpoena power of a grand jury and the fact-finding duty and sentencing power of a petit jury.

a. Qualifications for membership

352. To ensure its independence and avoid conflict of interests, its members must not be or have been members of any federal or state judiciary or otherwise related to it; not be appointed by any judge or justice; not be practicing lawyers or members of a law firm, law school or law enforcement agency or justice department; not be affiliated to any political party; not be appointed to any position in, or be hired by, any judiciary within nine years of termination of employment on the board.

b. Nominating entity

353. Board members may be recommended by public interest entities, for nomination by the House of Representatives Oversight and Government Reform Committee and confirmation by the whole House.[282] particular, and those of the Senate, in general, who voted for or against the confirmation of a presidential nominee for a judgeship are unlikely to review with sufficient impartiality any materials that subsequently may be submitted to them and lead to disciplinary action, let alone the impeachment and removal, of the nominee-turned-judge, lest they impugn their own good judgment for confirming, or strive to justify their opposition by finding at fault, him or her. Hence, the discipline of federal judges should be a constitutional 'check and balance' exercise performed by the U.S. House of Representatives, but not by its Committee on the Judiciary for similar reasons of partiality due to previous dealings with the Judiciary and its judges. Consequently, judicial discipline should be entrusted to another House committee, such as its Oversight and Government Reform Committee.

---

c. Open and transparent operation

354. The board must operate openly and transparently, and to that end, it must:

a. hold all its meetings in public both at physical venues reasonably calculated to be most easily accessible to the media and the largest number of people concerned by the matter at hand and by streaming the meeting life on the Internet;

b. provide in writing reasons for each of its decisions, which to be effective must be entered in the public record on its website and at its main and subsidiary offices where it conducts business;

c. publish a report of its activities at least every six months and make it available to the public by posting it on its website, emailing it to all courts and all subscribers, and making it available at its offices;

d. include in the report:

1) a statement of facts about its activities;

2) statistical tables showing the number of complaints received distributed into categories, and the time taken for, and nature of, their disposition;

3) an analysis of patterns and trends of the types and conduct of complainants and the complained-about; and

4) recommendations for statutory or regulatory action appropriate to ensure that:

a) judges, justices, and other officers of the Federal Judiciary, as public servants, meet their duty to observe conduct that is open, transparent, and in compliance with applicable legal and ethical requirements; afford all litigants due process of law; and adopt all necessary measures to make process accessible to most people, expeditious, and at the least cost possible;

b) the public gain a realistic perception that the Judiciary and its officers meet their duty and that justice is not only done, but is seen to be done;

e. make the report available on its website and offices for two weeks to allow time to be read;

f. present the report in the third week at a public conference, held each time in a different place of the country reasonably chosen to attract the largest number of people, where the presenters answer questions from the on-site and online public;

g. attach to the report the documents that support its findings, analysis, and recommendations as well as those that contradict, diverge from, or cast doubt on them;

h. publish on its website and make available at its offices all complaints and their accompanying documents, and documents obtained in the course of investigations and do so to the same extent to which civil and criminal complaints are publicly filed, without redacting them, except that some redactions may be made if in compliance with published redaction guidelines that aim to:

1) protect complainants from retaliation and potential witnesses from intimidation;

2) prevent identity theft;

3) ensure that complainants are not discouraged from filing in good faith responsible complaints and other documents and instead are encouraged to file them in the future;

4) prevent the impairment of investigations yet to be started or that are ongoing;

i. give notice of proposed redaction guidelines and opportunity to submit comment thereon, and make public on its website and at its offices such notice, the proposed and adopted guidelines, and the comments;

j. hold at least once a month a press conference open to on-site and online public where the several members of the board simultaneously in different parts of the country reasonably chosen to give the opportunity to different types of communities to ask questions of the presenters and be informed by them of the board's mission and activities.

d. Board powers

355. The citizen board must be empowered to:

a. receive for the public record complaints against justices, judges[283], magistrates, law clerks, clerks of court[284], court reporters[285], circuit executives[286], and administrative employees, and investigate them

b. proceed also on the basis of information received other than through a complaint;[287a]

c. exercise full subpoena power for the appearance before it of any member of the Federal Judiciary and any other third party, and the production of documents and other things by any of them;[288a-b]

d. hold hearings, which must be open to on-site and online public after adequate public notice on its website and at its offices, and take sworn testimony;

e. develop a constantly updatable code of conduct for members of the judiciary by codifying the controlling principles of its decisions as prescriptive rules that clearly establish standards of conduct generally applicable to all judges, thus providing judges and the public with reliable guidance on what constitutes and does not constitute complainable conduct, which can prevent a repeat of such conduct and assist in determining whether a given conduct gives rise to a complaint; before incorporation in the code, these rules must

---

283 a) http://judicial-discipline-reform.org/docs/DrCordero_to_Jud_Conference_18nov4.pdf and fn. 124, 152; b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero-4recuse_CJWalker_04.pdf

284 Cf. a) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/complaint_to_Admin_Office_28jul4.pdf; b) http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero-CA2_clerks_wrongdoing_15may4.pdf

285 http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_to_JConf_CtReporter_28jul5.pdf;

286 http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrRCordero-2CirExecKGMilton_mar4.pdf

287 Cf. a) fn.18a >§§351(a) and 354(b)(2); b) fn.192

288 a) fn:18a >§356; b) fn.280b >§331 4th ¶, and §332(d)(1); c) cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc291-297_assign_judges.pdf. A state citizen board could be empowered to transfer a judge to another type of court, e.g., from surrogate to traffic court, or to limit the types of cases assigned to the judge, e.g., no longer family or divorce cases.

be published for on-site and online public comment and all comments, whether by members of the Judiciary or anybody else, must be made public on its website and at its offices;

f. receive originals of comments from both members of the public and of the Judiciary and copies from the Judiciary on any rule, appointment, or other matter on which the Judiciary has requested comments and make them available to the public on its website and at its offices.

g. impose disciplinary measures on judges, such as the designation and assignment to another court[288c]; the limitation to hearing only certain types of cases, e.g., no longer criminal or bankruptcy cases; the non-assignment of new cases until pending cases have been disposed of through reasoned opinions within a certain time;

h. order the payment of compensatory, consequential, and punitive damages by judges and/or the Judiciary for the loss or injury caused or allowed to be caused to victims of judicial wrongdoing;[289]

i. recommend on the basis of information that it has obtained from any source that any judge or justice, as the public servants that they are, be criminally or civilly prosecuted by a federal or state law enforcement authority; be disbarred by the competent state authority and/or impeached and removed by Congress.

e. Review of board decisions

356. Board decisions can be appealed only to a panel of the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee, whose decision may be appealed to the Committee.

---

[289] Just as House Representatives can be fined for misconduct, so should judges be. They too should be liable to pay 'restitution' and other forms of compensation to those that they harm or from whom they have taken wrongfully. Cf. "The House may also punish a Member by censure, reprimand, condemnation, reduction of seniority, fine, or other sanction determined to be appropriate.…Some standards of conduct derive from criminal law. Violations of these standards may lead to a fine or imprisonment, or both. In some instances, such as conversion of government funds or property to one's own use or false claims concerning expenses or allowances, the Department of Justice may seek restitution." (emphasis added) House Ethics Manual, p.3; http://ethics.house.gov/; See also Rules of the House Ethics Committee, Rule 24 Sanction Hearing and Consideration of Sanctions or Other Recommendations; http://ethics.house.gov/about/committee-rules. These and other documents of the House Ethics Committee are collected at http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/HR_Ethics_Manual_Rules_Code.pdf

9. The precedent for considering realistic that those who expose judges' wrongdoing and call for their accountability and the reform of their judiciary may develop into a broadly based civic movement that demands Equal Justice Under Law

357. Common purpose entities(jur:155¶344a) and many public interest entities, judicial unaccountability journalists, journalism schools and their students and alumni, judicial accountability and discipline reform advocates, and judicial wrongdoing victims share many views and objectives. If they work together, they can bring to an audience's attention(dcc:11) facts that can outrage it and stir it into constructive action. Concretely, they can do so by reporting the already available evidence(jur:21§A) that judicial unaccountability has led judges to engage in riskless wrongdoing for their benefit and to the public's detriment. They can also provoke outrage by reporting the findings of their further investigation(jur:102§4) of such wrongdoing(jur:5§3), in general, and of the DeLano-J. Sotomayor story(jur:65§0), in particular. They can extend their reporting's reach and efficacy through the proposed business and academic venture(jur:97§1) together with the venture's investors and philanthropic sponsors.

358. Moreover, a courageous politician that commands broad media and public attention and is determined to challenge publicly life-tenured federal judges can accelerate that reporting's diffusion throughout the national public and lend credibility to it that intensifies the outrage that it provokes. Such outrage can stir the public to more widespread and sustained action against coordinated judicial wrongdoing. An outraged national public can effectively overwhelm the authorities' interest in maintaining the status quo to protect their coordination with other insiders and avoid the risk of self-incrimination, forcing them to give in to the demand that they hold wrongdoing judges and their enabling Judiciary accountable and undertake judicial accountability and discipline reform. Therefore, it is realistic to conceive that an outraged national public so stirred to action can gradually develop into a broadly based civic movement that militates for Equal Justice Under Law.

a. The Tea Party

359. A recent precedent for the development of a similar civic movement is the Tea Party. While Dr. Cordero is an Independent and does not necessarily agree with Tea Party tenets, he points to that Party as current evidence of what people can achieve when they are provoked into action by deep resentment about a perceived injustice: People who deemed that they were 'taxed enough already', bandied together to protest. Their protest resonated with ever more people as it reverberated across the country. In a remarkably short time, less than four years, they became a nationwide civic movement and even elected representatives to Congress.

360. In 2011, they strong-armed the debt ceiling debate to be resolved on their terms. They even compelled Republican Speaker John Boehner, a 21-year congressional veteran, to back down from even his overture to raising some taxes albeit modestly. Yet more revealing and precedential, their expected voting power caused all nine Republican presidential candidates to raise their hand at one of their debates in the summer to promise that they would not raise taxes regardless of how much the budget was cut. The Tea Party has become kingmaker, at least among Republicans. The next presidential elections will show whether that is the case among voters of all stripes nationwide.

b. Occupy Wall Street

361. In the same vein, the Occupy Wall Street protesters have been able to extend their following from New York City to the rest of our country with surprising speed, not to mention the demonstrations that have taken place simultaneously and under their name in several European countries and other parts of the world. To be sure, those protesters did not have to convince other people of the soundness of a new idea. Deep-seated frustration due to perceived economic injustice and experienced economic distress was already being felt by a great many people. But the protesters have caused such frustration to emerge and manifest itself in public, attracted by the identifiable and practical means of action that they have organized. Thereby the Occupy Wall Street protesters have turned a widely shared personal sentiment of impotent discontent into concrete collective action of self-assertive protest. The individual "why this's happnin' to me?", has become "WE WON'T TAKE IT ANYMORE!"

c. Bank Transfer Day

362. A third occurrence illustrates this phenomenon of protest by a few that provides the aperture for the eruption of bottled-up debilitating personal resentment into invigorating group action for redress of grievances: One person, Kristen Christian, feeling abused yet again by the biggest American banks, this time because of their announcement of their plan to impose a $5 monthly fee for the use of debit cards, called on Facebook for similarly situated cardholders to close their accounts with those banks on a given day and transfer their funds to credit unions and other small financial institutions that do not charge that type of fee.[290] Her "enough is enough!" cry and call for specific, feasible action went viral on that social network and other sectors of cyberspace. It attained the necessary 'critical hit number' to be heard by the established media, particularly the national TV networks, which amplified substantially the vibrancy of her cry and the reach of her call nationwide. The mounting negative publicity and additional criticism of that and similar practices widely portrayed as abusive, even predatory, scared and shamed one big bank after another into cancelling the announced fee exacting plan. As reported by the TV networks, more than 700,000 bank accounts were transferred as called-for on Saturday, November 5, 2011.

363. Ms. Christian's call for a "Bank Transfer Day" shows that even the smallest unit, one person, can open a vent for people's pent up anger. Moreover, that person can channel their anger constructively into a willingness to get involved in a common course of action to defend their interests. It also shows the power to influence and bring about collective action of the new means of mass communication, that is, social networking on Facebook, Twitter, and YouTube, and blogging by citizen journalists and comment-makers. These means are helping protesters to share their experiences, opinions, and demands broadly, tap grievances widely held, and stir people into doing something concrete[291] about them. By using those means, the people can prevail even

---

[290] Kristen Christian, Who Created 'Bank Transfer Day,' the November 5 Bank Boycott, Tells Us Why, Jen Doll, Running Scared, The Village Voice Blogs; 7oct11; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Bank_Transfer_Day_Kristen_Christian.pdf

[291] "Far too often people struggling for democratic rights and justice are not aware of the full range of methods of nonviolent action. Wise strategy, attention to the dynamics of nonviolent struggle, and careful selection of methods can increase a group's chances of success. Inspired by Mahatma Gandhi, American Professor Gene Sharp researched and catalogued these 198 methods and provided a rich selection of historical upon those who have abused them by wielding power deemed up to now to be unassailable and crushing. The Arab Spring in Tunisia, Egypt, and Libya and the 99% protesters here in the U.S. are there to prove it indisputably.

d. From pioneers of judicial unaccountability reporting to a judicial reform institute to a civic movement

364. These current events provide precedent for the reasonable expectation of positive developments brought about by those who report on judicial wrongdoing and call for the wrongdoers to be held accountable and disciplined. To that end, they must progressively convince the public and their representatives of the need to adopt new legislation not just to write on paper a more explicit requirement that judges "avoid even the appearance of impropriety"[123a], but also to ensure in practice that judges are held accountable for doing so and disciplined when found to have failed. Given what judges are, not a special class of persons above the law, but rather public servants, they must be held accountable for rendering the service for which they were hired under the applicable terms and conditions: to determine in court controversies through the fair and impartial application of substantive law in proceedings that conform with due process of law equally for everybody [292], whether rich or poor[90]; and to behave in and out of court lawfully and ethically so as to honor the public trust placed in them.

365. Everything begins with the pioneers of JUDICIAL UNACCOUNTABILITY REPORTING. They can report the available evidence of judicial unaccountability(jur:21§A) and coordinated wrongdoing in the DeLano-J. Sotomayor story(jur:65§0), augmented by the findings of any investigation that they may undertake(jur:97§1). That will be their initial cry of denunciation(jur:98§2). It will also be a rallying cry in support of a new form of reporting on judges and their judiciaries. Their reporting will first concentrate on the federal judges and the Federal Judiciary because they set the law of the national land; hence, they attract national attention and serve as the model for the state judges and judiciaries.

366. Consequently, the pioneers of judicial unaccountability reporting will begin by systematically investigating the means, motive, and opportunity that enable federal judges to be unaccountable and, as a result, risklessly engage in wrongdoing. To enhance their credibility, they will be methodologically rigorous and use advanced research technology (jur:131§b). They will analyze official statistics and reports of the Federal Judiciary, its judges' disclosures[ii], and empirical evidence, whether contained in case documents or provided by litigants(jur:111§1)), complainants(jur:111§3)) and judicial personnel(jur:106§c). Their reporting will show how judges disregard the law, procedure, and ethical conduct in such routine fashion and with such coordination among themselves and between themselves and bankruptcy and legal systems insiders[169] as to have turned their judgeship into a safe haven for wrongdoing and their wrongdoing into the Federal Judiciary's institutionalized modus operandi.

367. The pioneers' reporting can become the rallying point for the rest of the media and the public.

---

examples in his seminal work, The Politics of Nonviolent Action (3 Vols.) Boston: Porter Sargent, 1973." http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Prof_Gene_Sharp_Politics_Nonviolent_Action.pdf

[292] "[A] fair trial in a fair tribunal is a basic requirement of due process"; In re Murchison, 349 U. S. 133, 136 (1955); http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Murchison_349us133(1955).pdf

Naturally, their reporting(jur:98§2) will first resonate with people who have been harmed by wrongdoing judges. But those people's rally will increase in number as the pioneers' reporting prompts ever more laypeople[1], citizen journalists[190], and members of the media(jur:100§3) to conduct their own investigation and reporting and ever more people become outraged by the revelations of judges' unaccountability and their consequent wrongdoing.

368. The pioneering reporters' cry may first be heard at a well-advertised multimedia public presentation(jur:97§1). But it could also begin as whispers made in digital newspapers and social networks. Those whose ears they catch can repeat them on social media[190] until they go viral. That way they can evolve from whispers into a deafening roar that awakens[293] the established media to hear the harmony between the reporting's social and political resonance and a nascent market's sounds of profit. Such development provides the economic justification for those media to assign their vast investigative journalism resources to the risky task of shedding light on the dark side of purportedly "honorable" but definitely powerful judges and justices. Among their resources are reporters with back channel access to Judiciary insiders and their protectors and detractors in the other two branches(jur:77§§5-6) who are willing to provide reliable information on condition of anonymity[294]; as well as reputable editorialists, columnists, anchors, and pundits

---

293 a) There are precedents for this series of events: Oprah Winfrey picked up for her book club James Frey's autobiography A Million Little Pieces and thereby launched it to the top of the bestseller lists. This caught the attention of TheSmokingGun.com blog, which exposed it as embellished pseudo-nonfiction. Thereafter the major TV stations picked up the story and interviewed The Smoking Gun Editor Bustone. Investigative journalists of The New York Times and the Star Tribune followed suit with exposés that revealed the book as a fabrication around a few little pieces of truth. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/Million_Little_Pieces_lies.pdf

b) In the same vein, the ever more popular, compassion-inducing drama of Lonely Girl played on the Internet and developed quite a following of fans, including so many geeks, who found irresistibly attractive a beautiful girl with a sensitive soul and the techno-savvy necessary to allegedly put her story on her own webpage. The Internet buzz caught the attention of The New York Times, which revealed the whole thing as the hoax of some website promoters and an aspiring talented actress that was anything but lonely; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/bloggers_Lonely_Girl.pdf. See also fn.190.

294 An example of this is CBS Legal Commentor Jan Crawford Greenburg's report based on her confidential Supreme Court sources that Chief Justice Roberts had initially sided with Conservative Justices Alito, Scalia, and Thomas as well as Justice Stevens, all of whom wanted to hold the Affordable Health Care Act (Obamacare) unconstitutional, but then much to their chagrin switched side and joined Liberal Justices Breyer, Ginsburg, Sotomayor, and Kagan to uphold the constitutionality of its central feature –the mandate for all persons to buy health insurance– not under the Commerce Clause, but rather under Congress's power of taxation. She reported that the former four made a sustained effort to persuade the Chief Justice, who is deemed a conservative, to come back to their fold and were deeply disappointed when he refused. Her report was widely regarded as a scoop given that the Court is highly secretive(jur:27§e) and hardly ever do reports on the process of the justices' voting on any particular decision, let alone dissension among them, leak out. Most digital newspapers, not to mention citizen journalists, do not have anything remotely similar to the sources that both Rep. Greenburg and CBS have been able to cultivate over with opinion-shaping influence and the means of measuring public reaction through both spontaneous feedback and professional polls. All of them can force politicians and law enforcement authorities, maybe even top judges or justices or their circuit councils[96] and the Judicial Conference[91a], to heed their call to step up and respond to their embarrassing reporting.[295]

369. The pioneers' reporting will lead to a growing recognition of the need for, and advocacy of, judicial accountability reform through new legislation containing innovative mechanisms for preventing judicial wrongdoing, overseeing judges' conduct, and enforcing their accountability time and on reliance of their proven professionalism; and if they had claimed that they did and had broken the story few people would have believed them. The established media, such as the national networks, still do count when it comes to making a story sound credible and gain broad public attention.

---

[295] The precedent for this lies in the present and yet it has already attained historic significance. CBS Reporter Sharryl Attkisson first broke the story of the botched Fast and Furious operation of the Department of Justice's Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms Bureau. It allowed thousands of all kinds of heavy guns, including Kalachnikovs and other assault rifles, to be acquired or fall into the hands of viciously violent Mexican gangs of drug smugglers and 'let guns walk' across the U.S.-Mexico border in the belief that the guns could be traced all the way to the top druglords. The finding that some of those guns were used to kill an American ATF agent caused outrage in the media and Congress. Other media investigated the story too.

The outrage led the House Committee on Government Oversight and Reform to open an investigation. Its request for information was met with the disclosure of thousands of documents, but many were so heavily redacted that some of their pages were nothing but a blotch of black ink. Hearings of ATF agents and DoJ officials, including Attorney General Eric Holder himself, gave rise to tergiversations, conflicting testimony, retractions, and corrections that prompted allegations that they had lied in an effort to cover up their responsibility for a reckless, ill-conceived, and worse implemented operation. The Committee's request for more documents was not only refused by AG Holder, but also prompted one of the rare invocations of executive privilege by President Obama to justify the document production refusal. This only strengthened the suspicion that a cover-up was indeed afoot and motivated by the realization that the documents would reveal information too damaging for the President's reelection campaign.

In response, the Committee and subsequently the whole House held AG Holder in contempt of Congress in spite of the fact that the Democrats staged a massive walkout when the contempt resolution came to the floor for a vote to protest it as predicated on an unreasonable demand for further documents and to support their fellow Democrat, AG Holder. It was the first time in the history of Congress that one of its chambers held a sitting member of the president's cabinet in contempt. The story has now become an issue in the presidential campaign that has provided ammunition to those that want to discredit the President and tie him up in a defensive effort.

This story makes it reasonable to expect that the media would not only outrage elected officials, but also the public with the DeLano–J. Sotomayor story(jur:65§0) involving concealment of assets by a justice as part of federal judges' coordinated wrongdoing, her cover up of a judge-run bankruptcy fraud scheme, and the President's and senators' lying to the American public to cover up her tax cheating and get her confirmed to the Supreme Court.

by disciplining wrongdoers. It will also develop support for such advocacy to be pursued through the proposed multidisciplinary academic and business venture(jur:119§0). In turn, the venture can lead to the establishment of an institute of judicial unaccountability reporting and reform advocacy(jur:130§5). Among the items that it will advocate is the creation of citizen boards of judicial accountability and discipline(jur:160§8). The boards will be a concrete manifestation of a reform based on adequate mechanisms established through appropriate legislation. To be such, the mechanisms and legislation must recognize and be founded on two axiomatic principle: The first one is that nobody can be judge in his own cause, for his self-preservation instinct will render him biased toward himself and prevent him from judging fairly and impartially. Hence, judges cannot be entrusted with judging their peers(jur:24§§b-c), who may be their friends or their colleagues holding their IOUs or having enough damaging information about the judges to compromise their judging for their own sake. The second principle is that in government, not of men, but of laws, nobody is above the law(jur:26§d) and all public servants are accountable to We the People.

370. This highlights the crucial importance of the people rallying behind the pioneers of judicial unaccountability reporting. Popular outrage at judges' wrongdoing is indispensable.(jur:83§§2-3) The people will amplify the pioneers' cry of denunciation by coming together and voicing their outrage as well as ideas for judicial reform.(jur:122§§2-3) They need not speak with one voice for one message to get through loud and clear: That it is outrageous for judges, who are public servants hired to render the service of applying the law fairly and impartially to determine controversies, to wrongfully abuse their position of trust for their own benefit. They beat the law out of due process and give the people what is left as its residue: the hardship and expense of motion through a rigged process: the chaff of justice! Formidable resistance can be expected from those judges to ensuring in practice that they apply the law to the performance of their office and to being held accountable for doing so and disciplined or removed for failing to. Overcoming it will likely require that We the People come together as a civic movement. They must demand with unyielding persistence what is their right in 'government of, by, and for the people'[172]: to hold judges, their public servants, accountable to them. When the complaining among victims of judges' wrongdoing grows louder until it becomes the rallying cry of an outraged people, the latter will begin the transformation of the rally into the necessary civic movement that not just cries, but rather demands Equal Justice Under Law.

Blank

F. Offer to present the proposal for a process of exposing judges' unaccountability and wrongdoing that launches judicial unaccountability reporting and reform advocacy

371. It would not be reasonable to expect Washington politicians to do what they have failed to do since the creation of the Federal Judiciary: to exercise constitutional checks and balances on judges so that they too are held to the foundational principle of government, not of men, but of laws: Nobody Is Above The Law.(jur:21§1) Even though Congress adopted the Judicial Conduct and Disability Act in 1980 to establish a mechanism for any person to file a complaint against federal judges, for over the 30 years since then politicians[296] have dismissed with knowing indifference the annual report that Congress required the Judiciary to file with it, which has shown the judges' systematic dismissal without investigation of complaints against their peers: 99.82% of the complaints filed in the 1oct96-30sep08 12 year period reported online were dismissed.(jur:24§b) The media too, prioritizing their corporate interest in not antagonizing life-tenured judges over their professional duty to inform the people, have failed to hold those judges accountable as what they are: public servants in the people's government and answerable to them.(jur:81§§1-2)

372. Judges' unaccountability has made their wrongdoing(jur:5§3) riskless, and thus irresistible. It enables them to systematically disregard due process for expediency's sake. It results in arbitrary ad-hoc fiat-like decisions that they make for the professional, material, and social benefit of their own and of other insiders[169] to the detriment of litigants, the rest of the people, and judicial integrity. They explicitly or implicitly coordinate their wrongdoing among themselves and with others by showing knowing indifference and willful ignorance and blindness to each other's wrongdoing(jur:88§a-d), thus becoming reciprocal accessorial enablers before and after the fact. By engaging widely and routinely in wrongdoing, it has become so pervasive that it is the judges' and their Federal Judiciary's institutionalized modus operandi. This has allowed them to structure it as schemes, e.g., the bankruptcy fraud scheme[60]. Judges will not expose wrongdoers, lest they be ostracized by their peers(jur:62§g) and self-incriminate, whether due to their toleration of, or participation in, it. Consequently, they mutually cover up their wrongdoing, ensuring their interdependent survival and turning the Judiciary into a safe haven for wrongdoing. Thereby federal judges have secured for themselves an unlawful and undemocratic privyleged status and have a vested interest in helping each other to maintain it: Judges Above the Law.

373. Now the duty to expose those judges falls to the people through an individual or collective 'presenter of evidence': one or more persons who are:

   a. knowledgeable about the evidence of how wrong and wrongful decisions made by judges and tolerated by their peers harm litigants as well as the rest of the people;

---

296 The criticism of federal judges as "liberal" or "activist" by both Republican and Democratic politicians constituted a short-lived attack that was voiced only during the Republican primaries and before the Supreme Court's decision on Obamacare.[i] Once it became clear that the 2012 presidential election was too close to call, the attack on judges was dropped. Politicians must have realized that it could alienate the all important Hispanic vote and provoke retaliatory ill will on the part of federal judges, who could end up as the arbiters of the election, as they were of that in 2000. The failure of politicians to pursue the issues and factual considerations underlying their criticism showed that their attack had been politically motivated for immediate electoral benefit rather than the honest expression of concern for the long-term integrity of the judiciary and of judicial process.

b. courageous enough to report it to incriminate life-tenured federal judges in wrongdoing; and

c. sufficiently capable of thinking strategically and presenting skillfully to

1) set in motion a series of exposés and further journalistic investigations and reporting that

2) outrage the national public and

3) cause it to demand that politicians ● officially investigate judges, ● hold wrongdoers accountable, and ● undertake judicial reform. The presenters must advocate, and the people must insist on, changes to the current judicial system that ensure that judges not only in fact dispose of cases fairly and impartially according to law, but also transparently and notoriously appear to be doing so, for 'Justice requires the appearance of Justice'[71]. Thanks to their knowledge, courage, and skills on behalf of the people and justice, that or those presenters can become the people's Champions of Justice[164a].

1. How the public presentation that pioneers judicial unaccountability reporting can be followed by a series of events and thus trigger history!

374. The complaining about judges' wrongdoing(jur:5§3) suffered by many victims and affecting all people under government no longer by the rule of law can become a rallying cry for judicial accountability and reform. For that to happen, journalists or an important personality normally covered by the media are necessary intermediaries. They can make an initial public presentation (jur:xxviii) of this book's(a&p:5) analysis of the means, motive, and opportunity that provide the enabling conditions for judges to be unaccountable and engage in wrongdoing risklessly (jur:21§A) as well as the evidence thereof contained in the DeLano-J. Sotomayor story(jur:65§0; xxxvi). Their presentation can outrage the audience and provide the business and professional incentive(jur:8§5) to investigate both that story further(jur:97§1) and complaints by judicial wrongdoing victims(jur:xxx). It can begin the development of a market for more information about judges' wrongdoing and the judiciaries that tolerate and participate in it. Thereby those journalists or important personality will pioneer the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting.

375. Their initial public presentation(dcc:7) can take the form of an Emile Zola I accuse!-like denunciation(98§2) of judges' coordinated wrongdoing: the conspiracy of officers of the Judiciary to protect themselves by falsely charging Justice with having been done. The presentation can take place in a print or digital publication or on a newscast. It can also be performed at a well-advertised and rehearsed multimedia event(dcc:11) before an audience of multipliers of contents distribution and shapers of public opinion. To those in attendance a pamphlet can be handed out providing a summary of the available evidence of such wrongdoing, pointing to this book or another publication for detailed description and analysis, and proposing that they join judicial unaccountability reporting by conducting further investigation of judges' wrongdoing, such as that outlined for the DeLano-J. Sotomayor story(jur:102§4), and advocating judicial reform through the multidisciplinary academic and business venture(jur:119§§1-4).

376. Such initial presentation can open the doors to a series of presentations by the same presenters and others at:

a. a series of talkshows[1],
b. press clubs and conferences,
c. public interest entities and public defender offices,
d. bar associations,
e. Continued Legal Education (CLE) courses and law firm informative meetings,
f. professional ethics centers and think tanks,
g. law, journalism, and business schools and undergraduate programs,
h. groups of judicial wrongdoing victims,
i. rallies of politicians seeking to capitalize on public outrage at judges' wrongdoing,
j. bookstores and other events(97§1).

377. The initial and subsequent presentations can:

a. give rise to public feedback(122§2) that in turn grows demand for news and publications about judicial unaccountability and wrongdoing(126§3) and how to reform the judiciaries;
b. pave the way for offering The DeLano Case Course(dcc:1);
c. launch a Watergate-like generalized and first-ever media investigation(100§3) of judges and their judiciaries, beginning at the federal level and then expanding to the states, by journalists in quest of Woodward-Bernstein(jur:3§2) rewards, such as a Pulitzer Prize, as they competitively search for the concealed assets of a sitting justice of the Supreme Court, J. Sotomayor(jur:102§4), and other judges[213], and thus follow the pioneers of judicial unaccountability reporting by contributing to its development as an innovative for-profit and public service news and publishing field;
d. attract sponsors of the formation of, and participants in, the multidisciplinary academic and business venture(jur:119§1) that begins to conduct professional judicial unaccountability and wrongdoing research and to advocate judicial reform; and
e. lead to the creation of an institute of judicial accountability reporting and reform advocacy that on a more permanent, structured, and for-profit basis(130§5) conducts advanced information technology research to establish such reporting on the solid basis of novel statistical and linguistic analysis of the writings and activities of judges and their judiciaries,(131§b); educates reformers; collects, publishes, and investigates judicial wrongdoing complaints; represents victims; lobbies for reform; etc.(153§§c-g);
f. generate momentum for a civic movement(164§9) that demands legislated reform to include the establishment of citizen boards of judicial accountability and discipline (158§§1-7) that participate in both implementing the reform and monitoring the very branches of government that have tolerated and engaged in judicial wrongdoing(160§8); and
g. lead to judicial unaccountability reporting and reform that have a realistic chance of making progress toward greater realization of the noble ideal of Equal Justice Under Law.

378. Dr. Cordero respectfully requests an invitation by journalists, politicians, and others interested in honest judiciaries to lay out to them the proposal for them to act as initial presenters of judicial unaccountability reporting and reform advocacy as described above and become the people's Champions of Justice.

379. You have the opportunity to take action. If you do, you can trigger history! (dcc:11)

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

October 12, 2013

Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing

Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting

Journalists, politicians, and advocates of honest judiciaries thinking strategically have an interest in making a pioneering public presentation of the evidence herein. It is based on official documents revealing judges' unaccountability and motive, means, and opportunity risklessly to do wrong by denying due process, depriving people of their rights, and corrupting the rule of law. Judges' wrongdoing is so pervasive as to constitute their institutionalized modus operandi. Showing that it is so can launch a Watergate-like generalized media investigation of who knew what and when. Its findings can so outrage the people as to cause them to 1) demand more information, providing a market incentive for further developing the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting; 2) support a multidisciplinary academic and business venture that advocates judicial reform; and 3) force the investigation of judges by Congress, DoJ-FBI, and their state counterparts. The authorities can make even more outrageous findings on the strength of their subpoena, search, contempt, and penal powers and during nationally televised public hearings. Confronted with such exacerbated outrage, politicians will find it in their self-interest to legislate reform implemented with the assistance of citizen boards of judicial accountability and discipline that

ENSURES THE ADMINISTRATION TO WE THE PEOPLE OF EQUAL JUSTICE UNDER LAW

1. Executive summary v
2. Politicians and their staff
   a. Electoral interest in becoming The Champion of Justice ..... xxvii, xliv§D
   b. Key points for their public presentation of evidence of judges' wrongdoing..... xvii
   c. To trigger history! The most enduring and substantial legacy 1
3. Journalists
   a. The problem, objective, and strategy ..... xix, xlv§§E-I b. Breaking the news at a multimedia presentation ..... xxxii, 97§1
   c. Setting off a Watergate-like generalized media investigation ..... xviii, xlviii, 100§3
   d. Outline of the investigation..... xxxii§B; 102§4 4. The people
   a. Making their point at political meetings and handouts for doing it..... xxiv, xxvi, xlviii
   b. Novel strategy for pro ses and the other judicial wrongdoing victims ..... xxix, xxxix, xliii
5. Objective evidence of judges' wrongdoing
   a. Statistical evidence; further research ..... 21§A; 130§b
   b. Forms of wrongdoing..... 5§3, 88§a-d
   c. The story: From concealment of assets to P. Obama, J. Sotomayor & the SCt..... xxxv, 65
6. Academic and business venture 119
   a. Offer to present the investigation and the venture..... 171; dcc:7
   b. The DeLano Case Course, with week to week classwork Syllabus dcc:1, 23

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

November 8, 2012

Dear Journalists, Politicians, and Advocates of honest judiciaries,

All presidential nominee candidates courageously criticized federal judges for being "activist"[ia,b] or Justice Sotomayor, P. Obama's first justiceship nominee, for being "liberal"[ic]. Those are subjective notions describing matters of opinion; as such, they resonate only with some people. This is a proposal, supported by my professional research[ii] on, and litigation experience in, the Federal Judiciary[109b,114c], for that criticism of federal judges, including J. Sotomayor[69], to be based on their wrongdoing[iii], which is a matter of objective evidence of their disregard of their duties(88§§a-d) and infraction of laws applicable to them too[213]; so it can outrage everybody.

Indeed, federal judges engage in wrongdoing because they are held by their peers, Congress, and the media unaccountable(21§1). As a result, their wrongdoing is riskless. This makes it irresistible for them to grab wrongfully material, professional, and social benefits. The analysis of the official statistics shows it: In the 223 years since the creation of the Federal Judiciary in 1789, only 8 federal judges[13] have been impeached and removed[14]. The Judiciary has allowed its chief circuit judges to dismiss systematically 99.82% of the complaints filed[18a] against judges in the 1oct96-30sep08 12-year period[19a-c]. In that period, its judicial councils –the circuits[22a] all-judge disciplinary bodies– denied up to 100% of the petitions to review those dismissals(24§b), as did the 2nd Circuit's council[19d], of which Then-Judge Sotomayor was a member[20]. Up to 9 of every 10 appeals are disposed of ad-hoc[29] through no-reason summary orders[66a] or opinions so "perfunctory"[68] that they are neither published nor precedential[70], mere fiats of raw judicial power.

Judges abuse their means, unaccountable power, to pursue the most corruptive motive: money! Just in the bankruptcies filed by consumers in CY10, bankruptcy judges ruled on $373bl.[31] Money is what drives[30] the concealment of assets in DeLano[109], a consumer bankruptcy appeal presided over by Then-Judge Sotomayor(66§2). She engaged in such concealment as part of a routine practice that has developed into a judge-run bankruptcy fraud scheme[60]. In fact, even the liberal papers The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico suspected her of con-cealing assets of hers[107a] despite her duty to disclose[107b,d], which pointed to evasion of taxes[107c] or concealment of the assets' illicit source. Yet, the President nominated her as he had for cabinet positions other known tax cheats[¶137]. While 1.5ml. bankruptcies are filed annually[34], only .23% are reviewed by district courts and fewer than .08% by circuit courts[33]. Their unreviewability provides the opportunity for riskless wrongdoing(86§4) since nobody will hold judges accountable.

But you can by contributing to the exposure of 1) the conditions that have allowed wrongdoing to become the Judiciary's institutionalized modus operandi(49§4) and 2) the need for the justices who earlier as judges engaged in[109b§X], or tolerated their peers'[144d], wrongdoing to keep doing so to protect them and themselves[89]. Your exposé at a public presentation(97§1) need only provide enough evidence thereof in the DeLano-J. Sotomayor-P. Obama story(xxxv) for journalists, in quest of a name-making scoop, and others to be sent on a Watergate-like(4¶¶10-14) generalized media investigation(100§3) that asks: What did the President(77§5) and the justices[23b] and judges know(71§4) about J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets(65§1) and tax evasion[107c] and other judges'[213] wrongdoing and when(75§d) did they know it? Their revelations of how judges wrongfully benefit while harming millions of new parties annually(7¶22) can outrage everybody; cause one or more justices to resign, as Justice Abe Fortas had to in 1969[¶211]; and force the authorities to investigate federal and state judiciaries. A business and academic venture(119§E) can channel their outrage toward advocacy of judicial accountability reform. Thus, I respectfully request an invitation to present to you and your colleagues(171§F) the evidence of judges' wrongdoing through which you can become the People's Champion of Justice[164].

Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Correcting Links Broken at the End of a Line

If a link returns an error message, e.g. "No page found", or otherwise fails to download the reference, (i) copy and paste it in the address bar of your browser and eliminate any blank space, which may be represented by %20, and then click the go button or press enter; or (ii) choose the Hand tool from the menu bar >rest it over the link> right click> from the dropdown menu choose either "Open Weblink in Browser" or "Open Weblink as New Document".

---

[i] a) Republicans Turn Judicial Power Into a Campaign Issue; by Adam Liptak and Michael D. Shear, The New York Times, 23oct11; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Rep_candidates_fed_judges_12.pdf; b) Dems Hit Romney for Going After Sotomayor in Ads; TPM (5mar12); Hispanic leaders condemn Romney for criticizing Sotomayor in ad, by Griselda Nevarez. VOXXI (29feb12); National Institute for Latino Policy; 5mar12; id; c) CBS "Face the Nation" Host Bob Schieffer interviews Speaker Newt Gingrich on "activist judges"; 18dec11; id. See [296] and jur:171¶371.

[ii] This proposal is based, not on secondary sources, i.e., other authors' opinions, but rather on official statistics and statements found through original research and analyzed by Dr. Cordero:

a) official statistics of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts, http://www.uscourts.gov/Statistics.aspx, and of individual courts, e.g., http://www.ca2.uscourts.gov/;

b) official reports on the federal courts, http://www.supremecourt.gov/publicinfo/year-end/year-endreports.aspx and http://www.uscourts.gov/Statistics/JudicialBusiness.aspx; and reports of individual courts, e.g., http://www.ca2.uscourts.gov/annualreports.htm;

c) official reports on the proceedings of judicial bodies, e.g., http://www.uscourts.gov/FederalCourts/JudicialConference/Proceedings.aspx

d) documents publicly filed with the courts, http://www.pacer.uscourts.gov/index.html;

e) rulings, decisions, and opinions of judges available in print and online through the courts' websites, http://www.uscourts.gov/court_locator.aspx, and through official court reporters, e.g. West Publishing, http://web2.westlaw.com/signon/default.wl?bhcp=1&fn=%5Ftop&newdoor=true&rs=WLW11%2E10&vr=2%2E0; and unofficial aggregators of official court materials, e.g., http://www.findlaw.com/ and https://www.fastcase.com/;

f) judges' speeches, e.g., http://www.supremecourt.gov/publicinfo/speeches/speeches.aspx;

g) official news releases and articles in the official newsletter of the federal courts, http://www.uscourts.gov/News/InsideTheJudiciary.aspx;

h) other materials, http://www.uscourts.gov/FederalCourts/PublicationsAndReports.aspx;

i) federal laws and rules of judicial procedure, http://uscode.house.gov/;

j) reports providing the evidentiary justification for the need, purpose, and intent of legislative bills, http://www.senate.gov/pagelayout/legislative/g_three_sections_with_teasers/legislative_home.htm and http://clerk.house.gov/floorsummary/floor.aspx

k) statements of members of Congress on their websites, http://www.house.gov/representatives/ and http://www.senate.gov/general/contact_information/senators_cfm.cfm;

l) reports of the U.S. Govt. Accountability Office, http://www.gao.gov/browse/date/week.

Most of these materials have been downloaded, converted to pdf's, enhanced with links to the originals and navigational bookmarks, and posted to http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org to ensure that they are always available no matter what happens to the originals. Cf. this note on the Administrative Office's website: "Page Not Found. Sorry, the page you requested could not be found at this address. We've recently made updates to our site, and this page may have been moved or renamed"; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/AO_Page_Not_Found_5nov11.pdf.

[iii] Judges' wrongdoing is pervasive(xxxix§a); their unaccountability & coordination among themselves and with bankruptcy[33] & legal systems insiders[169] makes it riskless, irresistible. They:

© 2012 Richard Cordero. All rights reserved.

a) systematically dismiss complaints against them, which are not public record, preventing complaint analysis to detect patterns of wrongdoing and habitual wrongdoing judges;(jur:24§b)

b) fail to report gifts from, and participation in seminars paid by, parties before them;[272]

c) routinely deny motions to recuse themselves[272] due to, e.g., conflict of interests by holding shares in, or sitting on a board of, one of the parties, fundraising for promoters of an ideology, despite violating thereby the requirement to "avoid even the appearance of impropriety"[123a];

d) hold meetings with parties in chambers without a court reporter so that no transcript of the discussion is available to challenge the judge's expression of bias or coercion on any party;

e) seal records to prevent challenges to the judge's approval of the abuse of a party by another with dominant position or of an agreement that is illicit or contrary to public policy;

f) prohibit electronic devices, e.g. cameras & camcorders, in the courthouse, even tape recorders in the courtroom, to prevent parties from filming the judges' interaction with parties or the making their own records to prove that court proceedings transcripts were doctored;

g) get rid of 9 out of 10 cases through either reasonless, meaningless summary orders or decisions so perfunctory that the judges mark them "not for publication" and "not precedential"; both are all but unreviewable ad hoc fiats of raw judicial power serving as vehicles for arbitrariness and means for implementing a policy of docket clearing through expediency without an effort to administer justice on the facts of each case and the law applicable to them[66b];

h) in pursuit of that expediency policy, overwhelmingly affirm the decisions of their lower court colleagues, for rubberstamping an affirmance is decidedly easier than explaining a reversal and the way to avoid the same prejudicial error on remand[69] >¶¶1-3;

i) systematically deny petitions for en banc review by the whole court of each other's decisions, thus assuring reciprocal deference and the continued force of their decisions regardless of how wrong or wrongful they are(jur:45§2);

j) hold their policy-making, administrative, adjudicative, and disciplinary meetings behind closed doors, thus protecting their unaccountability and providing themselves with the opportunity to use secrecy as a means to engage in coordinated wrongdoing(jur:27§e; xxxix;

k) do not publish comments on court rules proposed by courts, thus cloaking in secrecy judges' comments, which fosters and conceals wrongful motives and coordination, and turning the request for public comments into a pro forma exercise that allows even overwhelming opposition to be kept undisclosed and disregarded without public protest ¶355e;

l) never hold press conferences, thus escaping the scrutiny of journalists and that of the public, since federal judges do not have to run in judicial elections[29](cf. jur:97§1; dcc:11) and

m) file pro forma financial disclosure reports[213b] with the Judicial Conference[91] Committee on Financial Disclosure, composed of report-filing peer judges assisted by Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts[10] members, who are their appointees and serve at their will(31§(a)).

[iv] The rewards for pioneering JUDICIAL UNACCOUNTABILITY REPORTING AND REFORM ADVOCACY(1643§d) will be many, commensurable with the risk involved and the courage, leadership, and originality needed. One comes to mind: Time Magazine's person of the year. Last year's was The Protester, portrayed on the cover by the head and face of a person wrapped in a turban in Arab-like fashion. Who has a better chance of being the next Time's person of the year, a politician or journalist with his pen clenched between his teeth and his hands over his eyes and hears as he stoops down the street past a courthouse or a person who dare investigate(102§4) judges and justices to expose their coordinated wrongdoing and mutual cover-up dependent survival(88§§ad) and thereby renders a public service to We the People, to the integrity of judicial process, and to democracy itself? That courageous person can be you.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

November 21, 2012

Proposed Key Points for the Presentation by Journalists, Politicians, and Advocates of Honest Judiciaries of Evidence of Wrongdoing by Unaccountable Judges and The Harm that They Cause We the People and Thereby

a) launch a Watergate-like, generalized investigation that can lead justices & judges to resign and
b) make a Pulitzer Prize-worthy scoop and/or become the People's Champion of Justice

1. Judges' wrongdoing harms economically scores of millions of people(jur:7¶22). This is only most evident with regard to the 1.5 million personal bankruptcies with over $373 billion at stake(27§2) that are filed every year by an overwhelming majority of pro se debtors [33,38]. Unable to afford lawyers, pro ses represent themselves in court and, as a result, are easy prey for federal judges, particularly since they do not know what the judges did wrong or wrongfully, let alone how to appeal(46§3). Debtors and creditors are abused and their families, employees, the businesses that they used to patronize, etc., are also harmed economically.(cf. 83§2)

2. Judges' conceal assets and evade taxes that the people need paid. Judges do wrong since they are unaccountable(21§1) and need not fear being investigated(81§1). They file mandatory financial disclosure reports pro forma[213b] that beg the question: Where is the money that judges earn from salaries[211] which put them in the top 2% income earners[212] in the U.S. and which are increased by their investment, outside income, and gifts? They routinely conceal income[272] and spare their peers investigation(104¶¶236,237). But average Americans must declare all their income, pay taxes thereon, and count on being audited. Evidence thereof will outrage the people and draw their attention to the courageous presidential candidate that reveals such abusive inequality.

3. P. Obama covered up of his justiceship nominee J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets. He had the articles in The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico that suspected J. Sotomayor of concealing assets[107a] and the FBI vetting reports(77§5). Yet, he nominated her, just as he had nominated for cabinet positions known tax cheats Tim Geithner, Tom Daschle, and Nancy Killefer[108]. The evidence contained in those articles can set off a Watergate-like[¶¶10-14] generalized media investigation(100§3) that asks: What did the President(77§5) and the justices and judges know[23b] about J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets(65§1) and tax evasion[107a,c] and other justices'(71§4) and judges'[213] wrongdoing and when(75§d) did they know it? The journalists' stream of revelations that P. Obama lied to the public about J. Sotomayor's integrity can provoke such outrage as to curb donations to his fundraising campaign aimed at raising $1 billion! This investigation can alter profoundly the financial and public relations dynamics of the primary and the presidential campaigns.

4. J. Sotomayor participated in the cover-up of a judge-run bankruptcy fraud scheme. Circuit judges, such as Then-Judge Sotomayor was, appoint bankruptcy judges for renewable 14-year terms, and can remove them. They have a vested interest in validating the good character and competence of their appointees, who rule on huge amounts of money. She covered up the participation of the bankruptcy judge in a judge-run bankruptcy fraud scheme in DeLano(66§§2-3) a case so incriminating that she withheld it from the Senate Judiciary Committee(69§b).

5. The presentation can lead a politician to cause the deepest and most enduring reform of the Federal Judiciary. The investigation findings(97§D) can cause judicial resignations due to wrongdoing or the appearance of impropriety(92§d); enable politicians to recommend, nominate, and confirm judges respectful of the Constitution, individual liberties, and their role as accountable public servants; and prompt the exercise of checks and balances on the Judiciary to ensure that judges do not engage in wrongdoing, are swiftly detected and removed for betraying public, and administer Equal Justice Under Law to themselves and the People(171§F)

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

27august12

Who or what caused The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a] to kill their series of stories that suspected Then-2nd Cir.(17, 18) Judge Sotomayor (65§B), the first nominee of President Obama to the Supreme Court, of concealing assets of her own? Was there a quid pro quod?

Can the findings of professional and citizen journalists(163¶363) investigating these queries change the course of the presidential campaign and the outcome of the election and set in motion a process of judicial accountability and discipline reform?

1. These queries are based on research on the Federal Judiciary[ii] and articles of top media entities[107a]. They call for responsible professional and citizen journalists to investigate a story(xxxv) of national interest and potentially grave political consequences. This is so because the story involves:
   a. a sitting president and reelection candidate: Did he, to secure support from Latino and feminist voters for Obamacare, nominate J. Sotomayor, just as he had other tax cheats[108]?(77§5);
   b. a sitting justice: Did she abuse federal judges' unaccountability(21§1) to conceal assets of hers [107c] and others(68§a) and must cover it up, lest any investigation end up incriminating her?;
   c. judges who file with their peers or approve the latter's annual financial disclosure reports[107d]: Do they file and approve them pro forma[213b], thereby enabling their tax evasion?;
   d. judges held by their peers, Congress, and the media unaccountable(81§1) and running a national bankruptcy system, where they ruled on $373 billion in just personal bankruptcies in CY10(27§2) and where most cases are brought pro se[33,38] and are in practice unreviewable(28§3): Do they abuse such unreviewability to run[60] a bankruptcy fraud scheme(66§2)?;
   e. a dead heat presidential campaign and voters' heightened attention: Can journalists' pursuing a scoop deserving of a Pulitzer Prize make an initial presentation(xxxii) of judges' wrongdoing evidence that sets off to a Watergate-like(100§3) generalized media investigation(102§§a-e) guided by a historic query that caused President Nixon to resign, his White House aides to go to prison, and iconic journalistic figures to emerge(4¶¶10-14), and which now can be rephrased thus:

      > What did the President(77§5) and the justices and judges know[23b] about J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets(65§1) and consequent tax evasion[107c] and other justices'(71§4) and judges'[213] wrongdoing and when(75§d) did they know it?

2. The findings of those pioneering JUDICIAL UNACCOUNTABILITY REPORTING(164§d) can outrage(83§§2, 3) the public at wrongdoing judges and the politicians who put and keep them in office(81§1); and:
   a. lead one or more justices to resign, as U.S. Justice Abe Fortas had to on 14may69(93¶211);
   b. stir up the public into demanding that the authorities, i.e., Congress, the U.S. Dept. of Justice, the FBI, and their state counterparts, investigate(97§D) judges and the Federal Judiciary for tolerating, enabling, and engaging in wrongdoing(88§§a-d) just as they investigate others;
   c. whereby that public can become a new news market(7¶¶22,26) that generates a profit incentive for journalists to commit further investigative resources and even join their demand;
   d. cause officeholders and candidates fearing voters' disapproval at the polls to take action to expose judges' wrongdoing(97§§1-E1) and make them accountable and disciplinable(126§§4-5);
   e. make the courageous[iv] exposer and judicial accountability advocate a Champion of Justice[164a].

Tweet: Who had #NYTimes #WPost #Politico kill their stories of asset concealment by Obama's nominee Judge #Sotomayor? http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/1/5.pdf

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

8apr12

Overview for Talkshow Hosts, Journalists, and Anchors of The Problem of Federal Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Wrongdoing, The Objective of Exposing Them, and The Strategy To Attain It Causing A Presidential Nominee Who Wants to Become Champion of Justice To Launch The New Journalism Form of Judicial Unaccountability Reporting That Sets Off A Process Toward Legislated & People-monitored Judicial Accountability and Discipline Reform

A. THE PROBLEM

1. Federal judges are held by themselves(jur:21§1), Congress, and the media(81§1) unaccountable. This assures them that they can disregard their duty, deny people their rights, and violate civil and criminal laws applicable to them too and in the process inflict on people economic, legal, and emotional harm with no adverse consequences for themselves: They engage in wrongdoing[iii] with impunity. The attraction to do wrong risklessly is particularly strong as it is all the more profitable in professional, material, and social ways because it does not incur the cost of measures to ward against, and defend after, being caught. As a result, unaccountable judges' riskless and profitable wrongdoing is irresistible. So routinely and pervasively they do wrong in the performance of their duties as to have turned wrongdoing into the institutionalized modus operandi of the Federal Judiciary, wherein they conduct themselves as Judges Above the Law.

B. THE OBJECTIVE

2. The objective of this endeavor is to expose how ingrained wrongdoing has become in the Judiciary's operation; how high it reaches in its hierarchy; and how long it has perverted the administration of justice. Based on the facts(21§§A,B), it is possible to identify the conditions enabling wrongdoing that must be eliminated; devise the necessary measures to prevent, detect, and punish it; and correct or adopt the statutory and constitutional provisions that will ensure that federal judges behave and are treated as public servants accountable to, and disciplinable by, the people, who are the source, agents, and intended beneficiaries of 'government of, by, and for We the People'[172] In short, the objective is to achieve judicial accountability and discipline reform.

C. THE STRATEGY

1. The premise for exposing outside the courts the judges' wrongdoing

3. The strategy to achieve that objective is based on the realization that it amounts to self-contradictory conduct doomed to failure from the outset to sue or complain against judges for their wrongdoing by filing process in their own turf, that is, their courts. That is mostly the place where they are charged with disregarding the laws and the rules, including those applicable to suits and complaints against judges. In addition, such process in the courts is presided over by the defendant judges' peers, who may have known those judges for 1, 5, 10, 15, 20 years or more.(62¶133) As a result, the presiding peers may have known about the wrongdoing of the defendant judges or should have known about it had they proceeded with due diligence to safeguard the integrity of judicial process and of the Judiciary.(57¶119 >Canon1) But they did nothing about it, thereby covering the past and enabling the future wrongdoing of the defendant judges. Worse yet, the peers themselves may have engaged in their own wrongdoing in reliance on the expectation of reciprocal cover-up. Thus, the presiding peers cannot allow any investigation or give the defendant judges motive for exposing the peers' wrongdoing in retaliation or in plea bargaining in exchange for their own skin. Judges are bound by their mutually dependent survival: If one goes down, he can inevitably or intentionally take the others with him. This relationship prevents them from judging each other fairly and impartially. It follows that any action to expose judges' wrongdoing must take place outside their courts.

2. Format of the strategy: public exposure >outrage >judicial reform

4. The judges' wrongdoing exposed by journalistic investigations can provoke such outrage as to cause the public to demand that wrongdoing judges be officially investigated. The authorities can be thus forced to investigate. Thanks to their subpoena, contempt, and penal powers, they can be more incisive and make even more outrageous findings that will compel a legislated(126§4) reform of the Judiciary. The reform must hold judges as publicly accountable as other public servants are now(156§6) but in a forum outside and independent of all the courts and their judges(129§5), such as a citizen board of judicial accountability and discipline(158§8).

3. Overcoming the media's fear of exposing judges' wrongdoing.

5. Out of self-preservation –perhaps partiality and a quid pro quod–, the media has failed to investigate complaints about wrongdoing by life-tenured and de facto unimpeachable federal judges, who can retaliate with impunity against those who investigate and expose them. Consequently, journalists must be provided with a proposal for the investigation of judicial wrongdoing enticing enough to overcome such fear. The enticement may consist of the likelihood of a name-making scoop, better yet, one worth a Pulitzer Prize or being named Time Magazine Person of the Year, with the prospect of recounting the investigation in a bestseller book and of being portrayed in a blockbuster film so that one becomes an iconic figure of journalism and a case study at every school of journalism or earns the moral reward of recognition by a grateful nation for having contributed to a greater realization of the noble ideal of Equal Justice Under Law in government, not of officers, but of laws.

6. There is precedent for this: Washington Post Reporters Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward and their decisive contribution to the exposure of the Watergate Scandal.(4¶¶10-14) The proposal should also provide sufficient retaliation-reducing features to make any remaining risk acceptable. That requirement can be satisfied by a national personality staging such an attention-grabbing presentation on judges' wrongdoing and their enabling Judiciary as to bring into their investigation so many journalists that judges cannot retaliate against them all, lest they betray blatant abuse of power. An unprecedented political circumstance makes this propitious now.

4. The opportunity for causing politicians to launch a Watergate-like generalized competitive media investigation of judicial wrongdoing

7. Open and notorious criticism of federal judges by politicians is rare[17]. Simultaneous criticism by all the four Republican candidates as well as the President (23fn17b >act_j:61) is unprecedented, particularly given the harsh corrective and even retaliatory measures to deal with those judges that some candidates have proposed. Sen. Santorum, Rep. Paul, and Speaker Gingrich have criticized them on grounds of their judicial "activism"; as for Gov. Romney, he criticized Justice Sotomayor specifically as a "liberal" judgei. Those are subjective notions that describe matters of opinion. As such, they resonate only with people who happen to know what an "activist" or a "liberal" judge looks like and who condemn those to whom such labels have been affixed.

8. By contrast, judicial wrongdoing concerns matters of objective evidence of the judges' disregard of their duties, people's rights, and their own obligation to obey the law. As such, knowledge of it, never mind realizing that one was, may have been, or is likely to be a victim of the judges themselves, can outrage all the people regardless of their political persuasion or lack thereof. It is outrageous for judges who were entrusted with decision-making power over the people's property, liberty, and lives to have in coordination among themselves abused it in self-interest and knowingly to the detriment of the people. The public at large outraged by the judges' wrongdoing, particularly during a presidential campaign, is likely to make candidates and incumbents hear its demand for those who engaged in outrageous conduct to be held accountable and for action to be taken to prevent their future outrageous conduct. It is also likely that those candidates and incumbents will be forced to take a stand on the issue and be seen acting accordingly.

9. It is to make each of those candidates realize that it is in his interest to a) take the lead in pursuing his criticism of federal judges as the issue that each sorely needs to make himself stand out, attract voters' attention, donations, and votes; b) base it on the broadly appealing, outrage-provoking objective evidence of the judges' wrongdoing so as to become the People's Champion of Justice defending them from abusive public servants who have arrogated to themselves an intolerably undemocratic status: Judges Above the Law; c) take advantage of his access to the national media to make a presentation of the evidence; and d) entice all journalists into a rewarding and reasonably safe race for once-in-a-lifetime scoop that leads to a Water-gate-like generalized media investigation of judges' wrongdoing and their enabling Judiciary.

5. The enticing scoop: Justice Sotomayor's concealed assets and President Obama's lying about her integrity

10. The President nominated Then-2nd Circuit Judge Sotomayor to the Supreme Court and maintained her nomination. Yet, he had access to the articles in The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico that suspected her of concealment of assets[107a], which pointed to her evasion of taxes and possibly to concealment of their illicit source. He also disregarded the financial statements that Judge Sotomayor had to file with the Senate Judiciary Committee as part of her confirmation process[107b], which also pointed to concealment of assets[107c]. Similarly, he disregarded the FBI's secret report on its vetting of her, which is likely to have been even more damaging given its power to subpoena her bank accounts statements, colleagues at and clients of the law firm where she had been a partner, bank officers that extended loans to her, etc. The President had already disregarded publicly filed documents pointing to the tax evasion of three other known tax cheats, whom he nevertheless nominated for cabinet positions: Tim Geithner, Tom Daschle, and Nancy Killefer[108].

11. Therefore, when President Obama vouched for Judge Sotomayor's integrity, he lied to the American public. He did so in his self-interest of currying favor with voters that wanted a Latina and another woman on the Supreme Court and on whose support he counted as he prepared for the battle to adopt his signature legislation: the Affordable Health Act, a.k.a. Obamacare.

12. There can be no doubt that a presidential nominee candidate would provide journalists with a powerful incentive to investigate judges' wrongdoing by formulating the investigative query thus:

> What did the President(77§5) and the justices[23b] and judges[131] know about J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets(65§1) and consequent tax evasion[107c] and other justices'(71§4) and judges'[213] wrongdoing and when(75§d) did they know it?

13. Any of the candidates can also dangle the prospect of the journalists' making a series of revelations of judicial wrongdoing that caused such public outrage as to force Congress, whether during or after the election, to hold public hearings on judicial unaccountability and its consequent wrongdoing. Of course, the scoop that every journalist would be driven to make would be to find the conceal assets of Now-Justice Sotomayor. Even a lesser revelation that raised "the appearance of impropriety" on her part could lead to a development that would be forever associated to the journalist's name: the resignation of Justice Sotomayor…and other justices and 2nd circuit peers too? The precedent for this is the resignation of Justice Abe Fortas on May 14, 1969, due to conduct that only appeared to be an "impropriety".(92§d)

14. By contrast, J. Sotomayor would appear to have committed the crime of evasion of taxes and to continue to commit it by keeping her assets concealed on her IRS return forms and annual financial disclosure reports. Such "appearance" would make her holding to her office untenable. The situation would even be worse if she refused to resign, for that would only aggravate the embarrassment for President Obama, who would be pressured to call for the impeachment of his own former nominee. His embarrassment, however, can begin much earlier, the moment a Republican candidate or a journalist first calls for his release of the secret FBI vetting report on her.

15. Moreover, the journalistic revelations pointing to the President's lying to the American public about his Nominee Sotomayor's integrity as well as the lying of the senators that recommended her nomination and that he appointed to guide her through her confirmation in the Senate can also provoke public outrage. It can give rise to such disaffection from the President as to reduce the flow of donations to his fundraising machinery, which is said to have set itself a goal of $1 billion! Equally outrageous can be revelations that his Department of Justice refused to investigate complaints against federal judges to avoid giving them any motive to scuttle his adopted legislative agenda[17] when challenged on, for instance, constitutional grounds, as Obamacare is.

D. WHAT TALKSHOW HOSTS, JOURNALISTS, AND ANCHORS CAN DO NOW

16. These three types of news reporters can pioneer JUDICIAL UNACCOUNTABILITY REPORTING. Thereby they can profoundly alter the financial and public relations dynamics of the presidential campaign. The scandal that they uncover can surpass the scope and impact of Watergate, which dealt with a president, Richard Nixon, in his second and last term. Here the scandal involves life-tenured judges that up to now have conducted themselves as a center of power escaping democratic control, even that provided by the Constitution's checks and balances. A constitutional crisis will likely arise. Its determining factors will be the judges' unaccountability and consequent wrongdoing; public outrage and demand for full exposure and preventative and punishing measures; and a power play among the government branches; its solution can give the opportunity to the next president to change the balance of that power and make of the reform of the Judiciary his most significant and enduring reform. There lies the vital interest in this issue for each of the four candidates that have criticized "activist" and "liberal" judges. The reporters can highlight that interest when challenging the candidates to criticize them on the evidence of their wrongdoing.

17. For those reporters that by pioneering judicial unaccountability reporting precipitate a judicial wrongdoing-cleansing crisis and reformative solution there await professional and social rewards(4¶13). To start that reporting and end up deserving those rewards, the reporters can:

    a. present those candidates with the objective evidence(21§§A,B) of (i) the wrongdoing of the judges; (ii) the harm that they inflict on the people; and (iii) the corrupting influence that they propagate throughout the Judiciary, the legal and bankruptcy systems, and legal process;

    b. ask that they take a stand on the evidence and state their plan to deal with such wrongdoing;

c. call and ask that also the candidates call (i) on P. Obama to release the secret FBI report on the vetting of Then-Judge Sotomayor; and (ii) on her to account for her assets[108c] and for her concealment of DeLano, which she presided over, from the Senate Judiciary Committee(77§5);

d. ask people to send them copies of their complaints against judges so as to discern patterns of wrongdoing, and draw up the sociogram of wrongdoing judges and other insiders(111§3))

e. encourage the media, whether separately or in a joint investigation, in general, to:

   1) access and analyze[213] the judges' annual financial disclosure reports[107d] collected at www.judicialwatch.com; and in particular,

   2) search for J. Sotomayor's concealed assets[198] and her receipt for cashing in her partnership interest at Pavia & Harcourt(103¶232b); Pulitzer-deserving finding can unravel a judicial and political scandal, to be fueled by the Republican candidates;

   3) interview former and current law and court clerks, as well as judges and magistrates that resigned their commission and, consequently, are more likely to agree to talk, even if only on deep background, and less likely to fear retaliation(106§c);

f. call on Congress to hold public hearings on:

   1) how routine in the Federal Judiciary's operation and its judges' conduct wrongdoing coordinated among judges and between them and insiders of the legal and bankruptcy systems has become and how high in the judicial hierarchy it has reached;

   2) what the President knew about Then-Judge Sotomayor's concealment of assets, which pointed to her concealment of their source and tax evasion, when he nominated her for a justiceship and vouched for her integrity, and when he knew it;(

g. ask the candidates to commit themselves to:

   1) making judicial wrongdoing and its investigation a front-burner campaign issue;

   2) participating in the presentation to the public of the media's investigative findings so that the candidate openly and notoriously may reaffirm his support for the media's investigation of unaccountable judges' wrongdoing and implicitly state that it would be ill advised for judges to retaliate against the media, with which he stands close on the issue and will defend with the influence attached to his national figure status;

h. interview Dr. Cordero on talkshows and newscasts, and ask him to submit for publication articles on (i) the evidence of judicial wrongdoing(21§§A,B); (ii) its investigation(97§D); (iii) the academic and business venture to expose and investigate it and advocate judicial reform (97§D); and (iv) the media's professional duty as the 4th power in 'government of, by, and for the people'[172] to check on the three government branches and inform the people about wrongdoing so that the people may cast informed votes and hold all their public servants accountable;

i. broker a presentation by Dr. Cordero to the candidates and their campaign managers(171§F) to lay out why it is in their political interest to make a presentation criticizing judges on the objective evidence of their wrongdoing so as to become the People's Champion of Justice;

j. assist in setting up the investigative and reporting unit256, which can lead to creating the venture's institute of judicial unaccountability reporting and reform advocacy(129§5).

18. Your pioneering judicial unaccountability reporting informs the public of the wrongdoing that necessitates judicial accountability and discipline reform. It can lead to your triggering history!

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

5apr12

What You Can Do To Expose Judges' Wrongdoing That Harms You and the Rest of the People and Set In Motion A Process of Judicial Accountability and Discipline Reform

A. Federal judges' unaccountability leads them irresistibly to engage in profitable and riskless wrongdoing that harms the people

1. Federal judges are unaccountable(jur:21§1) because their peers, the politicians that recommend, nominate, and confirm them(65§1), and the media(4¶¶10-14) hold them so.*
   a. In fact, in the 223 years since the creation of the Federal Judiciary in 1789 only 8 federal judges have been impeached and removed from the bench.[13]
   b. Federal judges systematically dismissed 99.82% of the complaints filed against their peers in the 1oct96-30sep08 12-year period, thus exempting themselves from any discipline.(24§b)
   c. The media have shied away from investigating federal judges' conduct, as opposed to their judicial opinions, or the complaints against them for fear that the judges close ranks as a privileged class and in coordinated fashion retaliate against them.(81§1)
2. In reliance on their historic de facto unimpeachability and their untouchability, unaccountable federal judges engage in wrongdoing in pursuit of material, professional, and social benefits. Their most powerful motive to do wrong is money! In calendar year 2010, federal judges dealt in personal bankruptcies alone with $373 billion!(27§2)

B. The strategy to expose unaccountable federal judges' wrongdoing

3. The strategy to expose wrongdoing judges(88§§a-d) and their enabling Judiciary provides for a national figure who has access to the national media and through it to the national public to expose objective evidence thereof.(21§§A,B) People of all political persuasions will be outraged by evidence of how precisely those entrusted with administering justice under law abusively squeeze it out of due process and give the people what is left as residue: a mockery of justice!
4. Thereby the national figure can launch a Watergate-like generalized and first-ever media investigation(97§D) of the Federal Judiciary and its judges for wrongdoing. It may in turn force official investigations by Congress and DoJ-FBI. Their even more outrageous revelations compel politicians to undertake a realistic solution, e.g., judicial accountability and discipline reform (126§4), including the creation of a citizen board of judicial accountability and discipline (158§8).

C. What you can do to persuade a national figure to expose judges' wrongdoing

5. You can state to each of the four Republican presidential nominee candidates or their top campaign managers how the candidate can win the attention of the national media and the public by exposing objective evidence(21§§A,B) of outrageous judicial wrongdoing and how the judges harm the people.(cf. 171§F) They may well be receptive to your statement because of a most rare circumstance in politics: Each of them has already openly and notoriously criticized federal judges for being either "activist" or "liberal" and have proposed corrective, even coercive measures to force them to respect the Constitution and the laws thereunder.[17b]
6. You can use a written or verbal statement on wrongdoing judges and how they harm people and deliver it at any of the candidates' state offices or events -announced on their websites- to:

a. the candidate, his adult family members, top managers, and event organizers or owners and managers of the establishment where the event is held, who presumably have access to him;

b. the cohort of journalists covering the events, who are likely to be receptive because they want to sound off the attitude of the people at the event. They can either (i) investigate the evidence of outrageous judicial wrongdoing that can directly affect the campaign and allow them to make a Pulitzer Prize-deserving scoop(4¶13); (ii) bring it up with the candidates when they interview them; and (iii) relay it to their anchors for the latter to authorize its investigation; or (iv) decide on their own, particularly if they are freelancers and citizen journalists in quest of a name-making scoop(4¶¶10-14), to investigate the evidence.

c. the event-goers, who can be requested to ask the candidates to take a stand on the evidence of judicial wrongdoing. Young attendants, still full of the idealism, are likely to do so.

7. To be able to distribute a handout, such as the one suggested at http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/jur/DrRCordero_AJADR_handout.pdf, give people time to read it, and work the crowd to prompt them to ask questions about judicial unaccountability and wrongdoing one should arrive early at the events and address in particular small groups of three to five people that appear to come together and those who appear capable of standing up and addressing the candidate.

8. The emphasis of the statement should be on how the candidate will benefit in his campaign by exposing judicial wrongdoing. At this advanced point in the race, the only consideration that matters to each of them is how he can survive until the Convention. Here is a sample statement:

> The four of you Republican candidates have courageously criticized federal judges for disregarding the Constitution by being "activist" or "liberal". Those are subjective notions shared by only part of the electorate that you need to win the race. But, there is also objective evidence of their wrongdoing, that is, their disregard for their duty, the laws applicable to them too, and the rights of all of us.(21§A) Most politicians and the media too are so afraid to take on life-tenured powerful judges as to hold them unaccountable. The result is Judges Above the Law. They do wrong risklessly to gain undue benefits for themselves and those who cover for them, such as the politicians who recommended, no-minated, and confirmed them and who disregard the people's complaints against judges.
>
> Such is the case of Now-Justice Sotomayor and President Obama. She was suspected in articles in The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107c] of concealing assets of her own, which points to tax evasion, yet President Obama nominated her to the Supreme Court(65§B). The exposure of such evidence can outrage people of all political opinions, who insist that only honest judges may sit in judgment of them and make decisions affecting their property, liberty, and lives. Just "the appearance of impropriety" can force a justice to resign, as Justice Abe Fortas had to in 1969(¶211). It can outrage everybody at the President, who lied to the public about Judge Sotomayor' integrity in order to curry favor with Latino and feminist voters that wanted another woman on the Supreme Court and whose support he needed to pass his Obamacare legislation. It can curb his fundraising.
>
> You can defend the people and the Constitution by exposing the objective evidence of J. Sotomayor-P. Obama-judges' wrongdoing, thus attracting everybody's attention, donations, and even votes. So are you merely biased against "activist" or "liberal" judges or are you a principled man, courageous enough to be our Champion of Justice by exposing their wrongdoing and calling on the media and Congress to investigate it (97§D) and on the President to release the secret FBI report on the vetting of J. Sotomayor?

9. You need not just take the abuse that wrongdoing Judges Above the Law inflict on you and all of us. You can stand up and expose them. If you do so, you can trigger history![fn.188a]

Advocates of Judicial Accountability and Discipline Reform

Contact:

Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com
http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
tel. (718)827-9521

April 1, 2012

Dear Officeholders and Politicians,

We are advocates of judicial accountability and discipline reform. We are encouraged by recent courageous and unique criticism of federal judges by some presidential candidates.

We are or have been parties to some of the 2 million new cases filed annually in the federal courts and more than 47 million in state courts (not including traffic offenses; see the statistics in the below-referenced file, jur:7¶¶22-26). That is 50 million new cases filed every year that involve at least 100 million parties directly and additional scores of millions of people indirectly who experience to varying degrees what we have experienced to the full extent:

The disregard of the facts and the law of the case, the denial of the procedural guarantees of due process, and the arbitrary, reasonless, fiat-like decisions of judges that risklessly do so out of expediency or for material and social benefits for themselves and their own because they are held by their peers, the legislative branch, and even the media unaccountable. Since judges are sure that they can get away with whatever they do, they have turned the Federal Judiciary into a safe haven for wrongdoing, which has become their irresistible, routine, institutionalized modus operandi.

You can tap the resulting vast well of resentment and frustration by exposing judicial wrongdoing and turning it into a key campaign issue: judges are civil servants to the people but are unaccountable to them. So, we have prepared a professional file attesting to judicial unaccountability and providing evidence of the harmful wrongdoing to which it leads, at found*.

By exposing such evidence(jur:21§A), you can cause a national public to be so outraged at wrongdoing judges as to rally behind your call for the media and the authorities to investigate judicial wrongdoing, in general, and a concrete case of wrongdoing that began in a federal bankruptcy court and went on appeal to a district court, a circuit court, where Then-Judge Sotomayor was the presiding judge, and on to the Supreme Court, where she is a justice now.

That case involves her nominator to a justiceship, that is, President Obama, her concealment of assets, of which she was suspected in a series of articles by The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico(jur:65§B), and her participation in a judge-run bankruptcy fraud scheme driven by the most powerful corruptor of politicians and judges alike: money!

By exposing this evidence and advocating judicial accountability and discipline reform, you can earn the attention and gratitude of everybody and the donations and votes of many of them. During the campaign and even after it ends, you can expose judges contemptuous of the law who trampled it out of due process to give the people the residue left, the rape of justice. You can ensure that the people as the source of government by the rule of law receive what they demand: Equal Justice Under Law. Thereby you can become the People's Champion of Justice.

Consequently, we respectfully request that you arrange at your earliest convenience for some advocates among us to make a presentation of the evidence to you and your top staffers. We can do so on a short notice. Meantime, we look forward to hearing from you.

Advocates of Judicial Accountability and Discipline Reform

Tweet: Who had #NYTimes #WPost and #Politico kill their stories of concealment of assets by Obama's #Judge #Sotomayor? http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/1/5.pdf

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

April 12, 2012

Proposal To a Prominent Politician or Organization to Make the Initial Presentation to the media and the public of evidence revealing how P. Obama and Then-Judge Sotomayor deceived the public about her concealment of assets, which can cause the media and the authorities to investigate them, and supporters to abstain from giving him donations, work, and votes, and to ask her to resign

A. The wrongdoing evidence to be presented

1. This proposal is based on showing that the President lied to the public when he vouched for the integrity of his first nominee to the Supreme Court, Then-Judge, Now-Justice Sotomayor:

   a. He disregarded a series of articles in The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[108]a that suspected Then-Judge Sotomayor of concealing assets of her own(65§1), which points to tax evasion[108c] and keeping secret their unlawful origin(103¶232b).

   b. The President also disregarded the secret FBI report on the vetting of J. Sotomayor that must have shown how she had withheld from the financial and case documents(69§b) that she was required to and did file publicly[108b] with the Senate Judiciary Committee a publicly filed bankruptcy appeal, DeLano[110a], which she had presided over. That appeal incriminated her in covering up the concealment of assets involved in a bankruptcy fraud scheme(66§2) that trafficked in vast sums of money(27§2) and was run by her and circuit peers' appointee[62a](28 U.S.C. §152(a)), a bankruptcy judge. Exposing their appointee as corrupt or as their agent(56§e) raised a conflict of interest that led to their "absence of effective oversight"(35§3)).

2. The President nevertheless nominated Judge Sotomayor, maintained his nomination of her, and vouched for her to curry favor with advocates of another woman and the first Latina jurist on the Supreme Court. He was courting their support in preparation for his battle to adopt the central piece of his legislative agenda, that is, affordable health care reform, now Obamacare.

B. The initial public presentation of the available evidence

3. Relying on the evidence of the conditions enabling judicial(21§A) and J. Sotomayor's(65§B) wrongdoing(88§§a-d) and any other found by an investigative team[257a], a presentation can be made at a press conference(97§D) to show that J. Sotomayor has given "the appearance of impropriety" by concealing assets as a judge, which she must keep doing as a justice to avoid self-incrimination; and that the President covered and keeps covering it up. There need only be shown that she 'appears to have committed an impropriety'. That would suffice to criticize her and call for her to resign, just as Justice Abe Fortas had to on May 14, 1969, though his "impropriety" was not even a misdemeanor(92§d), whereas hers points to crimes, among others, tax evasion and perjury.

4. At the presentation, both the President can be called on to release the FBI report on Then-Judge Sotomayor and she to account for her missing assets[108c]. The journalists covering it can be given a well-defined though broadly framed and widely-known incriminating investigative query(xviii) that is likely to lay out the high stakes and enticing potential of investigating them:

   What did the President(77§5) and the justices and judges know[23b] about J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets(65§1) and tax evasion[107c] and other justices'(71§4) and judges'[213] wrongdoing and when(75§d) did they know it?

5. This can send journalists in quest for a Pulitzer Prize-worthy scoop on a Watergate-like generalized media investigation of wrongdoing(97§D) that develops unstoppable momentum.

C. Strategy based on a reasonable expectation of how events will unfold

6. It is to be expected that, to avoid self-incrimination, both the President and Justice Sotomayor will refuse to release the FBI report on her and to account for her missing assets[108c]. Their refusal will strengthen the suspicion of their wrongdoing only to be hardened into evidence by the blow after blow of "impropriety" findings by newssmith journalists searching for J. Sotomayor's concealed assets and her peers' wrongdoingiii This will generate an embarrassment for him, who will be locked into his defense of her integrity and his refusal to release the report. It will put him on the defensive, thus distracting him from his campaigning.

7. If any of J. Sotomayor's concealed assets are found, the embarrassment will become a scandal and the distraction a constitutional crisis: If this life-tenured justice refuses to resign, will President Obama keep supporting her or be forced to endorse or even call for the impeachment of his own former nominee at the risk of causing her to retaliate, e.g., by agreeing in plea bar-gaining to testify to his cover-up in exchange for leniency on the tax evasion and perjury charges?

8. This query can be expected to put under intense scrutiny the President's second justiceship nominee, Now Justice Kagan(71§4), and other of his nominees. This expectation arises from the fact that he already nominated for cabinet positions three known tax cheats: Tim Geithner, Tom Daschle, and Nancy Killefer[109]. Those Democrats that shepherded J. Sotomayor through the Senate confirmation process will also be scrutinized, such as Sen. Chuck Schumer and Sen. Kirsten Gillibrand(78§6). Will any of them crack and 'sing' to save his or her own skin?

9. Calls for Congress to hold public hearings on the query will force the President to go into full damage control mode. This will only further impair his campaigning ability and diminish his resources intake. Moreover, it will deepen the disappointment of those who supported him just as it will turn away Independents and the undecided that may still be considering voting for him.

D. Initial presenter: prominent politician or personality covered by media

10. A prominent politician can make the initial presentation(xvii) of the evidence of J. Sotomayor's and the President's wrongdoing. All the presidential candidates, even the President, criticized federal judges for being either "activist" or "liberal"[17b] Those are subjective notions that appeal only to those who share that opinion. But the presenter can focus on objective evidence of wrongdoing, which will outrage everybody at unaccountable(21§1) justices and judges who abusively(26§d) exempt themselves(24§§b,c) from the laws that they impose on everybody else.

11. The presentation can initiate the development of the politician's image as the People's Champion of Justice, who battles Judges Above the Law to ensure that We the People of 'government of, by, and for us'[172] receive our due: Equal Justice Under Law. That will serve him well when contrasted with a president under media investigation as a conniving liar who showed no respect for the law and ethics when he saddled Americans with a life-tenured tax cheating judge contemptuous of the law of the land and the Constitution under which it is adopted. The initial presenter can also be another personality who can call reputable news organizations to a press conference or make the presentation at an event well attended by the media(97§1) such as the job fair of a journalism school or a university commencement where he or she is the speaker.

12. The resignation of one or more life-tenured justices will be more dramatic than that of 2nd and last term President Nixon due to his wrongdoing in the Watergate scandal. It will earn greater rewards(4¶13) to those most responsible for a cleansing of the presidency and the Judiciary(83§§ 2,3). To contribute to that outcome Dr. Cordero welcomes invitations to present(171§F) the evidence and the strategy to a presidential candidate or an organization willing to trigger history![188a]

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

April 18, 2012

A Novel Strategy For Taking Action Against Wrongdoing Judges by removing the fight from the judges' turf, the courts, out to the public, and taking into account the interests of journalists and politicians during a presidential campaign, when they are most receptive, so that they may help in exposing wrongdoing by judges so outrageous as to stir up the public to demand that the media and the authorities investigate the judges and their enabling judiciary and undertake effective legislated judicial accountability and discipline reform

A. Failed strategy: fighting in court judges' wrongdoing

1. Numberless people in hundreds of Yahoo- and Googlegroups and legal matter websites complain that judges disregard due process and even violate the law. They tried to reform the judicial system through lawsuits only to realize that the effort to hold judges accountable by taking action against them in their own turf, the courts, was futile. I too realized that. So, I began to research the conditions that allow, and just as important, the motive that drives, judges to do wrong.

1. Study of judges resulting from original research and litigation experience

2. My study(jur:1;[ii]) concentrates on the model for many state judicial systems, the Federal Judiciary. It found judges' unaccountability(jur:21§1) to be the enabling condition of their wrongdoing. It renders their wrongdoing riskless and thus easier to pull off, less costly, and more self-beneficial, which provides irresistible motive. Unaccountable judges individually interpret and apply the law and the rules arbitrarily. They also take action collectively: They coordinate(jur:88§§a-d) their wrongdoing to increase their benefit from it. Coordination also ensures their interdependent survival. Each one knows enough about the other's wrongdoing to bring them down as she or he falls. That is why judges will not expose their peers, for they fear retaliatory exposure by their peers, being treated as treacherous pariahs, and incrimination by any investigation that may start with somebody else's wrongdoing only to end up finding their own.

B. New strategy: out-of-court, investigators' self-interest, and public outrage

3. The strategy's novel approach is to expose judges' wrongdoing, not in court based on individual litigants' cases or anecdotes, but rather in public on the strength of the official statistics of all cases; and to rely for the exposure not just on judges' victims, but rather mainly on the self-interest of those who have the skill or the authority to investigate wrongdoing judges and whose findings can so outrage the public as to stir it up to demand corrective action from politicians.

1. The media in search of a Pulitzer Prize-worthy scoop

4. During a presidential campaign, journalists' interest in a politics-related scoop is heightened. Such is one that takes root in media as reputable as The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a] and their suspicion that President Obama's first justiceship nominee, Then-Judge Sotomayor, concealed assets of her own(jur: 65§1). This points to breaking the law requiring disclosure[107d], tax evasion, and laundering assets obtained from an unlawful source(jur:68§3). Since both the President(jur:77§5) and the Senate107b vetted her, it must be established whether they learned about it but covered it up by lying to the public when they vouched for her honesty so as to advance their interest in catering to the constituencies petitioning for another woman and the first Latina on the Supreme Court in exchange for their support for the passage of the President's signature piece of legislature: affordable health care reform, now Obamacare. Journalists' competitive effort to score a scoop can set off a Watergate-like generalized media investigation(jur:97§) of 'Sotomayor's assets', 'what the President and the Senate knew and when they knew it', and similar wrongdoing by other judges[213;144d].

2. Public outrage at judges' unaccountability and consequent wrongdoing

5. The media's steady stream of incriminating findings of coordinated judicial wrongdoing can provoke public outrage(jur:83§2). It can stir up the public to demand that the authorities, e.g., Congress, DoJ-FBI, and their state counterparts, also investigate, in particular, the evidence of Justice Sotomayor-President Obama's wrongdoing and, in general, the conditions and motive that have enabled judges to do wrong in such coordination among themselves and so routinely as to have turned wrongdoing into the Federal Judiciary's institutionalized modus operandi(jur:49§5).

6. The authorities, wielding their subpoena, contempt, and penal powers, can investigate so incisively as to make findings that are even more outrageous. As a result, the public can demand that the Judiciary be reformed through legislation(jur:131§§1,4,6) enforced and monitored(jur:158§§8,5) from the outside, as opposed to a predetermined exculpatory internal review by the Judiciary[105b].

3. Politicians yielding to public pressure

7. Public pressure can operate on the politicians' interest in being voted in and not out of office. It can force challenging candidates to call for, and incumbents to undertake, such reform. They will not do it without such pressure, for it is contrary to their interest in not antagonizing life-tenured judges that can declare their signature legislation unconstitutional[17] or otherwise retaliate against them if those politicians appear before those judges on charges of their own wrongdoing[15].

4. Judicial wrongdoing exposed by self-interested politicians

8. One of those candidates is Gov. Romney. Right now he faces an 18% disadvantage in women's vote. Almost every analyst agrees that he cannot win the general election with such percentage of disaffection on the part of half of 52% of the electorate. Hence, he has a survival interest in so embarrassing President Obama and causing such disappointment among his supporters as to dissuade them from making donations and volunteering work to his campaign, and to dispose them to express to pollster after pollster that they do not intend to vote for the President.

9. Such voters' reaction can diminish the President's intake of resources enough to make him a comparatively ineffective campaigner and mar the perception of his electability. Worse yet, it can absorb him with the dilemma whether to defend his former justiceship nominee, thus tying his name and fate to hers, or call for her resignation or even impeachment, thus acknowledging her wrongdoing and risking involvement in its cover-up. Either scenario will strengthen the media's interest in meeting the demand of a profitable newsmarket riveted by its investigation(jur:97§D).

C. Prioritizing judicial reform over politics

10. From the point of view of judicial reform advocates, the issue is one of clear priorities: whether advancing the objective of judicial reform by taking advantage of a window of opportunity is more important for them and a nation governed by the rule of law than having one or the other party stay or come to power only to maintain the same conditions enabling coordinated judicial wrongdoing. The applicable principle here is: The enemy of my judicial enemy is my friend.

11. Gov. Romney need not expose the wrongdoing of J. Sotomayor and P. Obama because of any deep commitment that he may or may not have to an honest judiciary that impartially applies the law to itself and others. He only needs to do it. He certainly can do an effective "job" of it, just as he did a devastating "job" in the Florida primary on Speaker Gingrich right after the Speaker's decisive victory in South Carolina, and did the same "job" on Sen. Santorum thereafter.

12. By the same token, Speaker Gingrich, Sen. Santorum, and Rep. Paul as well as other prominent national figures have an interest in making the proposed initial presentation(jur:xxvii) of the available evidence of judicial wrongdoing(jur:21§§A,B) in order to come back or into to the national spotlight, draw attention as the People's Champion of Justice, and earn the currency of public approval with which to play a meaningful game at their party convention.

D. Embracing the new strategy to pursue the same commitment to justice

13. Many judicial victims and court journalists have shown an enormous commitment to the pursuit of justice in their own cases and to courageously and truthfully reporting about judges and their verbal or written opinions. They now have the opportunity to show the same commitment to pursuing an honest judiciary where judges are treated as what they are: public servants hired to administer justice impartially and fairly according to law and accountable to We the People.

14. They can contribute to it by implementing this novel strategy that is founded on a deeper and broader base of knowledge and that is realistic and feasible: To expose outside the courts judges' unaccountability and consequent wrongdoing and cause an outraged public to demand of the media and the authorities that they investigate wrongdoing judges and their enabling judiciary and undertake effective legislated judicial accountability and discipline reform.

1. Feasible steps for implementing knowledgeable and realistic strategy

15. Implementing that strategy calls for the study* of judges' wrongdoing to be widely distributed and posted so as to appeal to journalists' interest in a Pulitzer Prize-worthy scoop and to that of presidential and other candidates in having a say at their party convention and in being elected. To draw attention to the study and its evidence, these targeted summaries can be addressed to:

    a. judicial victims and reform advocates(jur:xxiv); handout to distribute at meetings(jur:xxvi);

    b. talkshow hosts, journalists, and news anchors(jur:xix); investigative query for them(jur:xviii);

    c. journalist interested in investigating this story with a professional team(jur:xxxii);

    d. presidential and other political candidates and their staffers as well as other national figures and organizations capable of making the proposed broadly publicized initial presentation (jur:xvii) of the available evidence of judges' unaccountability and consequent wrongdoing(jur:21§A) and the concrete case of concealment of assets by Then-Judge, Now-Justice Sotomayor, and its cover-up by President Obama and the Senate(jur:65§B).

2. Reasonably expected rewards

16. If you take knowledgeable, realistic, and committed action now for the sake of your case, your work, and of "Equal Justice Under Law", you can set in motion events and assist in the emergence of an academic and business venture(jur:129§5) that can lead to legislated judicial accountability and discipline reform. Your rewards can be not only material, but also self-realizing, noble, and enduring commensurate with your effort(jur:4¶13). Indeed, you can trigger history!

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

May 20, 2012

PROPOSAL TO JOURNALISTS & OTHER PROFESSIONALS FOR AN INVESTIGATION, Based On Articles in The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico, Legal Research on Official Federal Judiciary Sources, and a Cost-effective Strategy, of Federal Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing so Routine and Widespread as to Have Become Their Institutionalized Modus Operandi and Turned Their Enabling Federal Judiciary Into a Safe Haven for Wrongdoing That Escapes the Control of, and Harms, We the People

1. I would like to introduce myself and then set forth the investigation proposed in the title. This investigation can proceed from the advanced point where journalists will find the many leads to the actors, victims, and enabling conditions of judicial wrongdoing[iii] already collected by the above-mentioned reputable news organizations and by me[107a,c]. It aims to be cost-effective by focusing on a case that can reach a level of public attention high enough to impact the presidential campaign and attain its ultimate objective: to force Congress and state legislatures to legislate, enforce, and monitor judicial accountability and discipline reform based on constitutional 'checks and balances' and controls operated independently, from outside of, and on, the judiciaries. The immediate objective is to set off through an initial presentation(jur:xxvii) of the available leads a Watergate-like generalized and first-ever media investigation of federal judges and their Judiciary, an objective supported by precedent known to journalists, the Watergate scandal(jur:4¶¶10-14).

A. My legal research and litigation experience

2. I am a doctor of law, a lawyer in New York City, and a legal researcher-writer on federal judges' unaccountability and consequent wrongdoing. My current study is below(jur:1). I have conducted my research, not where most people do, to wit, in the courtrooms where trials or oral argument take place or in the published opinions of the courts and writings by law professors, students, and lawyers; but rather where most people do not, that is, I focus on the official statistics, reports, and news and newsletters of the federal courts published by the federal courts, in general, and the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts[10], in particular[ii].

3. As its name indicates, this Office assists in the administration of the federal courts with matters such as collecting the statistics on caseload, judges, complaints about judges' misconduct, etc.[10]. While it has no adjudicatory or appellate functions whatsoever, its director and deputy director are appointed by the chief justice of the Supreme Court, who removes them after consulting with the Judicial Conference of the U.S., composed of the chief justice and 26 other top and representative federal judges(28 U.S.C.§601[91]). Hence, the Office is the spokesman for the Judiciary. Its publications can be used to impeach with their own words the honesty of judges as a class and the Federal Judiciary as an institution. That is why research on it is so valuable and promising.

4. In addition to my original research, my study is based on my experience in litigating cases from federal bankruptcy, district, and circuit courts to the Supreme Court[109b,114c] as well as in each representative administrative body of the Federal Judiciary[124].

B. Proposal for an investigation of wrongdoing by J. Sotomayor & P. Obama

1. Federal judges protect themselves: 99.82% of complaints are dismissed

5. At the time Then-Judge Sotomayor was being considered by President Obama for nomination to the Supreme Court, The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico vetted her and found grounds to suspect her of concealing assets of hers[107a]. The evidence obtained through my research and litigation shows that concealment of assets is a routine practice in the Federal Judiciary. This statement is all the more plausible upon learning that the Federal Judiciary has a self-policing buddy system of life-tenured judges judging judges[18a] with no input of non-judges.

6. Any federal judge ever so slightly disciplined is a potential enemy for the rest of his or her professional life. What is more, the Supreme Court justices are exempt from even this system[18e] just as they are not subject to the Code of Conduct for U.S. Judges![102] When the top officers of an institution can do whatever they want, those below, who were their former complicit peers, do as they like. They know so much about each other's wrongdoing that if one is allowed to fall, he or she can bring down all the others through domino effect.

7. That is what happens in fact. All misconduct complaints against federal judges and magistrates are filed with the respective chief circuit judge. In the 1oct96-30sep08 12-year period these chiefs dismissed systematically 99.82% of those complaints[19a,b]. Any petitions for review of dismissals are filed with the respective circuit's judicial council, which is composed of only life-tenured district and circuit judges. In that same period, the councils denied up to 100% of the petitions to review those dismissals(jur:24§b). That is what the 2nd Circuit's council did, of which Then-Judge Sotomayor was a member[19d]. She protected her peers with the same absolute partiality regardless of the nature and gravity of their complained-about misconduct –e.g., bribery, corruption, conflict of interests, bias, prejudice, abuse of power, etc.[127]– with which she can now demand that they protect her(jur:24¶33).

8. All this results in judges being held unaccountable. The statistics prove it: In the more than 223 years since the Federal Judiciary was created in 1789 under Article III of the Constitution –2,131 justices, judges, and magistrates were in office on 30sep11[13]– the number of those removed is only 8![14] Their unaccountability is the unjustified quality of their office that ensures that abusing their means, decision-making power, for wrongdoing is riskless. That dispenses with costly measures to guard against, and defend after, being caught, thus rendering their wrongdoing all the more profitable. Indeed, one[iii] of their motives is the most corruptive: money!(jur:27§2) Bankruptcy judges handle 80% of all new cases in the Federal Judiciary[33] and ruled on $373 bl. in only the 1.5+ ml. personal bankruptcies filed in CY10[31]. Those cases offer the opportunity for making decisions that are in practice unreviewable(jur:28§3). Wrong or wrongful, they stand, which facilitates wrongdoing. A person confirmed to the federal bench becomes a Judge Above the Law.

2. Money & politics: J. Sotomayor's asset concealment & P. Obama's cover-up

9. Then-Judge Sotomayor concealed assets not only of her own, as suspected by The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico(jur:65§1). She help conceal assets also involved in a bankruptcy fraud scheme trafficking in large sums of money(jur:62§2) and run by a bankruptcy judge, who was the appointee of hers and her circuit judge peers(jur:68§3): All federal bankruptcy judges are appointed to a 14-year renewable term by their circuit judges[61] and can be removed by their council. This creates the opportunity for pay-to-stay collusion(jur:56§e). To avoid incrimination, any money changing dirty hands must be concealed and any investigation obstructed.

10. The President had reason to know about J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets of hers and of the scheme.(jur:77§5) Yet, he covered it up and lied to the public about her integrity. He did so to curry favor with voters that wanted a Latina and another woman on the Supreme Court and whose support he counted on as he prepared for the battle to adopt his signature legislation: Obamacare.

3. Life-tenured justice & nominating president: stakes higher than in Watergate

11. Unaccountable judges are effectively unimpeachable and by means of complaints untouchable. Yet, they are the most vulnerable of government officers to the easiest form of incrimination: competent and respected journalists showing that they gave "the appearance of impropriety". By doing so, they forced Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas to resign on May 14, 1969.(jur:92§d)

12. That "appearance of impropriety" is all the proposed investigation needs to show about J. Sotomayor. That standard is very promising when coupled with a widely-known incriminating query that already proved its devastating effect: It was asked of every witness during the nationally televised congressional hearings on the Watergate scandal; it brought about the resignation of President Nixon on August 8, 1974(jur:4¶¶10-14). Today that query would be phrased thus:

> What did the President(77§5) and the justices and judges know[23b] about > J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets(65§1) and tax evasion[107c] and > other justices'(71§4) and judges'[213] wrongdoing and when(75§d) did they know it?

13. This query lays out the investigation's enticing potential. The available evidence(jur:21§§A,B) and any additional resulting from leads[198] and the investigation proposal(jur:97§D) can set off a Watergate-like generalized media investigation(jur:100§3) where journalists(jur:xlvi§§H-I) compete to find J. Sotomayor's concealed assets, determine whether the President lied to the public when he vouched for her honesty, and follow other judges' wrongdoing right into a Supreme Court(cf. jur:104¶¶ 236,237;[144d]) that covers it up through knowing indifference and willful ignorance or blindness(jur:88§§a-d). That investigation can become part of the national debate on a dysfunctional government and self-interested public servants…and bring in a Pulitzer Prize.

4. Wrongdoing evidence initially presented by VIP at media-permeated event

14. Setting off a Watergate-like investigation can be accomplished by publishing an expository article(jur:98§2) or making the proposed initial presentation of the Sotomayor-Obama-judges' wrongdoing evidence at a press conference or another event well attended by the media(jur:97§1), e.g., editors' convention, journalism school student job fair, university commencement(cf. dcc:11).

15. The presentation would be even more impactful if it were made by one of the presidential candidates(jur:xvii). All of them –even the President[17b]– have criticized federal judges, albeit for being "activist" or "liberal", which are subjective notions. Now they can base their criticism on the objective evidence of the judges' wrongdoing(jur:1) and thus become the People's Champion of Justice.

16. The investigation(jur:97§D) can develop its own unstoppable momentum to the point of having a significant impact on the party conventions and presidential campaign. That is part of a realistic and feasible strategy(jur:xxix): to expose a case of judicial wrongdoing that reveals it as the Federal Judiciary's modus operandi and so outrages the public as to stir it up to demand during a presidential campaign, when politicians are most receptive, what is this process's ultimate objective: legislated judicial accountability reform enforced and monitored from outside the Judiciary.

17. Thus, I respectfully suggest that we collaborate on this investigation. You can contribute your journalistic investigative skills, contacts, and access to the public(jur:xxii), and I can provide my research, leads, and strategy for exposing wrongdoing that runs throughout the Judiciary all the way to the Supreme Court under protection of the President and other politicians(jur:78§6). Successful collaboration can open the way for a multidisciplinary academic and business venture (jur:119§E) to advocate(jur:121§§1-1) and monitor(jur:126§§4-5) judicial accountability and discipline reform. So I look forward to hearing from you. Together we can trigger history![188a]

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. (718) 827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

May 25, 2012

The DeLano-Judge Sotomayor story

A judge-run bankruptcy fraud scheme covered up by a judge concealing assets of her own

An expository news piece showing how federal judges' self-exemption from discipline, reciprocal cover-up of their wrongdoing, and unaccountability due to the failure of politicians and the media to exercise checks and balances and investigate their conduct have allowed judges to turn coordinated wrongdoing into the Federal Judiciary's institutionalized modus operandi; and how it can set off a Watergate-like generalized media investigation whose findings can so outrage the public as to force politicians to undertake judicial reform

1. The evidence hereunder concerns what The Washington Post, The New York Times, and Politico[107a] suspected in articles contemporaneous with President Barak Obama's first justiceship nomination, to wit, that Then-Judge Sonia Sotomayor of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit (CA2) had concealed assets of her own(65§1). The evidence is in the financial statements that she filed with the Senate Committee on the Judiciary[107b]. They show that in 1988-2008 she earned and borrowed $4,155,599 + her 1976-1987 earnings; but disclosed assets worth only $543,903, leaving unaccounted for $3,611,696 - taxes and the cost of her reportedly modest living[107c]. Thereby she failed to comply with that Committee's request that she disclose "in detail all [her] assets…and liabilities"[107b]. Her motive was to cover up her previous failure to comply with the requirement of the Ethics in Government Act to file a "full and complete" annual financial disclosure report[107d]. The President disregarded the evidence(77§5) of her dishonesty just as he did that of his known tax cheat nominees Tim Geithner, Tom Daschle, and Nancy Killefer[108].

2. The President also disregarded a case that incriminates Judge Sotomayor in the cover-up of concealment of assets as part of a bankruptcy fraud scheme(66§2) and in protecting the schemers[110], i.e., DeLano[109a],over which she presided[109b]. His vetting of her through his staff and the FBI must have found that case, for it was in the CA2's public record. The Judge so clearly realized how incriminating[131] that case was that she withheld it(69§b) from the documents that she was required by the Senate Judiciary Committee to submit in preparation for holding confirmation hearings on her justiceship nomination. By so doing, she committed perjury, for she swore that she had complied with the Committee's initial and supplemental requests for documents[107b].

3. DeLano concerns a 39-year veteran banker who before retiring filed his personal bankruptcy, yet remained employed by a major bank, M&T Bank, as a bankruptcy officer! He was but one of a clique of bankruptcy system insiders: His bankruptcy trustee had 3,907 open cases[113a] before the WBNY judge hearing the case; one of his lawyers had brought 525 cases[113b] before that judge; his other lawyer also represented M&T and was a partner in the same law firm in which that judge was a partner[113c] at the time of his appointment[113d] to the bench by CA2; and the judge was reappointed[61a] in 2006, when J. Sotomayor was a CA2 member. M&T was likely a client of that law firm[114b-c] and even of the judge when he was a bankruptcy lawyer and partner there. They participated in a bankruptcy fraud scheme run nationally and enabled by the Federal Judiciary[115].

4. A co-schemer, the 'bankrupt' officer declared $291,470 earned with his wife in the three years preceding their bankruptcy filing[117a]. Incongruously, they pretended that they only had $535 "on hand and in account"[117b]. Yet, they incurred $27,953 in known legal fees, billed by their bankruptcy lawyer, who knew that they had money to pay for his services[117c], and approved by the trustee and the judge. They also declared one single real estate property, their home, bought 30 years earlier[117d] and assessed for the purpose of the bankruptcy at $98,500, on which they declared to carry a mortgage of $77,084 and have equity of only $21,416[117e]…after making mortgage payments for 30 years! They had engaged in a string of eight mortgages from which they received $382,187, but the trustee and the judge refused to require them to account for it[117g].

5. For six months the bankruptcy officer and his wife, their lawyers, and the trustee treated a creditor that they had listed among their unsecured creditors as such and pretended to be searching for their bankruptcy petition-supporting documents that he had requested[118a]. It was not until the creditor brought to the judge's attention[118b] that the 'bankrupts' had engaged in concealment of assets that they moved to disallow his claim[118c]. The judge called on his own for an evidentiary hearing on the motion only to deny discovery of every single document that the creditor requested, even the bankrupts' bank account statements, indispensable in any bankruptcy[119a]. Thereby he deprived the creditor of his discovery rights, thus flouting due process. He turned the hearing[119b] and his grant of the motion into a sham[120]. He also stripped the creditor of standing in the case so that he could not keep requesting documents, for they would have allowed tracking back the concealed assets. On appeal, the judge's colleague in the same small federal building[121a] in Rochester, NY, a WDNY district judge, also denied every single document requested by the creditor[121b].

6. All these circumstances rendered this bankruptcy officer's bankruptcy petition suspicious per se. Yet, when DeLano reached CA2, Then-Judge Sotomayor, presiding[109b], condoned those unlawful denials and denied in turn every single document in 12 requests122a. She too needed those documents to find the facts to which to apply the law[122b]. Thus, she disregarded a basic principle of due process, which requires that the law not be applied capriciously or arbitrarily[122c] in a vacuum of facts or by willfully ignoring them. Her conduct[121c] belied her statement before the Senate Judiciary Committee that her guiding principle as a judge was "fidelity to the law"[132f].

7. Judge Sotomayor also condoned the refusal of the bankruptcy judge to disqualify himself for conflict of interests and "the appearance of impropriety"[123a-b], just as she refused to disqualify him [123c]. During her membership in the 2nd Circuit's Judicial Council[20], she too denied the petition to review the dismissal without any investigation of the misconduct complaint against him[124]. This formed part of her pattern of covering up for her peers: As a CA2 member she condoned, and as a Council member she applied, the Council's unlawful policy during the 13-year period reported online of denying 100% of petitions to review dismissals of complaints against her peers[125a]. Thereby she contributed to illegally abrogating in effect an act of Congress giving complainants the right to petition for review[123b]; and also condoned the successive CA2 chief judges' unlawful practice of systematically and without any investigation dismissing such complaints[125a]. She did not "administer justice" [to her peers] rich"[90] in judicial connections, but rather a 100% exemption from accountability[125b]; and the "equal right"[126] that she did to them was to disregard all complaints against them, no matter their gravity or pattern, whether the allegation was of bribery, corruption, conflict of interests, bias, prejudice, abuse of power, etc.[127] Her total partiality toward her own was "without respect"[90] for complainants, other litigants, and the public. Instead of Equal Justice Under Law, Judge Sotomayor upheld Judges Can Do No Wrong. She breached her oath.

8. By so doing, Judge Sotomayor rendered wrongdoing irresistible: She assured her peers of its risklessness, insulating it from any disciplinary downside while allowing free access to its limitless scope and profitability upside. So she emboldened them to engage ever more egregiously in the bankruptcy fraud scheme[60] and other forms of wrongdoing. By removing wrongdoing's stigmatizing potential and allowing its incorporation into the judges' modus operandi, she encouraged their resort to its efficiency multiplier: coordination. Through it wrongdoing becomes institutionalized and wrongdoers' fate becomes interdependent, requiring their continued reciprocal cover-up[89]. Then-Judge Sotomayor thus ensured that they would cover up her concealment of assets; now a Justice, she is not a champion of the Judiciary's integrity, but rather their accomplice[129a].

9. Indeed, the DeLano bankruptcy officer had during his 39-year long banking career learned who had turned the skeletons in the closet into such. The risk of his being indicted and trading up with domino effect motivated J. Sotomayor and her peers to allow him to retire with at least $673,657(jur:15) in known concealed assets[112b]. To protect peers, other insiders, and herself, she failed in her duty under 18 U.S.C. §3057 to report to the U.S. attorneys, not hard evidence, but just 'a belief that bankruptcy fraud may have been committed'[130a]. In how many of the thousands of cases [113a-b,114b] before their appointed[61] bankruptcy judges have she and other judges complicitly let the bankruptcy fraud scheme fester with rapaciousness[130b] and who benefited or was harmed thereby?

10. President Obama too had a duty: to vet justiceship candidates and choose one, not in his interest, but for their fitness. He was not entitled to have his staff and the FBI vet them only for him to hush up[158] their finding[107a] of J. Sotomayor's concealment of her assets[107c] and of those trafficked in the fraud scheme. Had he acted responsibly in the public interest, he would have realized that she had withheld(69§b) DeLano to prevent her cover on the scheme from blowing up and scuttling her nomination, and either withdrawn her nomination or disclosed the incriminating information to enable others to make informed decisions. By burying that information under lies about her integrity, he fraudulently got a dishonest nominee confirmed and misled the Senate and the public.

11. A.G. Eric H. Holder, Jr., also had a duty. By taking the oath of office, he bound himself to uphold the Constitution and enforce the laws thereunder in the interest of, not the President, but rather the people[159a]. Similarly duty-bound were the other federal[159b-f] and state officers[160] who vetted Judge Sotomayor or received complaints about her, the schemers[161], and their condoners. But they would not even ask those complained-against to answer the complaint or request any evidence-corroborating document[160d]. As for Sen. Charles Schumer, he disregarded the evidence submitted to him, endorsed J. Sotomayor, and became the President's point man to shepherd his nominee through the Senate. So did Sen. Kirsten Gillibrand. Although she, as Sen. Schumer's protégé, knew or should have known the incriminating evidence, she recommended the Judge to the President, introduced her to the Senate Judiciary Committee, and endorsed her to New Yorkers and the rest of the U.S. public.(78§6) For such dereliction of duty aimed at protecting their party members and reelection donors, they should be held accountable in the 2012 race.(xviii; xxxii)

12. To that end, DeLano can be used as a test case for a Follow the money! investigation.(102§a) It can expose the condonation by the President and his administration of, and the involvement by J. Sotomayor, other judges, and bankruptcy and legal systems insiders in, deficit-aggravating tax evasion and a nationwide judge-run bankruptcy fraud scheme corruptive of the Judiciary.(27§2) There is probable cause to believe that these coordinated wrongdoers have also interfered with the email, mail, and phone communications of those trying to expose their wrongdoing. This calls for a Follow the wire! investigation(105§b). These investigations can remedy the abdication of the Executive, Congress, and the media(81§1) of their duty of oversight(35§3) of the Judiciary. They have connived in self-interest and to the people's detriment to allow judges -their servants- to become unaccountable(21§1). So judges routinely deny due process and substantive right[iii] and discipline self-exempt by systematically dismissing complaints against them(21§1). As a result, in the 223 years since the creation of their Judiciary in 1789 only 8 judges have been im-peached and removed![14] Such survivability produces, and is the product of, Judges Above the Law.

13. To expose wrongdoing judges there is proposed: 1) a Watergate-like generalized media investigation(101§D) of the evidence(21§§A,B) guided by the query:

> 'What did the President(77§5) and the justices know[23b] about J. Sotomayor's tax evasion[102a,c] and other judges'[213] wrongdoing and when did they know it(75§d)?';

2) an academic and business venture(125§3); and 3) presentations(171§F; xxv).

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England 2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org tel. (718)827-9521

The Salient Facts of The DeLano Case[109a]

revealing the involvement of bankruptcy & legal system insiders in a bankruptcy fraud scheme

(D:# & footnotes are keyed to Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/DeLano_docs.pdf; blue text points to bookmarks on the left)

1. DeLano is a federal bankruptcy case. Part of a case cluster, it reveals fraud that is so egregious as to betray overconfidence born of a long standing practice[1]: Coordinated wrongdoing evolved into a bankruptcy fraud scheme.[2] It was commenced by the DeLano couple filing a bankruptcy petition with Schedules A-J and a Statement of Financial Affairs on January 27, 2004. (04-20280, WBNY[3]) Mr. DeLano, however, was a most unlikely bankruptcy candidate. At filing time, he was a 39-year veteran of the banking and financing industry and continued to be employed by M&T Bank precisely as a bankruptcy officer. He and his wife, a Xerox technician, were not even insolvent, for they declared $263,456 in assets v. $185,462 in liabilities(D:29); and also:
   - a. that they had in cash and on account only $535(D:31), although they also declared that their monthly excess income was $1,940(D:45); and in the FA Statement(D:47) and their 1040 IRS forms(D:186) that they had earned $291,470 in just the three years prior to their filing;
   - b. that their only real property was their home(D:30), bought in 1975(D:342) and appraised in November 2003 at $98,500[4], as to which their mortgage was still $77,084 and their equity only $21,416(D:30)…after making mortgage payments for 30 years! and receiving during that period at least $382,187 through a string of eight mortgages[5].(D:341) Mind-boggling!
   - c. that they owed $98,092 –spread thinly over 18 credit cards(D:38)- while they valued their household goods at only $2,810(D:31), less than 1% of their earnings in the previous three years. Even couples in urban ghettos end up with goods in their homes of greater value after having accumulated them over their working lives of more than 30 years.
   - d. Theirs is one of the trustee's 3,907 open cases and their lawyer's 525 before the same judge.
2. These facts show that this was a scheming bankruptcy system insider offloading 78% of his and his wife's debts (D:59) in preparation for traveling light into a golden retirement. They felt confident that they could make such incongruous, implausible, and suspicious declarations in the petition and that neither the co-schemers would discharge their duty nor the creditors exercise their right to require that bankrupts prove their petition's good faith by providing supporting documents. Moreover, they had spread their debts thinly enough among their 20 institutional creditors(D:38) to ensure that the latter would find a write-off more cost-effective than litigation to challenge their petition. So they assumed that the sole individual creditor, who in addition lives hundreds of miles from the court, would not be able to afford to challenge their good faith either. But he did after analyzing their petition, filed by them under penalty of perjury, and showing that the DeLano 'bankrupts' had committed bankruptcy fraud through concealment of assets.
3. The Creditor requested that the DeLanos produce documents[6] as reasonably required from any bankrupt as their bank account statements. Yet the trustee, whose role is to protect the creditors, tried to prevent the Creditor from even meeting with the DeLanos. After the latter denied every single document requested by the Creditor, he moved for production orders. Despite his discovery rights and their duty to determine whether bankrupts have concealed assets, the bankruptcy and district judges denied him every single document. So did the circuit judges, even then CA2 Judge Sotomayor, the presiding judge, who also needed the documents to find the facts to which to apply the law. They denied him and themselves due process of law. To eliminate him, they disallowed his claim in a sham evidentiary hearing. Revealing how incriminating the documents are, to oppose their production the DeLanos, with the trustee's recommendation and the bankruptcy judge's approval, were allowed to pay their lawyers $27,953 in legal fees[7]…though they had declared that they had only $535. To date $673,657[8] is still unaccounted for. Where did it go[9]? How many of the trustee's 3,907 cases have unaccounted for assets? For whose benefit?[2]

[1] §XIII [2] §III [3] §V. [4] §X [5] §§I.B & VIII [6] Cf. §XII [7] §XI [8] §I.B [9] §II

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

October 5, 2012

A Strategy for Advocates of Public Integrity To Jointly Bring The Issue of Corruptive Power, Money, and Secrecy in Politics and The Judiciary To National Attention and Lead to Corrective Action By Inducing Journalists and Politicians To Engage in Conduct That Works in Their Interest, Not Against It, And That Can Attain Such Objective

A strategy based on self-interest, public outrage, and citizen oversight

The presidential campaign allowed candidates and the media to make claims or present evidence aimed at showing how politicians are or have been corrupt. Can you begin to imagine how much more pervasively corrupt politicians would be if they, as do federal judges,

a. held life-appointments with self-policing authority that allowed them to assure their impunity by dismissing the complaints against them; were in effect above investigation, never mind prosecution, and thus unimpeachable;

b. ruled on $100s of billions annually…

c. in the secrecy of closed-door meetings and through decisions that were not published and in effect non-reviewable but could deprive you of your rights to property, liberty, and life?

A. Judges' wrongdoing is more pervasive and outrageous than that of politicians

1. The above is a succinct description, detailed below, of how judges' conditions of office are qualitatively different from, and more corruptive than, those of politicians. They explain how compared with politicians judges have a more effective means, insidious motive, and greater opportunity to engage in wrongdoing that consequently is substantially more pervasive. The Federal Judiciary has national scope and affects profoundly every person's vital rights. Exposing federal judges' wrongdoing will be unexpected, shocking, and widely resented by the public.

2. The realization that those who are duty-bound to administer Equal Justice Under Law have arrogated to themselves and exploit the status of Judges Above the Law can outrage the public. So can the realization that self-interested politicians have allowed judges to get away with wrongdoing that robs people of their birthright: to have their vital rights protected by the rule of law. As a result, exposing judges' wrongdoing will generate more visceral and widespread public outrage than exposing politicians' will. An informed public can swing the 'stick' of its vote on politicians to force them to investigate judges for wrongdoing and reform the judiciary.

3. Since the Federal Judiciary is its state counterparts' model, exposing its judges' wrongdoing will provide the impetus for investigating state judges for similar and other forms of wrongdoing.

B. The statistics show that the conditions for wrongdoing enable far more pervasive and outrageous wrongdoing among judges than politicians

4. The analysis(jur:21§A) of the official statistics of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts provide the foundation for the reasonable conclusion that wrongdoing among federal judges is far more pervasive than among politicians because the judges:

a. have been entrusted[18] with the power to police themselves and abuse it by dismissing 99.82% of all complaints filed against them(24§b). Although on September 30, 2011, the number of federal judges in service was 2,131, in the 223 years since the creation of their Judiciary in 1789, the number of federal judges impeached and removed is only 8!(21§a) Not only do they hold life-appointments, but also are in practice unimpeachable. Thus, federal judges are unaccountable and their wrongdoing is irresistible, for it is riskless;

b. rule on amounts of money that dwarf the combine corruptive donations to politicians: In CY10, just the federal bankruptcy judges, who first rule on 80% of all the federal cases filed every year, ruled on $373 billion in personal bankruptcies alone(28§2); and

c. i) hold their adjudicative, administrative, and disciplinary meetings behind closed doors and never hold a press conference, which cloaks their operations in actual secrecy(27§f); and

ii) the majority of cases are filed by pro-ses, who have neither lawyers nor knowledge of the law and are easy prey; only a minute percentage of decisions are appealed; and up to 90% of all appeals in the federal circuit courts are disposed of through either fiat-like summary orders with only one operative word, overwhelmingly 'affirmed', or opinions so perfunctory and arbitrary that the judges stamp them "not for publication" and "not precedential". Such unreviewability cloaks their decisions in virtual secrecy(29§3).

5. As a result, federal judges have a) the absolute means for wrongdoing since they exercise power with the feature that is absolutely corruptive[29]: unaccountability, which provides the irresistible inducement to abuse it without the inhibiting fear of adverse consequences; b) the most insidious motive for wrongdoing, money!; and c) the most favorable opportunity for wrongdoing in the actual secrecy of their operations and the virtual secrecy of their cases. These circumstances have combined to enable federal judges to engage in wrongdoing in its most pervasive manifestation: Wrongdoing is the institutionalized modus operandi of the judges of the Federal Judiciary.

6. By contrast, politicians:

a. hold power for only two, four, or six years with voters' approval, which they must win again at the next election or they are out of office automatically; and they are held accountable for their exercise of their power, as they are subject to challenges from members of their own party and of the opposite party as well as by the other of the two congressional chambers and the other branch of either Congress or the Executive; and must bear intense media scrutiny, voters' feedback, and challenges in court. (An appeal from a federal judge's decision, even one leading to a reversal, is inconsequential since federal judges cannot be voted out of the bench or promoted or demoted by their peers.(jur:46¶77);

b. will collect during this presidential campaign, the most expensive ever, at most $1 billion in donations, most of which are too small to even buy access to the candidates, let alone influence and corrupt their performance; and

c. most of their sessions, meetings, hearings, and voting occur in the open.

C. Judges' more pervasive wrongdoing can give rise to a virtuous circle of public outrage >incentive for media investigation >outrageous findings >

7. The public outrage at judges' wrongdoing will incentivize the media to investigate the evidence showing how district and circuit judges who tolerated or participated in wrongdoing while in the lower courts continued to do likewise after they were elevated to the Supreme Court.(jur:65§§1-3) Journalists will engage in that investigation in pursuit of their own professional interest in winning a Pulitzer Prize and their editors will assign them to it in pursuit of their business interest in growing their audience by satisfying and stoking its demand for news on a story of wrongdoing(jur:xxxiii) affecting its vital rights. The stream of ever more outrageous investigative findings will exacerbate the public outrage, which will only heighten the incentive for the media to keep investigating. This will give rise to a self-reinforcing action and reaction.

8. The initial presentation(jur:xxv) of the evidence showing how power, money, and secrecy have corrupted federal judges can launch a generalized media investigation just as the Watergate Scandal did: It began with an initially derided "garden variety burglary" at the Democratic National Committee on June 17, 1972, and led to the resignation of President Nixon on August 9, 1974, and the imprisonment of all his White House aides.(jur:2¶¶4-9) This investigation will be guided by a question that emerged from that Scandal and proved its capacity to incentivize media and official investigations and topple wrongdoers at the top of government , now rephrased thus:

> What did the justices know about judges' pervasive and outrageous wrongdoing due to their corruptive power, money, and secrecy and when(75§d) did they know it?(jur:71§4; [196])

9. What is more, the media investigation of judges' wrongdoing will naturally follow the leads to those that recommended, nominated, and confirmed those judges and in their own interest have spared them any wrongdoing investigation, namely, the politicians.(jur:77§§5-6) This is the workable mechanism through which the journalistic investigation will develop its own unstoppable momentum that will take journalists from judges to politicians and other wrongdoers; it can lead back to judges who tolerated or participated in the corruption of politicians through money that bought access to them and influenced their votes and their secrecy-enabled cover-up.

10. This can so outrage voters as to stir them up to demand that politicians investigate and hold judges accountable, under pain of voting those politicians out of, or not into, office. That is the voters' 'stick' to force politicians, out of self-preservation, to investigate judges at the risk of ending up investigating their peers or themselves. The energy to swing that stick comes from voters being well informed and, as a result, outraged. The necessary information can be provided by politicians themselves if they are first given a 'carrot' that interests them in doing so.

D. Showing politicians how it is in their electoral interest to expose judges' wrongdoing due to corruptive power, money, and secrecy

11. There is a carrot that can be offered to politicians to interest them in investigating judges and other politicians: increasing the chances of winning an election by embarrassing their political opponents substantially and enhancing their own standing as advocates of public integrity.

12. For instance, Gov. Romney still risks losing the election, with him trailing President Obama in most polls. Hence, it is in his interest to embarrass the President. The Governor can do so himself or through his surrogates, such as pro-Romney superPACs. To that end, either of them can make the initial presentation(jur:xxv) of the evidence of how the President nominated Then-Judge Sotomayor(jur:xxxiii) to the Supreme Court although he knew that she had concealed assets, just as The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico had suspected[102a], and the secret FBI vetting report on her must have first known, and consequently, that she had evaded taxes[102c].

13. That the President had no qualms about doing so is indisputable, for he nominated other known tax cheats to cabinet positions, namely, Tim Geithner –the current Secretary of the Treasury–, Tom Daschle, and Nancy Killefer[103]. That he had a motive is also beyond doubt, for he expected those who were pressing him to appoint another woman and the first Latina to the Supreme Court to support in exchange the passage of his signature legislature: Obamacare.

14. For those who put their advocacy of public or judicial integrity above their personal political preferences, offering this carrot to a presidential candidate is a principled application of the saying: The enemy of my enemy is my friend. Advocates of getting money out of politics and of whistleblowing on corruption in government agencies, such as the Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms Bureau, the Federal Drugs Administration, or the Environmental Protection Agency, may be for or against Gov. Romney. Yet, all of them may deem him their 'friend' if he in his own political interest makes the initial presentation(jur:xxv) of the Obama-Sotomayor story(jur:xxxiii) that sends journalists into a Watergate-like, generalized media investigation of judges' pervasive and outrageous wrongdoing that leads to broader story of corruptive power, money, and secrecy.

15. Bringing to the national public this national story of wrongdoing in the Federal Judiciary tolerated or participated in by Congress and the Executive(jur:71§§4-6) can cause the farthest-reaching public wrongdoing investigation and government overhaul ever. It can surpass those brought about by the Watergate Scandal, which was limited to wrongdoing by President Nixon (in his second and last term), his aides, and at their instigation some agencies in the Executive.

E. The role of advocates of public integrity in launching the investigation through the initial presentation of the evidence of judges' wrongdoing

16. Also the advocates of getting money out of politics and of protecting whistleblowing on government agencies, whether the EPA, FDA, ATF, or others, can make the initial presentation(jur:xxv) of the evidence of judges' wrongdoing. Alternatively, they can call on others who have access to the national media to do it. The objective in either case is the same: To appeal to the professional and business interests of the media by presenting to them evidence showing that:

    a. judges' wrongdoing is far more pervasive and outrageous than that of politicians,

    b. its exposure can more widely and lastingly hold public attention, and

    c. lead to an investigation of the wrongdoing of politicians and others resulting from the drivers of wrongdoing common to all of them: corruptive power, money, and secrecy.

17. Their investigation will not only expose wrongdoing; it will also aim to reform our government. It will convincingly demonstrate that if judges and politicians do not find it in their interest to apply the law, they will disregard it, to the detriment of We the People and our government by the rule of law. This makes the case for a reform, including of the Federal Judiciary, that gives an important role to citizen oversight of the performance of our government and our public servants.(jur:131§§e-h) Exposing how power, money, and secrecy corrupts judges is the path to exposing how power, money, and secrecy corrupts politicians in Congress and the Executive.

F. Thinking strategically and working together for public integrity

18. Advocates of getting money out of politics and protecting whistleblowers can advance their agenda by implementing this strategy. They can do so more cost-effectively by joining forces to make the initial presentation(jur:xxv) of the Obama-Sotomayor story(jur:xxxiii) and/or contact the Romney campaign or pro-Romney superPACs to propose that they make it.(cf. dcc:11) Through its imple-mentation, the advocates can become recognized nationally as Champions of Justice[159a], attract a broader audience that can develop into a wider base of supporters, and lead to reform in the functioning, transparency, and accountability of judges and politicians.

Dare trigger history![233a]

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. (718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

November 8, 2012

The reliance of the proposal to expose judges' unaccountability and consequent riskless wrongdoing on STRATEGIC THINKING to formulate and implement its proposed action; the SELF-INTEREST of politicians and journalists to advance it unwittingly; and HISTORIC PERSPECTIVE to set judicial reform in a series of millennial impossibles that became realities and thus convince advocates of judicial reform that it can be realized and significant to attain the noble ideal of Equal Justice Under Law

Table of Contents

paragraph no. ↓

A. The dynamics of the proposal: from judges' wrongdoing to judicial reform.....1
B. Counting on politicians' and journalists' self-interest.....2
C. Reliance on strategic thinking.....3
D. The interests of Republicans.....5
E. The interests of journalists.....7
F. The precedent of journalists' 1972-74 Watergate Scandal investigation.....8
G. Judicial reform in a series of historic attainments of the impossible.....11
H. Profile of the journalist likely to initiate the judicial wrongdoing investigation.....14
I. Journalism students and bloggers can set the investigative bandwagon rolling.....17
J. The choice of action for judicial reform advocates.....19
K. The proposed action of informing and persuading.....20

****

A. The dynamics of the proposal: from judges' wrongdoing to judicial reform

1. The proposal begins by exposing judges' unaccountability and consequent riskless wrongdoing. It envisages an initial presentation(jur:xxvii; cf. dcc:11) of the evidence thereof by a politician with national standing or an ambitious journalist whose principled investigating and reporting win him or her the support of their media bosses, to wit, their publishers and assignment editors, and establish their credibility with their media colleagues and the public. As a result, the journalist and the bosses set off a Watergate-like, generalized media investigation that produces an ever-broader stream of stories depicting the serious nature and gravity of wrongdoing risklessly and thus irre-sistibly engaged in by judges so routinely and widely as to have become their institutionalized modus operandi. The public grows outraged. It demands of incumbent politicians and their challengers that they open or call for official investigations by Congress and DoJ-FBI. On the strength of their subpoena, search, contempt, and penal powers, these investigators make findings of even more outrageous judicial wrongdoing. An exacerbatedly outraged voting public forces politicians, afraid of its wrath at the polls, to advance toward the final objective: legislated judicial reform implemented with the assistance of citizen boards of judicial accountability and discipline and aimed at administering Equal Justice Under Law.

B. Counting on politicians' and journalists' self-interest

2. This proposal does not depend on either politicians or journalists' acting out of a concern for fairness or judicial integrity. These exposers are not described in the proposal with the positive attribution to them of the terms "fair" or "fairness". Those terms are given there only a normative and aspirational value: the standard of fairness and impartiality against which to measure the performance of all judges, and the quality of the administration of justice that We the People are entitled to demand of the judiciary as part of government, not of men, but of laws. On the contrary, the proposal clearly recognizes that the politicians "dominated by Washington's culture of corruption" are the ones who nominate and confirm federal judges. It also asks whether the media that suspected Then-Judge Sotomayor of concealing assets, namely, The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a], killed their stories in a quid pro quo with the President. The proposal does not count on even an enlightened interest on the part of politicians and journalists, but simply on their political or commercial, professional, and personal self-interest.

C. Reliance on strategic thinking

3. Instead, the proposal relies on strategic thinking: the dynamic analysis that constantly reconfigures, rather than take a static view of, the harmonious and conflicting interests of the parties to a system as they act and react among themselves and to external input, and based thereon the formation of a change-susceptible plan for facilitating or hindering the alignment of interests and building or preventing implicit or agreed-upon alliances and coalitions among parties, as appropriate, so as to maximize their separate or joint positive, or lessen as much as possible their negative, impact on one's intermediate and final objectives.

4. Strategic thinking applies three strategic principles: "The best storekeeper's employee is its owner" (i.e., working for oneself is most productive and reliable); "The enemy of my enemy is my friend" (i.e., allies and coalitions can emerge by implication)(jur:xxxix); and "Knowledge is power" (i.e., a strategy is only as effective as it integrates into its basis of information the constantly interacting interests of known and new parties). The application of these principles identifies those who have an interest through whose pursuit they can unwittingly advance the interest of advocates of judicial reform. Thus, concern for fairness or judicial integrity need not motivate them to take action in behalf of such reform. Their own self-interest is enough if presented to them persuasively: 'Standing in your shoes, you will advance your own interest the farthest by doing this'.

D. The interests of Republicans

5. Republicans and their friendly superPACs have an interest in embarrassing President Obama by exposing how he knew that Then-Judge Sotomayor had concealed assets, but nominated her for a justiceship in the expectation that those lobbying him to do so would in turn lobby Congress to pass ObamaCare. Her concealment of assets, suspected by top rated national media(see above), must have been established by the FBI's secret vetting report on her prepared for the President (jur:77§5), for even a review of the financial statements that she disclosed to the Senate Judiciary Committee[107b] pointed to it and its likely motives: evasion of disclosure[107d] of her asset's illegal source and of taxes thereon[107c]. Hence, Republicans have an interest in causing the resignation or removal through impeachment of J. Sotomayor as well as any other of her peers and even all of them so as to give their legislative agenda the best possible insurance policy: an outraged public that presumptively suspects the President and asks for Republicans' scrutiny of his policies.

6. The above shows how thinking strategically, judicial reform advocates can factor into their strategy the self-preservation interest of politicians in being voted into, and not out of, office so as to force them to contribute even unwittingly to attaining the reform's intermediate and final objectives.

E. The interests of journalists

7. Journalists would want to expose judicial wrongdoing to win a Pulitzer Prize and earn national recognition for causing the resignation of Now-Justice Sotomayor, just as they caused that of Justice Abe Fortas on May 14, 1969(jur:92§d). Greater recognition would come to them if they launched a Watergate-like, generalized media investigation(jur:100§3) of the Federal Judiciary that exposed the coordination[213b] that enabled and tolerated her concealment of assets of hers and others(jur:xxxv), and led to judicial accountability and discipline reform. Such historic development would earn them a more enduring reward: They would become this generation's Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein, the Washington Post reporters of Watergate fame.

F. The precedent of journalists' 1972-74 Watergate Scandal investigation

8. Woodward and Bernstein began reporting on the break-in at the Democratic National Committee headquarters at the Watergate building complex in Washington, D.C., committed on June 17, 1972. Soon they were derided for wasting their time on a "garden variety burglary". However, they persevered. Thereby they were able to show that the money to defend the "five plumbers" cum burglars came from a slush fund linked to the Republican Committee for the Reelection of President Nixon. The public became ever more attracted to their story, for it realized what the 'burglary' was all about: political espionage and sabotage that might have been known to the President. Thus, all other members of the media scrambled to get on the Watergate investigative bandwagon.

9. The media, i.e., the decision-making publishers and assignment editors, were not spurred into action by a newly developed concern for the unfairness of Nixon's corrupting the integrity of the electoral process. Rather, they were pursuing their commercial interest: to provide their audiences with the story that had caught the national public's attention, for it concerned the betrayal of trust by those at the highest level of 'government of, by, and for We the People'[172].

10. The media realized that the public would go wherever it could find follow-up stories that satisfied its interest in learning about wrongdoing so pervasive that these top officers had turned the White House and key agencies of the Executive Branch into a "criminal enterprise", as Bernstein called it years later. So much so that the story had provoked an attention-sustaining reaction that the media could not afford to ignore: outrage. The Watergate Scandal had outraged the national public. As a result, the Watergate investigation took on a life of its own…and the unprecedented happened, which at the beginning of the story would have been ludicrous even to daydream about: President Nixon resigned on August 9, 1972, and all his White House aides went to prison.

G. Judicial reform in a series of historic attainments of the impossible

11. Judicial reform advocates can gain from solid research(jur:21§A; cf. 130§b) a deeper and more accurate understanding of the means, motive, and opportunity for judges to engage in wrongdoing[iii]; a more realistic appreciation of the obstacles to expose it(jur:49§4; 81§§1-3); and a realization of the exacting requirements to curb it through reform(jur:129§§5-9). They also need something else: historic perspective. It will allow them to glean history lessons that will inform their strategic thinking and thereby enable them to elaborate a more realistic as well as imaginative proposal for action. Of equal importance, historic perspective will provide a justification based on facts for adding endurance to their commitment: It will show that what had not occurred in not just hundreds of years, but rather thousands of years became a reality:

    a) child labor was prohibited by law and schools were opened, not just for the sons of the wealthy, but also for the children, even the daughters, of the poor; and black and white students studied together in schools as well as in colleges;

b) men without land got the right to vote, and the unthinkable also happened: women were allowed to vote and even be voted into office; and a black man even became president, a "laughable" idea as recently as 45 years ago, when blacks and whites were run away, beaten, and lynched for merely trying to organize voting registration drives for blacks;

c) institutionalized slavery was dismantled as was the enslavement in practice resulting from arbitrary termination from employment; and employees won the right to unionize and even to go on strike without being fired in support of their demands for an adequate salary earned from work under safe conditions for a regulated number of hours;

d) the Jews, scattered for thousands of years in a Diaspora through the four corners of the world, finally came back to their former land and established the nation of Israel.

12. Many other conversions of millennial or centennial impossibles into realities could be listed. They invariably go to the credit of men and women who never gave up, who shut their ears to those who repeated the same reasons why their efforts too would fail and instead opened their minds to think up innovative strategies, seizing even fleeting opportunities that only they could perceive because they looked around them with wide open eyes despite their sobering contemplation of the mountainous hurdles on the path to attaining their objectives. They are a source of realistic encouragement for judicial reform advocates to persevere.

13. They, who succeeded, and all those who preceded them but failed or brought them only an inch closer to their objective provide historic evidence of the imperative for mortal judicial reform advocates to join forces to expose all-powerful life-tenured judges. A joint effort is more likely to reduce the time to success and cost-effectively set the strategy in motion by finding the politician or journalist needed to begin exposing judges' wrongdoing that outrages the national public.

H. Profile of the journalist likely to initiate the judicial wrongdoing investigation

14. This journalist is young, from a low middle to poor economic class, likely to be the first to go to college in his or her family, not socially polished, resentful of those in higher social standing who have looked down on him or her and defiant of authority, stubborn, angry, and possessed by both the need to prove himself or herself to others and the idealism that respect for the rule of law can prevent the powerful from humiliating and abusing others, and determined to compel his or her acceptance by them due to a feat. He or she works at a medium or small media outlet.

15. There his or her bosses are desperately looking for a story that will grow their audience and make them a name; they realize that otherwise they will drown in the ever-growing wave of news swelling from the Internet. It already caused the 80-year old Newsweek to announce in October 2012 that it will cease print publication in January and will be available only on the Internet on subscription…and whom does Newsweek expect to pay the subscription and for how long?

16. The search for, not to mention the finding of, J. Sotomayor's concealed assets can be the profiled journalist's and his or her media bosses' breakthrough story…perhaps the one for Newsweek or a newcomer to make an opening splash on the Internet. For that reason, they may be willing to risk what the established media are unwilling to do by running initially with the story: to antagonize judges who in self- and class interest can close ranks to retaliate against the exposer. By so doing, the established media abdicates its mission to hold those that have an impact on the public interest accountable and thus inform the public so that it may knowledgeably exercise its right to vote in and out of office those who can or cannot represent its interests properly in a democratic government. By doing the opposite to fulfill that mission, a journalist and his or her bosses interested in establishing or reestablishing themselves in the system of journalists-subjects-audiences can succeed by earning professional prizes and national recognition.

I. Journalism students and bloggers can set the investigative bandwagon rolling

17. The profiled journalist can also be a student of journalism.(dcc:8) This is so because the main method of learning journalism is by investigating and writing stories and submitting them to the professors. The best student stories are published by the student media and can even be published by media outlets. The student may be researching and writing her doctoral dissertation or his master's thesis.(dcc:10) The 'journalist' can actually be a team of students taking a class on how to conduct a complex journalistic investigation requiring the joint effort of many media staff.

18. Bloggers too can be interested in the story. They can publish it on the Internet and on social media. Their story can go viral. Citizen journalists can run with the story until the buzz on Cyber-space is so loud that the established media too jumps on their investigative bandwagon. There is precedent for this too[293]. This illustrates how research discovers precedent that affords historic perspective and informs strategic thinking when proposing constructive and realistic action.

J. The choice of action for judicial reform advocates

19. Advocates can sit back in their lounges at the Roman circus and bet as spectators that their fellow judicial reform advocates will be abused and mangled on the arena in their unequal battle with life-tenured wrongdoing judges and the politicians that put and keep them in place. Otherwise, advocates can follow the example of Mandela and Aung San Suu Kyi, who even as they spent almost 30 years in prison or 20 in house arrest kept faith and supported those who maintained in the streets their struggle for equality and freedom. They can also jump into the fray, as did Washington and his soldiers, Rosa Park and Martin Luther King, and Ben-Gurion in Israel.

K. The proposed action of informing and persuading

20. If judicial reform advocates choose to take action, there is plenty to do. It begins by learning the facts about the nature and gravity of judges' wrongdoing[iii], for Knowledge is Power. To that end, they can take advantage of the extensive research[ii]that has found those facts(jur:21§A), their analysis with professional objectivity, and their integration through strategic thinking into a realistic proposal for initial(jur:xxvii; dcc:11) mid-term(jur:101D), and long-term(jur:121§E) action.

21. Then they can make an individual and joint effort to distribute to politicians, particularly Republicans, and journalists the concise set of questions on judges' wrongdoing that they have an interest in answering, as shown by this article. In its letter format for faxing and manual distribution, the questions are found below(xlviii) at http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/jur/DrRCordero_fax&handout.pdf. The emails and fax numbers of journalists can be found on their media websites and the mastheads of their print publications. The deans and professors of journalism schools can be approached, as can their students(dcc:7,8). The list of accredited journalism schools and programs is found at http://www2.ku.edu/~acejmc/STUDENT/PROGLIST.SHTML.

22. If judicial reform advocates join forces and get to work, this exercise can lead to the formation of a steering committee for the advocacy of such reform(jur:119§E). But all of them can start now on their way to becoming Champions of Justice who persevere in defending and asserting what is the birthright of We the People in our government, not of men, but of laws: Equal Justice Under Law. How to do so is the subject of the presentation that the author offers to make(jur:171§F).

Dare trigger history![254]

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

Judicial Discipline Reform

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

November 11, 2012

Questions for An Investigation of National Interest by Principled and Ambitious Journalists and Politicians

concerning whether they dare hold the Supreme Court justices and federal judges accountable[i] or will continue to allow them to engage in wrongdoing to avoid antagonizing them because, just as the justices upheld, but could have overturned, ObamaCare, they and their peers[ii] can doom a president's legislative agenda and even his signature law[iii].

Did the President disregard Then-Judge Sotomayor's concealment of assets, suspected by The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[102a], and nominated her to the Supreme Court –the same way he had disregarded the tax evasion of known tax cheats Tim Geithner [now Treasury Secretary], Tom Daschle, and Nancy Killefer and nominated them to cabinet posts [the latter two had to withdraw their names in the face of public outrage][103]– so as to curry favor with the voters who wanted another woman and the first Latina on the Court and from whom he expected in exchange that they lobby Congress to pass ObamaCare?

Can politicians[iv], inspired by the founding principle of government, not of men, but of laws Nobody Is Above The Law; and journalists motivated by their watchdog mission and the prospect of winning a Pulitzer Prize, make the initial presentation(xxv) of this issue and thereby launch a Watergate-like, generalized media investigation guided by a query that proved its devastating effect when it caused President Nixon to resign on 9Aug74, and which can be rephrased thus:

What did the President(77§5), the justices, and judges[196] know [23b] about J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets(65§1) and consequent tax evasion[102c] and when(75§d) did they know it?

Can journalists searching for J. Sotomayor's concealed assets bring about her resignation[v] for having failed to "avoid even the appearance of impropriety"[118a], just as Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas had to resign on 14May69, on the same grounds?(92§d)

How will President Obama respond to the demand that he release the secret FBI vetting report on J. Sotomayor?

Did The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[102a] simultaneously and without explanation kill in a quid pro quod with President Obama their stories suspecting Then-Judge Sotomayor of concealment of assets?(xxxiii)

Can the issue of judges' wrongdoing tolerated for political gain[vi] so outrage the national public, already lied to about the integrity of J. Sotomayor, as to increase the disapproval of politicians and the disconnect between We the People and our representatives?

Can journalists and superPACs investigating judges' unaccountability and riskless wrongdoing lead to a Pulitzer Prize, national recognition, and the most enduring legacy:
judicial reform that subjects the Federal Judiciary to democratic control through citizen boards of judicial accountability and discipline that ensure that judges apply to themselves and administer to We the People Equal Justice Under Law?

[i] In the 223 years since the creation of the Federal Judiciary in 1789, the number of federal judges impeached and removed is 8![14] To put this in perspective, 2,131 federal judges were on the bench as of 30sep11.[13] So they can and do engage in wrongdoing risklessly, unless the politicians[15] of "Washington[, which] is dominated by the culture of corruption (Former Speaker Pelosi [16])" confer incorruptibility upon nominating and confirming judicial candidates. Judges' wrongdoing is rendered irresistible by the most insidious corruptor: money! In CY10, bankruptcy judges, who handle 80% of all new federal cases annually[32], ruled on $373 billion[31] in consumer bankruptcies alone. How much more pervasively corrupt would politicians -your boss too?- be if they held their jobs for life with impunity and ruled on $100s of bl.[29]?(xxxvii)

[ii] Chief federal circuit judges dismissed systematically 99.82% of the complaints against their peers filed[18a,] by anybody in the 1oct96-30sep08 12-year period[19a-c]. In that period, the federal judicial councils –the circuits' all-judge disciplinary bodies– denied up to 100% of the petitions to review those dismissals(10; 24§[b]), as did the 2nd Circuit's council(11), of which Then-Judge Sotomayor was a member[20]. Thereby she too exempted her peers from all accountability regardless of the nature and gravity of their wrongdoing. Now as Justice Sotomayor, she, like other justices(71§4), and judges[196], has to prevent any investigation of federal judges, lest the wrongdoing that she tolerated or her own concealment of assets be discovered and she end up incriminated. Can you trust justices and judges who in their personal and class interest break the law to apply it impartially when they rule on your property, liberty, and life?

[iii] Up to 9 of every 10 appeals to the federal circuit courts are disposed of ad-hoc[28] through no-reason summary orders[65a] or opinions so "perfunctory"[66] that they are neither published nor precedential[68], mere fiats of raw judicial power that enable arbitrariness. You can spend $10,000s on an appeal to a circuit court only for it to dispose of the appeal with a 5¢ form whose only operative word is "Affirmed", as did Then-Judge Sotomayor[67] in Ricci v. DeStefano[66].

[iv] Governor Romney criticized Justice Sotomayor for being liberal; the other Republican presidential candidates as well as President Obama criticized the justices and judges for being activist. a) Republicans Turn Judicial Power Into a Campaign Issue; by Adam Liptak and Michael D. Shear, The New York Times, 23oct11; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Rep_candidates_fed_judges_12.pdf; b) Dems Hit Romney for Going After Sotomayor in Ads; TPM (5mar12); Hispanic leaders condemn Romney for criticizing Sotomayor in ad; by Griselda Nevarez. VOXXI (29feb12); National Institute for Latino Policy; 5mar12; id; c) CBS "Face the Nation" Host Bob Schieffer interviews Speaker Newt Gingrich on "activist judges"; 18dec11; id.

[v] This Watergate-like(4¶¶10-14) generalized media search can make a stream of revelations of improprieties(101§1) that chip away at the denials of J. Sotomayor, the President, and their peers and aides, and so mar their PR image as to lead to resignations(92§d). People would be outraged(83§§[2],3) at dishonest judges abusing their power for their benefit while affecting people's property, liberty, and lives[5,6] and their due process of law rights. Their outrage can be channeled through a multidisciplinary academic and business venture(119§[E]) that advocates legislated and citizen-monitored judicial accountability and discipline reform(131§e-h).

[vi] Senators Schumer and Gillibrand(78§6) recommended J. Sotomayor to the President. Sen. Schumer, his point man to shepherd her nomination through the Senate[160], disregarded the evidence submitted to him[154e] showing 1) her concealment of assets of hers and others(66§§[2], 3), and 2) her perjurious(69§[b]) withholding from the Senate Judiciary Committee[102b] a case over which she had presided, DeLano[104,106], that incriminated her[127] in covering up a bankruptcy fraud scheme[59] run by a bankruptcy judge[119] that she and her CA2 peers[105] had appointed[60a]. Sen. Gillibrand introduced Judge Sotomayor to that Committee and endorsed her to New Yorkers and the rest of the country[161] by lying about the Judges' dishonesty169.

Tweet: Who had #NYTimes #WPost and #Politico kill their stories of concealment of assets by Obama's #Judge #Sotomayor? http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/1/5.pdf

Blank

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

Judicial Discipline Reform

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

May 10, 2013

Mr. Gerard Ryle, Director
International Consortium of Investigative Journalists
910 17th Street, NW, Suite 700 gryle@icij.org, investigations@icij.org
Washington, D.C. 20006 tel. (202)466-1300

Dear Mr. Ryle and Journalists,

I read with great interest your Offshore Leaks report (OL). Indeed, I have written a study based on federal judges' 'leaked' files: their official statistics, jur:10-14, reports[ii], and annual financial disclosure reports that they must file, 65fn107d, publicly, 105fn213a. These files show their means, motive, and opportunity to engage in tax evasion and money laundering. Among them is a justice of the Supreme Court whom The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico suspected of concealment of assets, 65fn107a-c, J. Sotomayor, only to kill their stories inexplicably, xviii. Now the national media networks, which are the public's main source of information, have in effect ignored OL. But nothing would catapult it to the center of national attention as exposing J. Sotomayor's and her colleagues' routine commission and toleration of off- and onshore financial wrongdoing, xxxv. So this is a proposal for exposing the available, verifiable facts of such wrongdoing by federal judges, 21§A; pursue them through an OL-connected joint investigation, 102§4; and reveal the circumstances enabling their wrongdoing:

1) The proximate enabler is the authority entrusted to federal judges to police the filing and accuracy of their financial reports. Such entrustment runs afoul of the obvious fact that 'nobody can judge fairly and impartially his own cause'. Nor is it mandated by the separation of powers doctrine, which is trumped by the foundational principle of our republic: Nobody is Above the Law. Judges abuse this authority by filing and approving reports full of pro forma, incongruous, and implausible information, 105fn213b. 2) They are able to do so risklessly because they are held unaccountable by the politicians that nominated and confirmed them, 77§§5-6; the media that fear their retaliation, xlviii; and compromised lawyers, who either learned about their wrongdoing while clerking for them but kept silent in exchange for a valuable job recommendation, 81§1, or cannot risk antagonizing them. 3) The third enabler is their authority to discipline their own conduct, 24fn18, which they abuse by systematically dismissing 99.82% of the complaints filed against their peers, 24§b. 4) As a result, they are able to risklessly cover up their financial wrongdoing by disregarding due process and the rule of law, 65§§1-3, to the detriment of litigants and all those affected by their decisions, that is, the public. 5) Worse yet, they can coordinate their wrongdoing, 49§4: Bankruptcy judges handle 80% of all federal cases under the influence of the most insidious corruptor: money!, over $373 billion in CY10 in just consumer bankruptcies, 27§2. Their decisions are in practice unreviewable, 46§3, but if reviewed, it is by the judges who appointed, 43fn61, and thus are biased toward, them, and who can also remove them, 31§a. This fosters pay-to-play collusion, 56§1, and the coordination among judges and between them and other insiders, 81fn169, of a bankruptcy fraud scheme, 39§§5-6.

The public outrage, 83§§2-3, that the publication of the available, verifiable facts will provoke can cause the media to investigate judges by pursuing a query that has proved its attention-galvanizing power and can be rephrased thus: What did the President, 77§5, Congress, 78§6, and the money and tax authorities know about the financial wrongdoing of a justice, 65§§1-3, and her colleagues, 71§4, and of Offshore Leaks participants, and when did they know it? Our joint investigation can promote integrity in a key area of public life: the administration of justice. So I offer to make a presentation to you, 171§F, of the proposed investigation, 100§§3-4, and its related business venture, 119§E.

Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

Judicial Discipline Reform

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

May 11, 2013

How You Can Contribute To Exposing Judges' Wrongdoing In Light Of Offshore Leaks' Revelations Of Financial Wrongdoing

A. Offshore Leaks: the files and report on tax evasion and money laundering

Offshore Leaks are the leak of 2.5 million financial files on 260GB of data to the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists, headquartered at the Center for Public Integrity in Washington, D.C., and its report thereon, released last April 3[1]. They reveal how more than 120,000 offshore companies and trusts in 170 countries manage between $21-32 trillion in private financial assets. These include the trillions that transit through places with tax haven status and complaisant authorities and that are involved in tax evasion and money laundering. Such crimes are committed by private persons and public officers, all wealthy, some shady too, using layers of anonymity, secrecy, and false declarations with the assistance of a host of bankers, lawyers, accountants, and other professionals with a lot of knowledge and not so many scruples;

For comparison's sake, the FY13 U.S. budget is $3.8 trillion, the Gross Domestic Product is $16.2 trillion[2], and the national debt stood on April 18 at $16.78 trillion[3]. Tax evasion and money laundering aggravate our national deficit and spread corruption and criminality. Those crimes harm the government and the people. They can be exposed by the Investigative Journalists. They have shown commitment to public integrity and transparency, and during their 15-month Offshore Leaks investigation developed techniques, software, insights, and contacts that can expose how federal judges too are engaged in financial wrongdoing, whether off- or onshore.

B. Judges' wrongdoing: demonstrated by a study and suspected by top journalists

I researched and wrote the study Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing: Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting; jur:1.

The study is based on official files "leaked" by federal judges, such as their statistics, 10-14, writings[ii], and annual financial disclosure reports that they must file, 65fn107d, publicly, 105fn213a. Those files contain evidence of the judges' means, motive, and opportunity, 21§§1-3, to engage in wrongdoing coordinated among themselves and between them and insiders, 81fn169, of the legal and bankruptcy systems, including tax evasion and laundering the proceeds of a bankruptcy fraud scheme, 65§§1-3. In fact, The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico suspected a nominee to the Supreme Court, Then-Judge, Now-Justice, Sotomayor, of concealment of assets, 65fn107a-c, only to kill their stories inexplicably, xviii.

C. How the Federal Judiciary has become a safe haven for wrongdoing

Offshore Leaks show that those who are liable to investigation and exposure nevertheless engage massively in tax evasion and money laundering. By contrast, judges are in effect shielded from any investigation, let alone exposure, by the tax and money authorities under the control and influence of the politicians who nominated and confirmed them as judges, jur:81§1. It follows that they are likely, if not more likely, to engage in such financial wrongdoing too.

Judges' financial wrongdoing only renders more likely their non-financial, 5§3, wrongdoing and vice-versa: A person who does wrong in one aspect of her life and gets away with it feels more confident in, and greater pressure to cover it up by, doing wrong in any other aspect. Both types of wrongdoing are rendered possible by the same enabling circumstances, ol:1.

Wrongdoing spreads infectiously to those who see it succeed. Coordination and reciprocal cover-ups among wrongdoers render them unaccountable, 21§a, and make their wrongdoing more effective, riskless, and beneficial, 60§§f-g. It becomes ever more difficult to resist; routine to commit; and self-incriminating to oppose, 90§§b-d. Their unaccountability turns wrongdoing into their institutionalized modus operandi, 44fn69. Through this psychological and pragmatic process, judges have turned the Federal Judiciary into a safe haven for wrongdoing, 49§4.

D. Exposing judges' financial wrongdoing will outrage the public and lead to exposing their non-financial wrongdoing

Despite their worry-free employment for life, 22fn14, and salaries that cannot be diminished, 22fn12, federal judges resort to financial wrongdoing to ensure their high life, 104fn211. At the same time, the national public struggles through the worst economic recession since 1929, with unemployment that is persistently high and a constant threat. Its diminishing median household income of $50,054[4] is one fourth of a federal judge's personal salary of around $200,000, not counting her outside income[5]. That public would be outraged by Investigative Journalists' revelation, made thanks to their Offshore Leaks expertise, of Justice Sotomayor's participation in, and toleration of her colleagues', off- and onshore financial wrongdoing, including their running of a bankruptcy fraud scheme, xxxv. An outraged national public would demand official investigation of federal judges, which would expose their non-financial wrongdoing too; 83§§2-3.

E. My proposal to Offshore Leaks journalists and your contribution to their accepting it and exposing wrongdoing judges

Thus, I have proposed to the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists that they and I jointly:

1) publish, 98§2, the verifiable facts of judges' wrongdoing already stated in my study, 21§§A-B;

2) investigate the leads in my study, 102§4, and their Offshore Leaks concerning judges, using their unique Follow the money! expertise to expose concealed assets and their origins; and

3) promote and execute a multidisciplinary academic and business venture, 119§1 -which may interest all advocates of honest judiciaries- intended to lead to a for-profit institute, 130§5, judicial reform, 158§6-7, and the creation of citizen boards of judicial accountability, 160§8.

Thus, I respectfully request that you, in your own and the public interest, contribute to exposing wrongdoing judges by emailing at the addresses below the Investigative Journalists to ask that they do so and to support my joint publication, investigation, and venture proposal. I also request that you invite your colleagues, a&p:26-27, to email them too or to cosign your emails.

F. Material and moral rewards for contributors to exposing wrongdoing judges

Your contribution of support can help the Investigative Journalists, and through them the media networks and the rest of the media, to shake free of the fear, xlviii, of judges, for not even federal judges can gang up on all journalists at the same time, 100§3, lest they betray their retaliatory motive. Hence, your contribution can have an enduring and reformative impact on the public, the media, and the Judiciary just as it can earn you material and moral rewards:

1) prompt the pioneering of the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting, and reap the economic benefits flowing therefrom; 1§Introduction;

2) lead to a scoop that brings about the resignation or impeachment of one or more justices and judges, just as U.S. Justice Abe Fortas had to resign on May 14, 1969, after the revelations made by Life magazine; 92§d;

3) be hired by, or merge with, a national media outlet thanks to that scoop;

4) write a bestseller account of such scoop, similar to All the President's Men on the Watergate Scandal by Washington Post Reporters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein; 4fn3;

5) be portrayed on a movie, e.g., the homonymous blockbuster All the President's Men; 4¶13;

6) win a Pulitzer Prize, as did The Washington Post in 1973 for its Watergate Scandal coverage;

7) appear on the cover of Time magazine as Person of the Year, as U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica of Watergate fame did in 1973; jur:iv/endnote iv.

8) make a nationally recognized name for yourself, as did Michael Moore after making the documentary Fahrenheit 9/11; and Woodward, and Bernstein for being instrumental in exposing the Watergate Scandal and forcing President Nixon to resign on August 8, 1974, 4¶¶10-14

9) become an icon in your field, as Moore, Woodward, and Bernstein are;

10) be studied in every journalism school, as Woodward and Bernstein are;

11) advance the deep-seated personal conviction and common cause that wrongdoing judges corrupt our justice system, 149§4, and deprive us of rights, property, liberty, and life;

12) be known for reasserting in practice heroically against Judges Above the Law the principle that in "government of laws and not of men"[6] there is no place for a class of unaccountable judges who for their own benefit, 27§2, 62§g, abuse their office with impunity, 26§d;

13) be recognized as the one who showed that We the People are the masters of all public servants and can hold them accountable, which can spark the development of a civic movement, ol:73;

14) be instrumental in setting in motion a trend for other people abroad to follow –as they have done so many other developments in American society and pop culture– where their countries' unaccountable judges risklessly engage in financial and non-financial wrongdoing too; and

15) set in motion judicial reform that leads to the People exercising through citizen boards of judicial accountability and discipline,160§8, their sovereign power to hold judicial public servants accountable for administering to the People and themselves Equal Justice Under Law; and

16) consequently, be bestowed by a grateful nation a more enduring and noble reward: the title that earns national recognition now and is written in the history books, Champion of Justice.

G. Email addresses for you to contribute your support for the joint publication, investigation, and venture proposal

Those are valuable and meritorious rewards for contributing to exposing wrongdoing judges. You can earn some and use all of them to persuade others to do so. Thus, I encourage you to take this opportunity to contact the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists to express your support for my proposal and my offer to present it to them: that they and I apply both their unique expertise and leads resulting from their Offshore Leaks investigation and the evidence and analysis in my study to expose judges financial wrongdoing and thus set in motion judicial unaccountability reporting and reform. I also encourage you to invite your colleagues and all advocates of honest judiciaries to email, or cosign your emails, to: ICIJ Director Gerard Ryle: gryle@icij.org; Deputy Director Marina Walker: mwalker@icij.org; the journalists: investigations@icij.org; CPI Director Bill Buzenberg: dbetts@publicintegrity.org.

Dare trigger history! dcc:11…and you may enter it.

1. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Legal_news.pdf >Ln:176

2. http://www.whitehouse.gov/sites/default/files/omb/budget/fy2014/assets/tables.pdf

3. http://www.treasurydirect.gov/NP/BPDLogin?application=np

4. http://www.census.gov/prod/2012pubs/p60-243.pdf >page 5

5. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/5usc_2012.pdf >§5332 Schedule 7, Judicial Salaries

6. "In the government of this commonwealth, the legislative department shall never exercise the executive and judicial powers, or either of them: the executive shall never exercise the legislative and judicial powers, or either of them: the judicial shall never exercise the legislative and executive powers, or either of them: to the end it may be a government of laws and not of men." Constitution of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts of 1780, Article XXX. https://malegislature.gov/laws/constitution.

7. a) "…a single judge signs most surveillance orders, which totaled nearly 1,800 last year. None of the requests from the intelligence agencies was denied, according to the court." In Secret, [FISA] Court Vastly Broadens Powers of N.S.A., by Eric Lichtblau; The New York Times, 6july13; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Legal_news.pdf >Ln:263. b) 'Only 11 out of nearly 34,000 "judicial warrants –similar to those issued in criminal investigations-" made since 1979 by the federal intelligence agencies to the secret court established under the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act were denied.' The Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court, by Todd Lindeman, The Washington Post, 7jun13; id. >Ln:212. c) "The criticism of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Court is simple: that it's a rubber stamp, and that the government always gets what it wants. And here's a number that seem [sic] to support that: 1,856. That's the number of applications presented to the court by the government last year. And it's also the number that the court approved: 100 percent success." FISA Court Appears To Be Rubber Stamp For Government Requests, by Dina Temple-Raston, NPR (National Public Radio) News Morning Edition, 13jun13; id. >Ln:269.

8. "Welcome to IGnet serving as a portal to the *Federal Inspector General Community whose primary responsibilities, to the American public, are to detect and prevent fraud, waste, abuse, and violations of law and to promote economy, efficiency and effectiveness in the operations of the Federal Government. The Inspector General Act of 1978, as amended, [5 U.S.C. Appendix] establishes the responsibilities and duties of an IG. The IG Act has been amended to increase the number of agencies with statutory IGs. In 1988 came the establishment of IGs in smaller, independent agencies and there are now 73 statutory IGs." Council of the Inspectors General on Integrity and Efficiency; http://www.ignet.gov/. Inspector General Act of 1978, Pub. L. 95-452, 5 U.S.C, Appendix; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/5usc_app_Inspector_General_Act.pdf.

9. Federal Tort Claims Act, 28 U.S.C. §§171-179; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc_2013.pdf. "Under the FTCA, the federal government acts as a self-insurer, and recognizes liability for the negligent or wrongful acts or omissions of its employees acting within the scope of their official duties. The United States is liable to the same extent an individual would be in like circumstances. The statute substitutes the United States as the defendant in such a suit and the United States—not the individual employee —bears any resulting liability"; http://www.house.gov/content/vendors/leases/tort.php.

10. Each of 1) concealing assets, whether to commit 2) tax evasion or 3) money laundering to wash away the taint of its illegal provenance through hard-to-trace transactions after which the money appears as legally acquired, is a crime: 26 U.S.C. §7201 Tax evasion; §7206 concealment of assets; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/26usc7201_Tax_evasion.pdf; 18 U.S.C. §1956 Laundering of monetary instruments; §1957 Engaging in monetary transactions in property derived from specified unlawful activity; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/18_usc_11.pdf.

11. a) Portrait of the NSA: no detail too small in quest for total surveillance, Ewen MacAskill and James Ball; The Guardian | The Observer, 2nov13; supra, fn.7a, id. >Ln:272.

b) U.S. spy network's successes, failures and objectives detailed in 'black budget' summary, Barton Gellman and Greg Miller; The Washington Post, 29aug13; id. >Ln:279.

12. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Whistleblower_Protection.pdf

1) Whistleblower Protection Act of 1989, Pub. L. 101–12, §1, Apr. 10, 1989, 103 Stat. 16, http://uscode.house.gov/view.xhtml?req=granuleid:USC-prelim-title5-section1201&num=0&edition=prelim

2) Whistleblower Protection Enhancement Act of 2012, Pub. L. 112-199, Nov. 27, 2012, 126 Stat. 1465; http://www.gpo.gov/fdsys/pkg/PLAW-112publ199/pdf/PLAW-112publ199.pdf

3) The Whistleblower Protection Programs enforced by the US Department of Labor; http://www.whistleblowers.gov/statutes_page.html

4) Office of the Special Counsel, Whistleblower Disclosures; http://www.osc.gov/wbdisc.htm

5) False Claims Act, 31 U.S.C. §§3729-3733; http://uscode.house.gov/browse/prelim@title31/subtitle3/chapter37/subchapter3&edition=prelim

Blank

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

Judicial Discipline Reform

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

May 15, 2013

Strategic thinking and historical perspective to make the media strategy work in pursuit of honest judiciaries

A. The campaign to have the Investigative Journalists investigate federal judges' financial wrongdoing.....6

B. Comments on why the campaign will not work rather than how to make it work 7

C. Instances in which the media have exposed federal judges 7

D. The notion of the media as a monolithic entity that as one man will refuse to investigate federal judges betrays failure of analysis.....7

E. Thinking strategically as a leader with historical perspective of change rather than as a victim with broken spirit and eyes blurred by tears 8

F. Judges' wrongdoing can be changed by people with the same strength of character as those who changed other millennial situations 9

G. Fostering change by strengthening the Investigative Journalists' interest in maximizing their investigation investment by exposing judges.....9

H. Information for contacting the Investigative Journalists and contributing to causing or forcing judges' wrongdoing to change 10

****

A. The campaign to have the Investigative Journalists investigate federal judges' financial wrongdoing

1. A campaign is under way to have as many fellow advocates of honest judiciaries as possible email the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists, headquartered at the Center for Public Integrity in Washington, D.C., to request that they apply to exposing federal judges' financial wrongdoing the unique Follow the money! techniques, software, insights, and contacts that the Investigative Journalists developed during their 15-month investigation of assets concealed for tax evasion and money laundering through offshore financial entities, as revealed by the 2.5 million files leaked to them and their April report thereon, both known as Offshore Leaks. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Legal_news.pdf >Ln:176

2. The campaign is warranted by such expertise of the Investigative Journalists as well as their proven commitment to public integrity and transparency, and their courage in exposing even powerful public officers. Their exposure of federal judges' concealment of assets, a criminal act, would so outrage the NATIONAL public that the latter would force already discredited and even conniving politicians, lest they not be elected or reelected, to open official investigations of federal judges' financial and non-financial wrongdoing and thereafter undertake judicial unaccountability and discipline reform. This is the strategy, jur:83-2-3, laid out in my study Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing: Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting; jur:i.

B. Comments on why the campaign will not work rather than how to make it work

3. However, some advocates have commented that such campaign is doomed to failure. They argue that the whole media are not credible and are in league with public officers and will protect, not expose, them; and that advocates that try to expose wrongdoing judges will be hounded down and chased away from this country just as they have been.

C. Instances in which the media have exposed federal judges

4. Such comments allow the personal experience of unjustifiable abuse by public officers block the view of the facts, even those made part of the campaign emails:

> Life magazine's revelations of money-handling improprieties –not even wrongdoing– caused U.S. Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas to withdraw his name as nominee to chief justice and subsequently forced him to resign on May 14, 1969; jur:92§d.

   a. In 2009, The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico suspected a federal circuit judge nominated to the Supreme Court, Then-Judge, Now-Justice, Sotomayor, of concealment of assets, id. >65fn107a-c, only to kill their stories inexplicably, xviii.

   b. In 2011, the media criticized Justice Thomas for misreporting his wife's assets in his financial disclosure reports, 72§b.

   c. As recently as the past presidential election, the media criticized Supreme Court Justices Scalia, Thomas, and Alito for attending fundraisers for Republican candidates, 87fn184b.

5. However, it remains a fact that the media do not investigate federal judges anywhere as intensely as it does federal politicians. As a result, in the 224 years since the creation of the Federal Judiciary in 1789, the number of federal judges -2,131 were in office on September 30, 2011, 22fn13- impeached and removed is 8! 22fn14 Hence, federal judges are in effect unimpeachable and irremovable. Their unaccountability has the consequence of irresistibly attracting them to do wrong with the assurance of impunity.

D. The notion of the media as a monolithic entity that as one man will refuse to investigate federal judges betrays failure of analysis

6. To portray the media as a monolithic entity all of whose members have the same interests and, thus, handle news items the same way betrays lack of analysis. It indisputable that even in the simplest human system of two individuals –e.g. a married couple, two identical twins, two business partners- the two of them never ever think the same way and act in accord always under all circumstance for years, much less for decades, not even on a daily basis.

7. Therefore, it is impermissible for a reasonable person to appear saying that the hundreds of thousands of people that compose the media and hold different responsibilities, seniority, and reputation in and out of their media outlets nevertheless have the same interests and will forever react exactly the same way to the same news item:

a. The New York Times does not have the same interests as The Crier of Woolsy Town.

A digital editor of an Internet newsroom competing with the other digital newsrooms in the country and around the world does not handle a potentially scandalous news piece the same way as the managing editor at a print weekly with total circulation of 20,000 limited to her state and with declining advertising revenue and an increasing probability of bankruptcy.

The editor-in-chief and the part owner publisher of even a regional paper do not have the same sources to protect and influential people to handle deferentially as the irreverent, authority-defiant, young student of journalism who wants to impress a professor, get a scoop on his journalism school paper to land a good job, or exorcise the demons of his childhood by going after a public figure or officer that appears to be engaged in wrongdoing.

8. A ticket to journalistic stardom does not look the same for each of the scores of thousands of beat journalists in the U.S. and the rest of the world. See the profile of the journalist likely to expose wrongdoing judges, xlvi§H.

E. Thinking strategically as a leader with historical perspective of change rather than as a victim with broken spirit and eyes blurred by tears

9. People with the attitude, not of victims, but rather of indomitable leaders overcome even the unbearable pain inflicted by ruthless enemies and do what is indispensable for a chance at success: They analyze the situation objectively and think strategically:

> People out there have different interests, some harmonious and some conflicting. If I identify which is which, I can try to influence those interests to play people against each other and thereby have a fighting chance to advance my own interests.

10. Strategic thinking is enhanced decisively by historical perspective. Such perspective should prevent the suggestion that because investigative journalists have not pursued the investigation of wrongdoing judges as they have that of wrongdoing politicians, business people, entertainment and sport celebrities, members of the clergy, etc, they will never do so. A situation is not unchangeable because it has not changed up to now. Historical perspective shows how even millennial impossible have become present day realities:

a. For thousands of years, men without land or freedom, never mind woman, could not vote. Yet, not all landowners and free men defended as a monolithic block the preservation of that exclusive right. Some on practical, other on moral, grounds, fought to change that situation. And they extended the right to vote to the poor.

b. For thousands of years women had nothing to say in public life. For hundreds of years it was so in our own country. But neither all men fought to preserve that privilege for themselves nor all women allowed themselves to be deterred from demanding the right to vote on account that it has always been so: “woman belong in the kitchen”. They kept fighting against all odds and despite great personal suffering to change that situation, and they did prevail.

c. For thousands of years, since biblical times, there have been slaves. But not all those who could own slaves, not even all slave owners had the same interest in preserving that situation. Whether on humanitarian principles or because of the calculation that an economy without slaves would favor their economic interests, they fought together and separately and managed to abolish that millennial institution of slavery.

11. Many other conversions of millennial or centennial impossibles into everyday realities could be listed:

    d. education reserved for the children of the wealthy;

    e. workers hired and fired at the mercy of employers;

    f. health care accessible only to those who could afford it;

    g. homosexuals had no other place but inside a locked closet;

    h. Jews had no land of their own for thousands of years; etc., etc., etc.

12. Regardless of where one stands on any of these issues, even a person minimally aware of his surroundings must recognize that the situation changed. An analytical persons goes beyond that to realize how over time, whether measured in thousands or hundreds of years, the interests of the players on the 'monopoly board' of an issue and their relative strength were caused or forced to change by people that never gave up their campaign to change what had always been a certain way up to then.

F. Judges' wrongdoing can be changed by people with the same strength of character as those who changed other millennial situations

13. Likewise, "the king can do no wrong" and 'the clergy is protected by the hand of God' and neither can be sued by the people or men. Those were statements that described and preserved millenarian situations. But that too has changed. In the case of Catholic priests, only in the last 30 years or so.

14. But still today judges, especially life-appointed federal judges, are about the last class in our society that enjoys the privilege of immunity. Nevertheless, with historical perspective it can be seen how that situation can be caused or forced to change. However, change will not come because judges become disinterested in their privilege and give it up voluntarily.

15. Change in judges' unaccountability will have to be caused or forced to happen by people who have the unwavering determination, not just to whimper about it, but to continue thinking how to identify and reinforce conflicting and harmonious interests in order to make them stronger than the judges' interest in the status quo. Those people are the ones who have the strength of character and of spirit to emerge as leaders not just of advocates of honest judiciaries, but also of the change that they strive for.

G. Fostering change by strengthening the Investigative Journalists' interest in maximizing their investigation investment by exposing judges

16. At present, the interest of the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists is to maximize their material and moral investment in their Offshore Leaks investigation. The interest of advocates of honest judiciaries lies in persuading them that using their Follow the money! expertise to expose the concealment of assets by federal judges is harmonious with theirs and will boost their desired maximization of their investigation investment.

17. What is more, we can interest the Investigative Journalists in a concrete case of concealment of assets that reasonably holds out that prospect: the concealment of assets by J. Sotomayor suspected by The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico, 65fn107a-c, and supported by the evidence that I gathered while prosecuting cases from bankruptcy to district court, to circuit court with Judge Sotomayor presiding, and on to the Supreme Court, 65§§1-2.

18. The Investigative Journalists' finding of the whereabouts, amount, and length of time of J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets, not to mention that of her colleagues, 105fn213, has the potential of provoking such NATIONAL public outrage as to boost the single most important interest of the media: to increase their audio/visual audience and readership and the commercial advertisement that comes with it. This can lead to one of the main and indispensable boosters to our interest in honest judiciaries: a Watergate-like generalized media investigation of federal judges' financial and non-financial wrongdoing.

H. Information for contacting the Investigative Journalists and contributing to causing or forcing judges' wrongdoing to change

19. Therefore, I encourage all commentators and all advocates of honest judiciaries to reach out to all your colleagues, other advocates, and contacts in the media and elsewhere to ask that they too email, or cosign your emails to, the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists to argue, not the case of defeat, not even our interest, but rather the Journalists' own interest in earning the material and moral rewards, ol:3:§6, for accepting this joint publication and investigation proposal:

> that the Investigative Journalists expose judges' financial wrongdoing through a joint publication of the evidence and further investigation of the leads in their Offshore Leaks investigation and in my study Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing: Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting, 21§§A-B and xxxv

20. To that end, here is the contact information of the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists:

> ICIJ Director Gerard Ryle: gryle@icij.org
>
> ICIJ Deputy Director Marina Walker: mwalker@icij.org
>
> the ICIJ journalists: investigations@icij.org; contact@icij.org
>
> CPI Director Bill Buzenberg: dbetts@publicintegrity.org
>
> tel. (202)466-1300; postal address >ol:1

21. Strategic thinkers identify opportunities. Leaders with historic perspective show others the way to take advantage of those opportunities and inspire them to take action and persevere. Be a leader! Step forward as leaders who, even if still nursing their wounds, have their conviction intact and the clarity of mind to think strategically and find ways big and small, obvious and imaginative, with outsiders and Deep Throat, 106§c, insiders, to invigorate and sap, create and block other people's interests in order to advance our common interest in advancing a noble cause: to expose unaccountable wrongdoing judges and bring about reform where We the People ensure that judges administer Equal Justice Under Law. Those leaders will be recognized by a grateful nation as their Champions of Justice.

Take action and dare trigger history! dcc:11

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.
Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris
Judicial Discipline Reform
2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

May 25, 2013

THE TRIFECTA OF DISTRUST

In the context of the IRS Scandal and the Benghazi Scandal the investigation of the suspicion raised by The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico that President Obama's first nominee to the Supreme Court, Then-Judge Sotomayor, had concealed assets can have the gravest consequences, including calls for their resignation or impeachment, and the first-ever investigation of the Federal Judiciary

The IRS and the Benghazi scandals have gripped the NATIONAL public's attention and, as a result, have given journalists a market incentive to investigate them further. Underlying both scandals is a common query:

Is there a pattern of President Obama covering up wrongdoing by him, his administration, or those whom he wants to nominate to high office? Cf. jur:111fn249.

In fact, this pattern began early on in his first term when he nominated for cabinet positions known tax cheats Tim Geithner, Tom Daschle, and Nancy Killefer, none of whom were confirmed; jur:65§1. Subsequently, media outlets of superior credibility and even said to be liberal and Democrat-leaning, namely, The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico, suspected the President's first nominee to the Supreme Court, Then-Judge, Now-Justice, Sotomayor, of concealing assets of her own; jur:65fn107a.

This begs a question that entered our political discourse when the Watergate scandal, which led to the resignation of President Nixon on August 9, 1974, brought it to the attention of the NATIONAL public and that today can guide journalists in yet another investigation after being rephrased thus:

What did President Obama know through the FBI vetting of Then-Judge Sotomayor about her concealment of assets, and when did he know it? jur:77§5

The President knew, jur:90§§b-c, or by exercising due diligence before making a nomination for life-appointment to the Supreme Court should have known of the evidence of J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets. He only had to list the salary that she had earned as a public officer and compare it with the assets and liabilities that she declared under oath, jur:65§107b-c, and wonder, as did The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico: Where did her money go?!

The evidence of her concealment of assets disqualified her as a judge, not to mention as a justiceship nominee, because it revealed her failure of a fundamental requirement for judges: 'to avoid even the appearance of impropriety', jur:68fn123a. This failure forced Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas to resign on May 14, 1969, after Life magazine revealed his money improprieties, jur:92§d. By contrast, concealment of assets, whether to avoid taxes or hide the unlawful origin of money, is a crime; dcc:13fn27.

Knowing of her concealment of assets, the President intentionally saddled the American public for the next 20, 30, or more years of J. Sotomayor's justiceship with a dishonest person who was unqualified to say the law that she had violated by concealing assets, and who had to continue violating the law by not declaring such assets, lest she incriminate herself, jur:68§3.

The President had a powerful motive to cover up J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets: To gain political capital by ingratiating himself with Hispanic voters who wanted a Hispanic on the Supreme Court. He violated the public trust that he appealed to when he falsely vouched for her honesty and qualifications and asked the public to support his nominee.

In the context of the suspected cover-up in the IRS and the Benghazi scandal, President Obama's cover-up of the evidence of J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets confirms a pattern: for political gain, he covers up his and other people's wrongdoing. It completes a trifecta of distrust.

The distrust that this cover-up can engender is of greater gravity because, unlike in the other two scandals, the President personally vouched for Then-Judge Sotomayor's honesty and qualifications. It warrants the call by the public and journalists for him to release the FBI vetting report on J. Sotomayor.

The trifecta of distrust justifies the search by journalists for the whereabouts of J. Sotomayor's concealed assets. In so doing, they will gain a competitive advantage by joining forces with a media outlet that after a 15-month investigation of 2.5 million financial documents leaked to it, known as the Offshore Leaks, has developed unparalleled expertise, including techniques, software, and contacts, in conducting off- and onshore Follow the money! investigations, namely, the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists.

They are headquartered at the Center for Public Integrity in Washington, D.C. This is their contact information:

ICIJ Director Gerard Ryle: gryle@icij.org

ICIJ Deputy Director Marina Walker: mwalker@icij.org

CPI Director Bill Buzenberg: dbetts@publicintegrity.org

tel. 1(202)466-1300.

For the physical address of, and links to, ICIJ and CPI, and a proposal to them for joint publication and investigation of evidence, and an academic and business venture, see ol:1.

The journalist and the managing editor who start the process of highlighting to ultimately the NATIONAL public the trifecta of distrust completed by President Obama's cover-up of J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets can have a far-reaching public impact:

1. launch a Watergate-like generalized Follow the money! search for J. Sotomayor's concealed assets; jur:4¶¶10-14;
2. set off the first-ever media investigation of the means, motive, and opportunity, jur:21§§1-3, that enable justices and judges to conceal assets in spite of their duty, jur:65fn107d, to file annual financial disclosure reports, jur:105fn213; and
3. exacerbate public distrust far beyond what the other two scandals already have and to the point of prompting calls for the resignation or impeachment of both President Obama and Justice Sotomayor and other judges as well as for an overhaul of the Federal Judiciary, jur:158§§6-8.

For the journalist and managing editor that set in motion this investigative bandwagon there are substantial moral and material rewards, ol:3§6, including becoming known to a grateful NATIONAL public as Champions of the Public Trust. Those rewards are accessible to you too.

Dare trigger history! dcc:11

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

January 13, 2014

A Call To Anonymous, E. Snowden, J. Assange, and Their Likes To Use Their Expertise Legally, Following ICIJ's Example, To Expose Judges' Financial Wrongdoing Enough to Set Rolling an Investigative Bandwagon Leading to Profound Government Reform that Subjects Public Servants to Increased Accountability to We the People

This is a call to Anonymous, Mr. Snowden, and their likes to act, not as hackers, which makes it easier for their detractors to portray them as cyber-hoodlums and traitors, but rather as conscientious men and women, who inspired by a sense of what is right and indignant at politicians' and judges' abuse of power, hypocrisy, and betrayal of public trust(ol:11), use their computer expertise responsibly, and with the assistance of Mr. Assange come to the aid of We the People, thereby becoming our Champions of Justice.

A. Two examples of legally exposing coordinated wrongdoing

1. Woodward and Bernstein of Watergate fame Followed the money!...on shoes

Washington Post Reporters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein conducted a legal Follow the money! investigation that led them from a burglary at the Democratic National Committee in the Watergate building in Washington, D.C, on June 17, 1972, to the burglars' indictment, to an account in a bank in Florida, to a slush fund of the Republican Committee for the Reelection of President Nixon used for political espionage and abuse of political enemies, to Nixon's resignation on August 9, 1974, and the imprisonment of all his White House aides(jur:4¶¶10-14).

If they could do so while proceeding legally in the pre-computer era, you can do even more by using legally your computer expertise and the journalistic skills of your media contacts.

2. The International Consortium of Investigative Journalists' unique IT expertise in, and knowledge about, exposing financial wrongdoing

The International Consortium of Investigative Journalists, headquartered at the Center for Public Integrity in D.C.(ol:1), received a hard drive with more than 260 GB of data consisting of over 2.5 million documents from offshore banks and trusts. They were named the Offshore Leaks, an allusion to J. Assange's WikiLeaks. Working in all legality during 15 months, the Investigative Journalists applied and developed highly advanced computer technology and techniques to extract and correlate the data and build a database that could help them figure out the flow and true ownership of financial assets. They also conducted journalistic investigations to verify in the field the data and their interpretation of it. As a result, they discovered a massive $21-32 trillion in private financial offshore assets, most of them concealed in tax havens to evade taxes and launder money of its criminal origins by the powerful, the rich, and the well-connected –who may include judges– in collusion with bankers, lawyers, and accountants[cf. 169].

Their April 3 Offshore Leaks report has contributed to unprecedented cooperation among the U.S., the European Union, and the G8 to combat offshore financial criminality through the exchange of information and pressure to bring concealed assets under their control from tax havens.

The Investigative Journalists have gained extensive knowledge of the functional details of concealing assets; acquired unique IT expertise in off- and onshore Follow the money! investigations; and developed invaluable journalistic leads and contacts. Their know-how can be applied legally to expose the financial wrongdoing of federal judges as the initial step of the strategy described below. To cooperate with, and learn from them, contact them at:

tel. (202)466-1300; postal address(ol:1); Director Gerard Ryle: gryle@icij.org; Deputy Director Marina Walker: mwalker@icij.org; Senior Editor Michael Hudson: investigations@icij.org; Digital Editor Kimberley Porteous: http://www.icij.org/email/node/527/field_email; the journalists: contact@icij.org; Center for Public Integrity Director Bill Buzenberg: dbetts@publicintegrity.org.

B. A unique story that can expose wrongdoing at the top of government as its institutionalized modus operandi and its harm to the people below

In 2009, as President Obama's first nominee to the Supreme Court, i.e., Then-U.S. Judge Sonia Sotomayor, was being scrutinized, The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico, published articles that suspected her of concealment of assets[107a-c]. But then they killed their story simultaneously and inexplicably(jur:xviii). Yet, their Follow the money! investigation(102§a) could have revealed enough of her financial impropriety, even the whereabouts of her concealed assets, to repeat the result of the revelations by Life magazine of the financial improprieties of U.S. Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas: He was forced to resign on May 14, 1969(92§d).

1. The President's benefit from catering to voters at the cost of saddling the people with a life-tenured dishonest justice

Following the leads in those three sources –all the more credible because criticized as Democrat-leaning– and finding Now-Justice Sotomayor's concealed assets would beg the questions:

a. Did President Obama learn about Nominee J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets through the secret report of the FBI on its vetting of her?

b. Did he disregard that report and lie to the people by vouching for her honesty because he wanted to cater to those calling for another woman and the first Hispanic for the Supreme Court(78§6) and from whom he expected in exchange support for passing Obamacare?

c. How would he react if the media and an outraged public demanded that he release that secret FBI report so that it can be determined what he knew and whether he lied?(77§5)

The President is capable of such conduct: At the beginning of his first term, he disregarded the known tax cheating of Tim Geithner –whom he wanted with revealing irony as his Treasury Secretary–, Tom Daschle, and Nancy Killefer and nominated them to his cabinet[108]. The outrage in the media was such that the latter two had to withdraw their names.

He has kept from the public that the phone records and Internet communications of millions of Americans have been under surveillance through the National Security Agency's Prism program. He can be hypocritical enough to rightfully criticize China for hacking American entities and stealing their trade secrets while conducting, as Mr. Snowden revealed, an advanced hacking program of Chinese entities as well as sophisticated electronic surveillance of the offices of even our European allies, who feel that their trust has been violated.

The President has conducted surveillance under the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act with the approval of federal judges, who have approved up to 100% of his administration's surveillance requests[ol:5fn7]. In turn, they have been allowed to file financial disclosure re-ports that are meaningless[213] and implausible(104¶236), but a useful cover for concealing assets.(ol:19§D)

2. Congress's benefit from neglecting to check on life-tenured judges' administration of justice to the people to ensure that it is according to law

Congress has exercised checks and balances on the members of the president's cabinet, convening them to testify before its committees without infringing on the separation of powers doctrine. Yet, it has failed to do likewise regarding judges to assert a principle that trumps their independence: Nobody is Above the Law. In its own interest and to the people's detriment, it has avoided antagonizing judges who can both frustrate its legislative agenda by declaring it unconstitutional[17] and retaliate against members of Congress appearing before judges on charges of corruption[15]. So in the last 224 years since the creation of the Federal Judiciary in 1789, the number of its judges –2,131 were in office on 30sep11[13]– removed from the bench is 8![14]

3. Judges' unaccountability and their consequent riskless wrongdoing

Federal judges, who hold life appointments de jure or de facto[61] are in effect unimpeachable and irremovable; and have power to dispose of our property, liberty, life, and rights. If your boss could keep his or her job for life no matter what they did or did not do to you, would you fear their abusing such absolute, corruptive power[32] for their benefit at your expense?

The resulting unaccountability(21§A) has allowed J. Sotomayor and her peers to conceal assets and even run a bankruptcy fraud scheme(66§§2-3) for the benefit of money, an enormous amount of it(27§2). Unaccountable judges are assured of the risklessness of non-financial wrongdoing too(5§3), the kind that thrashes due process to get rid of its requirements, takes the benefit of expediency –e.g., up to 91% of appeals is disposed of by reasonless, non-publishable, non-precedential, and in practice secret and arbitrary decisions[66-70]–, and gives litigants and the rest of the people the residue: the chaff of justice!, neither equal nor under law.

C. Thinking strategically to set off a series of events leading to reform

Let Mr. Assange[1] call on the many journalists to whom he has access to join Anonymous and Mr. Snowden in investigating the unique story of a sitting president and his sitting Supreme Court nominee(jur:xxxv) that can lead to defections because not even partisans can excuse wrongdoers for personal benefit as defenders of national security or of the Constitution and the laws thereunder. You all can follow the leads(102§4) concerning J. Sotomayor's concealed assets. You need only expose enough of her and the President's wrongdoing, connivance, and hypocrisy to outrage(83§§2-3) the public and make the media and principled as well as opportunistic politicians realize[293] that they can make money selling story updates(119§1), get the scoop of a lifetime, or turn the story into a political issue to advance their agenda or be elected. You can thus launch an investigative bandwagon(100§§3-4) that puts on the defensive those who would put you on trial, and disqualifies those who have failed their own Canons to "maintain high standards of conduct"(57¶119) and "avoid even the appearance of impropriety"[277]. The findings of those on the bandwagon can force Congress to hold Watergate-like(4¶¶10-14) public hearings that ask, What did the President and judges know about J. Sotomayor's and her peers' financial wrongdoing and when did they know it? Its findings, even more outrageous thanks to its subpoena, search and seizure, and contempt powers, can result in the resignation or impeachment of the President, J. Sotomayor, and other judges; and the adoption of measures to curb their unaccountability and wrongdoing.

Think strategically(ol:6) so that instead of running away for refuge, you lead the way to an unprecedented process of reform(158§§6-7) that contributes to We the People bringing politicians and judges under our control, e.g., through citizen boards of accountability(160§8) and securing(130§5) our birthright: a government of, by, and for us. Dare trigger history! (dcc:11).

[1] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/WL/2two/RC-JA_17dec10.pdf

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500, USA
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

July 29, 2013

Attorney Anatoliy Kucherena
Civic Chamber of the Russian Federation ʃ ɪ ʃ ɪ ʒ ɻ ʜ ʊ ɪ ɻ ɭ ʃ ʁ ɪ ɸ ʃ ɸ ʊ ɻ ʈ ʃ ʜ ʜ ʀ ʁ ʜ ʂ ʃ ʁ ʌ ɻ ɻ ɻ ʈ ɸ ʏ ʀ ʀ Moscow, GSP-3, 125993
Russia

Re: Enclosed letter to Mr. Edward Snowden

Dear Attorney Kucherena,

Enclosed is a letter to your client, Mr. Edward Snowden. I would be grateful to you if you would forward it to him. I have attached hereto a courtesy copy for you.

The letter contains a proposal for action that allows Mr. Snowden to deal both with the threat of prosecution by the U.S. government following his release of secret NSA data and with President Putinôs statement conditioning the grant of asylum in Russia to him on his abstaining from releasing further data that may damage American interests and thereby strain U.S.-Russian relations.

The proposal allows Mr. Snowden to take action in his defense while paying heed to the Presidentôs condition. Indeed, the proposed action can be taken indirectly through you by channeling the proposal imaginatively to journalists and having them implement it.

Consequently, the proposal can benefit Mr. Snowden and allows you to play a role in its implementation that can be as prominent or discreet as you may see fit. Thus, I respectfully encourage you to read the letter and discuss its proposal with Mr. Snowden.

You and Mr. Snowden will find abundant details supporting the proposal in the digital file containing the letter and all its references; the file is downloadable through this link: http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/WL/13-7-20DrRCordero-ESnowden.pdf.

Should you or Mr. Snowden wish further details, do not hesitate to let me know.

I respectfully ask that you acknowledge receipt of this letter and let me know how you have decided to handle both my request that you forward the letter to Mr. Snowden and its proposal for action.

I thank you for the attention that you have already paid to this letter and to the attention that you may still pay to my request. Therefore, I look forward to hearing from you and remain,

Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England 2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500, USA
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris Judicial Discipline Reform Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

August 2, 2013

Mr. Edward Snowden
c/o: Attorney Anatoly Kucherena
Civic Chamber of the Russian Federation, 7/1, Miusskaya Sq., Moscow, GSP-3, 125993, Russia
ОБ ОБЩЕСТВЕННОЙ ПАЛАТЕ РОССИЙСКОЙ ФЕДЕРАЦИИ
Адрес: 125993, г. Москва, ГСП-3, Миусская пл., д. 7, стр. 1

Dear Mr. Snowden,

i. I encourage you to persevere in your effort to expose abuse of power and contribute to government transparency. You recently stated, "ha[ving] the capability without any warrant to search for, seize, and read…anyone's communication at any time [amounts to wielding] the power to change people's fates". More than Congress and the Executive, the judges of the Federal Judiciary have the power to take your rights, property, liberty, and life. Appointed and assured for life of their office and salary([1] >jur:22fn12), they escape de jure all democratic control and are exempted de facto from the other Branches' checks and balances: In the 224 years since the creation of their Judiciary in 1789, the number of federal judges –2,131 were in office on September 30, 2011(22fn13)– impeached and removed is 8!(22fn14) They are unaccountable(21§1). Risklessly, they do wrong(5§3) for material(27§2), professional(56§§e-f), and social(62§g) benefits. While President Obama can threaten to punish you for leaking data, the federal judges hold the power to do so. This is a proposal for you in your interest to expose how he and unaccountable judges abusively and in secrecy can change your, and do change We the People's, fates.

A. Proposal for you to make a preemptive move by exposing federal judges' financial wrongdoing and what the President knew about it and when he did

1. Thinking strategically, you can use the evidence that I have gathered through research and analyzed(iiifn.ii) to put on the defensive he who would put you, Mr. J. Assange, Anonymous members, etc., on trial and to disqualify those who would sit in judgment of you but who have failed their own Canons to "maintain high standards of conduct"(57¶119) and "avoid even the appearance of impropriety"(152fn277). You can thus set off a chain of events leading to public accountability reform in the U.S. and abroad from which you all can emerge, not as the data thieves and their accessories depicted by your detractors, but rather as the Champion of Justice of We the People.

2. You all can do so by using legally your respective IT expertise and contacts. Indeed, you can call on Mr. Assange and the many journalists to whom you both have access to investigate the unique story(xxxv) of wrongdoing involving a sitting president and a sitting justice and first Supreme Court nominee of his: Then-Judge Sotomayor. As she was being scrutinized in 2009, The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico suspected her of concealment of assets(65fn107 a-c). But then they killed their story inexplicably(jur:xviii) and failed to expose her perjurious withholding of information from Congress(83fn173a; 69§b). Yet, their Follow the money! investigation could have revealed enough of her financial impropriety, even the whereabouts of her concealed assets, to repeat the result of the revelations by Life magazine of the financial improprieties of U.S. Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas: Under media pressure, he was forced first to withdraw his name as nominee for the chief justiceship and then to resign on May 14, 1969(92§d).

3. The leads in NYT, WP, and Politico are especially credible because those outlets are criticized as Democrat-leaning. Following them(100§3) and getting on the trail of J. Sotomayor's concealed assets would raise these questions: a. Did President Obama learn about her concealment through the report of the FBI on its vetting of her? b. Did he disregard that report and lie to the American public by vouching for her honesty because he wanted to gain a personal benefit by ingratiating himself with voters who were calling for another woman and the first Hispanic for the Supreme Court?(78§6) c. How would he react if an outraged public and the media demanded that he release that FBI report?(77§5) He is capable of disregarding and concealing information: At the start of his first term, he disregarded the known tax cheating of Tim Geithner, Tom Daschle, and Nancy Killefer and nominated them to his cabinet(65fn108). The outrage in the media was such that the latter two had to withdraw their names. Despite his promise that his would be a transparent administration, he has kept from the public the fact that the phone records and Internet communications of millions of Americans have been under surveillance through the National Security Agency's Prism program. He can be hypocritical enough to rightfully criticize China for hacking American entities and stealing their trade secrets while conducting, as you revealed, an advanced hacking program of Chinese entities as well as sophisticated electronic surveillance of the offices of even our European allies, who feel that their trust has been violated.

[1] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/WL/13-7-20DrRCordero-ESnowden.pdf ol:17

4. Abusing their self-disciplining authority, federal judges dismiss 99.82% of complaints against them(24§b). History and themselves assure their impunity. Under the influence of the most insidious corruptor, money!, they run a bankruptcy fraud scheme(66§2): Appointed and removable by circuit judges(43fn61a), bankruptcy judges, who handle 80% of all federal cases, adjudicated on $373 billion in only consumer bankruptcies in CY10(27§2) to the detriment of millions of debtors, creditors, and their dependents(42§6). Hence, they conceal their assets. Judges commit non-financial wrongdoing too(5§3), e.g.: For expediency, they disregard the requirements of due process and cover it up by disposing of up to 91% of circuit court appeals by reasonless, non-precedential, non-publishable, in practice arbitrary, ad-hoc, and secret decisions(44fn66-70). They do wrong so routinely and with such coordination (105fn213) among themselves and with legal and bankruptcy systems insiders(81fn169) that their wrongdoing is their modus operandi. What they administer in the guise of justice is their operational residue, neither equal nor under law.

B. Your initial step to launch a Watergate-like generalized media investigation

5. J. Sotomayor is, not a lone rogue judge, but rather one of the unaccountable judges(65§§1-3). The initiators of the financial wrongdoing investigation need only expose enough additional (65fn107c) findings to raise suspicion of her assets concealment. Given the distrust of the President and the rest of the government generated by your revelations and the IRS, Benghazi, and Fast and Furious scandals([1] >ol:11), the findings can provoke public outrage(83§§2-3). After all, judges' financial wrongdoing cannot be excused as the exercise of judicial discretion. It will be resented as the betrayal of trust by the very public servants charged with upholding the rule of law.

6. Consequently, the public outrage at judges' financial wrongdoing will set an investigative bandwagon rolling. Onto it will climb every media outlet, egged on by principled and opportunistic politicians. All will realize(167fn293) that they can make money selling breaking news on the Obama-Sotomayor story(119§1); get the scoop of a lifetime that makes their names or wins them other rewards(ol:3§6); or turn the story into a political issue to advance their agenda or be elected. The investigation will be guided by a proven(4¶¶10-14) devastating query that can be rephrased thus: What did the President and the judges know about J. Sotomayor's and her peers' financial wrongdoing and when did they know it? Their findings and statements can so exacerbate the outrage that the public can pressure Congress into holding public hearings on, and DoJ-FBI into investigating, the story and the wrongdoing that festers among the judges. For the first time, the Judiciary(52§c) can be the target of a probe. Guided by the same query and exercising their subpoena, contempt, search and seizure, and penal powers, Congress and DoJ can make even more outrageous findings. These can result in national attention-arresting calls for the resignation of, and debate on whether to impeach, the President, J. Sotomayor, and other public servants(71§§4-6).

C. Legally exposing coordinated wrongdoing is a realistic proposal

1. Watergate Woodward and Bernstein Followed the money!...on shoes

7. Washington Post Reporters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein conducted legally a Follow the money! investigation that led them from a burglary at the Democratic National Committee in the Watergate building in Washington, D.C, on June 17, 1972, to the burglars' indictment, to an account in a bank in Florida, to a slush fund of the Republican Committee for the Reelection of President Nixon used for political espionage and abuse of political enemies, to Nixon's resignation on August 9, 1974, and the imprisonment of all his White House aides(4¶¶10-14). If they could do so while proceeding legally in the pre-computer era, you and Anonymous collaborating with your and Mr. Assange's media contacts can do even more by using legally your IT expertise.

2. The International Consortium of Investigative Journalists' unique IT expertise in, and knowledge about, exposing financial wrongdoing

8. As you likely know, the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists, headquartered at the Center for Public Integrity in D.C.(ol:1), received a hard drive with more than 260 GB of data consisting of over 2.5 million documents from offshore banks and trusts. They were named the Offshore Leaks, an allusion to Mr. Assange's WikiLeaks. Working legally during 15 months, the Investigative Journalists applied and developed highly advanced computer technology and techniques to extract and correlate the data and build a database that could help them figure out the flow and true ownership of financial assets. They also conducted journalistic investigations to verify in the field the data and their interpretation of it. As a result, they discovered a massive $21-32 trillion in private financial offshore assets, most of them concealed in tax havens to evade taxes and launder money of its criminal origins by the powerful, the rich, and the well-connected –who may include judges– in collusion with bankers, lawyers, and accountants(cf. 81fn169). Their April 3 Offshore Leaks report has contributed to unprecedented cooperation among the U.S., the European Union, and the G8 to combat offshore financial criminality through the exchange of information and pressure to bring concealed assets under their control from tax havens.

9. The Investigative Journalists have gained extensive knowledge of the functional details of concealing assets; acquired unique IT expertise in off- and onshore Follow the money! investigations; and developed invaluable journalistic leads and contacts. Their know-how can be applied legally to expose the financial wrongdoing of J. Sotomayor and her peers as the initial step of the strategy described above. To collaborate with, and learn from them, they can be contacted at:

tel. (202)466-1300; postal address, ol:1; Director Gerard Ryle: gryle@icij.org; Deputy Director Marina Walker: mwalker@icij.org; Senior Editor Michael Hudson: investigations@icij.org; Digital Editor Kimberley Porteous: http://www.icij.org/email/node/527/field_email; the journalists: contact@icij.org; Center for Public Integrity Director Bill Buzenberg: dbetts@publicintegrity.org.

D. Exposing judges' interference with communications and the conniving quid pro quo with the Executive: the Follow the wire! investigation

10. J. Sotomayor's and her peers' financial wrongdoing and the President's toleration of it; and the Executive's snooping on Americans' Internet communications and phone records are matters that you can expose to help yourself and others. There is another even more outrageous: The Federal Judiciary too has a vast IT infrastructure, staff, and know-how. It uses them to manage the hundreds of millions of documents and docket entries pertaining to scores of millions of cases filed, checked, and retrieved electronically. Evidence([2] >ws:46§V) supports probable cause to suspect unaccountable federal judges of risklessly abusing those means in the crass self-interest of preserving their unlawful benefits by interfering with the email, phone, and mail communications of individuals trying to expose judges' wrongdoing and to organize a movement to hold them accountable. Recent articles(e.g., ol:2,11,13) have likely been interfered with as were earlier communications(ws:54§3). You, Mr. Snowden, Anonymous, and your journalistic contacts can use your respective skills legally and collaboratively to determine whether judges interfere with Americans' communications. That is the objective of the proposed Follow the wire! investigation(id.).

[2] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/WL/2two/RC-JA_17dec10.pdf

11. Such interference is criminal: It violates the statutory prohibition under 18 U.S.C. §2511[3] against the interception of communications as well as the constitutional rights to privacy under the 4th Amendment and to "freedom of speech, of the press, [and] peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances" under the 1st.[4] Findings that point to federal judges' interfering with their exposers' and other people's communications would stir up such outrage as to rock their Judiciary to its foundation. Those findings would put an even larger investigative bandwagon in motion and overcome any separation of powers doctrine scruples to Congress's and DoJ's investigating the Judiciary. For a doctrine's sakes, politicians would not risk voters' wrath.

12. Imagine the paroxysm of distrust and outrage resulting from finding quid pro quo connivance between the Executive Branch and the Judiciary, with the latter –e.g., through the secret court set up by the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (50 U.S.C. §§1801-1811[5]) or by complaisant judges granting defective applications for search and seizure warrants– allowing the Executive to snoop on the communications of Americans in the interest of national security, while the Executive allowed judges to interfere with such communications in self-interest, e.g., to continue filing meaningless financial disclosure reports(104¶236). The subsequent official investigation by Congress could bring about the discredit of federal judges in the eyes of Americans and the rest of the world. It could clog federal courts with a flood of motions, followed by appeals, to recuse, and to review rulings and judgments entered by, judges shown to have done wrong or only under suspicion of wrongdoing. This could delay any trial of you, Mr. Assange, Anonymous members, and other whistleblowers for years. If such trial were held in the U.S. at all, any condemnatory judgment might not be recognized internationally. Thus, the exposure of federal judges' wrongdoing is a preemptive move born of strategic thinking and in the interest of all those who, like you and the others, want to expose public servants' abuse and secrecy, and hold them accountable.

E. Not just exposing wrongdoing, but a strategy to launch a process of reform

13. Public outrage can render politically unavoidable the launch of reform aimed at monitoring public servants and curbing their wrongdoing. It can lead to depriving the Judiciary of its wrongdoing-fostering secrecy(27§e) of operations by opening the doors of its administrative and policy-making meetings(158¶350b). Given the current climate of distrust, a dysfunctional partisan Congress can be compelled to increase transparency in government operations and innovate democracy by creating citizens boards for holding public servants accountable and disciplining them(160§8).

14. Many developments in American society and pop culture have been copied by the rest of the world. That precedent makes it realistic to envision that your implementation of this proposal by initiating the exposure of federal judges' wrongdoing followed by reform can spread from the federal to the state level and on to other countries where judges and others 'abuse their power to without regard to the law learn about people's lives and change their fates'. Think strategically(ol:6) so that instead of running away for refuge, you lead the way to an unprecedented process of reform(158§§6-7), on behalf of We the People. To that end, consider the proposed academic and business venture(119§§1-4) followed by the creation of an institute(130§5) of judicial unaccountability reporting(a&p:1) and reform advocacy. I look forward to hearing from you.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11) Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

 [3] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/18_usc_11.pdf; [4] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/US_Constitution_&_annotations.pdf; [5] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Foreign_Intelligence_Surveillance_Act.pdf

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500, USA
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

July 29, 2013

Columnist Glenn Greenwald
The Guardian Glenn.Greenwald@guardian.co.uk
Kings Place, 90 York Way
London N1 9GU, U.K.

Re: Story for you and letter to Mr. Edward Snowden

Dear Mr. Greenwald,

Enclosed you will find a letter to Mr. Edward Snowden. It contains a story that I submit for him and you to expose the political and financial wrongdoing of President Obama, his first Supreme Court nominee, Now-Justice Sotomayor, and her peers; and impugn their qualifications to prosecute and judge him and other whistleblowers. You and The Guardian may want to pursue this story on the journalistic principle that 'democracy needs an informed public' and the business consideration that 'scandals and scoops for cash and prizes are the hooks'. You will likely recognize the story's significant news potential since it arises from leads in The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico, all of which suspected her of concealing assets. Other leads I discovered through research and prosecution of cases from a bankruptcy to a district court, to a circuit court, where I argued before J. Sotomayor, presiding, to the Supreme Court; they point to a bankruptcy fraud scheme driven by the most insidious corruptor, money!, and run risklessly by in practice unimpeachable and unaccountable federal judges, including her. All leads are at [1].

You criticized judges in "With Liberty and Justice For Some: How the Law Is Used to Destroy Equality and Protect the Powerful". But judges and their enablers can defend their wrongful decisions under the pretense of judicial discretion. Instead, the Obama-Sotomayor story allows you to expose federal judges' conduct that everybody will find indefensible: financial wrongdoing in self-interest. Hence the search for J. Sotomayor's concealed assets. It can uncover her peers' assets too since judges do wrong through such extensive coordination as to have institutionalized their wrongdoing and turned their Judiciary into their safe haven. The search can be cost-effective by collaborating with the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists to apply their unique Follow the money! expertise. Public outrage can bring about judicial resignations, as it did that of Justice Abe Fortas in 1969, provoked by Life magazine's revelations of his financial improprieties. It can force official investigations, which can extend to non-financial wrongdoing and expose how the Presidency and Congress have in their interest exempted the Judiciary from their checks and balances, resulting in judges' unaccountability and abuse of office. Distrust of government aggravated by this, as it was by the Snowden leaks, can lead to historic reform, e.g., a citizen-monitored and disciplined Judiciary to transparently administer Equal Justice Under Law for All. A new We the People-government paradigm can emerge in the U.S. and spread abroad: the People's Sunrise.

You and The Guardian are well qualified to set these developments in motion. Both enjoy international credibility for having broken the Snowden story. Despite having an office in NY, it is headquartered abroad so that it is not as exposed to federal judges' retaliation as are the American media. You can start the investigation of the Obama-Sotomayor story and thus launch a Watergate-like generalized media investigation that ever more American and foreign media feel it necessary due to market demand and competitive pressure, and safe, to join, for not even federal judges can risk revealing their abuse of power by intimidating all their exposers at once.

Thus, I kindly request that you forward the letter to Mr. Snowden and let me know your reaction to my investigation proposal to you. I offer to make a presentation of it to you all. Thus, I look forward to hearing from you.

Dare trigger history!

Sincerely,

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

ol:17
jur:77§5
jur:65fn107a-c
jur:xxxv
cf. jur:104¶236
ol:19§2
jur:92§d
jur:5§3
ol:11
ol:8§§E-F
jur:100§§3-4
ol:17
jur:98§2
dcc:11

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England 2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500, USA
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris Judicial Discipline Reform Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

July 29, 2013

The Editor
The Guardian letters@guardian.co.uk
Kings Place, 90 York Way
London N1 9GU, U.K.

Re: Story for The Guardian and letter to Mr. Edward Snowden

Dear Editor,

Enclosed you will find a letter to Mr. Edward Snowden. It contains a story that I submit for him and The Guardian to expose the political and financial wrongdoing of President Obama, his first Supreme Court nominee, Now-Justice Sotomayor, and her peers; and impugn their qualifications to prosecute and judge him and other whistleblowers. The Guardian may want to pursue this story on the journalistic principle that ódemocracy needs an informed publicô and the business consideration that óscandals and scoops for cash and prizes are the hooks'. You will likely recognize the storyôs significant news potential since it arises from leads in The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico, all of which suspected her of concealing assets. Other leads I discovered through research and prosecution of cases from a bankruptcy to a district court, to a circuit court, where I argued before J. Sotomayor, presiding, to the Supreme Court; they point to a bankruptcy fraud scheme driven by the most insidious corruptor, money!, and run risklessly by in practice unimpeachable and unaccountable federal judges, including her. All leads are at [1].

Your colleague, Mr. G. Greenwald, criticized judges in ñWith Liberty and Justice For Some: How the Law Is Used to Destroy Equality and Protect the Powerfulò. But judges and their enablers can defend their wrongful decisions under the pretense of judicial discretion. Instead, this story allows you to expose federal judgesô conduct that everybody will find indefensible: financial wrongdoing in self-interest. Hence the search for J. Sotomayorôs concealed assets. It can uncover her peersô assets too since judges do wrong through such extensive coordination as to have institutionalized their wrongdoing and turned their Judiciary into their safe haven. The search can be cost-effective by collaborating with the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists to apply their unique Follow the money! expertise. Public outrage can bring about judicial resignations, as it did that of Justice Abe Fortas in 1969, provoked by Life magazineôs revelations of his financial improprieties. It can force official investigations, which can extend to non-financial wrongdoing and expose how the Presidency and Congress have in their interest exempted the Judiciary from their checks and balances, resulting in judgesô unaccountability and abuse of office. Distrust of government aggravated by this, as it was by the Snowden leaks, can lead to historic reform, e.g., a citizen-monitored and disciplined Judiciary to transparently administer Equal Justice Under Law for All. A new We the People-government paradigm can emerge in the U.S. and spread abroad: the *People*ôs Sunrise.

The Guardian is well qualified to set these developments in motion. It enjoys international credibility for having broken the Snowden story. Despite having an office in NY, it is headquartered abroad so that it is not as exposed to federal judgesô retaliation as are the American media. You can start the investigation of the Obama-Sotomayor story and thus launch a Watergate-like generalized media investigation that ever more American and foreign media feel it necessary due to market demand and competitive pressure, and safe, to join, for not even federal judges can risk revealing their abuse of power by intimidating all their exposers at once.

Thus, I kindly request that you forward the letter to Mr. Snowden and let me know your reaction to my investigation proposal to you. I offer to make a presentation of it to you all. Thus, I look forward to hearing from you.

Dare trigger history!

Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

[1] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/WL/13-7-22DrRCordero-TheGuardian_GGreenwald.pdf

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England 2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris Judicial Discipline Reform Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

July 29, 2013

The New York Bureau Chief
The Guardian
536 Broadway, 6th Floor tel. (917) 261-4904
New York, NY 10012

Re: Story for The Guardian and letter to Mr. Edward Snowden

Dear Bureau Chief,

Enclosed you will find a letter to Mr. Edward Snowden. It contains a story that I submit for him and The Guardian to expose the political and financial wrongdoing of President Obama, his first Supreme Court nominee, Now-Justice Sotomayor, and her peers; and impugn their qualifications to prosecute and judge him and other whistleblowers. The Guardian may want to pursue this story on the journalistic principle that ódemocracy needs an informed publicô and the business consideration that óscandals and scoops for cash and prizes are the hooks'. You will likely recognize the storyôs significant news potential since it arises from leads in The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico, all of which suspected her of concealing assets. Other leads I discovered through research and prosecution of cases from a bankruptcy to a district court, to a circuit court, where I argued before J. Sotomayor, presiding, to the Supreme Court; they point to a bankruptcy fraud scheme driven by the most insidious corruptor, money!, and run risklessly by in practice unimpeachable and unaccountable federal judges, including her. All leads are at [1].

Your colleague, Mr. G. Greenwald, criticized judges in ñWith Liberty and Justice For Some: How the Law Is Used to Destroy Equality and Protect the Powerfulò. But judges and their enablers can defend their wrongful decisions under the pretense of judicial discretion. Instead, this story allows you to expose federal judgesô conduct that everybody will find indefensible: financial wrongdoing in self-interest. Hence the search for J. Sotomayorôs concealed assets. It can uncover her peersô assets too since judges do wrong through such extensive coordination as to have institutionalized their wrongdoing and turned their Judiciary into their safe haven. The search can be cost-effective by collaborating with the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists to apply their unique Follow the money! expertise. Public outrage can bring about judicial resignations, as it did that of Justice Abe Fortas in 1969, provoked by Life magazineôs revelations of his financial improprieties. It can force official investigations, which can extend to non-financial wrongdoing and expose how the Presidency and Congress have in their interest exempted the Judiciary from their checks and balances, resulting in judgesô unaccountability and abuse of office. Distrust of government aggravated by this, as it was by the Snowden leaks, can lead to historic reform, e.g., a citizen-monitored and disciplined Judiciary to transparently administer Equal Justice Under Law for All. A new We the People-government paradigm can emerge in the U.S. and spread abroad: the *People*ôs Sunrise.

The Guardian is well qualified to set these developments in motion. It enjoys international credibility for having broken the Snowden story. Despite having an office in NY, it is headquartered abroad so that it is not as exposed to federal judgesô retaliation as are the American media. You can start the investigation of the Obama-Sotomayor story and thus launch a Watergate-like generalized media investigation that ever more American and foreign media feel it necessary due to market demand and competitive pressure, and safe, to join, for not even federal judges can risk revealing their abuse of power by intimidating all their exposers at once.

Thus, I kindly request that you forward the letter to Mr. Snowden and let me know your reaction to my investigation proposal to you. I offer to make a presentation of it to you all. Thus, I look forward to hearing from you.

Dare trigger history! Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

[1] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/WL/13-7-22DrRCordero-TheGuardian_GGreenwald.pdf ol:23

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England 2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, New York 10472, USA
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris Judicial Discipline Reform Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

July 29, 2013

Mr. Vaughan Smith
Frontline Club tel: +44 (0)20 7479 8950
13 Norfolk Place
London W2 1QJ, U.K.

Re: Story for you and letter to Mr. Julian Assange

Dear Mr. Smith,

Enclosed you will find a letter to Mr. Julian Assange. It contains a story that I submit for him, you, and Frontline to pursue to impugn the qualifications of President Obama, his first Supreme Court nominee, Now-Justice Sotomayor, and her peers to criticize, prosecute, and judge Mr. Assange, Mr. Edward Snowden, and other whistleblowers and helpers. You will likely recognize its significant news potential since it arises from leads in The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico, all of which suspected J. Sotomayor of concealing assets. Other leads I discovered through research and prosecution of cases from a bankruptcy to a district court, to a circuit court, where I argued before J. Sotomayor, presiding, to the Supreme Court; they point to a bankruptcy fraud scheme driven by the most insidious corruptor, money!, and run risklessly by in practice unimpeachable and unaccountable federal judges, including her. All leads are at [1].

The Obama-Sotomayor story does not allege that these officers have made wrong decisions since they can explain them away as the exercise of their official discretion. Rather, it begins by exposing conduct that everybody will find indefensible: financial wrongdoing in self-interest. Hence the search for J. Sotomayorôs concealed assets. It can uncover her peersô assets too given that judges do wrong through such extensive coordination as to have institutionalized their wrongdoing and turned their Judiciary into their safe haven. Since Frontline understands the practical and economic value of collaboration among a wide array of journalists and media outlets, it can cost-effectively expose judgesô financial wrongdoing by collaborating, as proposed, with the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists to apply their unique Follow the money! expertise. Public outrage can bring about judicial resignations, as it did that of Justice Abe Fortas in 1969, provoked by Life magazineôs revelations of his financial improprieties. It can compel official investigations, which can extend to the judgesô non-financial wrongdoing.

Frontline journalists are in a better position than their American counterparts to break this story because they are established abroad and thus, are not as exposed to federal judgesô retaliation. They can start investigating it and thus launch a Watergate-like generalized media investigation that ever more American and foreign media feel it necessary due to market demand and competitive pressure, and safe, to join, for not even federal judges can risk revealing their abuse of power by intimidating all their exposers at once. A proven query can guide the investigation: What did the President know about J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets and when did he know it? An outraged public can demand that he release the FBI vetting report on her. The investigation can expose how the Presidency and Congress have in self- interest exempted the Judiciary from their checks and balances, resulting in judgesô unaccountability, abuse of office, and harm to the public. The latter, only more distrustful of government after the Snowden revelations, can compel historic reform: e.g., a transparent citizen-monitored and disciplined Judiciary. A new We the People-government paradigm can emerge in the U.S. and spread abroad, as American notions of democracy do: the *People*ôs Sunrise. You and Frontline can set these developments in motion.

So I kindly request that you forward the enclosed letter to Mr. Assange and reply to my investigation proposal. I am willing to make a presentation of it to you and Frontline journalists.

Dare trigger history! Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

[1] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/WL/13-7-24DrRCordero-VSmith_Frontline.pdf

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

59 Crescent St., Brooklyn, NY 11208
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
tel. (718) 827-9521

December 17, 2010

Mr. Julian Assange
c/o: Mr. Vaughan Smith
Frontline Club Founder vaughan.smith@frontlineclub.com
At Mr. Smith's estate in Suffolk, U.K.

Dear Mr. Assange,

I hope that you are holding up strong and remain committed to the principle that "What conscience cannot contain, and institutional secrecy unjustly conceals, WikiLeaks can broadcast to the world."[1] Subscribing to that principle, I sent you[2] and WikiLeaks' sponsor, Sunshine Press, evidence of coordinated judicial wrongdoing in the U.S. Federal Judiciary giving rise to judges[3] running a bankruptcy fraud scheme and covering it up[4]. I described how WikiLeaks can form a team of journalists[5] to conduct a Watergate-like Follow the money![6] and a Follow the wire![7] investigation that can lead to the U.S. Supreme Court[8]. Since you fear "onward extradition to the U.S." from Sweden, you can now also undertake such investigation as a preemptive attack on both U.S. Attorney General Eric Holder, whose Department of Justice also participated in the cover-up of the scheme[9], and the Federal Judiciary, who will decide your fate if you are forced to appear before it[10]. By showing their corruption and collusion[11], you can provide the world evidence that they would disregard your rights to due process of law[12] and thus, are unfit to try you.

Preemption can also be undertaken in front of a global audience concerning the Swedish authorities' allegations against you. Consider making this announcement at a press conference:

> The Swedish authorities allege that they want to extradite me to question me regarding allegations of sexual misconduct brought against me in Sweden. They deny that their extradition of me is a deceptive maneuver to hand me over, either in Sweden or at a forced stop-over, to the U.S. authorities so that they can try me criminally for WikiLeaks' leaking classified U.S. government documents. If the Swedish authorities are sincere, they need neither to extradite me to Sweden nor wait for months or years for the uncertain outcome of an extradition process nor spend the enormous amount of money that this process costs them and me. They can question me while I am in the U.K.
>
> Hence, on January 2, 2011, at 1:00pm, I will be at X [either Mr. Smith's estate, his Club or a bigger room] before a TV screen that will be linked by satellite to S [a similar place in Sweden] where there will be another TV screen and chairs marked for the Swedish authorities to sit and question me. I vow to answer their questions under oath taken by them and/or a U.K. magistrate. [It will be 7:00 CST/8:00 EST a.m. in the U.S. and Americans will be watching the morning news because it will be Sunday and…]
>
> Moreover, on the same occasion, a similar TV screen will be linked by satellite to A [a big hotel] in Alexandria, in the U.S. state of Virginia. Chairs will be there marked for the grand jury impaneled by the U.S. authorities to assess evidence against me for alleged espionage and conspiracy. I will answer their questions too. What is more, there will also be a chair for U.S. Attorney General Eric Holder for him to sit and question me.
>
> Let me eliminate any excuse for them not to appear: I am not scheduling a debate; I am putting myself at their disposal to answer their questions. WikiLeaks and I stand for transparency in the relations between government and the public. I am showing that I hold true to my beliefs. If these authorities do not stand for deceptive secrecy and cover-ups, let them show up and question me then. I'll be there. [While awaiting their unlikely appearance, clips on WikiLeaks and interviews can be broadcast to a global audience.]

Looking forward to hearing from you[13], Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Cc: Mark Stephens; Geoffrey Robertson; Sunshine Press; John Pilger; et al.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England 2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500, USA
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris Judicial Discipline Reform Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

July 29, 2013

Mr. Mikhail Komissar
Chairman of the Board and CEO, Interfax Group tel: +7 (499) 250-00-22, 250-31-73
2 Pervaya Tverskaya-Yamskaya Ul. fax: +7 (499) 250-14-36
Moscow, 127006, Russia http://www.interfax.com/txt.asp?rbr=28

Re: Story for Interfax and letter to Mr. Edward Snowden

Dear Chairman Komissar,

Enclosed you will find a letter to Mr. Edward Snowden. It contains a story that I submit for him and Interfax to expose the political and financial wrongdoing of President Obama, his first Supreme Court nominee, Now-Justice Sotomayor, and her peers; and impugn their qualifications to prosecute and judge him and other whistleblowers. Interfax may want to pursue this story on the journalistic principle that 'democracy needs an informed public' and the business consideration that 'scandals and scoops for cash and prizes are the hooks'. You will likely recognize its significant news potential since it arises from leads in The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico, all of which suspected J. Sotomayor of concealing assets of hers. Other leads I discovered through research and prosecution of cases from federal bankruptcy court all the way to the Supreme Court. They point to a bankruptcy fraud scheme run risklessly by appointed, life-tenured, unaccountable federal judges, including J. Sotomayor. All the leads are in the file at [1].

The Obama-Sotomayor story does not allege that these officers have made wrong decisions, for they can explain them away as the exercise of their official discretion. Rather, it begins by exposing conduct that everybody will find indefensible: financial wrongdoing in self-interest. Hence the search for J. Sotomayor's concealed assets. It can uncover her peers' assets too given that judges do wrong through such extensive coordination as to have institutionalized their wrongdoing and turned their Judiciary into their safe haven. Since Interfax understands the practical and economic value of collaboration among a wide array of journalists and media outlets, it can cost-effectively expose judges' financial wrongdoing by collaborating, as proposed, with the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists to apply their unique Follow the money! expertise. Public outrage can bring about judicial resignations, as it did that of Justice Abe Fortas in 1969, provoked by Life magazine's revelations of his financial improprieties. It can compel official investigations, which can extend to the judges' non-financial wrongdoing.

Interfax is better situated than its American counterparts to start investigating this story because it is established abroad and thus, is not as exposed to the judges' retaliation as the American media are. By breaking the story, Interfax can launch a Watergate-like generalized media investigation that American and foreign media find necessary due to market demand and competitive pressure, and safe, to join: Not even federal judges can risk revealing their abuse of power by intimidating all their exposers simultaneously. A proven query can guide the investigation: What did the President know about J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets and when did he know it? An outraged public can demand that he release the FBI vetting report on her. The investigation can expose how the Presidency and Congress have in self-interest exempted the Judiciary from their checks and balances, resulting in judges' unaccountability, abuse of power, and harm to the public. The latter, only more distrustful of government after the Snowden leaks, can force historic reform, e.g., a transparent citizen-monitored and disciplined Judiciary. A new We the People-government paradigm can emerge in the U.S. and spread abroad: the People's Sunrise.

You and Interfax can set these developments in motion. So I kindly request that you forward my letter to Mr. Snowden and reply to my investigation proposal.

Dare trigger history! Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

ol:26

[1] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/WL/13-7-23DrRCordero-Interfax_ESnowden.pdf

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500, USA
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

August 9, 2013

Mr. Mikhail Andelman
General Manager, Interfax America
7009 S. Potomac Street, Suite 106 Centennial, CO 80112

tel.: +1 (303) 368-14-21 fax: +1 (303) 368-14-58
http://www.interfax.com/subscribe.asp

Re: Update on the proposed Obama-Sotomayor story

Dear Mr. Andelman,

Thank you for calling me on August 6, to acknowledge receipt of my July 29 letters([1]>ol:17-22) to you and Mr. Edward Snowden. They discussed the way for Interfax and him to benefit from the story of how President Obama knew from the FBI vetting report on his first justiceship nominee, Then-Judge Sotomayor, a woman and a Hispanic, what The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico([1]>jur:65fn107a-c) suspected, to wit, that she was concealing assets –a crime committed to evade taxes and/or hide the assets' unlawful origin–. Yet, he vouched for her honesty, because he wanted to cater to the voters who were asking for another woman and the first Hispanic for the Supreme Court and from whom he expected in return support for his Obamacare bill. In his political and personal interest, he lied to the American people, who can be so outraged as to force investigations of them…and lead to public accountability reform([1]>jur:i).

This is an update on how Interfax can capitalize on the intervening events: the cancellation by President Obama of his scheduled meetings with President Putin at the Moscow Summit and the St. Petersburg Global Economic Conference, to some extent in retaliation for President Putin's having granted temporary asylum to Mr. Snowden. Obama has snubbed Putin on the international stage, for the former is going to be in Russia anyway but refuses to meet the latter. Moreover, President Putin must be feeling offended for having been chastised for his unyielding stance on other issues: Syria, the missile shield, treatment of political opponents, gay rights, adoptions by Americans, etc. This is a rare opportunity for Interfax to come to his aid and earn some goodwill points that it can deposit in the favor bank for the day when it needs a favor from Putin.

You and your management colleagues can seize that opportunity by reacting as savvy and nimble business people even if to do so you have to depart somehow from your business model. You all can act as a managing editor, whether openly or discreetly, with respect to any number of the many journalists and news media to whom you have access to organize the investigation of a unique story: It involves the wrongdoing of a sitting American president, a sitting justice of the Supreme Court nominated by him, and her peers at the Federal Judiciary, the very ones charged with applying the law; and it can benefit the Russian president by accomplishing what matters to him much more than just getting back at his American counterpart, that is, to foil any attempt by the latter to cancel U.S. participation in the Winter Games in Sochi and call on U.S. allies to follow suit and hold them in Vancouver, CA. If that happened, Putin and his friends, who have invested some $34 billion in those Games, could face dire economic consequences, even bankruptcy. Obama could attempt to boycott them for what matters to him more than retaliation: His legacy.

After Obama managed in his first term the historic passage of the act establishing a national health care system, which had been unsuccessfully debated for decades, he is aiming in his second term to erect the second pillar of his legacy, that is, the passage of immigration reform. Not only has it equally been debate unsuccessfully for decades, but it also can cement the hold of the Democratic Party on the fastest growing segment of the electorate, that is, Hispanics, to whom he owes his reelection. It is obvious that Republicans would be loath to help him and the Democrats pass that bill; but if they defeat it, they will cement their alienation from Hispanics.

Thus, Republicans have been trying to discredit President Obama as weak and the immigration bill as a correspondingly weak means of protecting Americans from illegal immigrants. They would have kept hammering down this image of him if he had maintained his decision to meet with President Putin; and would have rejoiced in the finishing touch: Meetings between them from which Obama had come away empty-handed. By his cancelling the meetings, he has strengthened his image. An even more effective way of strengthening it would be by cancelling U.S. participation in the Sochi Games and making as many nations as possible follow him to Vancouver. To such a strong president the Republicans could excuse giving their vote to pass the immigration bill. President Obama's statement at his pre-vacation press conference today, the 9th, that he will not boycott the Games is of little comfort: He had said that he would not discuss with President Putin the Snowden affair so as not to give him the opportunity to try to extract concessions on other issues. Now we know from Obama himself that he did talk to Putin about extraditing Snowden. He will do whatever suits his interests, Putin's $34 billion Games notwithstanding.

Enter Interfax. It can discreetly contact President Putin to make him aware of what he stands to gain from Interfax organizing the Obama-Sotomayor story investigation: The weakening of President Obama to such degree that he might not call for the boycott of the Games, for it could be seen as a blatant maneuver to distract Americans' attention from his predicament due to the investigation and toward 'the Cold War enemy'. But even if he did call for the boycott, the reluctance of other countries to associate themselves with an embattled president risking impeachment could render his call ineffective. Putin need not appear connected to the investigation, though he could discreetly put at Interfax's disposal state means for searching assets(cf. ol:1; 2§1).

Indeed, the American people are deeply distrustful of government, in general, and of the President, in particular, in the wake of the IRS, Benghazi, and Fast and Furious scandals and his failure to hold any banker accountable for the subprime mortgage debacle. Public distrust would only be compounded by outrage if the investigation started by Interfax raised probable cause to believe that Now-Justice Sotomayor is committing concealment of assets, which is a continuous crime. Interfax only has to show that she has failed to live up to the judges' own canon of conduct requiring them to "avoid even the appearance of impropriety"(168fn123a). Even Hispanics, who are struggling economically more than Whites are, would resent the concealment of assets by her and her peers, who earn a salary of around $200K –plus any external and investment income– which is about five times the income of Hispanic households. Their and the rest of the public's demand for updating news on the investigation would generate the market incentive for every other media outlet to climb on the Interfax's investigative bandwagon. This would launch a Watergate-like generalized media search, this time for the whereabouts of J. Sotomayor's concealed assets. If under public pressure she had to resign, as Justice Abe Fortas had to(92§d), Republicans could win the 2014 elections and hold hearings on the President's means to pursue Obamacare and the immigration bill, and on whether his lying to the people, thus betraying their trust, was an impeachable offense. (Dragging in and tarnishing the name of his former Sec. of State and expected formidable 2016 presidential candidate, H. Clinton, would be a hidden objective.)

The investigation findings can be published by, among others, The Guardian, NYT, and WP, which was a key player in the Watergate Scandal and is looking for a scoop that can establish the name of its new owner, Mr. J. Bezos, the founder of Google, one of the Internet service providers that was forced to give the NSA direct access to its servers to snoop on Americans so that one can assume that Mr. Bezos will want to investigate Obama to gain leverage on him.

I kindly request that you discuss this letter with your management colleagues as well as with Mr. Snowden[2] and his attorney, Anatoly Kucherena. I look forward to hearing from you.

Dare trigger history! Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

[2] cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/WL/2two/RC-JA_17dec10.pdf >ws:46§V

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.
Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris
Judicial Discipline Reform
2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

August 15, 2013

What You Can Accomplish By Encouraging Journalists to Pick Up Where The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico Left Off Their Stories Suspecting President Obama's First Justiceship Nominee, Then-Judge Sotomayor, of Concealment of Assets: Provoke Such Outrage in the Public, Already so Distrustful of Government as a Result of Current Scandals and the Revelations of Edward Snowden, as to Cause It to Demand Democracy-Reformative Mechanisms for Public Accountability, Such as Citizen Boards for Monitoring the Transparent Operation of Government and Disciplining its Officers, that Can Give Rise to A New We the People-government Paradigm: the People's Sunrise

The revelations by Mr. Edward Snowden(ol:17) of government programs that run surveillance on tens of millions of Americans' telephone records and Internet communications have only deepened public distrust(ol:11) of government already provoked by the IRS, Benghazi, Fast and Furious scandals and the government's complicit decision not to hold anybody accountable for the mortgage debacle and the banks' use of fake documents to foreclose on mortgages. This is the right time to show the public how unaccountability and consequent riskless wrongdoing begin at the top of government and percolate throughout the rest of it. An outraged public may force substantial reform of the government that We the People are sovereign to give ourselves.

Indeed, in 2009, The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico(jur:65fn107a) suspected Then-Judge, Now-U.S. Supreme Court Justice, Sotomayor of concealing assets. President Obama must have learned about her concealment from her financial affairs statements publicly filed with the Senate Judiciary Committee, which was preparing her confirmation hearings, and the report of the FBI, which had vetted her. But he disregarded the requirement that the judges have imposed on themselves, namely, to "avoid even the appearance of impropriety", because he wanted to cater to voters calling for another woman and the first Hispanic for the Supreme Court and from whom he expected in return support for his Obamacare bill.(77§5)

The President lied to the American people by vouching for J. Sotomayor's honesty despite his knowledge or probable cause to believe that she was concealing assets, whether for tax evasion or money laundering. Her commission(65fn107c) of that crime disqualified her from remaining a judge, let alone becoming a justice, for it showed that, far from keeping her oath to apply the law also to herself, she kept breaking it through the continuous crime of concealment. An economically struggling public will resent a President that in self-interest saddled it with a dishonest justice as greedy as her peers(105fn213): Federal judges earn a salary of around $200K, four times the average American household income, but conceal assets, breaking the law and showing that they cannot be trusted to respect the law enough to administer Equal Justice Under Law.

J. Sotomayor was also dishonest by swearing that she had produced all documents requested by the Senate Committee although she had withheld a case that incriminated her in covering up a bankruptcy fraud scheme run by federal judges and driven by the two most corruptive forces: money and power. DeLano(jur:xxxviii), 06-4780-bk-CA2(69fn131), was well known to her since she had presided over it and it had been appealed to the Supreme Court on a writ of certiorari only a few months earlier. What is more, a judicial misconduct complaint arising from it had been appealed to the 2nd Circuit's Judicial Council, of which she was a member(65§§1-3).

In addition, my study Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing(jur:i) allows journalists to expose the dishonesty of federal judges generally, whether by their commission or condonation of wrongdoing. It provides evidence of their motive, means, and opportunity to do wrong and the reason for the media to hold them unaccountable.(jur:21§A) The study subtitle tells the journalist and media outlet that break the story what they will be accomplishing thereby: Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting. Its discussion sets the basis for a multidisciplinary academic and business venture(119§§1-4) aimed to lead to the creation of an institute of judicial unaccountability reporting and reform advocacy(130§§5-8).

The proposed investigation(97§D) of the Obama-Sotomayor story begins with the search for her concealed assets. It can be conducted cost-effectively by working with the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists, who have gained especial Follow the money! expertise (ol:1,2) After the breaking of the story, the public will be so outraged as to demand that the President release the FBI vetting report on her. Its interest in follow-up news will generate the market incentive for a Watergate-like generalized media investigation guided by a proven(jur:4¶¶10-14) query:

What did the President and the justices and judges know about
J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets and cover up, and when did they know it?

The investigation will expose how the Executive Branch and Congress(171¶371) have in self-interest exempted the Judiciary from their checks and balances, resulting in judges' unaccountability, disregard of the law, and harm to the people, left at the mercy of judges wielding unaccountable and thus absolute, power over their rights, property, liberty, and lives.(28fn32)

It can reasonably be stated that this story is unique: It allows journalists to expose the dishonesty of a sitting president and a sitting justice of the Supreme Court and his first nominee to it; of Congress, which confirmed her and her peers and enables their unaccountability(78§6); and of the Judiciary, allowed to be the most abusive(21§1), secretive(27§e), and unresponsive(28§3) of the branches despite the fundamental principle that "justice must not only be done, it must manifestly and undoubtedly be seen to be done"(44fn71). Not even the Watergate Scandal had such scope, yet it led to the resignation of President Nixon on August 9, 1974, on suspicion of plotting political espionage and covering it up through abuse of power. What will this one lead to?

To begin with, the journalist and the managing editor who break the Obama-Sotomayor story will have their reputation enhanced nationally and qualify for many other moral and material rewards(ol:6§3). Their example will assure a judge-afraid media of the safety of joining them, for not even federal judges can retaliate against all their exposers simultaneously. A public mobilized(163§9) by outrage will force politicians, lest they be voted out or not into office, to investigate the story. Their subpoena, search and seizure, contempt, and penal powers will facilitate their tracking income and loans down to the whereabouts of concealed assets. Their findings will further expose the nature, gravity, and pervasiveness of public servants' unaccountability and wrongdoing(cf. jur:5§3). They will so exacerbate the outrage of the public as to cause it to compel historic, democracy-innovating reform of the mechanisms for holding public servants accountable, e.g., a new statutory or constitutional framework for a Judiciary that operates transparently and monitored by independent citizen boards of judicial accountability and discipline.

Thus, the journalist and managing editor who break the story can have a more substantial impact than The Guardian Columnist Glenn Greenwald(ol:21), who published the Snowden leaks: They can launch a process leading to a new We the People-government paradigm where the people play a direct role in ensuring that public servants are, not above the law, but only their hired administrators and that in fact government is of, for, and by the people. It can spread from the federal to the state level and on to the rest of the world, which is wont to adopt our culture and political developments: It can lead to the People's* Sunrise. Dare trigger history!(dcc:11)

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England 2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, New York 10472, USA
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris Judicial Discipline Reform Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

July 29, 2013

Ms. Monika Bauerlein and Ms. Clara Jeffery
Editors in Chief, Mother Jones tel. (415) 321-1700
222 Sutter Street, Suite 600 backtalk@motherjones.com
San Francisco, CA 94108 http://www.motherjones.com/about

Re: Story for you and letter to Mr. Edward Snowden

Dear Ms. Bauerlein and Ms. Jeffery,

I have read with interest articles that you have published on Mr. Edward Snowden. That led me to find your claim that you "specialize in investigative…and social justice reporting [and practice] smart, fearless journalism that keeps people informed [which is] indispensable to a democracy". If that is so, I would like to propose that you extend your "expanding investigative coverage" to a story that can impugn the standing of President Obama, his first Supreme Court nominee, i.e., Now-Justice Sotomayor, and her peers to charge Mr. Snowden with, and judge him for, dishonesty in handling the power given him to access and manipulate data as an NSA contractor:

In 2009, The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[1] suspected J. Sotomayor of concealing assets. The President must have learned that from her financial affairs statements publicly filed with the Senate Judiciary Committee and the FBI vetting report on her. But he disregarded it and vouched for her honesty because he wanted the power that he would gain from catering to voters calling for another woman and the first Hispanic for the Supreme Court. J. Sotomayor was also dishonest by swearing that she had submitted all the documents requested by the Committee though she had withheld[1] a case that incriminated her in a bankruptcy fraud scheme run by federal judges and driven by the two most corruptive forces: money and power.

The proposed Obama-Sotomayor story allows you to expose their dishonesty. My study Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing[1] allows you to expose that of federal judges: It provides you with evidence of their motive, means, and opportunity[1] to engage in wrongdoing and the reason for the media to hold them unaccountable. The study subtitle tells you what you will be accomplishing thereby: Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting[1]. Imagine the boost to your reputation as journalists, the shock to a judge-afraid media, and the outrage of the public, whose distrust of the government has only been exacerbated by the Snowden leak, if you exposed the dishonesty of a sitting president, a sitting justice, and the Federal Judiciary, the most secretive, undemocratic, and aloof of the branches. An economically struggling public would resent a President that lied to it and saddled it with a justice as greedy as her peers: Federal judges earn individually a salary around four times the average American household income but conceal assets, thus breaking the law and showing that they cannot be trusted to respect the law enough to administer Equal Justice Under Law.

This should offend Mother Jones's commitment to "social justice". Does its claim not to be "beholden to corporations" imply that its "fearless journalism" would not hold back, as all other media do, from exposing federal judges' abuse of unaccountable power, which becomes 'absolute power and corrupts absolutely'? If Mother Jones believes in fact that to "keep people informed is indispensable to a democracy", then it must "tell it like [sic] it is" about judges too. So I encourage you to investigate the Obama-Sotomayor story. Consider the economic benefits of "pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting"[1] and the reputational reward of becoming thereby We the People's Champion of Justice. I offer to make a presentation thereof to you. In turn, I kindly request that through your Moscow contacts you forward the enclosed letter to Mr. Snowden and let me know your reaction to my proposals.

Dare trigger history! Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

[1] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/WL/13-7-29DrRCordero-MotherJones.pdf ol:31

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

August 1, 2013

Ms. Tina Brown
Editor-in-Chief
The Daily Beast and Newsweek letters@newsweek.com; editorial@thedailybeast.com

Re: Story for you and letter to Mr. Edward Snowden

Dear Ms. Brown,

I have read with interest articles that you have published on Mr. Edward Snowden. That led me to find your About Us claim that The Daily Beast is a "site dedicated to breaking news and sharp commentary" and Newsweek "the world's preeminent conversation starter since its founding in 1933". So I am sharing with you and your publications a letter to Mr. Snowden. It contains a story for him and you to expose the political and financial wrongdoing of President Obama, his first Supreme Court nominee, Now-Justice Sotomayor, and her peers; and impugn their qualifications to prosecute and judge him. You may want to pursue this story on the journalistic principle that 'democracy needs an informed public' and the business consideration that 'scandals and scoops for cash and prizes are the hooks'. Its reliability arises from leads in The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico, all of which suspected J. Sotomayor of concealing assets. Other leads I discovered through research and prosecution of cases from federal bankruptcy court all the way to the Supreme Court; they point to a bankruptcy fraud scheme run risklessly by unaccountable federal judges, including J. Sotomayor. The leads are in the letter and the file at [1].

The Obama-Sotomayor story does not allege that these officers have made wrongful decisions, for they can defend them as the exercise of their official discretion. Rather, it begins by exposing conduct that everybody will find indefensible: financial wrongdoing in self-interest. Hence the search for J. Sotomayor's concealed assets. It can uncover her peers' assets too given that federal judges do wrong through such extensive coordination as to have institutionalized their wrongdoing and turned their Judiciary into their safe haven. You can cost-effectively expose judges' financial wrongdoing by collaborating with the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists to apply their unique Follow the money! expertise. Public outrage can bring about judicial resignations, as it did that of Justice Abe Fortas in 1969, provoked by Life magazine's revelations of his financial improprieties. It can compel official investigations, which can extend to the judges' non-financial wrongdoing motivated by expediency, conflict of interests, etc.

By breaking the story, you can launch a Watergate-like generalized media investigation, as all other news outlets will find it necessary due to market demand and competitive pressure, and safe, to join: Not even federal judges can risk revealing their abuse of power by intimidating all their exposers simultaneously. A proven query can guide the investigation: What did the President know about J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets and when did he know it? An outraged public can demand that he release the FBI vetting report on her. The investigation can expose how the Presidency and Congress have in self-interest exempted the Judiciary from their checks and balances, resulting in judges' unaccountability, disregard for the law, and harm to the public. The latter, only more distrustful of government after the Snowden leaks, can force historic reform: a transparent citizen-monitored and disciplined Judiciary of not Above the Law Judges. A new We the People-government paradigm can emerge in the U.S and spread abroad: the People's Sunrise.

I encourage you to "break news" that will "start a preeminent conversation" more consequential than Glenn Greenwald's. I kindly request that through your correspondents you forward my letter to Mr. Snowden and reply to my investigation proposal, of which I offer to make a presentation. Dare trigger history!

Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

[1] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/WL/13-8-1DrRCordero-DailyBeast_Newsweek.pdf

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. 1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

August 3, 2013

Mr. William Bastone — william.bastone@turner.com
Editor, The Smoking Gun — thesmokinggun@gmail.com
1 Time Warner Center, 7th Floor — tel. (212) 275-9990 or (212) 275-9993
New York, N.Y. 10019

Re: Story for you and letter to Mr. Edward Snowden

Dear Mr. Bastone,

In "About The Smoking Gun", you state that "[it] brings you exclusive confidential documents… that can't be found elsewhere on the Web [and are] 100% authentic". This is a proposal for you to use your research resources to find two types of documents that given the public's distrust of government in the wake of the IRS, Benghazi, and Fast and Furious scandals, only aggravated by Mr. Edward Snowden's leaks, can exacerbate such distrust and arouse such outrage as to launch a reformative process in which public accountability and transparency is ensured by We the People:

1. the 2009 FBI report on the vetting of Then-Judge Sotomayor, which may show that it informed President Obama that she had concealed assets, just as at the time The Washington Post, The New York Times, and Politico[1a] suspected her of doing, but which he disregarded when he nominated her for a justiceship and lied to the American public by vouching for her honesty so as to ingratiate himself with voters calling for another woman and the first Hispanic for the Supreme Court and from whom he in turn expected support for his Obamacare bill –cf. he had disregarded the known tax cheating of Tim Geithner, Tom Daschle, and Nancy Killefer and nominated them to his cabinet, only for public outrage to force the latter two to withdraw their names–; and

2. documents showing the flow and whereabouts of her concealed assets, which you may search for cost-effectively by, as proposed below, collaborating with the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists to benefit from their unique Follow the money! expertise. That may allow you to uncover the concealed assets of other federal judges because they do wrong through such extensive coordination as to have institutionalized their wrongdoing and turned their Judiciary into their safe haven. This led her to cover for them and herself by perjuriously swearing that she had submitted all the documents requested by the Senate Judiciary Committee preparing her confirmation though she had withheld[1b] a case incriminating all of them in running or condoning a bankruptcy fraud scheme driven by the two most corruptive forces: money and power.

Those documents can provoke public outrage that can force judicial resignations, as it did that of Justice Abe Fortas in 1969, provoked by Life magazine's revelations of his financial improprieties. It can also force official investigations, which can extend to the judges' non-financial wrongdoing, rendered irresistible by their unaccountability and motivated by expediency, conflict of interests, etc. The documents can expose the President's and J. Sotomayor's dishonesty and impugn their standing to prosecute and judge Mr. Snowden for his alleged dishonesty.

My study Exposing Federal Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing[1] can help you expose their dishonesty with evidence of their motive, means, and opportunity[1c] to do wrong and the reasons for the media to hold them unaccountable. The study subtitle tells you what you will be accomplishing through such exposure: Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting[1]. Does your gun jam with fear rather than shoot incriminating documents at top officers? If not, your shot can be more consequential than The Guardian G. Greenwald's: It can lead to a new We the People-government paradigm. So I kindly ask that you read my letter to Mr. Snowden and through your media contacts forward it to him, and let me know your response to my request and proposals, of which I offer to make a presentation to you and your colleagues.

Dare trigger history! Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

[1] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/WL/13-8-3DrRCordero-WBastone_SmokingGun.pdf > [a]jur:65§B; [b]69§b; [c]21§A ol:33

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

Judicial Discipline Reform

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

August 19, 2013

Ms. Zuade Kaufman
Publisher, Truthdig zkaufman@truthdig.com
1158 26th St., No. 443
Santa Monica, CA 90403-4698

Dear Ms. Kaufman,

I read with interest Mr. A. Kelly's celebration of Filmmaker Laura Poitras as your newsmaker of the week. He wrote, "Ubiquitous government surveillance [such as that which she helped E. Snowden to expose] has made the task of cultivating unauthorized sources inside official organizations more difficult and dangerous". This is a proposal for you to prepare the eventual celebration of yourself and your contributors for newsmaking of a novel type: reporting on the pervasive government secrecy in the official organization that is most powerful and actually harmful, the Federal Judiciary, which is above the democratic 'surveillance' of We the People.

The Judiciary holds all its administrative, adjudicative, policy-making, and disciplinary meetings behind closed doors and holds no press conferences(* >fn29). A single federal judge can hold unconstitutional what 535 members of Congress and the President have debated, decided, and enacted. Unlike any other public officers, justices are life-tenured, as are district and circuit judges; the latter appoint bankruptcy judges for renewable 14-year terms[61a] with no consent of representatives of the people. In the 224 years since the creation of the Federal Judiciary in 1789, only 8 federal judges[13] have been impeached and removed[14]. Chief circuit[22a] judges abuse their statutory self-disciplining authority by dismissing 99.82%(jur:10-14) of complaints against their peers; with other judges they deny up to 100% of appeals to review such dismissals(24§b). Up to 9 of every 10 appeals are disposed of ad-hoc[29] through no-reason summary orders[66a] or opinions so "perfunctory"[68] that they are neither published nor precedential[70], mere fiats of raw judicial power. If your bosses knew that they could do whatever they wanted(5§3) and neither Congress, the President, your peers nor the media(3§b) would dare criticize, let alone investigate, them, would they allow themselves to abuse their power over your rights, property, liberty, and life? Would such unaccountable(21§A), thus absolute, power corrupt them absolutely[28]? If they were also influenced by the most insidious corruptor, money!(27§2), would that happen inevitably[32]?

This topic meets your "Message from the Publisher" criteria: It "need[s] to be brought to Readers' attention…to challenge the conventional wisdom" of journalists' holding a branch unaccountable so that it becomes a safe haven for wrongdoing(65§B). This can be exposed through the President Obama-Justice Sotomayor story set forth in the letter to Mr. Snowden(ol:17-21). It is "solid and reliable", for it arises from leads in The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a], all of which suspected J. Sotomayor of concealing assets[107c]. It also rests on my prosecution of cases from federal bankruptcy court all the way to the Supreme Court[109b,114c]; and is "in-depth"[ii], based on my study "Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing: Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting"(i). The pursuit of the story relies on an 'external sources' strategy: judges' publicly filed documents with incongruous data[107b, 213] and their places for concealing assets(ol:1,2). The exposure of a sitting justice's tax evasion/money laundering and a sitting president's condonation of it and nomination of her will be more than 'thought-provoking'. It will so outrage a financially struggling public as to set off a Watergate-like generalized media investigation that will "help to launch a new era", that of judicial unaccountability reporting(119§E). So I respectfully propose that we investigate(100§§3-4) this story and ask that you share this and my Snowden letter with Ms. Poitras through NYT[173a] Rep. Peter Maass.

Dare trigger history!

Sincerely,

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

* http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/WL/13-8-19DrRCordero-Truthdig.pdf

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

Judicial Discipline Reform

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

August 23, 2013

Ms. Laura Poitras
c/o: The New York Times
620 Eighth Avenue
New York, NY 10018

Dear Ms. Poitras,

I read with interest your profile by New York Times Investigative Reporter Peter Maass and his account of your participation in disclosing Mr. Edward Snowden's leak of documents revealing the government's unauthorized surveillance of Americans. This is a proposal for you to expose what is actually more dangerous than surveillance: pervasive government secrecy in the official organization that is most powerful, unresponsive, and actually harmful, the Federal Judiciary, which is above the democratic 'surveillance' of We the People and our representatives.

The Judiciary holds all its administrative, adjudicative, policy-making, and disciplinary meetings behind closed doors and no press conferences[*>fn29]. A single federal judge can hold unconstitutional what 535 members of Congress and the President have debated, voted, and enacted[17a]. Unlike them, justices are life-tenured, as are district and circuit judges; the latter appoint bankruptcy judges for renewable 14-year terms[61a] with no consent of representatives of the people. In the 224 years since the creation of the Federal Judiciary in 1789, only 8 federal judges [13] have been impeached and removed[14]. Chief circuit[22a] judges abuse their statutory self-disciplining authority by dismissing 99.82%(jur:10-14) of complaints against their peers; with other judges they deny up to 100% of appeals to review such dismissals(24§b). Up to 9 of every 10 appeals are disposed of ad-hoc[29] through no-reason summary orders[66a] or opinions so "perfunctory"[68] that they are neither published nor precedential[70], mere fiats of raw judicial power. They are influenced by the most insidious corruptor, money!(27§2) If your bosses knew that they were entrenched for life and could unaccountably(21§A) wield power for material and professional profit(5§3) and neither Congress, the President nor the media would dare criticize, let alone investigate, them, would such unchecked power, unbalanced due to lack of adverse consequences, corrupt them absolutely[28], causing[32] them to abuse with a sense of entitlement your rights, property, liberty, and life?

The exposé can initiate with the President Obama-Justice Sotomayor story set forth in the letter to Mr. Snowden(ol:17-21). It can pick up where NYT, The Washington Post, and Politico [107a], inexplicably[173a] left off their stories suspecting J. Sotomayor of concealing assets[107c]. The exposé can also rest on my prosecution of cases from bankruptcy court all the way to the Supreme Court[109b,114c]; and on my verifiable research[ii] for my study(i) "Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing: Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting"(119§E). The exposé relies on an external sources strategy: judges' publicly filed financial disclosure reports that contain incongruous data[107b,213] and a Follow the money! investigation (ol:1,2). The unique story of a sitting justice's tax evasion/money laundering and a sitting president's condonation of it and nomination of her will so outrage a financially struggling public as to set off a Watergate-like generalized media investigation, and make you this generation's Woodward/Bernstein. You will be able to cast a critical view on the media, which by abdicating their mission to inform the people on all(jur:3§2) public servants' abuse of power have allowed judges to become Wrongdoers Above the Law. Indeed, through the Follow the wire! investigation(ol:19§D), you may reveal their abuse of their IT infrastructure and expertise to run surveillance on people trying to expose them. Thus, I respectfully propose that you discuss with Mr. Maass my letter to Mr. Snowden and forward it to the latter so that we may do(100§§3-4) the exposé jointly.

Dare trigger history!

Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

Judicial Discipline Reform

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

August 23, 2013

Mr. Peter Maass Investigative Reporter
petermaass1@petermaass.com

Dear Mr. Maass,

I read with interest your profile on The New York Times of Filmmaker Laura Poitras, centered on her participation in disclosing the documents leaked by Mr. E. Snowden. It ends with your being described as "an investigative reporter working on a book about surveillance and privacy". This is a proposal for you to advance your work through an investigation of the lack of reverse, democratic 'surveillance' by We the People of a whole branch of government, the Federal Judiciary, due to the conniving failure of the other branches to exercise their checks and balances on it. The result is pervasive secrecy enabling wrongdoing as its institutionalized modus operandi.

The Judiciary holds all its administrative, adjudicative, policy-making, and disciplinary meetings behind closed doors and no press conferences[29]. A single federal judge can hold unconstitutional what 535 members of Congress and the President have debated, voted, and enacted[17a]. Unlike them, justices are life-tenured, as are district and circuit judges; the latter appoint bankruptcy judges for renewable 14-year terms[61a] with no consent of representatives of the people. In the 224 years since the creation of the Federal Judiciary in 1789, only 8 federal judges [13] have been impeached and removed[14]. Chief circuit[22a] judges abuse their statutory self-disciplining authority by dismissing 99.82%(jur:10-14) of complaints against their peers; with other judges they deny up to 100% of appeals to review such dismissals(24§b). Up to 9 of every 10 appeals are disposed of ad-hoc[29] through no-reason summary orders[66a] or opinions so "perfunctory"[68] that they are neither published nor precedential[70], mere fiats of raw judicial power. They are influenced by the most insidious corruptor, money!(27§2) If your bosses knew that they were entrenched for life and could unaccountably(21§A) wield power for material and professional profit(5§3) and neither Congress, the President nor the media would dare criticize, let alone investigate, them, would such unchecked power, unbalanced due to lack of adverse consequences, corrupt them absolutely[28], causing[32] them to abuse with a sense of entitlement your rights, property, liberty, and life?

The investigation can initiate with the President Obama-Justice Sotomayor story set forth in the letter to Mr. Snowden(ol:17-21). You can pick up where NYT, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a], inexplicably[173a] left off their stories suspecting J. Sotomayor of concealing assets[107c]. The investigation also rests on my prosecution of cases from bankruptcy court all the way to the Supreme Court[109b,114c]; and on my verifiable research[ii] for my study(i) "Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing: Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting"(119§E). The investigation relies on an external sources strategy: judges' publicly filed financial disclosure reports that contain incongruous data[107b,213] and a Follow the money! investigation(ol:1,2). The unique story of a sitting justice's tax evasion/money laundering and a sitting president's condonation of it and nomination of her will so outrage a financially struggling public as to set off a Watergate-like generalized media investigation, giving NYT a second [198f] chance. You will be able to cast a critical view on the media, which by abdicating their mission to inform the people on all(jur:3§2) public servants' abuse of power have allowed judges to become Wrongdoers Above the Law. Indeed, through the Follow the wire! investigation(ol:19§D), you may reveal their abuse of their IT infrastructure and expertise to run surveillance on, and invade the privacy of, people trying to expose them. Thus, I respectfully propose that you discuss with Ms. Poitras my letter to Mr. Snowden and forward it to him so that we may investigate(100 §§3-4) jointly.

Dare trigger history!

Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

Judicial Discipline Reform

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

August 24, 2013

Ms. Jill Abramson Jill.Abramson@nytimes.com
Executive Editor, The New York Times Abramson@nytimes.com
620 Eighth Avenue, New York, NY 10018 executive-editor@nytimes.com

Dear Ms. Abramson,

When you appointed Mr. Matt Purdy Assistant Managing Editor and praised his Pulitzer-winning investigations team, you stated, "We have long placed a special kind of emphasis on our stories behind the story, our exclusive investigative pieces, our long term enterprise projects — they are our hallmark." In that vein and The Guardian's enviable E. Snowden scoop, this is a proposal for an introductory piece on, followed by the findings of an investigation of, the lack of reverse, democratic 'surveillance' of the Federal Judiciary by We the People's representatives. The result is pervasive secrecy[71] with wrongdoing festering as its institutionalized modus operandi(jur:49§4).

The Judiciary holds all its administrative, adjudicative, policy-making, and disciplinary meetings behind closed doors and no press conferences[29]. A single federal judge can hold unconstitutional what 535 members of Congress and the President have debated, voted, and enacted[17a]. Justices are unelected yet life-tenured, as are district and circuit judges; the latter appoint bankruptcy judges for renewable 14-year terms[61a] with no consent of popular representatives. In the 224 years since the creation of the Federal Judiciary in 1789, only 8 federal judges[13] have been impeached and removed[14]. Chief circuit[22a] judges abuse their statutory self-disciplining authority by dismissing 99.82%(jur:10-14) of complaints against their peers; with other judges they deny up to 100% of appeals to review such dismissals(24§b). Up to 9 of every 10 appeals are disposed of ad-hoc through no-reason summary orders[66a] or opinions so "perfunctory"[68] that they are neither published nor precedential[70], mere fiats of raw judicial power. They are influenced by the most insidious corruptor, money!(27§2) If your bosses knew that they were entrenched for life and could unaccountably(21§A) wield power for material and professional profit(5§3) and neither Congress, the President nor the media would dare criticize, let alone investigate, them, would such unchecked power, unbalanced due to lack of adverse consequences, corrupt them absolutely[28], causing[32] them to abuse with a sense of entitlement your rights, property, liberty, and life?

The investigation can start with the President Obama-Justice Sotomayor story set forth in the letter to Mr. Snowden(ol:17). The unique story of a sitting justice's tax evasion/money laundering and a sitting president's condonation of it and nomination of her will so outrage a financially struggling public as to set off a Watergate-like generalized media investigation, giving NYT a second[198f] chance. You can pick up where NYT[173a], The Washington Post, and Politico left off their stories[107a] suspecting J. Sotomayor of concealing assets[107c]. The investigation also rests on my prosecution of cases(xxxv) from bankruptcy court all the way to the Supreme Court[109b,114c]; and on my verifiable research[ii] for my study(i) "Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing: Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting"(119§E). The investigation relies on an external sources strategy: judges' publicly filed financial disclosure reports that contain incongruous data[107b,213] and a Follow the money! investigation(ol:1,2). You will be able to cast a critical view on the media, which by abdicating their mission to inform the people on all(jur:3§2) public servants' abuse of power have allowed judges to become Wrongdoers Above the Law. Indeed, through the Follow the wire! investigation(ol:19§D), you may reveal their abuse of their IT infrastructure and expertise to run surveillance on people trying to expose them. Thus, I respectfully request that you consider becoming this generation's Katharine Graham(4¶¶10-14) and ask me in to present(171§F) to you the proposed piece and investigation (98§§2-4).

Dare trigger history!

Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Physical Address of The New York Times

620 Eighth Avenue
New York, NY 10018

and

email addresses of the editors to whom a personalized letter was sent

1.	Ms. Jill Abramson, Executive Director executive-editor@nytimes.com, Jill.Abramson@nytimes.com, Abramson@nytimes.com http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/NYT/13-8-24DrRCordero-ExecEd_JAbramson.pdf
2.	Ms. Denise Warren, General Manager generalmgr@nytimes.com, warredf@nytimes.com http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/NYT/13-8-26DrRCordero-GenMng_DWarren.pdf
3.	Mr. Dean Baquet, Managing Editor nytnews@nytimes.com http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/NYT/13-8-26DrRCordero-MngEd_DBaquet.pdf
4.	Mr. Matt Purdy, Investigations & Assistant Managing Editor Matt.Purdy@nytimes.com, MPurdy@nytimes.com, Purdy@nytimes.com http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/NYT/13-8-24DrRCordero-AMngEd_MPurdy.pdf
5.	Ms. Alison Mitchell, National Editor national@nytimes.com http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/NYT/13-8-26DrRCordero-NatDeskEd_AMitchell.pdf
6.	Ms. Margaret Sullivan, Readers Advocate public@nytimes.com, Margaret.sullivan@nytimes.com http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/NYT/13-8-26DrRCordero-PubEd_MSullivan.pdf
7.	Mr. David Leonhardt, Washington Bureau Chief leonhardt@nytimes.com http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/NYT/13-8-26DrRCordero-DCBC_DLeonhardt.pdf
8.	News Tips Editor news-tips@nytimes.com …/13-8-26DrRCordero-NewsTipsEditor
9.	Op Ed Editor oped@nytimes.com …/13-8-25DrRCordero-Op-EdPgEditor
10.	Mr. Andrew Rosenthal, Editorial Page Editor editorial@nytimes.com http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/NYT/13-8-25DrRCordero-EdPgEd_ARosenthal.pdf
11.	Ms. Terry Tang, Deputy Editorial Page Ed. terry.tang@nytimes.com http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/NYT/13-8-25DrRCordero-DepEdlPgEd_TTang.pdf
12.	Mr. Francis X. Clines, Member of the NYT Ed. Bd. FClines@nytimes.com http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/NYT/13-8-25DrRCordero-EdBd_FClines.pdf
13.	David Firestone, Member, NYT Ed. Bd David.Firestone@nytimes.com, firestone@nytimes.com http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/NYT/13-8-25DrRCordero-EdBd_DFirestone.pdf
14.	Ms. Dorothy Samuels, Member of the NYT Ed. Bd. Dorothy.Samuels@nytimes.com http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/NYT/13-8-25DrRCordero-EdBd_DSamuels.pdf
15.	Dr. Brent Staples, Member of the NYT Ed. Bd. brent.staples@nytimes.com http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/NYT/13-8-25DrRCordero-EdBd_BStaples.pdf
16.	Mr. Jesse Wegman, Member of the NYT Ed. Bd. Jesse.Wegman@nytimes.com http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/NYT/13-8-25DrRCordero-EdBd_JWegman.pdf
17.	Mr. Hugo Lindgren, Editor in Chief, NYT Magazine hugo.lindgren@nyt.com http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/NYT/13-8-24DrRCordero-HLindgren.pdf
18.	Mr. Joel Lovell, Deputy Ed., NYT Magazine joel.lovell@nytimes.com (editor of How Laura Poitras [ol:36] Helped Snowden Spill His Secrets, by Investigative Reporter Peter Maass; NYT, 13aug13; http://www.nytimes.com/2013/08/18/magazine/laura-poitras-snowden.html?pagewanted=all http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/NYT/13-8-24DrRCordero-PLovell.pdf http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/WL/13-8-23DrRCordero-PMaass.pdf

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500, USA
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

November 7, 2013

Herr Hans-Christian Ströbele
Fraktion Bündnis 90/Die Grünen
Platz der Republik 1
11011 Berlin, Germany

hans-christian.stroebele@bundestag.de http://www.stroebele-online.de/
tel. 030-22 77 15 03

Dear Mr. Ströbele,

I congratulate you for investigating the extent of NSA's spying in Germany and for meeting with Whistleblower Edward Snowden. This is a proposal for you and him to use your access to the international media to push your investigation and his whistleblowing into the unlawful conduct of the enablers of the NSA: the federal judges who rubberstamp[7] NSA's secret requests for secret orders of surveillance. This is the investigative query: To what extent the Federal Judiciary has abused its own vast Information Technology infrastructure and expertise or has in exchange for its approval of NSA's requests benefited from NSA's IT means to interfere with the communications –a crime under 18 USC §2511– of complainants of judges' wrongdoing.

Federal judges engage in wrongdoing because 1. they are held by politicians[17a] and the media unaccountable. In the last 224 years, only 8 federal judges have been removed[14]. Consequently, they are able to do wrong risklessly. They do so under the influence of the most insidious corruptor, money!(*>jur:27§2): The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico [107a] suspected Then-Judge, Now-Supreme Court Justice Sotomayor, the first justiceship nominee of President Obama, of concealment of assets[107c]. 2. Judges also self-assure their impunity, e.g., to grab money, by cloaking their own and their Judiciary's activities in pervasive secrecy: a) They hold all their adjudicative, administrative, policy-making, and disciplinary meetings behind closed doors[29] and no press conferences[71]. b) Chief circuit judges abuse the Judiciary's statutory[18a] self-disciplining authority by dismissing 99.82%(10-14) of complaints against their peers; with other judges they deny up to 100% of appeals to review such dismissals(24§b). c) Up to 9 of every 10 appeals are disposed of ad-hoc through no-reason summary orders[66a] or opinions so "perfunctory"[68] that they are neither published nor precedential[70], raw fiats of star-chamber power. d) Justices are unelected yet life-tenured, as are district and circuit judges; the latter appoint bankruptcy judges. Their appointees decided in CY10 who kept or received the $373 billion at stake in only personal bankruptcies[31]. About 95% of those bankruptcies are filed by individuals, the great majority of whom appear pro se[33] and, unable to defend themselves, fall prey to a bankruptcy fraud scheme(66§2), which J. Sotomayor helped to cover up(xxxv). e) 28§§3-4

By posing(ol:18§B) to the media the above query, you can launch a Follow the money and the wire!(100§§3-4) investigation that can prompt i. a Watergate-like generalized media investigation of another: 'What did P. Obama know about J. Sotomayor and other judges' wrongdoing and when did he know it(ol:19§C) but lie to the public to protect his health care act'(ol:17§A) and ii. the demand that he release the FBI vetting report on her. The finding that judges interfere with complainants' communications(ol:19§D), not for the sake of national security, but in the crass self-interest of covering their wrongdoing, e.g., money laundering and concealment of assets, can outrage the public more than the revelations about the NSA. Its outrage(83§§2-3) will advance to a greater extent a key interest of it as well as of yours, your Fraktion, Mr. Snowden, and mine: The people's right to hold public servants, including judges, accountable and replace secrecy with transparency. Your implementation of this strategy(ol:20§E) can culminate your career by giving rise in the U.S. to a new paradigm that can spread internationally: The People's Sunrise, they as reverse surveillants of government(Lsch:2). So let's discuss this proposal; you may write or talk to me in German.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11) Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500, USA
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

November 15, 2013

Mr. John Goëtz, Panorama Reporter
Frau Anja Reschke, Moderatorin
Redaktion PANORAMA
Hugh-Greene-Weg 1, 22529 Hamburg, DE

Dear Mr. Goëtz and Frau Reschke,

I congratulate you for investigating NSA's spying in Germany by meeting with Whistleblower E. Snowden. This is a proposal for you and him(ol:17¶¶i-1) to use your access to the international media to push your investigation and his whistleblowing into the unlawful conduct of NSA's enablers: the federal judges who rubberstamp[7] NSA's secret requests for secret surveillance orders. This is the investigative query: To what extent has the Federal Judiciary abused its own vast Information Technology infrastructure and expertise(Lsch:11¶9b.ii) or has in exchange for its approval of NSA's requests benefited from NSA's IT resources to interfere with the communications –a crime[10], unlike surveillance– of complainants of judges' wrongdoing(Toc:xix)?

Federal judges do wrong because 1. they are held by politicians[17a] and the media unaccountable. In the last 224 years, only 8 of them have been removed[14]. With that factual and historic assurance of impunity, they engage in wrongdoing risklessly. They do so under the influence of the most insidious corruptor, money!(jur:27§2): The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a-c] suspected Then-Judge, Now-Supreme Court Justice Sotomayor, the first justiceship nominee of P. Obama, of concealment of assets(65§1). 2. Judges also self-assure their impunity, e.g., for money grabbing, by cloaking their own and their Judiciary's activities in pervasive secrecy: a) They hold all their adjudicative, administrative, policy-making, and disciplinary meetings behind closed doors[29] and no press conferences[71]. b) Chief circuit judges abuse the Judiciary's statutory[18a] self-disciplining authority by dismissing 99.82%(10-14) of complaints against their peers; with other judges they deny up to 100% of appeals to review such dismissals (24§b). c) Up to 9 of every 10 appeals are disposed of ad-hoc through no-reason summary orders [66a] or opinions so "perfunctory"[68] that they are neither published nor precedential[70], raw fiats of star-chamber power. d) Justices are unelected yet life-tenured, as are district and circuit judges; the latter appoint bankruptcy judges. These appointees decided in CY10 who kept or received the $373 billion at stake in only personal bankruptcies[31]. About 95% of those bankruptcies are filed by individuals, the great majority of whom appear pro se[33] and, unable to defend themselves, fall prey to a bankruptcy fraud scheme(66§2), which J. Sotomayor covered up(68§3). e) 28§§3-4

You can investigate the IT-related Follow the wire!(ol:19§D) query and, benefiting from ICIJ's(1) Follow the money! expertise(19§2), search for J. Sotomayor's concealed assets(102§4). You can thus i. start off a Watergate-like(ol:18¶¶5-7) generalized media(ol:37) investigation of the query, What did P. Obama know about her and other judges' wrongdoing and when did he know it?(ol:17¶¶2-4); and ii. demand that he release the FBI vetting report on her(77§5). Many Americans believe that he lied when he promised that under Obamacare they could keep their current health insurance; you can show that he also lied about her integrity when, to replace Retiring J. Souter, he nominated her so as to cater to those asking for another woman and the first Latina for the Court, from whom he expected support for passing Obamacare. Nothing would boost your standing(ol:21) as much as being recognized as having prompted investigations whose findings of NSA-Judiciary and Obama-Sotomayor connivance, and judges' coordinated wrongdoing so outraged(83§§2-3) the public that it called for the President, justices(92§d), and judges(88§§a-c) to resign, and for reform(ol:20§E) leading to the People's Sunrise(Lsch:2). So let's discuss this proposal.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11)

Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

Judicial Discipline Reform

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500, USA
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

November 15, 2013

Mr. John Goëtz, Investigative Journalist
Herr Andreas Cichowicz, Chefredakteur Fernsehen NDR Presse und Information presse@ndr.de; www.ndr.de Rothenbaumchaussee 132, 20149 Hamburg, Germany

Dear Mr. Goëtz and Herr Cichowicz,

I congratulate you for investigating NSA's spying in Germany by meeting with Whistleblower E. Snowden. This is a proposal for you and him(ol:17¶¶i-1) to use your access to the international media to push your investigation and his whistleblowing into the unlawful conduct of NSA's enablers: the federal judges who rubberstamp[7] NSA's secret requests for secret surveillance orders. This is the investigative query: To what extent has the Federal Judiciary abused its own vast Information Technology infrastructure and expertise(Lsch:11¶9b.ii) or has in exchange for its approval of NSA's requests benefited from NSA's IT resources to interfere with the communications –a crime[10], unlike surveillance– of complainants of judges' wrongdoing(Toc:xix)?

Federal judges do wrong because 1. they are held by politicians[17a] and the media unaccountable. In the last 224 years, only 8 of them have been removed[14]. With that factual and historic assurance of impunity, they engage in wrongdoing risklessly. They do so under the influence of the most insidious corruptor, money!(jur:27§2): The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a-c] suspected Then-Judge, Now-Supreme Court Justice Sotomayor, the first justiceship nominee of P. Obama, of concealment of assets(65§1). 2. Judges also self-assure their impunity, e.g., for money grabbing, by cloaking their own and their Judiciary's activities in pervasive secrecy: a) They hold all their adjudicative, administrative, policy-making, and disciplinary meetings behind closed doors[29] and no press conferences[71]. b) Chief circuit judges abuse the Judiciary's statutory[18a] self-disciplining authority by dismissing 99.82%(10-14) of complaints against their peers; with other judges they deny up to 100% of appeals to review such dismissals (24§b). c) Up to 9 of every 10 appeals are disposed of ad-hoc through no-reason summary orders [66a] or opinions so "perfunctory"[68] that they are neither published nor precedential[70], raw fiats of star-chamber power. d) Justices are unelected yet life-tenured, as are district and circuit judges; the latter appoint bankruptcy judges. These appointees decided in CY10 who kept or received the $373 billion at stake in only personal bankruptcies[31]. About 95% of those bankruptcies are filed by individuals, the great majority of whom appear pro se[33] and, unable to defend themselves, fall prey to a bankruptcy fraud scheme(66§2), which J. Sotomayor covered up(68§3). e) 28§§3-4

You can investigate the IT-related Follow the wire!(ol:19§D) query and, benefiting from ICIJ's(1) Follow the money! expertise(19§2), search for J. Sotomayor's concealed assets(jur:102 §4). You can thus i. start off a Watergate-like(ol:18¶¶5-7) generalized media(ol:37) investigation of the query, What did P. Obama know about her and other judges' wrongdoing and when did he know it?(17¶¶2-4); and ii. demand that he release the FBI vetting report on her(77§5). Many Americans believe that he lied when he promised that under Obamacare they could keep their current health insurance; you can show that he also lied about her integrity when, to replace Retiring J. Souter, he nominated her so as to cater to those asking for another woman and the first Latina for the Court, from whom he expected support for passing Obamacare. Nothing would boost your standing(ol:21) as much as being recognized as having prompted investigations whose findings of NSA-Judiciary and Obama-Sotomayor connivance, and judges' coordinated wrongdoing so outraged(83§§2-3) the public that it called for the President, justices(92§d), and judges(88§§a-c) to resign, and for reform(20§E) leading to the People's Sunrise(Lsch:2). So let's discuss this proposal.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11)

Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

November 19, 2013

Ms. Judy Kelly
ALM, Conferences & Trade Shows
120 Broadway, 5th Floor
New York, NY 10271-1101

Dear Ms. Kelly,

I would like to be considered for inclusion on the speaker faculty list of Legal Tech's February 4-6, 2014, event at The Hilton New York.

I. Subject

Auditing Judges' Writings

A business venture to apply advanced IT to develop a software product that performs statistical, literary, and linguistic analysis of written materials to detect patterns of decision-making and partiality that have predictive value useful for litigants to devise legal strategy

II. Type of product

This is a proposal for developing an advanced Information Technology software product running on artificial intelligence to audit court decisions and other writings of judges for authorship and partiality, understood as including biases, prejudices, conflicts of interests resolved to one's benefit, and personal agenda pursued in disregard of the duty to be fair in accordance with the rule of law.

III. Benefits

Competitive advantage can be gained if before writing a brief, arguing in court, or dealing with the opposing party one finds out what makes the judge assigned to the case at hand decide cases one way or another. One can do that by identifying the variables of the judge's cases and the features of his writings that with statistical significance correlate with the way he made rulings and decisions in the past so that the significant variables in the present case can be relied upon as determinants of the statistical probability that he will rule on, or decide likewise.

To the extent that such variables and features are irrelevant to the merits of the corresponding cases, the statistically significant correlation with the way the judge handled them provides objective data on which to base a motion for recusal for bias and for appeal from the judge's denial(cf. jur:45§2) of such motion or to devise legal strategy to play to the judge's biases.

IV. Beneficiaries as intended clients

Lawyers, their clients, and the ever-growing number of pro ses[35,38] will benefit from this product, for they all want to know the probability that the judge or judges handling their cases will treat them fairly and impartially based on the relevant elements that should determine the merits of their cases. It will give them a competitive advantage over not only opposing parties who do not use the product, but also over the judge insofar as it will allow them to obtain, as it were, 'inside the judge's mind information' and to deal with him accordingly. Advocates of legislated judicial reform will also benefit from objective data showing judges' wrongdoing(5§3).

These beneficiaries constitute a large market: over 2 million federal and 48 million state cases are filed each year(jur:8fn4,5). Since every case has at least two parties, at least 100 million people and entities would benefit annually from this product. Those numbers, of course, do not begin to account for the scores of millions of cases pending in either of those jurisdictions.

V. Audience at Legal Tech

The presentation of this business venture will appeal to developers of software for both lawyers and the fast growing pro se market; all those interested in anticipating legal market trends under the ever more extensive application of IT to legal business; and hence, investors.

VI. Overview of the analysis: data source, examination, determination, and benefit

Statistical, linguistic, and literary analysis has a scientific basis recognized by the scientific community and its results are capable of demonstration to a court performing an independent assessment of reliability. Hence, whether under Frye or Daubert, the analysis is likely to be admissible in court. Regardless of such admissibility, the analysis is valuable as the source of essential information for parties to strategize how to deal with those with the most power to steer their cases to failure or success: the judges.

Also, the use of scientific, non-legal arguments in court has a long legal history, for it can be traced back to the famous Brandeis briefs. The best known of them was filed in Muller v. Oregon, 208 U.S. 412, 28 S.Ct. 324 (1908), where Then-Attorney Brandeis used social and economic studies to argue to the Supreme Court that it should uphold statutes limiting workdays for women to a maximum of 10 hours. He persuaded the Court to do so. Later on, he became a member of it The proposed analysis for auditing judges' writings will exhibit the scientific refinement achieved over the more than a century since Brandeis' days and will initially be targeted on judges and the vast corpus of their decisions. Cf. Dr. Cordero's use of statistics[14] at http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/statistics&tables/correctioneers/correctional_population_1in31.pdf.

A. Statistical analysis

1. Data source: written and transcribed or recorded oral rulings and decisions.
2. Examination using artificial intelligence and optical character recognition to discern the variables in the largest number of writings to increase statistical accuracy and develop a relational database that allows the widest correlation of variables to identify the dominant ones:
    a. intrinsic: the parties' or victims' race, gender, social standing, wealth, level of education; appearance pro se, representation by a solo practitioner or a large law firm; civil, or criminal case concerning commercial, family, civil rights, IPO, or other matters;
    b. extrinsic: time of day, day of week, season of year; proximity to a judicial holiday, the judge's vacation, her attendance at judicial meetings, seminars, CLE presentations; the publication of her book and participation in a book presentation tour; the correction of exams that the judge gave in the university course that she teaches; etc.
3. Determination of frequency correlation between one or more variables in a case and the judge's decisions to dismiss, grant discovery, send the case to the jury, deny a motion to set aside the verdict; a batch of cases expediently decided by summary orders[66] of the same date; etc.
4. Benefit: Identification of variables that have an outcome-determinative impact on the judge's conduct to establish the statistical probability of the same conduct in the case at hand.

©2013 Richard Cordero. All rights reserved.

B. Linguistic analysis

1. Data source: written rulings, decisions, and other writings purportedly of a given judge.
2. Examination of the use of language: choice of words, syntactical structure, punctuation, grammatical correctness, stylistic flair, etc.
3. Determination of authorship of the examined writing and correlation of its grammatical quality, reflective of the amount of effort put into writing it, with its visibility, e.g., high quality for a law journal article or a decision to be published in a media-covered case as opposed to perfunctory[68] writing for decisions marked by the judge "non-precedential, not for publication" (43§1), which renders process before him wasteful and the decision meaningless for appeal.
4. Benefit: Objective data describing a judge's conduct can be invoked to impugn a decision on grounds of denial of equal treatment; breach of the contract entered into when the court offered judicial services in exchange for the payment of filing fees; and breach of the judicial oath to "administer justice without respect to persons, and do equal right to the poor and to the rich", so that those "persons" are third-party beneficiaries of the oath and have a claim of action against the judge(26§d) who breaches it by discriminating against them and in favor of others.

C. Literary analysis

1. Data source: written rulings, decisions, and other writings of a given judge.
2. Examination of their semantic aspect: the explicit message that the author conveys to his audience and the implicit one that he sends intentionally or unwittingly in his subtext. This is the most innovative and technologically challenging analysis, relying most heavily on artificial intelligence to understand meaning and describe objectively one's psychology.(142§3)
3. Determination of the judges' reasoning, interests, and attitudes, including partiality, of which the judge may be unaware, for they form an integral part of his understanding of the world, whereby the analysis can help even him take a critical view of himself in light of other criteria.
4. Benefit: The most insight into the judges' character and value system that motivate his conduct.

VII. Qualifications

I hold a doctorate of law from the University of Cambridge in England, where my thesis dealt with the integration of the banking industry in the European Union. I earned a law degree from La Sorbonne in Paris, where I concentrated on currency stability and the abuse of dominant positions by entities in commerce, similar to antitrust law. I also earned a Master of Business Administration from the University of Michigan after concentrating on the use of computers, their networks, and software expert systems to maximize workflow efficiency and productivity.

I worked as a researcher-writer at the preeminent publisher of analytical legal commentaries, i.e., Lawyers Cooperative Publishing, now part of Thomson West. There I wrote commentaries on the regulation of financial activities under federal law(a&p:17). Currently at Judicial Discipline Reform, I am promoting(Lsch:9) the formation of a multidisciplinary academic and business team of professionals(128§4) to advocate judicial accountability and discipline reform with a view to creating a for-profit institute(153§§c-g). To further that endeavor, I have set forth a much more detailed proposal for the development of the IT software described above(131§b).

I respectfully refer you to it in support of this application to speak at your February 2014 Legal Tech event in New York. Therefore, I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500, USA
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

December 31, 2013

Messrs. Klaus Schleisiek and Jo Becker, and Mrs. Gertrud Sivalingam Netzkraft Movement info@netzkraft.net Marsstraße 70
46509 Xanten, Germany

Dear Mrs. Sivalingam and Messrs. Becker and Schleisiek,

I hope that your Chaos Communication Congress was successful. I learned about it through an ARD Tagesschau report (so you may reply to me in German). I Googled your name, Mr. Schleisiek, and found your Netzkraft webpage. There you state that 'you can establish contacts'. I respectfully take you up on this offer so that you may establish contacts with groups of CCC and Netzkraft members as well as investigative journalists, such as the German ones named at ol:61, 62*, in order to use the information that I have already gathered to investigate this query:

> To what extent have the U.S. Federal Judiciary and the federal judges of the secret court set up under the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (FISA) abused the Judiciary's vast Information Technology infrastructure and expertise(Lsch:11¶9b.ii) or, in exchange for rubberstamping[7] their approval of NSA's requests, benefited from NSA's IT resources to interfere with the communications –a crime[10] under U.S. law, unlike surveillance– of complainants of judges' wrongdoing(ol:66)?

Federal judges do wrong because 1. they are held by politicians[17a] and the media unaccountable. In the last 224 years, only 8 of them have been removed[14]. With that factual and historic assurance of impunity, they engage in wrongdoing risklessly. They do so under the influence of the most insidious corruptor, money!(jur:27§2): The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a-c] suspected Then-Judge, Now-Supreme Court Justice Sotomayor, the first justiceship nominee of P. Obama, of concealment of assets(65§1). 2. Judges also self-assure their impunity, e.g., for money grabbing, by cloaking their own and their Judiciary's activities in pervasive secrecy: a) They hold all their adjudicative, administrative, policy-making, and disciplinary meetings behind closed doors[29] and no press conferences[71]. b) Chief circuit judges abuse the Judiciary's statutory[18a] self-disciplining authority by dismissing 99.82%(10-14) of complaints against their peers; with other judges they deny up to 100% of appeals to review such dismissals (24§b). c) Up to 9 of every 10 appeals are disposed of ad-hoc through no-reason summary orders [66a] or opinions so "perfunctory"[68] that they are neither published nor precedential[70], raw fiats of star-chamber power. d) Justices are unelected yet life-tenured, as are district and circuit judges; the latter appoint bankruptcy judges. These appointees decided in CY10 who kept or received the $373 billion at stake in only personal bankruptcies[31]. About 95% of those bankruptcies are filed by individuals, the great majority of whom appear pro se[33] and, unable to defend themselves, fall prey to a bankruptcy fraud scheme(66§2), which J. Sotomayor covered up(68§3). e) 28§§3-4

Nothing would advance your "fascination by the socio-cultural emancipatory possibilities of the computer" and your "organization of citizen networks" than the outrage(83§§2-3) caused in the U.S. by your networks' using their computer expertise to reveal that a sitting U.S. president and a sitting U.S. Supreme Court justice have connived in their personal and partisan interest to violate the law and cover it up by abusing their IT resources to silence their critics. You can do so through the Follow the wire!(ol:19§D) and the money!(ol:19§2) investigation. The search for J. Sotomayor's concealed assets(102§4) can i. start off a Watergate-like(ol:18¶¶5-7) generalized media(ol:37) investigation guided by the query, What did P. Obama know about her and other judges' wrongdoing and when did he know it?(ol:17¶¶2-4); and ii. demand that he release the FBI vetting report on her(77§5). This can lead to resignations(ol:61), reform(20§E), and the People's Sunrise(Lsch:2). So let's discuss this proposal.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11) Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd, Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

January 6, 2014

Chief Justice Elizabeth A. Weaver (ret.)
c/o: Peninsula Press, 10th Floor, Suite 1000
1050 Connecticut Avenue NW
Washington, DC 20036

tel: (+1) 202 772 1090 ew@justiceweaver.com fax: (+1) 202 772 3101 Dr. David: schock@charter.net
http://judicialdeceit.com/

Dear Chief Justice Weaver,

I would like to congratulate you for your courageous publication of Judicial Deceit. I have researched and written a study of the Federal Judiciary titled Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing: Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting(jur:1). I just sent Peninsula Press a query letter(a&p:1) to request that it publish my study. This is a proposal for you, Peninsula, Dr. David Shock, and me to collaborate to implement a plan of action(Lsch:9) that takes advantage of the current distrust of federal judges –blamed by many for rubberstamping[7] NSA's secret applications for secret orders of surveillance in violation of the privacy rights of tens of millions of people(ol:63)– in order to advance our common cause of exposing judges' wrongdoing and bringing about judicial reform.

The plan is centered on a unique story(xxxv) that can interest journalists, outrage the NATIONAL public, and win its indispensable support for reform: After his first election, the President disregarded the known tax evasion of Tim Geithner, Tom Daschle, and Nancy Killefer and nominated them to his cabinet[108]. So it was in character for him to disregard the suspicion of The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a] about Then-Judge Sotomayor's concealment of assets, nominate her to the Supreme Court, and lie to the public by vouching for her honesty. His motive was to cater to those petitioning for another woman and the first Latina for the Court, and receive in exchange their support for passing Obamacare. In self-interest, he thereby saddled the public with a life-tenured dishonest justice who for the next 30 or more years will be shaping the law of the land while engaged in the continuous crime(ol:5fn10) of concealment of assets(68§3) to avoid incriminating herself and risking calls for her resignation. Indeed, the revelations by Life magazine of the financial improprieties of Justice Abe Fortas forced him first to withdraw his name for the chief justiceship and subsequently to resign on May 14, 1969(92§d).

The Obama-Sotomayor story is objectively unique. So is what it can offer a principled and ambitious assigning editor, journalist, and graduate student(xlvi§H): A unique opportunity to become this generation's B. Bradlee or B. Woodward/C. Bernstein of Watergate fame through the exposure of abuse of power and reasonably foreseeable, thus intentional harm to the people by public officers who replace the rendering of honest services according to law with their pursuit of personal crass interests. The story offers us a unique opportunity to set off a Watergate-like generalized media search(97§D) for J. Sotomayor's concealed assets that ends up exposing her concealment enabler: unaccountability(21§A) and secrecy(Lsch:2§A) that have allowed federal judges to risklessly hatch a system of wrongdoing so coordinated[213] among themselves and between them and insiders[169], and so routine and pervasive as to have turned wrongdoing into their Judiciary's institutionalized modus operandi(49§4). Since they wield power that affects not only the right of privacy, as the NSA scandal mainly does, but also every other right and everybody's property, liberty, and life, exposing their wrongdoing can so outrage(83§§2-3) the national public as to cause it to force(164§9) politicians to undertake judicial reform(158§§6-8), lest they be voted out of, or not into, office. Emboldened by such public support, journalists will investigate state judges too. Implementing the plan(Lsch:10) will start this process(ol:29) and pioneer a news and publishing business(119§§1-5). Hence, I respectfully request that we discuss working together.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11) Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd, Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

January 6, 2014

Dr. David Schock
c/o: Peninsula Press, 10th Floor, Suite 1000
1050 Connecticut Avenue NW
Washington, DC 20036

tel: (+1) 202 772 1090 schock@charter.net fax: (+1) 202 772 3101 ew@justiceweaver.com
http://judicialdeceit.com

Dear Dr. Schock,

I would like to congratulate you for cowriting Judicial Deceit with Former CJ E. Weaver. I have researched and written a study of the Federal Judiciary titled Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing: Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting(jur:1). I just sent Peninsula Press a query letter(a&p:1) to request that it consider publishing my study. This is a proposal for you, Peninsula, CJ Weaver, and me to collaborate to implement a plan of action(Lsch:9) that takes advantage of the current distrust of federal judges –blamed by many for rubberstamping[7] NSA's secret requests for secret orders of surveillance in violation of the privacy rights of tens of millions of people(ol:63)– in order to advance our common cause of exposing judges' wrongdoing(5§3) and bringing about judicial reform.

The plan is centered on a unique story(xxxv) that can interest journalists, outrage the NATIONAL public, and win its indispensable support for reform: After his first election, the President disregarded the known tax evasion of Tim Geithner, Tom Daschle, and Nancy Killefer and nominated them to his cabinet[108]. So it was in character for him to disregard the suspicion of The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a] about Then-Judge Sotomayor's concealment of assets, nominate her to the Supreme Court, and lie to the public by vouching for her honesty. His motive was to cater to those petitioning for another woman and the first Latina for the Court, and receive in exchange their support for passing Obamacare. In self-interest, he thereby saddled the public with a life-tenured dishonest justice who for the next 30 or more years will be shaping the law of the land while engaged in the continuous crime(ol:5fn10) of concealment of assets(68§3) to avoid incriminating herself and risking calls for her resignation. Indeed, the revelations by Life magazine of the financial improprieties of Justice Abe Fortas forced him first to withdraw his name for the chief justiceship and subsequently to resign on May 14, 1969(92§d).

The Obama-Sotomayor story is objectively unique. So is what it can offer a principled and ambitious assigning editor, journalist, and graduate student(xlvi§H): A unique opportunity to become this generation's B. Bradlee or B. Woodward/C. Bernstein of Watergate fame through the exposure of abuse of power and reasonably foreseeable, thus intentional harm to the people by public officers who replace the rendering of honest services according to law with their pursuit of personal crass interests. The story offers us a unique opportunity to set off a Watergate-like generalized media search(97§D) for J. Sotomayor's concealed assets that ends up exposing her concealment enabler: unaccountability(21§A) and secrecy(Lsch:2§A) that have allowed federal judges to risklessly hatch a system of wrongdoing so coordinated[213] among themselves and between them and insiders[169], and so routine and pervasive as to have turned wrongdoing into their Judiciary's institutionalized modus operandi(49§4). Since they wield power that affects not only the right of privacy, as the NSA scandal mainly does, but also every other right and everybody's property, liberty, and life, exposing their wrongdoing can so outrage(83§§2-3) the national public as to cause it to force(164§9) politicians to undertake judicial reform(158§§6-8), lest they be voted out of, or not into, office. Emboldened by such public support, journalists will investigate state judges too. Implementing the plan(Lsch:10) will start this process(ol:29) and pioneer a news and publishing business(119§§1-5). Hence, I respectfully request that we discuss working together.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11) Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

January 9, 2014

Mr. Norman Hughes
MCU/MiCPAC/MFTW/URM
micpac.hughes@gmail.com; tel. (810) 678-3678

Dear Mr. Hughes,

Thank you for dealing with this matter in a prompt fashion.

My expenses will be a function of what you expect me to do and what I would like to be able to do for you.

A. For how long will the meeting last on a Saturday?

1. The length of the meeting will give me an idea of the amount of preparation that I must make.

B. With how many people will I be meeting?

2. If I only have to give a speech to an audience of hundreds of people, the meeting will not be interactive, for such setting does not lend itself to Questions & Answers.
3. By contrast, if I am going to meet with you and your leadership, who will be grilling me with questions all the time, the meeting will require a lot of preparation on my part so that I can ensure that it is as informative and productive as it can possibly be.
4. In this context, it is very revealing and encouraging that you wrote, "I have forwarded some of your posts to an extensive list of tea party and other conservative leaders". I welcome the opportunity to meet with you and your leadership because what I would like to offer all of you and what it is reasonable to believe you all are interested in is not an academic, classroom-like speech on my part.
5. Rather, you are more likely to want what I am in the best position to offer you, that is, a practical presentation that answers the question: What realistic strategy and plan of action reasonably calculated to be cost-effective can our organization adopt to attain its objectives?
6. Current events at the national level offer your Michigan leadership as well as your Tea Party and other conservative colleagues around the country the opportunity to take the lead in tackling a problem of national scope: unaccountable and activist judges.
7. Solving that problem should be your first priority. All the eleven bills leading up to the Freedom to Work legislation that you passed last year are nothing but a paper tiger until a judge says what it actually means and applies it in practice. Only then does the law roar like a tiger and get teeth that can mangle its violators, as intended…or mangle you and the ones it was intended to protect. Where would Obamacare be today if Chief Justice Roberts had voted with those justices who considered it unconstitutional?
8. It follows that all your hard work in passing bill after bill can be rendered an exercise in futility by judges; and that you must first ensure that judges will give effect to the law as passed, not as they want certain socio-economic and political matters to be so that they can foster their personal and judicial class interests.
9. Hence, our meeting can be an opportunity for you and your Michigan leadership, your fellow leaders elsewhere, and me to discuss how to put to good use the current national distrust of judges brought about by the federal judges who are blamed by many people nationwide for rubberstamping(ol:5fn7) NSA's secret applications for secret orders of surveillance in violation of the privacy rights of tens of millions of people(ol:63). That is the kind of strategic thinking that I would like to engage in on your behalf. It can be guided by this query:

10. With a view to advancing toward your organizational objectives, how can you take into consideration current events and all the actors on the scene?
11. I can do that by applying 'dynamic analysis of conflicting and harmonious interests'. This analysis allows the identification of your potential allies and foes, and the crafting of a plan of action to play them against each other so as to maximize the contribution of the former and minimize the opposition of the latter. See the application of strategic thinking and dynamic analysis at id. >Lsch:13.
12. Therefore, you and your leadership need to tell me how you conceive of that Saturday meeting: Is it a one-hour speech or a daylong planning workshop?

C. The cost of the trip and stay

13. How to leave New York City in order to be in Lansing on Saturday must be planned by taking into account what happened just this week: A Polar Vortex not seen in more than 20 years brought subzero temperatures that froze even the antifreeze liquid and the jet fuel at airports! It caused more than 17,000 flight cancellations.
14. In a very pertinent application of the strategic principle of 'taking current events into account', I should leave NYC on Friday morning to ensure that I am in Lansing for the Saturday meeting, after which I would return on Sunday. Therefore, my expenses would include land and air transportation, hotel, meals, the handouts for the participants in the meeting, and other presentation materials and communication expenses.

D. The cost of my services

15. To the above would be added my professional fee. You can determine whether it is justified by reviewing my study Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing: Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting(jur:i) as well as my emails to you. They are palpable evidence that you can examine to convince yourself of, and show your financial supporters, the quality of my work, my professionalism, and the common and practical sense that characterizes my concrete and logically developed advice.

E. The benefit of both a new strategy and your foresight in applying it

16. Now it is up to you and your fellow leaders to decide whether you want to keep profiling judges who once elected or appointed disregard with impunity your enacted bills or you want to take the lead in adopting and applying a different approach:
17. An investigation of judges that exposes how up to now they have been conducting themselves as Judges Above the Law, and that opens the way to judicial reform that ensures that in future the people in Michigan and the rest of our country will have the power to hold them for what they really are, to wit, public servants hired by the master, We the People, to perform the service of adjudicating controversies according to law, and accountable to the master for administering Equal Justice Under Law.

18. Look ahead and you will see that in fewer than 5 months the mid-term elections will be in full swing. Imagine the headlines emerging from this underlying journalistic query:

What did the President(77§5),
Chief Justice Roberts, and other justices and judges[196] know[23b] about Justice Sotomayor's concealment of assets(65§1), –suspected by The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a]–
and consequent tax evasion[107c] and when(75§d) did they know it?

19. Imagine that journalists searching for Justice Sotomayor's concealed assets made it impossible for her to "avoid even the appearance of impropriety"[118a] so that she had to resign, just as Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas had to resign on May 14, 1969, as a result of the revelations by Life magazine of his 'financial improprieties'.(92§d)
20. Imagine further that the journalists demanded that President Obama release the secret FBI vetting report on J. Sotomayor to show whether he knew that she was engaging in the crime(ol:5fn10) of concealing assets but covered it up and lied to the American public by vouching for her honesty because he wanted to cater to those petitioning for another woman and the first Latina for the Supreme Court and from whom he expected in exchange support for the passage of Obamacare, his personal interest, the signature piece of legislation that should establish his legacy even if to that end he had to nominate a dishonest person to shape the law of the land for the next 30 or so years of her lifetime-appointment, the detriment to the people and judicial integrity notwithstanding.
21. Imagine also that the so-called liberal New York Times, Washington Post, and Politico came under fire for having simultaneously and without explanation killed in a quid pro quod with President Obama their stories[107a-c] suspecting Then-Judge Sotomayor of concealment of assets (jur:xxxv).
22. Which party do you see winning the mid-term election and controlling the confirmation of the replacement nominees for the one or more justices that had to resign from the Supreme Court?
23. Do you see the journalists who took on the justices of the U.S. Supreme Court for wrongdoing emboldened enough to take on the justices of the Michigan Supreme Court and lower courts as well as those of the other states?
24. You, the Tea Party, and conservative leaders can manage the next mid-term election campaign as you have all previous ones or you can think strategically(jur:xxxix) to lead a different campaign aimed at bringing about fundamental changes in our form of government that empower We the People to hold accountable all public officers. If so, you can usher in the People's Sunrise(ol:29).
25. If you pull this off, a grateful People who believe that 'government, not of men, but by the rule of law' is their birthright will nationally recognize you as their Champion of Justice.

I look forward to hearing from you all.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11)

Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

January 10, 2014

Mr. Norman Hughes
MCU/MiCPAC/MFTW/URM
micpac.hughes@gmail.com; tel. (810) 678-3678

Dear Mr. Hughes,

Thank you for providing me more information about your MiCPAC and the presentation that you would like me to make there as well as the prospect that "We might be able to put together a private meeting with some of the activists most likely to act on your recommendation".

Your willingness to pay my expenses and an honorarium assures me that after your making an investment in my preparation for, and trip to, the Conference, you will want to obtain your return on it by meeting with me and discussing my recommendations. In the absence of such investment on your part, there can be no expectation whatsoever that anybody will bother to meet with me, never mind pay attention to what I have to say. After all, nobody values what he or she can take for free and leave at no cost. I do not want to be left holding the bag of bills and of effort invested by me and ignored with indifference by everybody else. On this basis of mutual investments, my answer to your question 'whether I wish to explore this further' is Yes.

A. Talking points for the meeting between you, the leaders, and me

1. You stated that there could be as many as 40 speakers at the MiCPAC talking about Michigan issues. My doing the same as they will do is unlikely to be as valuable to you and the attendees at your Conference as if you can enrich its offering with my novel analysis of current events and recommendations on how you all can attain your key objectives by playing a leading role in shaping those events. This can be most attractive to the Tea Party and other conservative leaders who will come from out of state and state leaders who want to step up to the national stage.
2. My talking points are contained and developed in my study Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing: Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting(jur:i) and my emails to you(cf. ol:48). They consist of a presentation of the motives, means, and opportunity(21§A) for judges to engage in wrongdoing(5§3), followed by a proposal for exposing such wrongdoing so as to bring about judicial unaccountability reform(158§§6-8).
3. How widely wrongdoing judges are resented can be easily extrapolated from the many litigants and lawyers in courthouses and other venues, and the countless websites and Yahoo- and Google-groups that complain about arbitrary, arrogant, biased, and law-disregarding and -breaking judges. The fact that this is a main problem for the American people can be established statistically given that every year 50 million new lawsuits are filed in the federal[4] and state[5] courts. Since there are at least two parties to each lawsuit, this means that annually another 100 million people and entities start to be directly involved in court litigation as plaintiffs or defendants. This figure does not beginning to count the number of parties to pending cases filed in previous years. To the number of litigants must be added scores of millions of people indirectly yet deeply affected by wrongdoing judges and likely to learn about them. They include litigants' relatives, employees, employers, witnesses, class action members, shareholders, suppliers, buyers, investors, etc.
4. So there is a huge constituency who feel that judges abuse(Lsch:15§II) their power, effectively denying parties their day in court and justice at the end of it, and get away with it: In the 224 years since the creation of the Federal Judiciary in 1789, the number of federal judges -2,131 were in office on September 30, 2011[13]- impeached and removed is 8![14] 'Power corrupts, and absolute power –whose hallmark is unaccountability– corrupts absolutely'[28], especially when money (27§2), the most insidious corruptor[32], can be grabbed risklessly. Judges' victims can be expected to pay attention to courageous leaders offering to expose and hold those judges accountable.

B. The impact of judges on your organization's attainment of its objectives

5. Solving the problem of wrongdoing judges should be the first priority of any entity advocating public integrity and good government. All the 11 bills leading up to the Freedom to Work legislation that you passed last year are nothing but a paper tiger until a judge says what it means and applies it. Only then, does the law roar like a tiger and get teeth that can mangle its violators, as intended…or mangle you and the ones it was intended to protect. Where would Obamacare be today if Chief Justice Roberts had voted with those justices who considered it unconstitutional?

6. Hence, all your hard work in passing bill after bill can be rendered an exercise in futility by judges abusing their power to pursue financial and non-financial gain[69]. It follows that the satisfaction of your constituency with the effectiveness of your legislative activity and your leadership depends on ensuring that judges apply the law faithfully and treat litigants in a fair and impartial way that accords them due process of law and "avoids even the appearance of impropriety"[118a]. Attaining these objectives requires not only supporting judicial candidates who have the necessary integrity and commitment to the rule of law, but also and more importantly keeping tabs on them after their installation in office. That in turn requires that you and your fellow leaders remain independent and attentive to their performance so as to be able to criticize judges when they perform badly or wrongfully. It also requires lobbying successfully for people's right to file complaints against judges publicly so that patterns of wrongdoing may be detected; and that the filing be with, not the peers of the complained-against judges, but rather citizen boards of judicial accountability(160§8) authorized to investigate with subpoena power and hold hearings on, them, and discipline judges, even hold them liable to compensate their victims.(158§6)

C. Strategic thinking & dynamic analysis of harmonious and conflicting interests

7. The talking point of proposing how to expose wrongdoing judges relies on strategic thinking: The latter takes stock of all the actors in the judicial and legal systems as well as of the respective resources that they have or lack and visualizes them in a series of actions and reactions that either foster or hinder such exposure, which leads to devising a plan of action. Such thinking and plan execution relies on dynamic analysis of harmonious and conflicting interests(Lsch:13). This analysis identifies those actors who have interests in harmony or in conflict with those of each of the other actors so that some actors can become in fact or effect allies or foes in the series of actions leading to or away from the exposure of wrongdoing judges. Every change in the nature of an interest, and every actor's entry into, or exit from, the systems requires the reclassification of all the interests as harmonious or conflicting, and the actors' realignment: Interests are dynamic, in flux; their analysis is constant. Strategic thinking uses it to play the actors against each other so as to maximize their potential contribution as allies and minimize their potential opposition as foes.

8. My presentation will apply such thinking and analysis to put to good use the current national distrust(ol:11) of judges brought about by the federal judges who are blamed nationwide for rubberstamping(ol:5fn7) NSA's secret applications for secret orders of surveillance with disregard for the privacy rights of tens of millions of people(ol:63). Their disregard has predisposed people to believe the exposure of judges' abuse of the pervasive secrecy of all their meetings(27§e) and of their and NSA's IT network to execute their wrongdoing and harm their exposers(ol:19§D).

D. Your benefit from foresight in applying novel analysis and recommendations

9. Look ahead. You will see that in fewer than five months the mid-term elections will be in full swing. Imagine the journalistic investigation of a unique case, for it involves in wrongdoing a sitting president and a sitting justice nominated by him. Imagine if you, your fellow leaders, and I met in advance of the MiCPAC to organize a team of journalists from the national media and at the Conference we announced with them their preliminary findings of the investigation laid out at jur:100§§3-4 that was being guided by a proven devastating query thus updated:

> What did the President(77§5), top Democratic senators(78§6), Chief Justice Roberts, and other justices and judges[196] know[23b] about Justice Sotomayor's concealment of assets(65§1) –suspected by The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a]– and consequent tax evasion[107c] and when(75§d) did they know it?

10. Imagine that the announcement caused the established media and even citizen journalists in quest for a Pulitzer Prize or a name on social media to launch a Watergate-like(4¶¶10-14) generalized search for Justice Sotomayor's concealed assets; and to demand that P. Obama release the secret FBI vetting report on Then-Judge Sotomayor to show whether he knew that she was committing the crime (ol:5fn10) of concealing assets but covered it up and lied to the people by vouching for her honesty because he wanted to cater to those petitioning for another woman and the first Latina for the Supreme Court and from whom he expected in exchange support for the passage of Obamacare, his personal interest, through which he expects to establish his legacy even if to that end he had to nominate a law-breaking person to shape the law of the land for the 30 or so years that she may still serve, the detriment to the people and judicial integrity notwithstanding.

11. Imagine further that all those searching for Justice Sotomayor's concealed assets made it impossible for her to "avoid even the appearance of impropriety"[118a] so that she had to resign, just as SCt. Justice Abe Fortas had to on May 14, 1969, as a result of the revelations by Life magazine of his financial improprieties(92§d). Imagine that they also exposed her concealment enabler: judicial unaccountability and pervasive secrecy(Lsch:2§A) that have allowed her and her peers to risklessly hatch a system of wrongdoing so coordinated(88§a-c) among themselves[213] and between them and insiders[169], and so routine and widespread as to have turned wrongdoing into the institutionalized modus operandi(49§4) of the Federal Judiciary, the model for its state counterparts. The ensuing outrage(83§§2-3) can cause the people of Michigan and elsewhere to support their leaders in demanding investigation of their judiciaries and reform that empowers them to treat judges as what they are: public servants hired by, and accountable to, the master, We the People.

12. Imagine also that right in during the mid-term election, the so-called liberal New York Times, Washington Post, and Politico came under fire for having simultaneously and without apparent reason killed allegedly in a quid pro quod with the President their stories suspecting Then-Judge Sotomayor of concealment of assets(jur:xxxv). It could take them long to restore their credibility.

13. Which party do you see 10 months from now winning the elections and controlling the confirmation of the nominees to replace the one or more SCt justices that had to resign? Can you see yourself as a key figure in leading Tea Party and other conservative leaders to exercise foresight and think strategically in order to orchestrate a historic MiCPAC that set the dominant issue of the campaign and changed the course of politics by establishing the legislative priority of the new Congress and legislatures: judicial accountability, transparency, discipline, and judges' liability to their victims? If so, you can restore power to its legitimate source, We the People, and cause the emergence over their government of the People's Sunrise(ol:29). A grateful nation will recognize you as a Champion of Justice. Thus, I look forward to hearing from you all.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11) Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com
tel. (718) 827-9521

Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org

February 21, 2014

Offer to Present a Proposal for Investigative Journalism
The need in the public interest and the leads for an exposé of judges' unaccountability and consequent riskless and coordinated wrongdoing

It would not be reasonable to expect politicians to do what they have failed to do since the creation of the Federal Judiciary: to exercise constitutional checks and balances on judges so that they too are held to the foundational principle of 'government, not of men, but by the rule of law': Nobody is Above the Law[*>6]. Even though politicians adopted the 1980 Judicial Conduct and Disability Act[18] to enable any person to file a complaint against federal judges, for more than the 30 years since then they have dismissed with knowing indifference the annual report that Congress required the Judiciary to file with it. Yet, it has shown the judges' systematic dismissal without investigation of complaints against their peers: 99.82% were dismissed; up to 100% of appeals was denied(jur:21§1). Judges in effect abrogated that Act of Congress. The media, prioritizing their corporate interest in not antagonizing life-tenured federal judges over their function as the counter-power to government, have failed(2§2) to hold those judges accountable as what they are: public servants hired by, and answerable[195] to, their masters, We the People.

Unaccountability makes wrongdoing(5§3) riskless; federal judges engage in, or tolerate, it because it is profitable(27§2). It consists of intentional disregard of due process that leads to unpredictable, non-precedential, ad-hoc rulings in defiance of precedent, law, and facts, made for their benefit and that of other insiders[169], and barely appealable and reviewable(28§3). Through coordination(88§§a-c) among themselves and with others, their wrongdoing has been structured in schemes, e.g., a bankruptcy fraud scheme(39§§5-6). It is so pervasive that it has become the Judiciary's institutionalized modus operandi(49§3). Judges will not voluntarily constrain their absolute power: the power to abuse power and get away with it. Nor will they expose their peers, lest they be ostracized by all the other judges. Much less will they self-incriminate by acknowledging the wrongfulness and harmfulness of conduct that individually or in coordination with others they engaged in themselves or enabled through their knowing indifference and willful ignorance and blindness, thus becoming accessories before and after the fact(65§§1-3). Judges have a vested interest in maintaining their unique, privileged status: Judges Above the Law.

Exposing judicial unaccountability and wrongdoing now falls to: 1) journalism schools, which teach by having their students carry out journalistic projects and can use this one(100§§3-4; ol:66) to instill in them the their professional role, to wit, to ensure that democracy has what it needs to survive: "an informed populace"; and 2) public interest organizations, whose delivery of any benefit to the public depends on judges' respecting the principle of Equal Justice Under Law.

Dr. Cordero respectfully requests your graduate school or public interest organization to invite him to present his proposal for pioneering the news and publishing field of JUDICIAL UNACCOUNTABILITY REPORTING(jur:1) This can be done by pursuing two stories that will draw national attention: the President Obama-Justice Sotomayor story and the Follow the money! investigation; and the Federal Judiciary-NSA story and the Follow it wirelessly! Investigation(ol:55). These stories are rooted in current events and their public importance will only increase as the mid-term election approaches(ol:63, 70). Their findings, presented at schools' job fair or commencements or press conferences(97§1), can provoke national outrage that stirs up voters to demand that candidates take a stand on judicial unaccountability and wrongdoing. This can set off a first-ever Watergate-like(4¶¶10-14) generalized media investigation of judicial wrongdoing. A multidisciplinary academic and business venture(119§1) can develop the field and advocate reform(130§5-8). By showing integrity, courage, and imagination in pursuing this proposal, professional and citizen journalists can, not only write the first draft of history, they can trigger history!(dcc:11)

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.
Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris
2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Janaury 20, 2014

The Investigation of Two Unique Cases

that can expose federal judges' wrongdoing as the institutionalized modus operandi of the Federal Judiciary, provoke national outrage, and cause the national public to demand that judicial public servants, such as judges are, be held accountable to and by their masters: We the People

1. In the 224 years since the creation of the Federal Judiciary in 1789, the number of federal judges –2,131 were in office on 30sep11[13], including the Supreme Court justices– impeached and removed is 8![14] Such historic assurance of irremovability in practice has given them the sense that they are unaccountable and can act with impunity. Thus, throughout their lifelong appointment they abuse their power to engage risklessly in individual and coordinated wrongdoing.(jur:2¶¶4-5)

A. Two unique cases and the queries guiding their investigations

2. Federal judges' wrongdoing(jur:5§3) can be exposed by the investigation of two unique cases that will not fail to draw the attention of a national public already so distrustful(ol:11) of government and its top politicians. Their investigation can be guided by these two queries:

1. The Obama-Sotomayor case and the Follow the money! investigation

What did the President(jur:77§5), Chief Justice Roberts, and other justices and judges[196] know[23b] about Justice Sotomayor's concealment of assets(jur:65§1) –suspected by The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a]– and consequent tax evasion and when(jur:75§d) did they know it? (For an estimate of J. Sotomayor's concealed assets, see[107c].)

2. The Federal Judiciary-NSA case and the Follow it wirelessly! investigation

To what extent do federal judges abuse their vast computer network and expertise –which handle hundreds of millions of case files(Lsch:11¶9b.ii)– either alone or with the quid pro quo assistance of the NSA –whose secret surveillance requests are rubberstamped[7] by the federal judges of the secret court established under the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (FISA)– to conceal assets –a crime[10] under U.S. law, unlike surveillance– by electronically transferring them to secret inland and offshore(ol:1) accounts to launder money of its illegal origin and bring it back as legitimate assets, and to protect wrongdoing judges by interfering with the communications –also a crime(ol:20¶¶11-12)– of complainants(ol:19§D)?

B. The implications and consequences of the investigations

3. The findings of these investigations can show that justices and judges have failed to "avoid even the appearance of impropriety"[123a] and give rise to calls for them to be impeached or to resign, as J. Abe Fortas had to on May 14, 1969[186]. They acted either as principals by doing wrong or as accessories by tolerating(88§§a-d) it. In any event, they were remiss in their individual and collective duty to safeguard judicial integrity; and disregarded in their own personal or judicial 'wrongdoing family' interest the key principle of our democracy: Nobody Is Above The Law.

1. Connivance between P. Obama and J. Sotomayor and dereliction of duty

4. The President too will have to fight off calls for his resignation or impeachment. In addition, he will face the demand of the media and an outraged(83§§2-3) NATIONAL public that he release the secret FBI vetting report on J. Sotomayor, his first nominee to the Supreme Court. It can show whether he was informed also officially by it that she was engaging in the crime[10] of concealing assets. Whether he learned through the FBI report or the articles in The New York Times, The Washington Post, Politico that she was suspected of concealing assets[107a], he covered it up and lied to the American public by vouching for her honesty. He had a personal interest in doing so: To cater to those petitioning for another woman and the first Latina for the Supreme Court and from whom he expected in exchange support for the passage of Obamacare.

5. Obamacare constitutes the President's personal interest, his signature piece of legislation, the one that should establish his legacy. To ensure its passage, he nominated to the Supreme Court a dishonest person, Then-Judge Sotomayor, to shape the law of the land for the next 30 or so years during which she can still remain on the bench. But just as felons cannot serve as jurors, a judge who breaks the law shows hypocrisy and contempt for the law and cannot be expected to respect it enough to apply it fairly and impartially. Hence, he nominated her to the detriment of the people and judicial integrity. Such conduct warrants calls for his resignation or impeachment.
6. The issue here is not whether Obamacare should or should not have been adopted. Rather, it is that the President breached the trust of the American people and placed the advancement of his interest ahead of his duty to defend theirs, just as it was J. Sotomayor's duty to uphold the law by abiding by it. Nor is it partisan politics that determines whether the people can exercise their right, as the source of all political power, to demand that its public servants behave with integrity.

2. Public outrage at the Federal Judiciary's abuse of IT resources

7. The Federal Judiciary-NSA case can provoke a scandal more outrageous to more people than the scandal arisen through Edward Snowden's revelations of NSA's abuse of secret surveillance requests rubberstamped by the federal judges of the secret FISA court. The scandal would be deeper and more extensive because the judges of the Federal Judiciary, a national jurisdiction, wield power that affects not only the right of privacy, as the NSA scandal mainly does, but also every other right as well as the property, liberty, and life of everybody in this country. The scandal would only be aggravated if it were exposed that the President has covered for wrongdoing judges to avoid their retaliation[17], i.e., their holding Obamacare and other actions of his unconstitutional, thus compounding the wrongdoing and allowing them to harm the people with impunity.

C. Plan of action to expose wrongdoing judges and lead to judicial reform

8. A plan of action can show how to proceed from exposing the unaccountability and riskless wrongdoing of the judges of the Federal Judiciary, the model for its state counterparts; to curbing them through legislated reform(158§§6-8) that mandates non-discretionary, specific method & result changes. The plan will subsequently find application to state judges and their judiciaries.

1. Presentations of the evidence and formation of an investigative team

9. The plan begins with presentations(Lsch:9) of the available evidence(jur:21§§A-B) of judges' unaccountability and consequent riskless wrongdoing. They will afford the opportunity to form out of the audiences a team of professionals(128§4) to investigate it further. So, the effort will be made to hold them at law, journalism, business, and IT schools as guest speaker events of classes, student societies, or the schools(Lsch:1). Holding them at student job fairs will offer in addition the presence of recruiters and even top officers of companies that can have an interest in joining the investigation. Likewise, they can be held at partisan conferences and meetings(ol:75). Winning the mid-term elections will give many politicians and their supporters a partisan interest in launching the investigation. Here applies the aphorism: "The enemy of my enemy is my friend".

2. Watergate-like generalized media investigation with national reach

10. The presentations and investigative team findings will outrage ever more people and can set off a Watergate-like(jur:4¶¶10-14) generalized media search for J. Sotomayor's concealed assets (100 §§3-4); and for a Judiciary-NSA link or an NSA-like abuse of IT resources(ol:19§D). Journalists covering the presentations can join the investigation in quest for a Pulitzer Prize, their portrayal in a blockbuster movie, and a name for themselves as those who caused a president or a justice to resign or be impeached(ol:3§6). Their editors can be motivated by increasing revenue from selling more advertisement addressed to a growing readership and viewership demanding ever more news on a scandal graver than current ones. Journalists can reach and outrage a NATIONAL public. Thus, they are indispensable for the presentations to have their full effect.

3. Official investigations by the authorities

11. An outraged national public can force Congress and the FBI to investigate officially the full extent of the judges' wrongdoing and of the connivance between politicians(jur:77§§5-6) and the Federal Judiciary. The official investigators can exercise subpoena, search and seizure, contempt, and penal power. Hence, they can make even more outrageous findings of wrongdoing by federal judges and others doing wrong in coordination with them[169]. Those findings will cause the national public to demand of politicians that they undertake judicial reform(158§§6-8), lest they be voted out of, or not into, office. There is precedent for this: The power of the Tea Party to force politicians to support its agenda or risk having their political careers terminated.

4. The pioneering of a field fostered by an academic and business venture

12. The novel news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting(122§§2-3) and reform advocacy will be pioneered at the presentations. It can be fostered through a multidisciplinary academic and business venture(119§1). Its members are likely to emerge from the audiences and be motivated by rendering service in the public interest and capitalizing on a business opportunity.

5. Creation of an institute and advocacy of judicial reform

13. The creation of the Institute of Judicial Unaccountability Reporting and Reform Advocacy (130§5) should be the mature and permanent form of the venture. It will advocate judicial reform based on the principles of accountability, transparency, discipline, and liability(ol:65§D). To be effective, it must include the public filing of complaints against judges, and the establishment of citizen boards of judicial accountability and discipline authorized to investigate them with subpoena, search and seizure, and contempt power, hold public hearings, and discipline judges, including by holding them liable to compensate the victims of their wrongdoing(160§8).

14. Emboldened by public outrage at the Federal Judiciary's wrongdoing and demands for its reform, journalists will overcome the fear of retaliation and will investigate state judges too.

D. Working together to become We the People's Champions of Justice

15. The task now is to produce(Lsch:12§C) the presentations. They will start this chain of events (ol:29) that can set off unprecedented investigations and reform of the federal and state judiciaries. Those who courageously fight to protect the birthright of all Americans, to wit, 'government, not of men, but by the rule of law'[6], and enhance its benefits, such as freedom from abuse of power, secrecy, and arbitrariness, and effective enjoyment of Equal Justice Under Law, can be recognized by a grateful nation as its Champions of Justice. Dare trigger history!(dcc:11)

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

January 27, 2014

Mr. Norman Hughes
MCU/MiCPAC/MFTW/URM
micpac.hughes@gmail.com; tel. (810) 678-3678

Dear Mr. Hughes,

Thank you for letting me know that you are reviewing some of my writings. You may have realized that they are based on official documents of the Federal Judiciary and its judges, and provide original analysis of them. Colleagues of yours, such as lawyers and legal reporters, who are familiar with commentaries on the judiciary(cf. *>a&p:14) will be able to confirm this.

1. There is independent evidence that people, especially professionals and regardless of their values, appreciate my analysis. This is shown by the message that LinkedIn sent me spontaneously:

> Richard, congratulations! You have one of the top 5% most viewed LinkedIn profiles for 2012. LinkedIn now has 200 million members. Thanks for playing a unique part in our community!(a&p:25-27)

2. Hence, it is reasonable to expect that your conference attendees too will appreciate my analysis. In fact, you may be able to ascertain this now, well in advance of the conference, by sharing my writings and emails to you with those to whom you referred when you wrote me that you had "forwarded some of your posts to an extensive list of tea party and other conservative leaders" and those that you had in mind when you stated, "We might be able to put together a private meeting with some of the activists most likely to act on your recommendation".

3. More important for all of you, my writings offer a plan of action that is in harmony with your conservative values. It offers the reasonable expectation of advancing one of your main interests: to empower We the People to retake Big Government and hold public officers, in general, and judges, in particular, accountable for the service that they were hired to render to the people.

4. After you have reviewed my writings and given the other leaders and activists the opportunity to do the same by forwarding to them some of my emails to you(ol:48,51), you all may realize that what my plan of action recommends holds out the reasonable prospect of helping you all advance your interests not only in Michigan, but also across the rest of the nation. Once you have come to that realization, discussing the issue that you brought up in your last email, to wit, my honorarium, will be most opportune. At that time, I suspect, you all will find it very reasonable. I say "you all" because in fixing my honorarium I will take into account the position and number of the "tea party and other conservative leaders…and activists" that you will have let me know will attend 'the private meeting that you will put together', as you stated. The more of them, the more likely it is that one or more will in turn ask me to address their respective conference and private meeting, and pay me an honorarium, which justifies fixing a lower one for you.

A. My plan of action can advance your interests in the mid-term & 2016 elections

5. You and the other leaders and activists can benefit from meeting with me and having me address your conferences because my plan of action can also advance your interests at play in the fast approaching mid-term election campaign and the one of which it will become the opening salvo: the 2016 presidential election campaign. Judge for yourself the pertinence of my analysis:

6. The Bridgegate Affair has badly bruised NJ Governor Chris Christie. Nobody else in the Republican camp enjoys the same visibility as a likely presidential candidate as he did up to now. By contrast, the Democratic camp already has a frontrunner with enviable name recognition that has been enhanced by Christie's loss of popular confidence: Hillary Clinton. She is likely to receive the endorsement of President Obama. During the primaries, she will be able to take the high road of her likability and stay away from bashing other Democratic candidates. That will not be an option for the unknown and little known Republican primary candidates jockeying for position. They will gang up on a Christie already on the defensive and engage in a fratricide battle among themselves. The wounds that they will inflict on whomever among them becomes the presidential candidate will be spread with salt by the Democratic opponent during the presidential campaign.

7. Envisage in that scenario the positive impact for conservatives like you and your fellow leaders and activists of the two cases whose investigation I have proposed(infra; id.>ol:55): The Obama-Sotomayor case and the Follow the money! investigation, and The Judiciary-NSA case and the Follow it wirelessly! investigation. As journalistic running stories that expose the President's wrongdoing, they can outrage Americans throughout the mid-term and the presidential campaigns. They can provide solid grounds for calls for his resignation or impeachment; taint the Democratic Party; and even force Mrs. Clinton to distance herself from him and his endorsement, which will weaken her. The probability of his impeachment could become so high that he would prefer to resign rather than risk losing his pension. Thus, even a resignation close to the 2016 election cannot be excluded. Its devastating impact on the Democrats cannot be doubted.

B. Taking action now that can pay off at the height of the 2016 election

8. From the beginning of the journalistic investigation of these stories to the time of serious talk of President Obama's resignation or impeachment, a couple of years could go by. The precedent for this is the Watergate Scandal. On June 17, 1972, the five burglars were caught who had broken into the Democratic National Committee at the Watergate building complex in Washington, D.C. It was not until August 9, 1974, that President Nixon, decried by even his former allies and facing impending impeachment for political espionage and its cover-up, resigned(4¶¶10-14).

9. Now is the time for you all to show political savvy and foresight by adopting the plan of action to have the available evidence of those stories presented(Lsch: 9) so as to set off a Watergate-like generalized media search for J. Sotomayor's concealed assets; demand that the President release the FBI vetting report on her; and investigate the Judiciary's abuse of its and NSA's IT resources to conceal assets and interference with the communications of its complainants. The payoff for Republicans and for your reputation among them can come just before the November 2016.

10. I am non-partisan. I criticize Republicans, Democrats, and Independents alike, doing so with the same sense of responsibility, fairness, and proper timing. My objective is one: to expose federal judges' unaccountability and riskless wrongdoing(21§§A-B), and lead to reform(158§§6-8). I think strategically by applying dynamic analysis of harmonious and conflicting interests(Lsch:14 §§b-c). You, your fellow leaders and activists, and I have harmonious interests. The rationale for our joint pursuit of them is expressed by the aphorism: "The enemy of my enemy is my friend".

11. If we meet, we are likely to establish a friendly relation. Just as I have shown that I have paid attention to every word that you have written to me, I do not talk to people when I meet them; rather, I listen to them, integrate their ideas with mine, and join the discussion in a respectful, persuasive, and constructive way. My diplomatic attitude is likely to leave you satisfied with meeting with me. Once you all, upon reviewing my posts and emails(ol:48,51), come to believe that such is likely to be the case and that I offer original analysis, a realistic plan of action, and help in advancing your interests, and you have let me know who the other leaders and activists are, we can discuss my honorarium. Thus, feel free to share this and my other writings with them.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11) and you may enter it. Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

January 29, 2014

Mr. Errol Meidinger
Director, The Baldy Center for Law & Social Policy
SUNY Buffalo Law School
The State University of New York
511 O'Brian Hall, North Campus
Buffalo, NY 14260

baldyctr@buffalo.edu
tel. (716) 645-2102; fax (716) 645-2900 http://law.buffalo.edu/baldycenter/

Re: 2014-15 Baldy Fellowship Application

Dear Director Meidinger,

Kindly find below my application for the 2014-15 Baldy Fellowship. My sample of academic writing supports it and is at *>jur:131§b. Thanks in advance for acknowledging receipt of it.

A. Research Question

1. How statistical, linguistic, and literary analysis performed by state of the art or yet to be developed IT programs can be applied to past and predict judges' decisions in order to determine on an objective basis their authorship and ascertain their fairness and impartiality –understood to include biases, prejudices, conflicts of interests resolved to one's benefit, and personal agenda pursued in disregard of the duty to be fair in accordance with the rule of law– so that in reliance thereon courts may decide appeals, lawyers may devise legal strategy, and entrepreneurs may pioneer the business field of judicial auditing and predictive analytics?

B. Conceptual Framework

2. The concept underlying the proposed research is that recurrent sets of elements, that is, patterns, and charged terms –e.g., the difference between referring to John Doe, Esq., as a lawyer or as a hack– appear in the written and oral expression of any individual as well as of a group of people that share a language, a culture, and a level and kind of education. Those patterns and terms have author-identifying capacity because they can be used to determine whether a given individual is the author of a piece of writing and to identify who is the author among a group of people. Moreover, those patterns and terms have character reflective capacity because they reflect on the system of beliefs, moral values, and attitudes of an individual and of people. The detection and analysis of those patterns can be used to ascertain the degree to which a judge satisfied the legal requirements of fairness and impartiality in his decision.
3. Statistical analysis does so, at its most basic, by relying on number crunching and comparison of the frequency of objective features in judges' decisions, such as whether the winning party was a pro se client or a business, her race, the amount of money at stake, etc. It plots those numbers on a system of coordinates and establishes standard deviations. Such analysis is of immense value precisely because it is based on objective facts and their individual and comparative quantification. Thus, it can be as reliable as it can be surprisingly revealing of absence or presence of bias.
4. Linguistic analysis can use optical character recognition software to identify the string of characters and establish the author's lexicon, to wit, the pool of words that she uses and their frequency. Then it moves to the more difficult but equally objective application of grammatical rules to determine in which of the 9 parts of a sentence each word falls and in what syntactical order the judge placed them in a sentence and grouped them through punctuation. This analysis allows determining which decisions the judge wrote herself and which were written by others, such as her clerks or staff lawyers with some or no supervision by the judge. Such determination is most useful for a party to strategize: Before the start of the case, the party can rely on it to estimate the degree of attention that the judge is likely to pay to a case whose decision she has every or no intention to write; and after the decision is issued, to determine whether the judge wrote it or had a clerk or a staff lawyer write it. If the latter, the party can decide whether to challenge it on the ground that there was a constitutional denial of equal protection of the laws because judicial decision-making power was transferred to, and exercised by, a non-judge who legally had been neither invested with such power nor authorized to exercise it, and who may not even have been in the courtroom during the whole of the case. It is as if at the end of the case, a juror had been replaced by a member of the audience who may or may not have been in the courtroom during all the sessions or a member of the public who watched some or all of the case on TV at home or only read the transcript.

5. Literary analysis, the most ambitious and innovative part of the research, will analyze language to perceive on it the reflection of the author's character. To do so, software must go beyond analyzing strings of characters with the tools of Boolean logic, proximity connectors, and variation symbols, e.g., wild cards. Those tools implement the functional premise of current search engines, even those that use natural language for the formulation of the search query: A given string of characters or those close to it are likely to have been used in the searched for text; to find it, an objective analysis of text is performed. However, the proposed software must perform subjective analysis. It must be sophisticated enough to interpret the subtext of text to reach, not the characters used to write, but rather the character of the writer. To do so, it must search for patterns and charged terms that reveal the abstract, that is, beliefs, values, and attitudes, and determine the subjective, namely, whether he was fair and impartial in the decision in question and how that decision reflects on the fitness of her character to be a judge. To do so, the software is expected to be based on artificial intelligence as the engine of an expert system.

C. Method

6. Auditing judicial decisions through statistical analysis can be started right away given that there are already either official statistics of the courts, cf. http://www.uscourts.gov/Statistics.aspx, or access to the decisions either at the office of the clerk of court or online, cf. Public Access to Court Electronic Records, http://www.pacer.gov/. See samples of statistical work already done at * >jur:10-14. Then determine the applicability of res ipsa loquitur to whether by examining that work a lawyer learns most valuable information concerning the partiality or impartiality of federal judges when one of their peers is the subject of a misconduct complaint; and whether that work would substantially influence the lawyer when devising his legal strategy for dealing with the judge presiding over his case whom he deemed to have engaged in misconduct.

7. Auditing judicial decisions through linguistic analysis can begin by studying the literature on the several programs used for that purpose, writing a report in light of the intended use, and using it to form a multidisciplinary team that should include lawyers, IT experts, and experienced sellers of digital products. The team should test available programs, if possible; and recommend which to acquire, including the right to modify its software code, or whether the program should be developed in-house.

8. Auditing judicial decisions through literary analysis starts with the previous step and adds the review of the literature to determine the current state of development of artificial intelligence and expert systems. After choosing a program or deciding to develop it in-house, these steps follow:

    a. Establishment of a baseline: Legal research using, for example, digests, will be conducted to identify cases that on appeal were reversed or vacated for unfairness or partiality. Those cases will be preferred where the appeals court, otherwise the appellant, identified the passage or language of the challenged decision that evinced unfairness or partiality.

b. Those decisions will be edited to reduce them to their minimal expression by eliminating what is not necessary for the unfairness and partiality text to remain in a context that makes sense as a judicial decision.

c. Decisions challenged on grounds other than unfairness and partiality and praised on appeal for their fairness and partiality will be similarly edited to their minimal expression. These and the above decisions will form the control decisions. Their volume should be liable to be read by an average reader within an hour.

d. An unfairness and partiality-identifying exercise will be conducted by submitting the control decisions to control subjects, that is, a pool of lawyers, judges, law students, and lay people identified through a questionnaire to fit the legal paradigm of "a reasonable man". They will be asked to identify any passage in the control decisions that they deem to evince unfairness or partiality and to state their reason therefor.

e. After review of the exercise results, the control subjects will be interviewed to provide additional reasons in light of what other subjects deemed to evince unfairness or partiality and to comment on what they generally deem to be unfair or partial.

f. A table of the elements of unfairness and partiality will be drawn up and used to write software code that enables a program to identify passages that evince unfairness and partiality.

g. Software will be acquired and modified as necessary or developed to identify with the help of the above table of elements the passages in the control decisions that with statistic-al significance were identified by the control subjects as evincing unfairness and partiality.

D. Possible Findings

9. Auditing judicial decisions through these types of analysis should determine the prevalence among the decisions and the perception among the public of unfairness and partiality in the judiciary. It should provide the basis for drawing up a set of measures to reform the judiciary so that "Justice should not only be done, but should manifestly and undoubtedly be seen to be done", Ex parte McCarthy, [1924] 1 K. B. 256, 259 (1923). It should provide parties' with both 'inside the judge's mind information' and a reliable tool for predicting the fairness and impartiality that they can expect, thus allowing them to strategize their conduct inside and outside the courtroom.

E. Importance To The Field

10. This is a proposal for path-breaking multidisciplinary research that will allow the undertaking of the first-ever systematic audit of the decisions of judges of the Federal Judiciary, the most secretive, opaque, and unresponsive of the three branches. Up to 90% of the decisions of the circuit courts are reasonless summary orders or decisions so "perfunctory" that the judges themselves mark them "not precedential" and "not for publication"(jur:43§b). Federal judges are unelected and enjoy de jure or de facto life tenure, and though public servants, they escape the scrutiny of their masters, We the People. As a result, they unaccountably wield absolute power that allows them to issue decisions tainted with unfairness and partiality. This research should begin the process of restoring power to the People by holding judges accountable for their decisions. Thereby it will contribute to giving effect to the principle that in government, not of men and women, but by the rule of law, Nobody is Above the Law, and that having one's day in court should afford the realistic opportunity to seek and receive Equal Justice Under Law.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11) Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.
Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris
Judicial Discipline Reform
2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

November 26, 2013

Do the President's lies for the personal and political gain of passing and implementing Obamacare warrant calls for his resignation or impeachment?

The request that he release the FBI vetting report on his justiceship nominee J. Sotomayor

Former President Bush's Attorney General, Alberto Gonzales, was forced to resign because he had lied to Congress and had lost its trust. Now, an ever-greater number of Americans believe that President Obama lied to them when he said that under his Affordable Health Care Act, or Obamacare, they would be able to keep their current health insurance. Instead, the insurance of millions of them has been cancelled and they have been left by insurers with no more option than a more expensive insurance with features that they may not need but that are in compliance with Obamacare as now the President pretends to understand what his own signature piece of legislation offers. His motive for lying to them would have been to induce them to support the passage and implementation of Obamacare. Many Americans think that he is untrustworthy.

A. The President's graver lie about Judge/Justice Sotomayor's honesty

How would Americans react if they learned that the President also lied when he vouched for the integrity of his first nominee to the Supreme Court, Then-Judge Sotomayor, although he knew that The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a] suspected her of concealing assets of her own. Concealment of assets is a crime in itself and is undertaken either to evade taxes or launder them of their illegal provenance, both of which are also crimes(ol:5fn10).

Unlike those preeminent and trusted media outlets, the Department of Justice and its FBI had subpoena, search & seizure, contempt, and penal powers to conduct a more intrusive investigation when vetting all candidates being considered as replacement for Retiring Justice Souter. By exercising them, the FBI could both confirm such suspicion and even find the whereabouts of the concealed assets. It could do so because the very documents that Then-Judge Sotomayor submitted to the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Judicial Nominations and that it posted on its website[107b] showed that she could not account for the income that she herself had declared[107c]. The FBI could inform thereof the President in its vetting report on Justiceship Candidate Sotomayor before he nominated any of his candidates for the Supreme Court(jur:77§5).

After his first election, the President disregarded the known tax evasion of Tim Geithner, Tom Daschle, and Nancy Killefer and nominated them to his cabinet[108]. So it was in character for him to disregard the incriminating information about J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets, nominate her, and lie about her honesty. He had a motive: to cater to those petitioning for another woman and the first Latina for the Supreme Court, and receive in exchange their support for passing Obamacare. By so doing, he in self-interest saddled the American public with a life-tenured dishonest justice who for the next 30 or more years can be shaping the law of the land with one hand and covering her concealed assets with the other, for she cannot declare them, but must keep them concealed(68§3) to avoid incriminating herself and risking calls for her resignation. Just as felons cannot serve as jurors, a judge who breaks the law shows contempt for it and cannot be expected to respect it enough to apply it fairly and impartially. Indeed, the revelations by Life magazine of the financial improprieties of Justice Abe Fortas forced him first to withdraw his name for the chief justiceship and subsequently to resign on May 14, 1969(92§d).

B. The Obama-Sotomayor story can reveal graver lies and wrongdoing

Whether one is for or against Obamacare is utterly irrelevant as is whether one is Democrat or Republican. What matters is how revealing the involvement of a sitting president and a sitting justice nominated by him in concealment of assets and its cover-up for personal and political gain can reveal their unfitness for office. That revelation can so outrage the national public as to convince the media that there is a large and avid audience for the Obama-Sotomayor story(xxxv) that justifies making the necessary investment in manpower, money, and public relations to:

a. conduct a Follow the money! search(102§a) for the concealed assets of J. Sotomayor, which can be facilitated by obtaining the unique expertise therein of the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists(ol:1,2), and lead to a bankruptcy fraud scheme(66§2);

b. investigate the circumstances in the Federal Judiciary that enable her to conceal assets despite her duty to file publicly her annual financial disclosure report[213]; and

c. determine how many of her peers engage through coordination(88§a) in financial wrongdoing(102¶¶236-237) and other kinds of wrongdoing(5§3), which can lead the media to

d. conduct a Follow the wire! investigation(105§b) of the extent to which the Federal Judiciary –whose judges rubberstamp annually up to 100%(ol:5fn7) of NSA's secret requests for secret orders of surveillance– either has abused its own vast Information Technology infrastructure and expertise(Lsch:11¶9b.ii) or in exchange for its approval of NSA's requests has benefited from NSA's IT resources to interfere with the communications of complainants of judges' wrongdoing(ol:19§D). The judges have a motive: to prevent being exposed and secure the continued stream to themselves of wrongful benefits. Unlike surveillance, interference with third-party communications is a crime under 18 U.S.C. §2511(ol:20¶¶11-12). Revealing that the Judiciary and its judges interfere in crass self-interest with complainants' communications would stir up a scandal more intense than(ol:11) that of NSA's snooping on millions of Americans in the interest of national security.

   This investigation can reveal whether the President lied about not knowing that NSA's was snooping on 35 foreign heads of state or government: It is inconceivable that he has been briefed on security every morning for years, but has never blurted 'How did you get that information?!' It is the most privacy-breaching information that the briefers would disclose to him and boast about because 'With $X we got you this; if you give us $X x 2, we will get more and you will gain an informational advantage over world leaders'. NSA has managed to increase its budget from $5.5 billion under P. Bush to $10.8 billion under P. Obama(ol:5fn11).

C. Scandal in the Presidency and the Judiciary leading to judicial reform

An Obama-Sotomayor scandal can launch an unprecedented, Watergate-like generalized media investigation of the Federal Judiciary and its judges. Emboldening the media would be the fact that while the judges, whether individually or as a class through explicit or implicit coordination(90§§b-c) among themselves, can retaliate against a single journalist or media outlet that is investigating one of them, the judges cannot retaliate against all journalists and media outlets at the same time, for thereby they would reveal their non-coincidental, intentional, wrongful motive for sending the abusive message, 'This is what happens(Lsch:17§III) when you mess with us!' The ever more numerous journalists and media outlets revealing ever more blatant wrongdoing by judges can so intensely outrage the national public as to make it politically unavoidable for Congress and DoJ-FBI to conduct official investigations, even hold nationally televised public hearings, such as those on the Watergate Scandal(jur:4¶¶10-14) and those held by the 9/11 Commission.

That historic investigation of the Federal Judiciary and its judges can embolden the media to investigate state judges and judiciaries too. The revelations of their wrongdoing can likewise so outrage a state public as to make it unavoidable for the state authorities to investigate them.

That is the strategy for advocates of honest judiciaries and even political partisans and visceral enemies of President Obama who nevertheless search for solid grounds on which to stake their call for his resignation or impeachment: To take advantage of current widespread disbelief in the trustworthiness of the President and distrust of government(ol:11) by investigating the Obama-Sotomayor story of personal wrongdoing and inter-branch connivance so as to provoke in the public 'reformative outrage'(83§§2-3). That will be its reaction to revelations that judges engage in even criminal wrongdoing(133§4), not excusable as the exercise of judicial discretion, because they are held by politicians unaccountable[17], who have allowed them to cloak their activities in pervasive secrecy(27§e). So judges do wrong risklessly and in coordination. Risklessness renders their wrongdoing more alluring and profitable since costly detection-prevention and defensive measures are unnecessary. Coordination makes it more effective and expands its reach. The President knew that, for to cover for herself and her peers(43¶80), J. Sotomayor perjuriously withheld from the Senate a case that would have exposed them(68§3). Let the President deny it and then demand that he order all FBI reports on Candidate/Now-Justice Sotomayor released.

D. Your choice: suffer, whine, be one of many or become a Champion of Justice Exposing judges' wrongdoing can lead to its positive objective: to cause an outraged public to force politicians, lest they be voted out of, or not into, office, to undertake historic judicial reform(158§§6-7). The precedent for this is what the Tea Party has forced politicians to do. The reform can impose concrete, non-discretionary duties on judges and judiciaries to attain:

1. TRANSPARENCY, for "Justice should not only be done, but should manifestly and undoubtedly be seen to be done"[71]; so the secrecy of their closed-door adjudicative, administrative, policy-making, and disciplinary meetings and no press conferences must give way to their being forced to function on the same open-door basis as Congress, legislatures, and the Executive;

2. ACCOUNTABILITY, to terminate Judges Above the Law by bringing them down to where the People, their masters, can hold them accountable as what they are: their public servants;

3. DISCIPLINE, administered by independent citizen boards(160§8) after removal of the immunity that judges have arrogated to themselves(26§d) by self-applying the undemocratic, by-the-grace-of-God-ruling principle "The King Can Do No Wrong"; and

4. LIABILITY, so that judges and judiciaries can be held by the boards subject, as the rest of government is(ol:5fn9), to compensate jointly and severally their wrongdoing victims.

The application of those principles to judges and judiciaries forced by the public's reformative outrage at their objective wrongdoing can be ever more expansively applied to the other branches. This can bring about a new We the People-government relation where the People exercise 'reverse surveillance'(ol:17) on their servants: the People's Sunrise. As one of the People, you have a choice: You can remain a silent journalist, other professional, or a student among thousands or a judicial complainant among millions screaming at judges to no avail. Or you can choose to be a courageous, principled, unique person and thinking strategically, take advantage of proper timing, when the audience is most receptive to a scoop. If the latter, you can set in motion a process of exposure that leads to historic reform. Even if acting as this generation's Deep Throat of Watergate fame(106§c), you can become to a grateful nation its Champion of Justice. To that end, you can help organize a presentation(Lsch:2) by this author to expose judges' wrongdoing, the Obama-Sotomayor story, and lay out a plan of action(Lsch:10§B). You can thus end up as the Producer of the Coalition for Justice(Lsch:12§C).

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11)

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

February 5, 2014

Leads and an Investigation Plan for the President Obama-Justice Sotomayor case and the Follow the money! investigation and the Federal Judiciary-NSA case and the Follow it wirelessly! investigation intended to expose federal judges' unaccountability and riskless wrongdoing in connivance with top politicians, outrage the national public, and cause it to force official investigations and reform that empowers We the People, the masters in government of, by, and for the People, to hold all its public servants accountable

A. From "a garden variety burglary" to the Watergate Scandal and the resignation of a President in the pre-computer and pre-database days

1. On June 17, 1972, five unauthorized men were caught inside the Democratic National Headquarters in the Watergate building complex in Washington, D.C., and charged with burglary. Washington Post Reporters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein, assigned to the unglamorous Metro Desk, asked themselves at their arraignment a keenly perceptive question: 'How is it possible that if those men, belittlingly dubbed by the rest of the media "five plumbers", are nothing but inept burglars who botched a "garden variety burglary", they are being represented by top notch, very expensive Washington lawyers?' By searching for the answer to that question, Woodward and Bernstein started their "Follow the money!" investigation.

2. In those days, there were no databases accessible by personal computers. Bernstein and Woodward relied on what was available to journalists then and still is now: their ability to talk to people in person and on landline phones; the pursuit of leads on shoe leather; the manual sifting of stacks of documents; and the connection of the dots using common sense and logic. By so doing, they found that the money to pay the lawyers for the burglars was held in one of the latter's bank account in Miami, which was linked to an account of the Republican National Committee for the Reelection of President Nixon. They and the rest of the media connected the dots: It was a slush fund for political espionage. The consequence was inevitable: All journalists and media outlets jumped on Bernstein and Woodward's investigative bandwagon and without any assistance from databases pursued that lead to find out how high the organization of that crime reached. That is how "a garden variety burglary" was turned into the Watergate Scandal, which dominated the headlines and newscasts for years. In fact, it caused President Nixon to resign on August 9, 1974.

3. The Watergate investigation benefitted from a secret informant, code-named Deep Throat(jur:106§c). Today journalists can benefit from pointing to potential informants on abuse of power under cover of secrecy(Lsch:2) the availability of growing whistleblower protection[12] and the example of open and notorious disclosures by Edward Snowden, WikiLeaks, and Anonymous (ol:13) of official wrongdoing that has offended against American democratic and moral values, and heightened public distrust of government(ol:11). Journalists can stress to informants that the injunction "if you see something, say something" is not to be heeded only by others, but rather is a call to everybody to take responsibility for the common good and show the civil courage required to do so. Persuasively, they can note that whether informants proceed discreetly or openly, they too can earn material and moral rewards(ol:3§6) for their contribution to government whose public servants work transparently for, and are accountable to, their masters, We the People.

B. Plan for the Follow the money! investigation of the P Obama-J. Sotomayor story

4. Today there are computers, databases, Internet searches, cellular phones, and video chats. They may facilitate any investigation or render it more technically demanding. But they are not indispensable. Journalists can rely on the traditional means and skills of investigative journalism. They can do so to expose judges' unaccountability and consequent riskless wrongdoing(5§3). Central to that endeavor is the President Obama-Supreme Court Justice Sotomayor story(ol:55).

5. Indeed, nothing would advance that endeavor more than finding J. Sotomayor's concealed assets or indicia thereof, thus confirming the suspicion of The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a] that she had concealed assets. That is a criminal(ol:5fn10) act committed to evade taxes and launder money. It would prove that she has failed to live up to the judicial standard requiring judges "to avoid even the appearance of impropriety"[123a]. That failure can be enough to cause her to resign, as it did U.S. Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas on May 14, 1969, after Life magazine revealed his involvement in improper financial dealings(jur:92§d).

6. Likewise, the effort to expose judges' wrongdoing would receive official imprimatur by obtaining the secret FBI vetting report on Then-Judge Sotomayor and showing that it informed the President that she was concealing assets. That would support the contention that the President disregarded the evidence of her criminal conduct, which disqualified her for a justiceship, because he wanted to ingratiate himself with those petitioning that he replace Retiring Justice Souter with another woman and the first Latina, and from whom he expected in exchange support for the passage of his signature legislation, the one that should establish his legacy: Obamacare. So in self-interest, he lied to the American public when he vouched for her integrity.

7. He also has harmed Americans by saddling them with a dishonest justice for the next 30 years or so that she may serve as such. She will be shaping and applying to them with one hand the law of the land while breaking it with the other hand for her and her peers' benefit: She must keep concealing assets, lest she incriminate herself by declaring her possession of them. She must also cover up her peers' wrongdoing regardless of its nature and gravity, lest its exposure reveals their facilitation of her own. Their survival is mutually dependent on, and will not be imperiled by, doing more wrong(21§1). Hence, they have every incentive to do more of it to grab all the benefit(27§2; 62§g) that it can bring them and to do it in coordination(88§§a-c) among themselves and with others[169], for it enhances grabbing-efficiency. That is how by conniving with J. Sotomayor, the President(77§§5-6) has abetted judges' coordination of wrongdoing harmful to the public.

1. Phases of the plan for searching for J. Sotomayor's concealed assets

8. The plan has phases: I. learning the available evidence and leads, ¶¶a-b; II. investigating the sources of assets, ¶¶c-d; and III. following the assets through transferors and transferees, ¶¶e-h.

   a. Many leads are found in the articles of The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a] suspecting J. Sotomayor of concealing assets. Their writers may have more and the answer to the question why they stopped investigating her. Was there a quid pro quo?(xlviii)

   b. The study[107c] of the financial statements that J. Sotomayor submitted under oath to the Senate Committee on Judicial Nominations[107b] demonstrates her concealment of assets.

   c. One of the main sources of assets illegally obtained by judges is the bankruptcy fraud scheme fed by a bankruptcy petition mill(66§§2-3). J. Sotomayor's connection to that "cronyism"-based(32§2) fraud scheme is revealed by the DeLano case, where she was the presiding judge when the case went on appeal from the U.S. Bankruptcy Court, 04-20280, WBNY; to the District Court, 05-6190L, WDNY; to the Circuit Court, 06-4780-bk-CA2(65§1); and on to the Supreme Court, SCt-08-8382[109b]. DeLano is so incriminating that she withheld it from the Senate Committee. Thereby she committed perjury when she affirmed under oath that she had complied with the subpoena requiring her to submit copies of all cases in which she had participated[107b]. DeLano is succinctly described at jur:xxxviii; expanded to include the role of the bankruptcy fraud scheme and of J. Sotomayor, it is at jur:xxxv. The investigation of DeLano as an assets source can follow the leads at 100§§3-4.

d. Another potential source of assets is the high-end boutique law firm of Pavia & Harcourt in New York City, where Then-Attorney Sotomayor was a partner. When in 1992 she cashed in her stake as a partner upon being confirmed as a district judge, SDNY, she received the suspiciously low amount of $25,000. Information can be sought from her former partners and very wealthy clients, who are most unlikely to talk for fear of incriminating themselves if they participated in concealing the real amount of money that she received and its transfer. But P&H's subsequent associates and partners may be more talkative because they neither owe her any duty of loyalty nor run the same risk of incriminating themselves.

e. The investigation can move to the transferors and transferees of assets from the sources to the accounts controlled directly or indirectly by J. Sotomayor, other judges, and strawmen. Transferors include intermediaries between the asset sources and the people who have the means and expertise to retrieve the assets and send them to judge-controlled accounts.

f. Information about transferors can be obtained from Then-Attorney Sotomayor's former col-leagues at the State of New York Mortgage Agency, where she was a member of the board of directors between 1987 and October 1992[107b/JS:2]. She may have made there some of the earliest connections to people who knew how to conceal assets and could have helped her to conceal hers. They may also have facilitated unlawfully favorable terms for her own mortgages[107c]. During the process of her confirmation as a judge or after her becoming such, they may have kept silent about their intermediary services in exchange for money or for her favorable attitude toward their side of cases that were or could come before her. At the time, the Mortgage Agency was located at 260 Madison Avenue, NY.

g. Transferors and transferees can be employees of the realtors and banks in NY and Wash-ington, D.C., that participated in the handling of her NY condominium and her search for a residence suitable for a Supreme Court justice in Washington or Virginia when she moved in 2009. Realtors whose offers were not accepted may have information and a motive to share it.

h. Records of transfers can be sought in the property registries in NY, Washington, D.C., and in Florida, where it is said that Then-Judge Sotomayor bought a home for her mother.

2. Requesting the Follow the money! expertise of the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists

9. Unique expertise in tracking asset transfers can be found in the International Consortium of Investigative Journalists, headquartered at the Center for Public Integrity in Washington, D.C. They have databases of financial transfers; the knowledge to detect the relationship between accounts and their real and strawmen holders; and the means to access them. They gained their expertise in the search for concealed assets during their 15-month Offshore Leaks investigation.

10. Offshore Leaks are the leak of 2.5 million financial files on 260 GB of data contained on a hard disk sent anonymously to the Investigative Journalists, and its report thereon, released on April 3, 2013(ol:1). The files reveal how more than 120,000 offshore companies and trusts in 170 countries manage between $21-32 trillion in private financial assets. These include the trillions that transit through places with tax haven status and complaisant authorities and that are involved in tax evasion and money laundering. Such crimes are committed by private persons and public officers, all wealthy, some shady too, using layers of anonymity, secrecy, and false declarations with the assistance of a host of bankers, lawyers, accountants, and other professionals with a lot of knowledge and not so many scruples(ol:2).

11. You, and if you are a journalist, also your assigning editor and publisher, could submit to the Investigative Journalists a request for their open or discreet Follow the money! expertise.(ol:1)

C. The Federal Judiciary-NSA case and the Follow it wirelessly! investigation

12. This investigation seeks to determine whether federal judges abuse their vast IT resources(Lsch:11¶9b.ii) either alone or with the assistance of the NSA –whose requests for secret surveillance orders are rubberstamped by the judges of the secret FISA court[7]– to conceal assets by transferring them electronically to and from secret accounts(ol:2), and to protect wrongdoing judges by interfering with the communications –which is a crime(ol:20¶¶11-12)– of complainants(ol:19§D). The national public would be outraged upon learning that judges have abused their own and NSA's IT resources to help themselves to a solution to "the single greatest problem facing the Judicial Branch today: inadequacy of judicial salaries", as stated by C.J. Rehnquist, and repeated by C.J. Roberts[30].

13. This investigation needs to be assisted by IT security experts competent to explain the available probable cause to suspect that the Federal Judiciary has interfered with the electronic communications of judicial wrongdoing complainants, such as that described at http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/WL/2two/RC-JA_17dec10.pdf >ws:46§V. The experts should determine whether any interference has occurred, e.g., by the installation of malware on complainants' computers or through access to their accounts with their Internet or email service providers. All providers should be requested to take a position on that specific probable cause, to wit, what role they have played or are playing in it and at whose initiative or order; otherwise, to state whether, in general, they have been ordered, for instance, through a security letter from an intelligence agency, to monitor, report back, and/or interfere with the communications of clients similarly situated to that described at id., and whether they suspected or knew of any involvement of the Judiciary. The USPS should be requested to take a position on similar interference with postal communications.

D. The presentation of the available evidence at professional venues

14. There is already enough evidence(21§§A-B) to show that J. Sotomayor and her peers have failed "to avoid even the appearance of impropriety"[123a]. But having evidence of even their wrongdoing is not enough. One must also be able to bring it to the NATIONAL public. That is essential to the strategy(83§§2-3) of provoking such outrage over such extended period of time that a critical mass of outrage builds up and explodes in calls for their resignation or impeachment and for politicians to discharge their duty to exercise their constitutional checks and balances by investigating and reforming the Federal Judiciary, lest their political careers be terminated at the polls(164§a). This strategy needs many journalists and the national media networks to publish a relentless series of findings of judges' outrageous wrongdoing. Hence the effort to launch the first-ever, Watergate-like generalized media investigation(100§§3-4) of Judges Above the Law.

15. To that end, Dr. Cordero offers to present the evidence of judges' unaccountability and wrongdoing and this plan for its further investigation through the unique Obama-Sotomayor and Federal Judiciary-NSA national stories. The presentations' target venues are law, journalism, business, and IT schools and public interest organization(Lsch:1, 5-8; ol:54): Their audiences have an academic and business interest in the Follow the money! and Follow it wirelessly! investigations (119§1) and needed professional skills. Members of the audience may respond to the call to join an investigative team of professionals(128§4) who should take the first step toward holding judges accountable to We the People.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11)…and you may enter it.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

Judicial Discipline Reform

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

February 12, 2014

Determining the circumstances under which a lie told by the President may be deemed by We the People and our representatives in Congress to constitute an impeachable 'high crime or misdemeanor'

1. The U.S. Constitution provides in Article II, Section 4, thus: "The President, Vice President and all civil Officers of the United States, shall be removed from Office on Impeachment for, and Conviction of, Treason, Bribery, or other high Crimes and Misdemeanors". The Constitution does not state what constitutes "High Crimes and Misdemeanors". Nor can the Federal Judiciary do so since there is no right to appeal an impeachment to any of its courts. An impeachment is a political, not a judicial, decision, and so is the definition of "High Crimes and Misdemeanors". At stake is not the impeached officer's property, liberty, or life. Rather, We the People, the source of all political power, take back through our representatives in Congress the office that we gave the officer. Thus, whether the President commits an impeachable 'High Crime or Misdemeanor' when he lies to the People is a matter for the latter and their representatives to decide.

2. If impeachment were available only for "High Crimes", the impeachable conduct would have to attain a particularly conspicuous level of unacceptability to become a 'High Crime'. But also "Misdemeanors" support an impeachment. So, the level of unacceptability of a certain conduct does not determine whether it is impeachable. Nor does it affect the punishment, for impeachment always leads to the officer being "removed from Office". It is the Constitution's recall. Thus, the impeachability of an officer who lies must be determined in light of the circumstances evidencing that he knew that his statement was counterfactual so that his making it anyway was deceptive, a lie; the motive for lying, and the consequences of the lie, even if unintended, for an officer who due to incompetence cannot foresee the consequences of his lie is also impeachable.

3. Let's make such determination concerning President Obama's vouching to the American public for the honesty of his first nominee to the Supreme Court, Then-Judge Sotomayor(jur:65§1). The CIRCUMSTANCES EVIDENCING HIS KNOWLEDGE that his statement was counterfactual are these:

   a. The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a] had suspected her of concealing assets. Concealment of assets is a crime[ol:5fn10] committed to evade taxes or launder money of its illegal source and bring it back with the appearance of being lawful so as to invest it openly without the risk of self-incrimination attached to investing dirty, unlawfully obtained money.

   b. The FBI must have investigated such suspicion of concealment of asset, for it could have derailed J. Sotomayor's confirmation. Using its subpoena and search and seizure power, it must have compelled production of, and obtained, documents that even those three major news entities could not obtain employing only the means of lawful investigative journalism. Had the FBI found a satisfactory explanation that dispelled the suspicion, it would have given it to the President, who would have made it public to put the issue to rest and spare himself a major embarrassment, much worse than that experienced by P. Bush when Harriet Miers withdrew her name under criticism that she lacked the qualifications needed to be a justice.

      No such explanation was ever publicized. Far from it, these news entities dropped the issue inexplicably and simultaneously. Yet, each could have reasonably expected to win a Pulitzer Prize had it found the concealed assets of J. Sotomayor or led her or the President to withdraw her name, or even caused her to resign as a circuit judge, never mind be indicted for concealing assets. Was there a quid pro quo between the President and those entities?(jur:xlviii)

   c. J. Sotomayor filed "complete" financial statements with the Senate Judiciary Committee in response to its questionnaires and it posted them on its website[107b]. To avoid embarrassing surprise[cf.186], the FBI must have checked them for consistency with those that she had filed with the President while he was considering candidates for his nomination, and reported to him. After tabulating the figures in the statements filed with the Senate, they lead to this conclusion:

> Judge Sotomayor earned $3,773,824 since 1988 + received $381,775 in loans = $4,155,599 + her 1976-1987 earnings, yet disclosed assets worth only $543,903 thus leaving unaccounted for in her answers to the Senate Judiciary Committee $3,611,696 - taxes and the cost of her reportedly modest living[107c.i]

4. President Obama's lie can be established or dispelled by circumstantial evidence, and also objectively, e.g., by his agreeing to release unredacted all the FBI vetting reports on J. Sotomayor.

5. THE MOTIVE of the President to lie about J. Sotomayor's honesty was to curry favor with those who were petitioning him to replace Retiring Justice Souter with a woman and the first Latina, and from whom he expected in return their support to pass through Congress the Obamacare bill. That was the central piece of his legislative agenda, the one in which he had a personal interest because its continued validity by the Supreme Court upholding its constitutionality would make him the president who managed to pass universal health care while others had failed trying.

6. THE CONSEQUENCES of the President's lying by vouching for J. Sotomayor's honesty are substantially harmful and lasting. With respect to those who supported her confirmation for the Supreme Court, it constituted fraud in the inducement, for he told them a lie to induce them to support the confirmation of a person whom on his word they took for honest. With respect to those petitioning for another women and the first Latina, it constituted fraud in the performance, for they could reasonably expect that out of a population of over 300 million people and the pool drawn from it of women and Latinas qualified to be justices, he would choose one who was also honest and would not disappoint and embarrass them by being exposed later on as dishonest.

7. The president heads the Executive Branch. His duty is to execute the bills of Congress enacted into law. His execution of Congress's acts through his enforcement of the law is his function; it is not optional with him. His office carries neither discretionary power to enforce the law nor the power to exempt at will anybody from its enforcement. The president must enforce the law on everybody equally, as provided by law, including tax, financial, and criminal laws. By failing to enforce those laws on J. Sotomayor, President Obama committed dereliction of duty. By so failing, he also compounded the crime because he knew of her concealment of assets, and should have known if instead of looking with willful blindness at NYT, WP, and Politico's suspicion, and of looking away with willful ignorance(90§§b-c), he had performed his duty to vet her properly.

8. Since Obamacare had not been passed by Congress yet, the President could not possibly have nominated J. Sotomayor for a justiceship because she happened to agree with its provisions, for nobody knew what the bill would look like in its final form, that is, if it were ever passed. Moreover, the Democrats have been criticized for having rushed Obamacare through Congress with almost no debate so that the members had barely any opportunity to read it. The fact that the bill ran well in excess of 1,000 pages made it all the more difficult for anybody to read it in its entirety Thus, it is reasonable to assume that J. Sotomayor had not read it either. By the President not enforcing the law on her upon an explicit or implicit agreement that in exchange for nominating her to the Supreme Court she would support the constitutionality of Obamacare when, as expected, it came before the Court for review, he committed bribery. In that unlawful swap of benefits, the President abused his power of nomination to turn his nomination of her into the benefit that he gave. In exchange, he got the benefit of an agreement to prejudge Obamacare to be constitutional, whereby he intended to deprive the challenging party of its right to its day in court before a fair and impartial judge; and intended to obstruct justice. Since J. Sotomayor was a public officer, the President committed an act of corruption of a public officer.

9. To vouch for J. Sotomayor's honesty, President Obama covered up her concealment of assets. Since that is a crime, he became an accessory after the fact for the crime already committed. He also became an accessory before the fact for the crime that he knew she would continue to commit, for J. Sotomayor could not thereafter declare her concealed assets without her sudden and unexplainable possession of such assets incriminating her. Therefore, relative to her continuing crime of keeping assets concealed, the President incurs continuing accessorial liability.

10. Assets are concealed to evade taxes and launder money of their unlawful origin. When the President lied to cover up J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets, he abetted and continues to abet her evasion of taxes, which are collected for the common good. So he inflicted a financial injury in fact on the people and still inflicts a continuing financial injury in fact. By allowing her to engage in money laundering, he facilitated and continues to facilitate financial corruption.

11. A judge who breaks the law shows contempt for it and those whose interests it intends to protect. She cannot reasonably be expected to respect the law enough to apply it fairly and impartially. In fact, due to practical considerations, she cannot because a yet to be exposed law-breaking judge is impaired by a conflict of interests: She has a duty to apply the law, but her application of it can lead to investigations and the incrimination of third parties. They can expose her law-breaking and cause those parties to enter into a plea bargain whereby in exchange for leniency they provide information or testimony exposing the judge's law-breaking. The risk of exposure undermines her resolve to apply the law and renders her vulnerable to, and extortionable by, third parties. She owes a debt of survival to those who did not, or have agreed explicitly or implicitly not to, expose her. Her mutually dependent survival, assured through coordination(88§a) becomes her first concern; doing justice is downgraded to only a request of litigants. Her unfitness to discharge the duties of her office is foreseeable. Such foreseeability makes applicable the principle that a person is deemed to intend the reasonable consequences of his acts. By the President nominating for a justiceship J. Sotomayor, whom he knew to be breaking the law by concealing assets, and by causing senators to shepherd her confirmation through Congress(78§6), he exercised power irresponsibly since he intentionally caused a person known to him to be unfit for office to be vested with it. He also intentionally and knowingly undermined the institutional integrity of the Supreme Court, the Federal Judiciary, and the process of judicial confirmation.

12. By so doing, the President has intentionally and knowingly inflicted on the American people the dishonest service of J. Sotomayor. For her next 30 years or so on the Supreme Court, just as she helps shape the law of the land that she will hold others to obey, she will continue to break it and harm others so as to resolve her conflict of interests in favor of her survival(xxxv), her peers(71§4), and those who can expose a source(66§§2-3) and the whereabouts of her concealed assets.

13. The readers of this article may share it with journalists and the rest of the national public. Informed of its considerations at the start of the mid-term election campaign, the public may demand that all candidates and politicians ask the President to release unredacted all FBI vetting reports on Justice Sotomayor. If they raise concerns about her asset-concealing or other law-breaking, then he had at least circumstantial evidence requiring that he not vouch for her honesty because to do so was counterfactual and knowingly deceptive: a lie. Given his motive for, and the consequences of, lying, We the People and our current and would-be representatives can determine whether his lie constitutes an impeachable 'High Crime or Misdemeanor'. Journalists can pursue an investigation(ol:66) guided by a proven devastating query(4¶¶10-14) that can dominate the campaign: What did the President know[23b] about J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets and when did he know it?(ol:54)

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11)…and you may enter it.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

March 20, 2014

On Becoming the Organizer of Presentations of Evidence of Two Unique National Cases of Public Wrongdoing and the Builder of a Coalition for Justice to Enable We the People to Reverse Surveil and Hold Public Servants Accountable and Liable, Which Can Dominate the Mid-term and 2016 Elections and Lead to the Formation of a Civic Movement that Forces Government Reform: the People's Sunrise

In the past few years, media reports of wrongdoing by public officers have rendered the public distrustful of government(ol:11). Evidence in such scandals and in current events points to two unique cases of public wrongdoing that can so outrage the public as to cause it no longer to passively learn about yet another scandal, but rather to actively force politicians to fundamentally reform government. These cases were discussed earlier(ol:55). They can be summarized as queries for further investigation by citizen and professional journalists and the authorities:

The Obama-Sotomayor case and the Follow the money! investigation

What did the President(jur:77§5), his top congressional supporters(78§6), and federal justices and judges[196] know[23b] about Then-Judge, Now-Justice Sotomayor's concealment of assets –suspected by The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico [107a]– and consequent tax evasion; and when(75§d) did they know it? (For an estimate of J. Sotomayor's concealed assets, see[107c]; for a source of assets to conceal(65§§1-3).)

The Federal Judiciary-NSA case and the Follow it wirelessly! investigation

To what extent do federal judges abuse their vast computer network and expertise –which handle hundreds of millions of case files(Lsch:11¶9b.ii)– either alone or with the quid pro quo assistance of the NSA –whose requests for secret surveillance orders are rubberstamped[7] by the federal judges of the secret court established under the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act (FISA)– to conceal assets –a crime[10] under U.S. law, unlike surveillance– by electronically transferring them to secret inland and offshore(ol:1) accounts to launder money of its illegal origin and bring it back as legitimate assets, and to protect wrongdoing judges by interfering with the communications –also a crime(ol:20¶¶11-12)– of complainants(ol:19§D)?

These two cases can outrage the NATIONAL public more deeply than any other scandal up to now: They involve national public officers in wrongdoing motivated, not by national security concerns or even partisan interests, but rather by the crass greed of officers who earn top salaries[211] while so many other people struggle just to survive. These cases reveal such a high degree of coordination among officers to commit crimes and cover them up that the wrongdoing cannot be explained as simply the conduct of rogue or incompetent officers, but rather has been integrated into each branch's modus operandi and into their inter-branch operations. Wrongdoing in government has become institutionalized. It requires a profound reform of government itself.

The main reason why these cases have not been investigated is that they involve the most powerful public officers in our country: Life-tenured federal judges with long memories and the power to defeat even the legislative agenda of the president and his congressional supporters by declaring laws unconstitutional[17a] and engaging in chicanery(Lsch:17§C). Their self-granted impunity(26§d) breeds riskless wrongdoing and instills fear: In the 225 years since the creation of the Federal Judiciary in 1789 –2,131 federal judges were in office on 30sep11[13]–only 8 have been removed![14] Similar official statistics[ii] and their sober analysis must be presented to the public to outrage it and cause it to force reform. You, the reader, can contribute to doing so by organizing presentations thereof and of the unique cases to promote their further investigation.

A. Presentations to audiences of potential investigators as part of a process

The content of the presentation is realistic because it consists of a well-thought out plan of action that is concrete, feasible even with limited means, and reasonably calculated to have the intended effect: Instead of counting on a hero, a martyr, or an angel creating singlehandedly a miraculous change, the plan sets in motion a process that involves ever more people pursuing their own personal and professional interest even as they advance the public interest. This is an application of John Smith's theory on which our market economic works: A "hidden hand" guides each individual's pursuit of his or her own profit to increase the economic welfare of everybody in society. This model can in principle be applied to government reform by the public.

The venue of the presentation is, first, before you and your colleagues so that Dr. Cordero can convince you that he is as well-grounded in reality as he expects you to be; and that there is the prospect of material and moral rewards for you for your effort(ol:3§F). If he manages to convince you, presentations would take place at other venues thanks to your contacts and effort.

The most cost-effective is before journalists, either privately before a group of them or at a press conference. Their interest, among others, would be in winning a Pulitzer Prize and making a name in the media for their own career advancement and the greater reputation of their media outlets. The likely profile of the journalists that would be interested in further investigating the two unique national cases of public wrongdoing is worth considering(jur:lxvi§H). The presentation can also take place by you obtaining invitations from radio and TV talkshow hosts.

Another venue is journalism(ol:54), law(Lsch:1), business(104¶¶236-237), and Information Technololgy(131§b; ol:60§§A-E) schools. The audiences would be mostly of idealistic young adults who still believe that they can change the world for the better; can be inspired by a mission greater than themselves; and are hardworking and meticulous(128§4). They do not have the vested interests that prevent grown-ups from exposing public wrongdoers(81§1). A presentation can be held in a classroom, the school auditorium, a job fair, the fair of student organizations, a momentous speech at a commencement, or a symposium on public wrongdoing and reform held after of a summer of investigation conducted for academic credit or as a paid internship(97§1).

Presentations can also take place at Internet and IT companies. Their interest lies in investigating the Federal Judiciary-NSA case to expose such outrageous abuse of IT and privacy rights as to justify new legislation that protects them from interference by the government.

Presentations can be held at PAC conferences and townhall meetings by newcomers to public life committed to public integrity(ol:58§§A-B). They can help their audiences realize that We the People are the source of political power and masters of all public servants; the latter are entrusted power to exercise it in the People's behalf and are accountable for embezzling it for their benefit. Newcomers can craft a platform of People's empowerment through accountability.

Indeed, a key objective of the presentations is to invite the audiences to join a team of investigators of the cases and thus become active masters of government. They can benefit from the leads that have been gathered and organized in a plan of field and library investigation(ol:66).

B. A series of events revealing a strategy leading to government reform

The findings of the investigative team can be added to those available and made part of the presentation. They will outrage(jur:83§§2-3) the audiences and through them ever more members of the national public. The public will demand to get to the bottom of it, for the news are truly outrageous: the President and Congress allowing judges to engage in concealment of assets, tax evasion, and money laundering to avoid their retaliation; and judges abusing their IT resources to do so and interfere with their complainants' communications. Such demand for news will give ever more journalists and media outlets a market incentive to jump onto the investigative bandwagon(119§1); otherwise, they risk losing their audience and the rest of the public to competitors that offer them the latest news on a story taking hold of the national debate at a critically important time for politicians: the mid-term election campaign and what will follow on its heels, the primaries leading to the 2016 presidential election campaign. That reaction will progressively develop into a Watergate-like generalized media investigation(4¶¶10-14).

C. A Watergate-like generalized media investigation, but more outrage-provoking

It was progressively that any importance was attached to the news about the accidental apprehension of five burglars at the National Democratic Headquarters at the Watergate building complex in Washington, D.C., on June 17, 1972. At first, it was dubbed "a garden variety burglary by five plumbers". But for the next two years, it went from breaking news to ever more outrageous news until it became the Watergate Scandal. It led to the unthinkable: the resignation of President Nixon on August 9, 1974, and the incarceration of all his White House aides for political espionage, abuse of power, and resort to the most corruptive force of public life: money![32]

A media investigation that takes its starting point in the suspicion of The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a], of J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets; and the revelations about NSA's abusive surveillance with the rubberstamping[7] approval of federal judges can proceed much faster. It will be accelerated by something that was not available at all at the time of the Watergate Scandal: computers at the hand of journalists, never mind the public. Today there is also expertise in their use in Follow the money! investigations(ol:2). Just as laypersons have joined the highly technical search for the disappeared Malaysian airliner by analyzing radar data on their computers, the audiences can be encouraged to join both the search for the concealed assets of J. Sotomayor and others[213]; and the Follow it wirelessly! search for evidence of Federal Judiciary-NSA's abuse of their IT resources and interference with complainants' communications(ol:13). The popular investigation can be boosted by an empowering means: social media; thanks to it, the people brought down dictators as they gave rise to the Arab Spring.

An outraged and interconnecting public can force Congress and DoJ-FBI to open official investigations of those cases. The establishment of the 9/11 Commission is precedent therefor. Using their official investigative powers, they can make even more outrageous findings. History can repeat itself, but more forcefully: It can involve not only the presidency, as it did in the Watergate Scandal, but also the Federal Judiciary and Congress. Reform can follow(ol:8§§E-G).

D. From national outrage to a reformative civic movement: the People's Sunrise

As you and your colleagues organize the presentations, you can also coalesce your interlocutors into a group of investigators, information disseminators, and opinion shapers that form a coalition. The latter can enable the public to engage in 'reverse surveillance': The opposite of the unlawful surveillance of the people by the NSA, it is the paying of keen attention by an outraged We the People to how their public servants exercise the power entrusted to them so that their performance increasingly becomes transparent and allows the People to hold their servants not only accountable, but also liable to compensate those whom they injure with their wrongdoing(160 §8). That is how a civic movement can develop; the Tea Party is its precedent. It can force fundamental reform of government by politicians, lest they be voted out of office, and attract newcomers. In a realistic, enlightened way, it can strive not only for lower taxes, but also for legal, economic, social, and political justice through servants committed to public integrity and to making the common good shine for all: the People's Sunrise movement. For that, a grateful nation can recognize you as the Organizer of Presentations and the Builder of the Coalition for Justice.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11)…and you may enter it.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

April 14, 2014

Doing Your Part To Impeach and Remove President Obama On Legal Grounds for Wrongdoing In Coordination With Officers of the Other Branches And Bring About Substantial Reform of Government Through The People's Sunrise Civic Movement

1. In a democracy, differences of opinion and policy do not and should not constitute good cause to impeach and remove any public officer, let alone the president. Replacement of elected officers is achieved through the electoral process; non-elected ones are fired or caused to resign by the public's expression of loss of trust in them. That is why the proposal for impeaching and removing President Obama and others(ol:63,55) summarized below relies on proving that they have done wrong amounting to a 'high crime or misdemeanor' under the Constitution, Art. II, Sec. IV[12b].

A. Wrongdoing by the President, J. Sotomayor, the Federal Judiciary, and NSA

2. President Obama has done wrong by conniving with another public officer, namely, his first nominee to the Supreme Court, Then-Judge, Now-Justice Sotomayor. She was suspected of concealing assets by three top-rated, national, and even so-called liberal, Democrat-leaning papers, that is, The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a]. He knew from the FBI vetting report on her and, had he proceeded with due diligence[107c], would have known, about her concealment of assets. But he condoned it because he wanted to cater to those petition-ing that he nominate another woman and the first Latina to the Supreme Court to replace Retiring Justice Souter, and from whom he expected in exchange support for the passage by Congress of the Affordable Health Care bill (now the law popularly known as Obamacare), his signature legislation.

3. The NSA is an agency of the Executive, gives President Obama the daily national security briefing, and its budget has been almost doubled by him. Its secret requests for secret surveillance orders are rubberstamped[ol:7] by the federal judges of the secret FISA court. After its unlawful surveillance was revealed by E. Snowden, the President promised to curb its power because 'not everything that one can do technologically one should do'[16a>Ln:293], thus implying that NSA had done anything if technically possible even if unlawful or unethical. This begs the question whether with his connivance, NSA has entered into a quid pro quo with judges to be allowed to surveil unlawfully in exchange for its use of its Information Technology resources to transfer judges' assets between concealed and disclosed accounts, and to interfere with the communications of complainants about judges' wrongdoing(ol:19§D) so as to defeat their efforts "to assemble" to expose their "grievances" against, and seek "redress" from, judges(Const., 1st Amdt.[268]).

B. Outrageousness of wrongdoing committed for money, condoned for politics

4. Wrongdoing by a Supreme Court justice is in itself outrageous. Judges, who apply the law to others, never mind justices, who say what the law of the land is, are supposed to set the example of respect for the law by complying with it. The concealment of assets committed by Then-Judge Sotomayor with the connivance of the President constitutes wrongdoing of a nature that cannot be excused by even his supporters. 'National security' has nothing to do with it; crass greed is its only motive: Concealing assets is the judges' self-help solution to "the single greatest problem facing the Judicial Branch today: inadequacy of judicial salaries", as stated by Former Chief Justice Rehnquist and repeated by C. J. Roberts[30]. Assets are concealed, e.g., by electronic transfer to offshore accounts(ol:2), to evade taxes and launder money of its illegal origin so that it can be brought back to be used openly in legitimate activities. Those are crimes[ol:10]. When committed by a justice, who earns four times the average household income[211], those crimes exacerbate the outrage of the national public, a significant segment of whom is struggling financially to survive.

5. One's understanding of federal judges' motives to enter into an unlawful quid pro quo, conceal assets, and do other wrongs(5§3; Lsch:17§C) is enhanced by learning of their means and opportunity(21§§1-3) to do so. The evidence of wrongdoing by J. Sotomayor and her peers(65§§1-3) shows that wrongdoing is the Federal Judiciary's institutionalized modus operandi(49:§4).

C. Need for an outraged national public; politicians' sensitivity during elections

6. To cause Congress to impeach and remove a president and a justice nominated by him and confirmed by the Senate(78§6), it is necessary a NATIONAL public outraged at them and at a Congress and the Executive's DoJ-FBI that have failed to exercise their 'checks and balances' on the Judiciary, allowing the emergence of unaccountable(21§a), wrongdoing Judges Above the Law.

7. The House must draft and adopt the articles stating the 'high crimes or misdemeanors' with which the public officer is charged. The Senate must conduct the trial on the articles of impeachment; if it votes at least one of them, the officer is convicted, and his or her removal is mandatory. The trial is presided over by the chief justice. Would C. J. Roberts disqualify himself or be disqualified if the Senate prosecutors notified him -as they likely would the other justices too- that they intended to call him, as circuit justice[98], presiding officer of the Judicial Conference[91], and the justices' 'coworker and boss', to testify to the impact of "the inadequacy of judicial salaries" on judges' morale and conduct, and its role on J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets and the latter's coordinated enablement by Judiciary principals(93§e) and accessories[231b], and NSA?

8. The mid-term election campaign will set the stage for what will begin right after it has ended: the primaries and the all-important 2016 presidential election campaign. This means that for longer than the next two years, politicians, in general, and incumbent members of, and candidates running for, Congress and for the presidency, in particular, will be most sensitive to an outraged public. Insensitive politicians are punished by voters' withholding donations, volunteer work, and word of mouth support; their punishing attitude is spread by media reports and opinion polls. Soon they either drop out of the race or face electoral defeat. A politician shows sensitivity to public sentiment by taking an unambiguous, committed position on the issue provoking it. Doing so is needed when the sentiment is the outrage of a public across party lines who feels treated as an inferior class of foolish citizens forced to obey the law by a superior class of smart people who abuse their power to profit from disregarding it with impunity, as do Judges Above the Law.

D. Need for the media to outrage the national public and potential rewards

9. To outrage the NATIONAL public the news investigative and disseminating work of journalists and media outlets, especially the national networks, is indispensable. Thus, the incentives for their undertaking such work are critically important: They can gain valuable material and moral rewards(ol:3§F) by pursuing the Obama-Sotomayor and Federal Judiciary-NSA stories(ol:55). They are national and unique, involving in wrongdoing a sitting president, a sitting justice nominated by him, and judges so far held unaccountable(21§A); and they inflict injury in fact(ol:72¶ 10) on litigants and the rest of the people. Those stories can outrage the public, prompt it to demand ever more related news, and make it profitable to invest journalistic resources to obtain and offer such news. Also, journalists and media outlets can reasonably expect to go down in history as those who broke and/or pursued most effectively stories that so grabbed the public's attention as to cause ever more journalists and outlets to jump on the investigative bandwagon and have a historic effect: the first-ever, Watergate-like generalized media investigation of the Judiciary.

10. The media investigation of the Watergate Scandal(4¶¶10-14) that began on June 17, 1972, led to the resignation of President Nixon on August 8, 1974, and the imprisonment of all his White House aides. They were the only public officers involved in Watergate. The latter's scope and importance would be surpassed by these stories: The three government branches are doing wrong in coordination. The media also exposed the financial "improprieties"(92§d) of Justice Abe Fortas, causing him to withdraw his name for the chief justiceship and then resign on May 14, 1969.

11. Media investigation of these two stories can cause the resignation or impeachment of not only the president, but also of J. Sotomayor, some or even all the other justices, and any number of judges and Judiciary staff, and the indictment of other public officers, such as those of NSA, for having participated in, enabled, or condoned(88§§a-c) concealment of assets and other forms of 'high crimes and misdemeanors'. No doubt, there are substantial economic, professional, and personal incentives for the media and journalists to investigate those stories, which have Pulitzer Prize potential, for they can generate the coming electoral season's dominant and decisive issues.

E. 'Doing your part' by organizing presentations of the stories & their investigation

12. To draw public attention to the Obama-Sotomayor and the Federal Judiciary-NSA unique national stories(ol:55) together with their enabling circumstances(21§§1-3), and promote their investigation, a plan for concrete and realistic action(ol:73) is respectfully submitted to you, the Reader, and your colleagues. In brief, it calls on you to contact journalists; law(Lsch:1), journalism(ol:54), business(104¶¶236-237), and Information Technology(ol:60) schools; and public interest organizations to hold a series of presentations of those stories in order to interest ever more journalists, students(129§b), and professors to investigate them. They can do so on their own or by joining a team of professionals(128§4) participating in a multidisciplinary academic and business venture(119§1) to investigate those stories during the campaign season and thereafter(130§5).

13. The presentations can convince reasonable persons, including members of Congress of either party, of the legal grounds(ol:70) for impeaching and removing the President and J. Sotomayor. They can make the public realize that wrongdoing among public officers and even the branches is so widespread, routine, and coordinated that profound reform of government is needed.

F. Empowering We the People to assert our status as masters of all public servants

14. You, your colleagues, and Dr. Cordero can form the group of people who instead of just swapping emails among themselves or merely whining about public wrongdoing, take action to make the public realize that in "government of, by, and for the people[172] according to the rule of law[ol:6]", We the People are the masters of all public officers, whom we hire to perform services that we need and fire when they fail to perform them: So they are our public servants. Asserting that tenet of democracy can give rise to a civic movement that forces reform of government to prevent, detect, and punish wrongdoing by public servants. The reform(158§6-7) must empower We the People to exercise our right to 'reverse surveil'(Lsch:2) all our public officers, use the enlightening information thus obtained to render their performance transparent, and hold them accountable and even liable for compensation to their victims(160§8): the People's Sunrise movement(ol:29).

15. The goal of reform shows that the motive for doing your part in impeaching and removing the President and others is not unprincipled animosity toward a Democrat that leads to nothing but his uncritical replacement with an equally wrongdoing Republican. Rather, the driving force should be the permanent and significant promotion of the public interest by empowering We the People to be masters of their government. That is a lofty goal with practical benefits worth doing not just a part, but a whole lot for.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11)…and you may enter it

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

April 27, 2014

Mrs. Amy Riisna Thompson and Mensa Members La Paz, Baja California Sur, CA
riisna@hotmail.com

Dear Mrs. Thompson and Mensa Members,

Thank you, Mrs. Thompson, for your reply to my article(ol:76). I respectfully propose that you and your fellow Mensa members use your intellectual and social resources for the common good by exposing evidence of public wrongdoing through two unique stories and thus set in motion a process of enlightening We the People and empowering them to take hold of their government. The text below explains that this should interest you because you can play a key role in the coming elections that can earn you national recognition as Champions of the People.

A. The investigation to impeach President Obama as a strategic step toward exposing coordinated wrongdoing in the Federal Judiciary

1. My study of the Federal Judiciary, Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing: Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting(jur:i), discusses inter alia how the impeachment of President Obama can be based on legal grounds(ol:70) rather than spring from personal or partisan antipathy. Nevertheless, the main point of the discussion and of the strategy proposed therein is not to impeach the President. Although his impeachment is legally viable, even without it he will be out of office by law in January 2017 anyway.

2. By contrast, federal judges are appointed for life. Whereas 2,131 were in office on September 30, 2011[13], in the 225 years since the creation of the Federal Judiciary in 1789, the number of them impeached and removed is 8![14] Such historic assurance of irremovability in practice has given them the sense that they are unaccountable and can act with impunity. It endows their wrongdoing(5§3) with risklessness, making it all the more attractive to engage in its individual form as well as in its more system corruptive and deleterious form: coordinated wrongdoing(133§4).

3. Nevertheless, federal judges are the most vulnerable public officers to published evidence that they may have violated their own injunction 'to avoid even the appearance of impropriety'[123a]. Indeed, it was through the revelations by Life magazine of the financial 'improprieties' of Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas that he was forced first to withdraw his name for the chief justiceship, and then to resign on May 14, 1969(92§d). His conduct was not even a misdemeanor; in fact, it did not offend against any law whatsoever. It was simply conduct improper for a justice.

4. It follows that federal judges are all the more vulnerable to suspicion of their criminal conduct. Concealment of assets is a crime[ol:10]; it is committed to evade taxes and launder money of its unlawful origin(cf. 65§§1-3). It was the three top, 'liberal and Democrat-leaning' newspapers, i.e., The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a], that suspected Then-Judge, Now-Justice Sotomayor, the first justiceship nominee of President Obama, of concealing assets.

5. The large and ever growing segment of the public that wants the President impeached can find legal grounds therefor through an investigation of his nomination of J. Sotomayor. The findings can so outrage(83§§2-3) the rest of the public as to win over more of its members to support his impeachment as well as a more promising investigation: the discussion's main and strategic point.

B. The President's personal interest in covering up J. Sotomayor's wrongdoing

6. The President learned from the FBI vetting report on Then-Judge Sotomayor, and by proceeding with due diligence would have learned[107c], that she was concealing assets. But he covered it up and mendaciously vouched to the public for her honesty. He wanted to ingratiate himself with those petitioning that he nominate another woman and the first Latina to replace Retiring Justice Souter. In exchange, he expected them to support the passage by Congress of the Affordable Health Care bill, now the law popularly known as Obamacare. It was the centerpiece of his legislative agenda. Its enactment would establish his legacy in marked contrast to his predecessors, who for decades had failed in their attempts to set up a universal health insurance system. That was his personal motive for lying to the nation. It involved his condonation of J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets, but not only that. He also condoned and helped perpetuate the circumstances enabling such concealment by her and her peers[213b]: federal judges' pervasive secrecy, self-exemption from accountability, and motive, means, and opportunity to do wrong(21§§1-3).

C. Outrage exacerbated by the investigation of the Federal Judiciary-NSA story

7. Public outrage would be exacerbated if journalists revealed a quid pro quo between the Judiciary and an already suspect NSA. The latter has up to 100% of its secret requests for secret orders of surveillance approved by the judges of the secret Foreign Intelligence Surveillance court[ol:5fn7]. The President has acknowledged implicitly that NSA does anything that it can do technologically regardless of whether it should do it[152c>Ln:293]. The exacerbation would occur upon journalists:
    a. confirming the probable cause to believe(ol:19§D) that the Federal Judiciary abuses its own vast Information Technology resources(Lsch:11¶9.b.ii), particularly if it does it with the assistance of the NSA, to interfere with the communications –which is a crime(ol:20fn3)– of complainants about judges' wrongdoing and prevent them from exercising their First Amendment right 'to assemble to petition for redress of their grievances against them'; and
    b. revealing that NSA repays federal judges by abusing its IT resources, not 'in the interest of national security', but rather to abet the judges' base greed by transferring electronically between disclosed and secret accounts their assets to be concealed or laundered.

D. From investigating the President and J. Sotomayor's involvement in assets concealment to revealing the Judiciary's wrongdoing enabling circumstances

8. Prompted by the desire of many Republicans and a growing number of disappointed Democrats to impeach the President, media outlets and journalists can investigate his wrongdoing relating to J. Sotomayor's concealment of assets because of the legal grounds(ol:70) that it offers as foundation for his impeachment. Given the current national mood of distrust(ol:11) of the President and his administration, they can initially be guided by a query that proved in its application to the Watergate Scandal(4¶¶10-14) its capacity to scoop up the nation's attention and bring down its president. It can be rephrased here thus: What did the President(77§5), the DoJ-FBI, and the IRS know about Then-Judge Sotomayor's concealment of assets, and when(75§d) did they know it?
9. But their investigation will soon take a life of its own. While pursuing the legal implications of the lie to the public of a president intent on laying down the basis for his place in history, it will stumble upon a government that has turned its basis in the rule of law into a sinkhole due to its undermining crisscrossing currents of wrongdoing. The findings' own logic will inexorably cause the investigative query to mutate into a more fundamental one: What circumstances have enabled J. Sotomayor and her peers to engage in concealment of assets and other forms of wrongdoing? The stream of findings will keep exacerbating the public's outrage regardless of partisan affiliation and justifying the investigation going deeper as it makes a realization emerge ever more convincingly: Federal judges do wrong among themselves and with other insiders[169] of the legal system in such coordinated(88§a), routine, and extensive manner that wrongdoing has become the Federal Judiciary's institutionalized modus operandi(49§4), while Congress and the Executive have become their accessories before(78§6) and after(90§§b-d) their wrongdoing?

E. The investigation can dominate politics, reshape government & earn rewards

10. As the investigation of the queries reveal the nature, extent, and gravity of the wrongdoing by the President, J. Sotomayor, the Judiciary, and NSA as well as the injury in fact(ol:72¶¶10-12) that they inflict on people, public outrage and demand for news thereon will keep growing. That will generate a market incentive for ever more media outlets and journalists to pursue the queries to offer such news while earning more advertising fees. Thus will develop the first ever, Watergate-like generalized media investigation of wrongdoing in the Judiciary and the rest of the government. An outraged public will demand successfully that politicians open official investigations and undertake substantive reform(158§§6-7) or pledge to do so. The creation of the 9/11 Commission(Lsch:12¶13b) is a precedent for this scenario; the season that the nation is entering makes it more likely: the 2½-year long mid-term, primary, and presidential election campaigns. During them, the public can withhold from unresponsive candidates donations, volunteered work, and word of mouth support, forcing them to either drop out of the race or face defeat at the polls.

11. Such a long investigation with the highest political stakes warrants any investment by media outlets and journalists. Its findings and the appearance of impropriety cast by justices and judges will heighten the clamor for the President's impeachment and can lead to the resignation of J. Sotomayor and peers of her. Likewise, they will shape the issues and can determine the outcome of the elections. A grateful public will bestow many material and moral rewards(ol:3§F) upon principled and ambitious media outlets and journalists. The perceptive ones among them will realize early on that pursuing the Obama-Sotomayor and the Federal Judiciary-NSA stories(ol:55, 66) offers a more enticing economic and professional potential than the President's impeachment.

12. From an outraged public a civic movement(164§9) can arise that compels a reallocation of political power, of which We the People are the only source. This can result in a new We the People–government paradigm: The People gain an assertive self-awareness as masters of 'government of, by, and for the people'[172], and the realization that it is they who hire all public officers as their public servants to render the masters needed services. As masters, they are entitled to practice 'reverse surveillance'(Lsch:2) on their servants to obtain the enlightening information required to make their performance transparent and all servants, including judicial ones, accountable and liable to compensate the victims of their wrongdoing(160§8). So is reallocated power exercised by THE PEOPLE'S SUNRISE civic movement(ol:29). This popular empowering can be fostered among the People of America by a multidisciplinary academic and business venture(119§1) and then by an institute(130§5). It can trend to the peoples abroad, as other developments here have done.

F. Request to inform, organize presentations & become Champions of the People

13. I would like to request that you, Ms. Thompson, reach out to your Mensa colleagues to inform them of the evidence supporting the investigation(ol:66) of the Obama-Sotomayor(65§§1-3) and Federal Judiciary-NSA(ol:19§D) stories; and of the proposal(ol:76) for professionals like you all to organize presentations(ol:76) thereof by me to you, and at press conferences(97§1); media and public interest entities(86§4); political meetings(ol:58); and schools of law(Lsch:1), journalism (ol:54), business(104¶¶236-237), and IT(ol:60). You and they can thus set in motion a process that empowers We the People, who can recognize you all as Champions of the People's Sunrise.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11)…and you may enter it. Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Blank

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

Judicial Discipline Reform

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472
tel. (718) 827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

September 18, 2013

The Student President and Officers and the Class of the Law School and College of Law

Dear Class President, Officers, and Class,

The revelations by E. Snowden of government surveillance of the Internet communications and collection of phone records of millions of Americans have grave implications for public interest advocates: Power loathes bounds and is most effective in secrecy so that it will abuse others unless exposed and prevented by another power. Federal judges wield the strongest power: nationally over people's rights, property, liberty, and lives. Neither the Executive Branch, Congress, nor the media dare exercise checks and balances on, or expose, them(jur:81§1). The result is lack of 'reverse surveillance' by We the People's representatives of them and their Judiciary. It is aggravated by their pervasive secrecy. But if exposed, judges are most vulnerable, for they must "avoid even the appearance of impropriety"[277]: Life magazine's revelations of the financial improprieties of Justice Abe Fortas forced him first to withdraw his name for the chief justiceship, then resign(92§d). So I am offering to make the case(171§F) to you and your classmates and faculty for revealing in the public interest judges' secrecy and abuse of power(5§3), thus advocating The People's right to "government of laws and not of men"[6]; to be the informed citizenry that democracy needs; and to 'surveil'(130§§5-8) public servants to hold them accountable.

Currently, 1. the Judiciary holds all its administrative, adjudicative, policy-making, and disciplinary meetings behind closed doors[29] and no press conferences[71]. 2. Chief circuit[22a] judges abuse its statutory[18a] self-disciplining authority by dismissing 99.82%(jur:10-14) of complaints against their peers; with other judges they deny up to 100% of appeals to review such dismissals (24§b), granting themselves impunity. 3. Up to 9 of every 10 appeals are disposed of ad-hoc through no-reason summary orders[66a] or opinions so "perfunctory"[68] that they are neither published nor precedential[70], raw fiats of star-chamber power. 4. Justices are unelected yet life-tenured, as are district and circuit judges; the latter appoint bankruptcy judges for renewable 14-year terms [61a] with no consent of popular representatives. 5. In the 224 years since the creation of their Judiciary in 1789, only 8 federal judges[13] have been impeached and removed[14]. 6. A single federal judge can hold unconstitutional what 535 members of Congress and the President have debated, voted, and enacted[17a]. 7. Judges are influenced by the most insidious corruptor, money!(27§2)

The public interest and a proper legal education entitle you to learn official and publicly filed statistics[ii], yet little known, such as those above, and to reveal them to the public and the media(ol:37) so that they may further(i) investigate(98§§2-4) them. Just as The Guardian was the conduit of Snowden's revelations(ol:17), The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico [107a] revealed facts supporting their suspicion of concealment of assets[107c] by Then-Judge, Now-Justice Sotomayor. The unique story(xxxv) of a sitting justice's tax evasion/money laundering and a sitting president's condonation of it and nomination of her can launch a Watergate-like generalized Follow the money! investigation(ol:1,2). A Follow the wire! investigation(ol:19§D) can reveal how judges abuse, not in the national security, but rather their own, interest their IT resources to interfere with their exposers' communications. Exposing federal judges' coordinated and routine abuse of power as their institutionalized modus operandi(49§4) can force historic reform of all judiciaries to ensure accountability and the rule of law. Hence, I encourage you to share this with all school members and invite me to make the case for the advocacy of reverse surveillance(122 §§2-4). For exercising your power in the public's defense, you may earn its national recognition.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11)

Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

October 21, 2013

A Presentation in the Public Interest of official statistics, reports, and statements pointing to abuse of power and secrecy in the Federal Judiciary; and a call for 'reverse surveillance' by We the People of judges and their Judiciary to expose them, cause public outrage, and lead the media, the public, and voters to force historic reform that can be the start of a new We the People-government paradigm: the People's Sunrise

Re: Offer of a public interest presentation of official statistics pointing to abuse of power and secrecy in the Federal Judiciary, and a call for 'reverse surveillance' to expose it, cause public outrage, and lead the media, the public, and voters to force historic reform, beginning with 1. a) a fraud & forensic accounting examination of judges' incongruous and implausible publicly filed financial disclosure reports, supported by 1. b) a journalistic investigation of both their assets and their abuse of their IT resources and order-issuing power to interfere with the communications of advocates of honest judiciaries; 2. a freedom of information request for FBI reports on vetted judicial candidates and a public demand for the President to order their release; and 3. a multidisciplinary academic and business venture to pioneer the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting aimed at the creation of an institute of judicial unaccountability reporting and re-form advocacy. All this can lead to transparency in the Judiciary's and its judges' operations; their being monitored by citizen boards; and their public accountability entailing liability to compensate those injured by their abuse. A new We the People-government paradigm can develop: the People's Sunrise. It can be promoted by a conference and the pioneering publication of a volume of articles on judicial unaccountability reporting and advocacy of legislated reform.

1. The revelations by Edward Snowden of government surveillance of the Internet communications and collection of phone records of millions of Americans have grave implications for law students and public interest advocates: Power loathes bounds and is most effective in secrecy so that it will abuse others unless exposed and prevented by another power. Federal judges wield the strongest power: nationally over people's rights, property, liberty, and lives. But neither the Executive Branch, Congress, nor the media dare exercise checks and balances on, or expose, them(jur:81§1). The result: lack of democratic, 'reverse surveillance' by We the People's representatives of those judges and their Federal Judiciary. It is aggravated by their pervasive secrecy.

2. However, if exposed, judges are most vulnerable, for they must "avoid even the appearance of impropriety[277]: The revelations by Life magazine of the financial improprieties of Justice Abe Fortas forced him first to withdraw his name for the chief justiceship, then resign(92§d). Thus, I am offering to make the case(171§F) to you and your classmates and faculty for revealing in the public interest judges' secrecy and abuse of power(5§3), thus advocating The People's right to "government of laws and not of men"[6]; to be the informed citizenry that democracy needs; and to that end, to 'surveil'(130§§5-8) public servants so as to hold them accountable.

A. Statistics on secrecy and abuse of power in the Federal Judiciary(jur:21§A)

1. The Judiciary holds all its administrative, adjudicative, policy-making, and disciplinary meetings behind closed doors[29] and no press conferences[71].

2. Chief circuit[22a] judges abuse their Judiciary's statutory[18a] self-disciplining authority by dismissing 99.82%(jur:10-11) of complaints against their peers; with other judges they deny up to 100% of appeals to review such dismissals(24§b). They ensure their impunity by rendering ineffectual a statute adopted by Congress and signed by the president, arrogating to themselves the power to in effect and self-interest abrogate an act of Congress and place themselves above the law while depriving the people of the protection that the act intended for them.

3. Up to 9 of every 10 appeals are disposed of ad-hoc through no-reason summary orders[66a] or opinions so "perfunctory"[68] that they are neither published nor precedential[70], raw fiats of star-chamber power.

4. Justices are unelected yet life-tenured, as are district and circuit judges; the latter appoint bankruptcy judges for renewable 14-year terms[61a] with no consent of popular representatives. Bankruptcy judges' decisions(46¶¶87,88) are appealed to the very judges who appointed them and to those who can remove them. This generates a situation pregnant with bias, conflict of interests(57¶119), and decision-making dependency(56§§e-f).

5. In the 224 years since the creation of their Judiciary in 1789, only 8 federal judges[13] have been impeached and removed[14] –2,131 were in office on September 30, 2011[13]–. Hence, once a person is confirmed as a federal judge or justice, he can rely on the secular assurance that he can do whatever he wants and nevertheless keep his job and do so while receiving a salary that cannot be diminished[12], which now amounts to around $200,000[211]. Such effectively absolute job assurance regardless of performance renders superfluous any sense of duty and due diligence. It displaces the mentality of a public servant holding public office with the attitude of a feudal lord shouting "in my court!" Lawyers, parties, and the rest of the vassals are exacted homage in the form of giving them "your Honor here, your Honor there" subservient treatment under pain of the ordeal of "you are in contempt!" Power so abused under lifetime protection of dismissal of complaints without any investigation(jur:12-14) goes to judges' heads. Such is human nature.

6. As effect and cause, a single federal judge can hold unconstitutional what 535 members of Congress and the President, elected and even reelected by over 50 million people, have debated, voted, and enacted[17a].

7. Judges are influenced by the most insidious corruptor, money!(27§2) Just the bankruptcy judges decided who kept or received the $373 billion at stake in only the personal bankruptcies filed in CY10[31]. About 95% of those bankruptcies are filed by individuals, the great majority of whom appear pro se[33] and, unable to defend themselves, fall prey to a bankruptcy fraud scheme(66§2).

8. Federal judges engage in financial wrongdoing –to evade taxes or launder money of its illegal provenance– and non-financial wrongdoing(5§3) because their secrecy ensures its risklessness and their coordinated and routine practice of it makes it acceptable and profitable[211].

B. The statistics' implications for you

3. If your professors or your employers knew that they were entrenched for life and could unaccountably(21§A) wield power for material and professional profit in every matter that they handled so that they had the means, motive, and opportunity to do wrong but neither Congress, the Executive Branch nor the media would dare criticize, let alone investigate, them, would such unchecked power, unbalanced due to lack of penalizing consequences, corrupt them absolutely[28], causing[32] them to abuse with a sense of entitlement your rights, property, liberty, and life?

C. Revelation of a unique story leading to reform in the public interest

4. The public interest and a well-rounded legal education give you the right and impose on you the duty to learn official and publicly filed documents and statistics[ii], yet little known, such as those above, and to reveal them to the public(97§§1-2) and the media(ol:37) so that they may further(65§B) investigate(100§§3-4) them. Just as The Guardian was the conduit of Snowden's revelations(ol:17), The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a] revealed facts supporting their suspicion of concealment of assets[107c] by Then-Judge, Now-Justice Sotomayor.

5. The unique story(xxxv) of a sitting justice's tax evasion/money laundering and a sitting president's condonation of it and nomination of her can launch a Watergate-like generalized Follow the money! investigation(ol:1,2). Its first step can be a request for the FBI vetting reports on judicial candidates(ol:29) and a study of the incongruous, implausible, and meaningless data[107c] contained in federal judges' mandatory financial disclosure reports publicly filed[213] annually under the Ethics in Government Act[107d] and when confirmation hearings are held by the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee on Judicial Nominations[107b].

6. A Follow the wire! investigation(ol:19§D) can reveal how judges, pursuing not the national security, but rather their own, interest, abuse their IT network and expertise to interfere with their exposers' communications. Those IT resources are so vast as to allow the electronic filing, management, and retrieval of hundreds of millions of docket entries, briefs, motions, orders, etc. They enable interference that, unlike surveillance, is a crime under 18 U.S.C. §2511(ol:20¶¶11-12).

7. The revelation of judges' participation in such organized criminal activity can set off a scandal that provokes more outrage and has farther-reaching repercussions than that stirred up by Snowden's revelations. Indeed, federal judges' coordinated, widespread, and routine abuse of power can be exposed as their institutionalized modus operandi(49§4). The ensuing public outrage can force historic reform of all judiciaries to ensure judges' accountability and their respect for the rule of law. Reformative changes can lead to transparent operation of judges and their judiciaries; their being monitored by citizen boards(160§8) for reverse surveillance; and their answerability to complaints publicly filed, heard, and determined by boards empowered to impose disciplinary measures, such as ordering that they compensate those that they have injured. This can be the start of a new We the People-government paradigm: the People's Sunrise(ol:29).

8. The pursuit of this objective can begin with a presentation of the official statistics discussed in my study "Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing" (i) and a multidisciplinary academic(128§4) and business(119§1) venture intended to pioneer the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting(4¶¶10-14); conduct highly advanced IT research and development(131§b); and engage in judicial reform advocacy(155§e).

D. What you can do in the public interest

9. I encourage you to check the references; share this email with your classmates and their organizations and faculty; and invite me to make the case for reverse surveillance by We the People, the holding of a conference(97§1), a multidisciplinary academic and business venture(119 §1) to pioneer(98§2) the news and publishing(154§d) field of judicial unaccountability reporting and legislated(158§7) reform, and the publication of a volume of topical articles(122§§2-3).

10. For exercising your power in the public's defense, you may earn substantial material and moral rewards(ol:3§6), such as becoming a national Champion of Justice of the People's Sunrise.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11)

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

September 9, 2013

Jodie G. Roure, J.D., Ph.D., Associate Professor John Jay College of Criminal Justice, CUNY
524 W. 59th Street, Room 08.63.05 dir. line (212)237-8672; main office (212)237-8749
New York, NY 10019 fax (212)237-8664 or 8742

Dear Professor Roure,

Thank you for sharing with me your request for guest speakers to address your first year students. I am willing to address your classes on the issue of how the judiciary affects adversely not only minorities and the poor, but also everybody else due to a notion that is currently debated nationally: surveillance. However, two twists give this notion a fresh look, one appropriate to college students, who have inquisitive minds and are still free of obfuscating vested interests.

The first is democratic, 'reverse surveillance'. This means that the conductors and the subjects of the 'surveillance' are not the government and the people, respectively, but rather We the People surveil the government, in general, and the judiciary, in particular. The second twist is that the lack of reverse surveillance has allowed pervasive secrecy, especially in the Federal Judiciary, the model for its state counterparts, with the result that precisely in the government branch charged with applying the law wrongdoing festers as its institutionalized modus operandi.

Secrecy in the Judiciary is most troubling, for "justice must not only be done, it must manifestly and undoubtedly be seen to be done"[*>fn71]. Judges' wrongdoing enabled by secrecy is inimical to their office: to administer Equal Justice Under Law. They too must equally abide by the law, lest their Judiciary's foundation in integrity and moral authority deteriorate so deeply as to cause public trust in it to collapse. For facts showing the pervasiveness of their secrecy and the effort to expose them, see the letter to New York Times Executive Editor Jill Abramson(ol:37).

The above constitutes the informational part of the address. The second part is the inspirational one: the presentation of how the students' idealistic belief in their capacity to change the world for the better can be put to work through advocacy of judicial transparency and accountability. The extent of your students' advocacy in the public interest depends on you. I can:

1. limit my interactive speech to one that imbues your students with the conviction that they are embarking on college level studies, not to passively acquire knowledge, but rather to actively contribute on the strength of knowledge and in a concrete manner to making a more just society;
2. encourage them to learn about the structure and functioning of the Federal Judiciary so that they may be able to 'argue their case' to your faculty; law, journalism, and business students; and the media, for all of them to advocate more reverse surveillance of the judiciary by the people; or
3. present to them a legal research project along the lines set forth in my The DeLano Case Course, (dcc:1) with a view to their making a multimedia presentation(dcc:11) -with legal, statistical, journalistic, business, and IT contents- on how judges' unaccountability enables their riskless wrongdoing, such as their abuse of the vast IT infrastructure and expertise to interfere with the communications of advocates of 'sunshine as the best disinfectant' for secrecy-bred wrongdoing.

You and your students can make a name for yourselves as you implement a new model for hands-on education in the public interest that takes action toward realizing the ideal of Equal Justice Under Law. Can you image how much more appealing to prospective employers your students would be after having gained that experience?(dcc:8) I look forward to hearing from you.

Dare trigger history! Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

Judicial Discipline Reform

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472
tel. (718) 827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

September 21, 2013

David Schultz, Esq.
Media Freedom and Information Access Clinic
Yale Law School, New Haven, CT 06520-8215
c/o: Levine, Sullivan, Koch & Schultz, NY, NY 10036

Dear Mr. Schultz,

The revelations by E. Snowden of government surveillance of the Internet communications and collection of phone records of millions of Americans have grave implications for public interest advocates: Power loathes bounds and is most effective in secrecy so that it will abuse others unless exposed and prevented by another power. Federal judges wield the strongest power: nationally over people's rights, property, liberty, and lives. Neither the Executive Branch, Congress, nor the media dare exercise checks and balances on, or expose, them(*>jur:81§1). The result is lack of 'reverse surveillance' by We the People's representatives of them and their Judiciary. It is aggravated by their pervasive secrecy. But if exposed, judges are most vulnerable, for they must "avoid even the appearance of impropriety"[*>fn277]: Life magazine's revelations of the financial improprieties of Justice Abe Fortas forced him first to withdraw his name for the chief justiceship, then resign(92§d). So I am offering to make the case(171§F) to you, the students, and the faculty for revealing in the public interest judges' secrecy and abuse of power(5§3), thus advocating The People's right to "government of laws and not of men"[6]; to be the informed citizenry that democracy needs; and to 'surveil'(130§§5-8) public servants to hold them accountable.

Currently, 1. the Judiciary holds all its administrative, adjudicative, policy-making, and disciplinary meetings behind closed doors[29] and no press conferences[71]. 2. Chief circuit[22a] judges abuse its statutory[18a] self-disciplining authority by dismissing 99.82%(jur:10-14) of complaints against their peers; with other judges they deny up to 100% of appeals to review such dismissals (24§b), granting themselves impunity. 3. Up to 9 of every 10 appeals are disposed of ad-hoc through no-reason summary orders[66a] or opinions so "perfunctory"[68] that they are neither published nor precedential[70], raw fiats of star-chamber power. 4. Justices are unelected yet life-tenured, as are district and circuit judges; the latter appoint bankruptcy judges for renewable 14-year terms [61a] with no consent of popular representatives. 5. In the 224 years since the creation of their Judiciary in 1789, only 8 federal judges[13] have been impeached and removed[14]. 6. A single federal judge can hold unconstitutional what 535 members of Congress and the President have debated, voted, and enacted[17a]. 7. Judges are influenced by the most insidious corruptor, money!(27§2)

The public interest and a proper legal education entitle you to learn official and publicly filed statistics[ii], yet little known, such as those above, and to reveal them to the public and the media(ol:37) so that they may further(i) investigate(98§§2-4) them. Just as The Guardian was the conduit of Snowden's revelations(ol:17), The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico [107a] revealed facts supporting their suspicion of concealment of assets[107c] by Then-Judge, Now-Justice Sotomayor. The unique story(xxxv) of a sitting justice's tax evasion/money laundering and a sitting president's condonation of it and nomination of her can launch a Watergate-like generalized Follow the money! investigation(ol:1,2). A Follow the wire! investigation(ol:19§D) can reveal how judges abuse, not in the national security, but rather their own, interest their IT resources to interfere with their exposers' communications. Exposing their abuse as their institutionalized modus operandi(49§4) can force historic reform. So I encourage you to share this with all school members and invite me to make the case for the advocacy of reverse surveillance(122 §§2-4). For exercising your power in the public's defense, you may earn its national recognition.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11)

Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

Judicial Discipline Reform

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472
tel. (718) 827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

September 15, 2013

Director Rachel D. Andron, Esq. andronr@stjohns.edu
Public Interest Center and Committee tel. (718) 990-7675
St. John's University School of Law fax (718) 990-7645
Queens, NY 11439

Dear Director Andron and Committee Co-Chairs,

The revelations by E. Snowden of government surveillance of the Internet communications and collection of phone records of millions of Americans have grave implications for law students: Power loathes bounds and is most effective in secrecy so that it will abuse others unless exposed and prevented by another power. Federal judges wield the strongest power: national over people's rights, property, liberty, and lives. Neither Congress, the Executive Branch, nor the media dare exercise checks and balances on, or expose, them(jur:81§1). The result is lack of 'reverse surveillance' by We the People's representatives of them and the Federal Judiciary. It is aggravated by their pervasive secrecy. But if exposed, judges are most vulnerable, for they must "avoid even the appearance of impropriety"[277]: Life magazine's revelations of the financial improprieties of Justice Abe Fortas forced him first to withdraw his name for the chief justiceship, then resign(92§d). So I am offering to make the case(171§F) to you and the members of your Center for revealing in the public interest judges' secrecy and abuse of power(5§3), thereby advocating the People's right to "government of laws and not of men"[6]; to be the informed citizenry that democracy needs; and to 'surveil'(130§§5-8) public servants in order to hold them accountable.

Currently, 1. the Judiciary holds all its administrative, adjudicative, policy-making, and disciplinary meetings behind closed doors[29] and no press conferences[71]. 2. Chief circuit[22a] judges abuse its statutory[18a] self-disciplining authority by dismissing 99.82%(jur:10-14) of complaints against their peers; with other judges they deny up to 100% of appeals to review such dismissals (24§b), granting themselves impunity. 3. Up to 9 of every 10 appeals are disposed of ad-hoc through no-reason summary orders[66a] or opinions so "perfunctory"[68] that they are neither published nor precedential[70], raw fiats of star-chamber power. 4. Justices are unelected yet life-tenured, as are district and circuit judges; the latter appoint bankruptcy judges for renewable 14-year terms [61a] with no consent of popular representatives. 5. In the 224 years since the creation of their Judiciary in 1789, only 8 federal judges[13] have been impeached and removed[14]. 6. A single federal judge can hold unconstitutional what 535 members of Congress and the President have debated, voted, and enacted[17a]. 7. Judges are influenced by the most insidious corruptor, money!(27§2)

The public interest and a proper legal education entitle you to learn official and publicly filed statistics[ii], yet little known, such as those above, and to reveal them to the public and the media(ol:37) so that they may further(i) investigate(98§§2-4) them. Just as The Guardian was the conduit of Snowden's revelations(ol:17), The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico [107a] revealed facts supporting their suspicion of concealment of assets[107c] by Then-Judge, Now-Justice Sotomayor. The unique story(xxxv) of a sitting justice's tax evasion/money laundering and a sitting president's condonation of it and nomination of her can launch a Watergate-like generalized Follow the money! investigation(ol:1,2). A Follow the wire! investigation(ol:19§D) can reveal how judges abuse, not in the national security, but rather their own, interest their IT resources to interfere with their exposers' communications. Exposing their abuse as their institutionalized modus operandi(49§4) can force historic judicial reform. So I encourage you to share this with all Center members and invite me to make the case for the advocacy of reverse surveillance(122 §§2-4). For exercising your power in the public's defense, you may earn its national recognition.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11)

Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

Judicial Discipline Reform

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472
tel. (718) 827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

September 21, 2013

Directors Elizabeth Chao, Ifeanyi Ojukwu, Jinju Pottenger, Yenisey Rodriguez, Ruth Swift, and Megan Wachspress Rebellious Lawyer
Yale Law School, New Haven, CT 06520

Dear Rebellious Lawyer Directors,

The revelations by E. Snowden of government surveillance of the Internet communications and collection of phone records of millions of Americans have grave implications for public interest advocates: Power loathes bounds and is most effective in secrecy so that it will abuse others unless exposed and prevented by another power. Federal judges wield the strongest power: nationally over people's rights, property, liberty, and lives. Neither the Executive Branch, Congress, nor the media dare exercise checks and balances on, or expose, them(*>jur:81§1). The result is lack of 'reverse surveillance' by We the People's representatives of them and their Judiciary. It is aggravated by their pervasive secrecy. But if exposed, judges are most vulnerable, for they must "avoid even the appearance of impropriety"[*>fn277]: Life magazine's revelations of the financial improprieties of Justice Abe Fortas forced him first to withdraw his name for the chief justiceship, then resign(92§d). So I am offering to make the case(171§F) to you and your classmates and faculty for revealing in the public interest judges' secrecy and abuse of power(5§3), thus advocating The People's right to "government of laws and not of men"[6]; to be the informed citizenry that democracy needs; and to 'surveil'(130§§5-8) public servants to hold them accountable.

Currently, 1. the Judiciary holds all its administrative, adjudicative, policy-making, and disciplinary meetings behind closed doors[29] and no press conferences[71]. 2. Chief circuit[22a] judges abuse its statutory[18a] self-disciplining authority by dismissing 99.82%(jur:10-14) of complaints against their peers; with other judges they deny up to 100% of appeals to review such dismissals (24§b), granting themselves impunity. 3. Up to 9 of every 10 appeals are disposed of ad-hoc through no-reason summary orders[66a] or opinions so "perfunctory"[68] that they are neither published nor precedential[70], raw fiats of star-chamber power. 4. Justices are unelected yet life-tenured, as are district and circuit judges; the latter appoint bankruptcy judges for renewable 14-year terms [61a] with no consent of popular representatives. 5. In the 224 years since the creation of their Judiciary in 1789, only 8 federal judges[13] have been impeached and removed[14]. 6. A single federal judge can hold unconstitutional what 535 members of Congress and the President have debated, voted, and enacted[17a]. 7. Judges are influenced by the most insidious corruptor, money!(27§2)

The public interest and a proper legal education entitle you to learn official and publicly filed statistics[ii], yet little known, such as those above, and to reveal them to the public and the media(ol:37) so that they may further(i) investigate(98§§2-4) them. Just as The Guardian was the conduit of Snowden's revelations(ol:17), The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico [107a] revealed facts supporting their suspicion of concealment of assets[107c] by Then-Judge, Now-Justice Sotomayor. The unique story(xxxv) of a sitting justice's tax evasion/money laundering and a sitting president's condonation of it and nomination of her can launch a Watergate-like generalized Follow the money! investigation(ol:1,2). A Follow the wire! investigation(ol:19§D) can reveal how judges abuse, not in the national security, but rather their own, interest their IT resources to interfere with their exposers' communications. Exposing their abuse as their institutionalized modus operandi(49§4) can force historic reform. So I encourage you to share this with all school members and invite me to make the case for the advocacy of reverse surveillance(122 §§2-4). For exercising your power in the public's defense, you may earn its national recognition.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11) Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England 2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500 USA
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris Judicial Discipline Reform Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

November 12, 2013

The Thesis of the Study
Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing

Pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting and A Plan of Action to implement it that begins with presentations to introduce that reporting and advocate legislated judicial reform that can bring about a new We the People-government relation where the people 'surveil' their public servants: the People's Sunrise

A. The study's thesis and its reasonably attainable objectives

1. The study's thesis is that federal judges abuse their power because they are unaccount-able and cloak their activities as judges and administrators of the Federal Judiciary in pervasive secrecy, which enable them risklessly to do wrong for individual and class benefits(jur:21§A), including the most insidious corruptor, money!(65§B), which they grab in practically unreviewable cases(28§3). These means, motive, and opportunity for their wrongdoing are revealed by their statisticsii and make it foreseeable. Their unaccountability and secrecy result from the failure of Congress and the Executive[17a] to apply constitutional checks and balances to them, and the media(4¶¶10-14) to discharge their professional duty to inform the public thereof.

2. The widespread, routine, and invasive extent that abuse of power under cover of secrecy can attain has been illustrated by Edward Snowden's revelations of mass surveillance over the Internet communications, and collection of phone records, of millions of Americans conducted by NSA with the rubberstamping[ol:5fn7] approval of the federal judges of the secret court set up under the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act[ol:20fn5]. The driver of the NSA's and the judges' conduct is identified by this principle: Power loathes bounds and is most effective in secrecy so it will keep extending its abuse of others unless exposed and prevented by another power.

3. The study is the counterpower that begins that exposure. It does so by pioneering the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting. It can be effective, for federal judges, if exposed, are most vulnerable as they must "avoid even the appearance of impropriety" [277]: Life magazine's revelations of the financial improprieties of U.S. Justice Abe Fortas –which did not constitute even a misdemeanor, never mind impeachable treason, bribery, or a high crime'(Const. Art. II, Sec. 4; 74¶159), but rather conduct deemed improper for a judge– led him first to withdraw his name for the chief justiceship, and then to resign(92§d). The study shows that the extent and wrongful nature of judges' unaccountable abuse of power and secrecy are far graver than those of an "impropriety": Their wrongdoing includes crimes, e.g., concealment of assets, of which The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a-c] suspected Then-Judge and Justiceship Nominee Sotomayor; coordination(88§§a-c) to increase their wrongdoing's efficiency[213]; and their bankruptcy fraud scheme as a source of dirty assets(65§§1-3). Covering up their own and their peers' wrongdoing(5§3) as their first concern deprives the people of their fundamental human and civil right to access to courts that apply the law fairly and impartially.

4. The study endeavors to be followed by principled and ambitious journalists as well as students and faculty at law, journalism, business, and IT(131§b) schools. They should be concerned about judicial integrity and enthusiastic about the economic and reputational potential of applying their expertise to a field that affects the 312 million people[6] of a country governed by the rule of law and deemed the model of many others. They can be asked to participate in report-ing on judges as it is done on politicians: on a regular rather than isolated basis and on their personal and professional conduct too, not just on sensational cases and decisions. Their report-ing will constitute 'reverse surveillance' over the judges by representatives of We the People.

5. Reverse surveillance will occur in the open. One part will be conducted by the media, publishers, and academics participating in judicial unaccountability reporting. Their reports of judges' abuse of power and secrecy will cause public outrage more intense and widespread than that provoked by Snowden's revelations: Unaccountable judges abuse, not to protect by enhancing people's national security, but rather to self-benefit materially(27§2), professionally(56§§e-f), and socially(62§g, a&p:1¶2nd). They have embezzled the power entrusted to them by the people for its exercise on their behalf. They disregard the law(5§3) and deprive people of not only their right to privacy, but also their other rights as well as their property, liberty, and life, and the honest judicial services offered by the courts and accepted upon paying the contractual court fees by the parties to the 50 million federal and state cases filed annualy[4,5]. So, judges abuse many more people than those affected by the NSA. The outrage(83§§2-3) at their abuse will cause people to demand a far-reaching reform from politicians, lest they be voted out of, or not into, office.

6. Legislated reform of the Federal Judiciary stands in contrast to voluntary reform by judges seeking to ensure only their mutually dependent survival(86§4). Legislation can enforce checks and balances on it by the other branches, for no separation of powers doctrine can elevate any branch above the democratic control of We the People and their representatives. The proposed (158§7) legislation will bring transparency to judges' performance and their running of the Judiciary because "justice must not only be done, it must manifestly and undoubtedly be seen to be done" [71]. It will set up their accountability by establishing an independent inspector general of the Judiciary(158§6) –just as there are 73 statutory IGs[ol:5fn8]–; and citizen boards for monitoring judges' personal and professional conduct –as politicians' is– and publicly receiving, investigating, hearing, and determining complaints against them(160§8). It will empower the boards to provide 1st Amendment "redress of grievances"[268] by imposing discipline(24§§b-c) on judges to render them effectively accountable, e.g., by pronouncing their and the Judiciary's joint and several liability to compensate those wronged by their abuse –as the rest(26§d) of government is liable under the Federal Tort Claim Act[fn9]–. These 'terms of employment' will hold judicial public servants in their proper relation to their democratic masters, We the People, who cannot be deemed to have granted to their own detriment immunity to their servants[195]. Judges are not the lords of a state within a state; rather, they too are held to the masters' instructions. The masters are entitled to be informed and need to have a clear view unimpeded by secrecy so as to determine to whom and for what purpose to entrust portions of their power and to demand an account of its exercise. Thus arising in the Judiciary and extending to Congress, the Executive, and beyond, a new We the People-government relational paradigm will develop: the People's Sunrise.

B. Plan of action to expose federal judges' wrongdoing and advocate reform

7. The study pioneers judicial unaccountability reporting as reverse surveillance and advocates legislated judicial reform. The following plan of action aims to attain its permanent objectives: to establish that reporting as a news and publishing field, and to cause Congress and the Executive to reverse surveil federal judges and their Judiciary through legislation imposing non-discretionary new terms. Thinking strategically(Lsch:14§§b-c), people can implement it to draw attention for the first time and nationally to wrongdoing first in the Federal Judiciary so that later on they can draw attention more effectively to its state counterparts, which are patterned after it.

8. Presentations by Dr. Cordero of judicial wrongdoing and reform can be held at law, business, journalism, and Information Technology (IT) schools before their students, faculty, and student organizations; media outlets; and civil rights entities. Those venues can attract audiences that possess the needed skills(128§4) to heed his call for the formation of a multidisciplinary team to engage in reverse surveillance investigations, report their findings, and advocate reform.

9. The investigations of the team of students, professors, and other professionals can include:
    a) a fraud and forensic accounting examination[107a-c] of judges' incongruous, implausible, and meaningless publicly filed[107d] annual financial disclosure reports[213]; and analysis(10-11) of the Judiciary's statistics[10], which can be conducted jointly with MBA students;
    b) a journalistic investigation, which can be conducted jointly with journalism students:
        i) of judges' assets(ol:1,2) through a Follow the money!(102§a) investigation, like those that lawyers conduct or supervise in financial fraud, divorce, and bankruptcy cases;
        ii) of judges' interference with their exposers' communications(ol:19§D) by abusing their ●IT resources –for nationwide filing, posting, management, and retrieval by lawyers, the courts, parties, and the public of hundreds of millions of briefs, motions, transcripts, docket entries, calendars, orders, decisions, etc.– and ●power to issue orders or sign off on orders submitted to them –e.g., NSA's secret surveillance orders– but drafted at their instigation by the authorities to require Internet service providers, phone companies, mail carriers, etc., to give them access to the communications that they transmit, which calls for a Follow the wire! investigation(105§b);
        iii) to cultivate sources among current and former law students and professors who have clerked for judges, other Judiciary insiders[169], practitioners, the media, Congress, and DoJ-FBI so as to prompt them to investigate judges or provide inside information(100§§3-4) –whether acting discreetly, as did Deep Throat, the deputy director of the FBI, Mark Felt(106§c), in the Watergate Scandal that brought about the resignation of President Nixon for abuse of power to spy on his Democratic presidential opponent; or openly, as did Novelist Émile Zola in his I Accuse! newspaper article denouncing an anti-Jewish conspiracy at the top of the French Army to frame Lt. Alfred Dreyfus for treason in behalf of the Germans(98§2), and demanding that the French president order a public investigation of the Affaire Dreyfus–;
    c) freedom of information requests for FBI reports on vetted judicial candidates(77§5) and a demand for the President to release them so as to ascertain judges' honesty for service;
    d) IT R&D of software to perform statistical, literary, and linguistic auditing of judicial writings to ascertain authorship, detect behavioral patterns and biases, and impugn past and predict future judicial behavior(132§§2-10), which can be done jointly with IT students.
10. A conference on judicial abuse of power under cover of secrecy, reverse surveillance, and judicial unaccountability reporting and legislated reform advocacy.
    a) Formally, it can be an imaginative and ambitious multimedia and multidisciplinary event organized by a multidisciplinary team of students, faculty, and Dr. Cordero(dcc:31).
    b) Substantively, the conference can be an informative and programmatic occasion:
        i) to release the published study and use it to set the context in which to present the findings of the investigation conducted by the team and others, thus promoting the news and publishing field of judicial unaccountability reporting(dcc:11);
        ii) to call on students, professors, practitioners, court staff, journalists, and people harmed by judges' abuse of power and secrecy to submit articles on the topic for publication in a widely distributed volume, which can be the precursor of a periodical(122§§2-3).
11. A multidisciplinary academic and business venture(97§1) to hold presentations and conferences to promote ●judicial unaccountability reporting for the media and the people to reverse surveil judges(154§d); ●legislated reform(155§e); ●the creation of a for-profit institute that reports, advocates, educates, represents, publishes, and conducts statistical, IT, and financial research(130§ 5); and ●the formation of chapters and student organizations to do likewise continuously and locally.

C. Becoming the producer of the presentation and of a Coalition for Justice

12. This plan of action provides a cogent and realistic strategy to achieve the study's ambitious permanent objectives. They will initially be envisioned only by equally ambitious people who are courageous and tenacious. They are kin to those who brought about changes in conditions that were unjust and harmed millions of people but that had persisted through the abuse of power by the few and for their benefit for hundreds, even thousands, of years, e.g., only the warlord or the king ruled and did so by fiat; only free landed men could vote; women were confined to the kitchen and pamper changing; there were slaves; children had to work; only the sons of the ruling class went to school; employees were hired and fired at the employer's will; minorities had no rights and were accorded no respect; only the wealthy had access to health care; etc. Were it not for men and women who got mad and were mad enough to believe that they could bring about change, those secular conditions would still prevail. Thanks to them, we are not under British rule, we conquered the West, we went to the moon and…you can set in motion a series of events that alter apparently inalterable conditions to bring judges from the place above the law that they have arrogated to themselves down to where the people are so that the latter can hold them accountable for what they are: servants of the sovereign authority, We the People.

13. A presentation is the first event in that series. You can be its producer. To that end, you can contact the deans, class presidents, and journal editors at law, journalism, business, and IT schools; civil rights advocates; and media people, such as journalists and TV and radio talk show hosts, to persuade them to hold it in the public interest of exposing judges' wrongdoing, which harms the people and undermines government by the rule of law, and advocating reform that legislates for judicial accountability, transparency, discipline, and liability for compensating victims. With them, you can begin to form a Coalition for Justice. Its role will be to produce more presentations, conferences, interviews, placement of articles, etc., to make known the evidence of judges' wrongdoing contained in Dr. Cordero's study and the news found by the multidisciplinary team's investigation. There are inspiring examples of common people who, confronted with a significant event, drew from it the motivation to improvise themselves as coalition formers.

    a. MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Driving) was born of a mother who lost her daughter to a drunk driver and committed herself to preventing others from becoming victims; by din of hard work, her organization has gone national and lobbied successfully for pertinent laws.

    b. Sally Regenhard, the mother of a firefighter killed at the Twin Towers, is recognized as the driving force of the movement that forced the government to hold the 9/11 Commission.

    c. The Tea Party has developed in less than 10 years from people who shared a single common idea, lower taxes, into a political force to be reckoned with at the national level.

14. This shows that forming a Coalition for Justice is realistic. It requires you to be, not a professional organizer, but rather highly motivated by the noble cause of realizing a foundational principle of our republic: 'In government, not of men, but by the rule of law, Nobody is Above The Law; rather, all are subject to Equal Justice Under Law'. That cause can inspire you to persevere as producer and inspire others to join you in the Coalition's work of producing presentations. The inspiration of working for the common good can be the positive counterpart to the outrage at judges' wrongdoing. It can grow the Coalition into a civic movement(164§9). The latter can gain the political clout needed to force politicians to undertake historic judicial reform propitious for developing a new We the People-government relation on the notion that the people are the masters of government and have the right to surveil all their public servants and hold them accountable. That relation can emerge in the U.S. and spread abroad as the People's Sunrise.

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11)

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

October 30, 2013

Dynamic Analysis of Harmonious and Conflicting Interests Shows The Fallacy of Citizen Grand Juries as The Remedy to Prosecutorial Partiality, and Points to The Need for Strategic Thinking to Devise a Strategy For Exposing Judges' Unaccountability and Consequent Riskless Wrongdoing and Advocating Legislated Judicial Reform

Table of Contents

Lsch:

A. Citizen Grand Juries said necessary for impartially holding people accountable 13
1. What they are meant to be and achieve 13
2. Dynamic analysis of harmonious and conflicting interests 14
3. Strategic thinking 14
4. What a citizen grand jury must do for its indictment to be effective 15
B. Judges involvement in wrongdoing by commission and condonation 15
1. Judges dominant interest: mutually dependent survival 16
2. Politicians as protectors of their judges due to harmonious interests 17
C. Prosecutors in conflict with judges: the means of judicial retaliation 17
1. Welcome mat treatment 17
2. Limbo treatment 17
3. Biased 'non-discretionary' treatment 18
4. Damning instructions and blessing sentence treatment 18
5. Conflict with little to gain for prosecutors and everything to lose 18
6. Citizen grand juries as prosecutors 19
D. Proposal for exposing judges' wrongdoing and leading to judicial reform 20
1. Strategic thinking: need for the media and an outraged national public 20
2. A unique and outrageous national case: the Obama-Sotomayor story 20

****

A. Citizen Grand Juries said necessary for impartially holding people accountable

1. What they are meant to be and achieve

Citizen grand juries have been proposed as the solution to the problem of state and U.S. attorneys who in order to advance their personal and political party interests fail to enforce the law fairly and impartially on all people, particularly the well-connected and well-off, supporters and adversaries, and those whom the media have drawn into the public light so that the decision whether to prosecute them results from consideration of public opinion rather than legal merits.

While today's grand juries are empaneled by the authorities, these juries are supposed to be formed by citizens on their own initiative and empowered to prosecute their indictees. Their superiority is said to lie in the citizens' honesty, freedom from career ambitions and partisan bias, and commitment to advancing the public interest through impartial application of the rule of law. They are advocated by many who complain about wrongdoing judges(jur:5§3), whom prosecutors do not dare investigate, let alone prosecute. Held unaccountable, judges risklessly abuse their power to do wrong in their own interest[213], including the wrongful judicial handling of the prosecution of any defendant. It follows that being able to investigate and prosecute judges is a prerequisite to conducting all other prosecutions rightfully. So these juries are intended to subject judges to investigation and prosecution and even hold them liable to compensate their victims.

Therefore, it is pertinent to ask whether citizen grand juries, regardless of whether formed under any currently proposed statute or by citizens invoking a law or case law found in historical legal annals, would be effective in achieving their intended objectives to the point of justifying the effort, time, and money that already has been, and will have to be, invested to secure them.

2. Dynamic analysis of harmonious and conflicting interests

To determine whether citizen grand juries will be effective, they must be analyzed in the context of the political and judicial systems in which they are supposed to be formed and operated. A most apt intellectual tool to undertake such determination is "dynamic analysis of harmonious and conflicting interests in an interpersonal system". This analysis seeks to determine who has an interest in favor of or against the subject being analyzed –here citizen grand juries– and how those interests change whenever a member of the system formed by persons –here grand jurors, politicians, judges, lawyers, litigants, voters, etc.– is introduced into, or eliminate from, it or one of their interests becomes more or less likely to be, or is, satisfied or denied.

The graphical representation of these persons as related by their interests integrates them into a sociogram that depicts a system. It is a living, evolving one, for neither the persons nor their interests are static. They are constantly changing as alliances and enmities between the persons weaken or strengthen in response to changes in their interests that modify each other or are modified from the outside. So the system is permeable since changes are intrinsic to it or in reaction to extrinsic forces and occurrences. Any change requires that the degree to which all remaining interests are in harmony or conflict with each other be measured anew. The system's persons and their interests are reconfiguring themselves all the time like a kaleidoscope: Its colored glass pieces form chromatic patterns more or less harmonious as the tube containing them is rotated or gyrated by the hand outside. Therefore, the system must be continuously analyzed to take into account the constantly changing persons and their interests. That is why the analysis is dynamic.

3. Strategic thinking

The product of the analysis is greater and updated understanding: How and why the persons and interests in the interpersonal system relate to each other as they do at a given point in time. In turn, that understanding is the basis for the action to be recommended or taken by the analyst. Devising a plan of action is the purpose of strategic thinking. It determines what to do in the short and long terms to maximize the chances of advancing one's interests so as to achieve one's end interests, that is, one's objectives.

Strategy is devised by taking into account the weakening, unchanged, or strengthening interests of the persons still in, or new to, the system and those who can be caused to join or exit it, and by affecting the degree to which their interests are harmonious or in conflict with each other. The analyst-strategist should produce a plan of action intrinsic as well as extrinsic to the system and reasonably calculated to achieve the intended objectives.

4. What a citizen grand jury must do for its indictment to be effective

Let's assume that the enormous and courageous efforts of advocates of citizen grand juries are crowned with success: There are states where citizen grand juries have been empaneled as well as others where citizens on their own initiative can gather and form grand juries; and both types can investigate any persons and entities as to whom there is probable cause to believe that they engaged in wrongdoing, including judges, and return indictments against them. However, neither investigating nor indicting a suspected wrongdoer is the objective of a citizen grand jury. Their advocates are interested in those juries being capable of obtaining orders of discipline and executing them on the persons indicted, including judges, and obtaining orders of compensation for their victims and ensuring that the compensation is actually provided, including, when applicable, jointly and severally by judges and their respective judiciary. Investigating and returning indictments are only steps in the process leading to such discipline and compensation orders and their execution. The indictment itself is merely an accusatory document that neither disciplines any defendant nor provides compensation to any victim. It simply sets forth the charges against the defendant. A prosecution of those charges must be conducted, the case must be sent to the trial jury, and the latter must return a favorable verdict, one that is not set aside by the judge but rather is followed by an appropriate sentence by her that is executed in its entirety.

Who has an interest in this process neither starting nor running its full course? To begin with, the defendant. And when the defendant is a wrongdoing judge, who else? Let's see.

B. Judges involvement in wrongdoing by commission and condonation

Currently, the prosecution of an indictment is either as a matter of fact or law the exclusive prerogative of district or U.S. attorneys, that is, of law enforcement authorities. However, let's assume that a citizen grand jury has been empowered to prosecute its indictments. At present, such prosecution would be conducted in court. That is precisely the turf of judges. Both the indicted and the sitting judge are members of a class: the class of judges(52§c). This is similar to a policeman being a member of a class, to wit, the police force to which he or she be-longs. Just as police wrongdoing, e.g., use of excessive force, is said to be protected behind a blue wall of silence, judges' wrongdoing(133§4) is protected behind a black robe curtain: the secrecy that pervades federal judges' adjudicative, administrative, policy-making, and disciplinary decisions; their refusal to appear at Q&A press conferences; and their unaccountability to lawmakers, such as Congress, law enforcement authorities, such as DoJ-FBI, the media, lawyers, etc.(Lsch:2)

As a member of that class, the sitting judge may have known personally or by reference other judges, including the indicted one, for 1, 5, 10, 15, 20, or more years. During that time, they have learned directly or by word of mouth of each other's accidental or intentional breaches of duty serious enough to amount to wrongdoing. It is also possible that the sitting judge had no knowledge of the indicted judge's wrongdoing before reading about it in the indictment. But by exercising due diligence to discharge his shared institutional duty to safeguard the integrity of the judiciary and of judicial process, the sitting judge would have learned about that or other types of wrongdoing of the indicted judge or of any other judge if only the sitting judge had asked pertinent questions, investigated, or caused the investigation of what to a reasonable person with his training and knowledge should have appeared suspicious: An act or event, a pattern of conduct, or a coincidence was sufficiently out of order to prompt the normal reaction of a reasonable person similarly situated: 'This doesn't make sense. What's going on?' But the sitting judge suppressed that reaction by opting for willful ignorance or blindness: He looked away or closed his eyes of the mind.(90§§b-d). He had an interest in doing so.

1. Judges dominant interest: mutually dependent survival

The sitting judge has an interest in remaining a member in good standing of the class of judges.(60§§f-g) To foster his camaraderie with the other judges, he tolerated their wrongdoing, thereby becoming an accomplice after the fact with respect to the committed wrongdoing that he kept concealed knowingly or through willful ignorance or blindness, and an accomplice before the fact with respect to the wrongdoing that he encouraged other judges to commit on the implicit or explicit assurance of impunity through his conniving silence(90§§b-d). As a result, bonds of complicity developed between him and them individually and as a class. The sitting judge is ethically compromised. If he throws the first stone at the indicted judge, it can rebound or ricochet and break his glass façade of integrity. He is bribable and extortionable, whether by the indicted judge or the latter's colleagues and friends. If he conducts a fair and impartial trial that leads to her conviction, he too risks being exposed, accused, indicted, and convicted.

The same can happen if one judge tells on another because then the latter can do the same as to the former or as to 'a bigger fish' in plea-bargaining in exchange for leniency or immunity. By domino effect, all can fall under the weight of their own wrongdoing or that which they tolerated and that which they thereby encouraged others to commit. Their common interest is in maintaining the status quo. If the sitting judge fails to steer the case towards an acquittal or a slap on the wrist, the other judges will deem him an unreliable person unworthy of membership in the class. Just as he let one of their own go down, he can do the same to any of them. In self-interest, they will take precautionary measures against the possibility that he may also betray, or 'snitch' on, them to save his own skin. Thus, they will treat him as a pariah and ostracize him(56§e)

They will not greet him in the lobby or the elevator or talk to him except as indispensable to deal with court business. In the lounge, they will avoid him and make it clear that he is not welcome if he tries to join them. When they go out of town to the semi-annual meetings of the Judicial Conference of the U.S., circuit or district conferences, meetings of classes of judicial officers and employees, private seminars and other judicial junkets for which they want to be unduly reimbursed without complying with the duty to declare it[272], he will not be invited to ride with them or to join them in the chief judge's suite at night to share in delicacies to be washed down with fine drinks distributed by nice waitresses and others and to participate in confidential conversations and tipsy-tongue boasting fit only for reliable partners in wrongdoing. Why would the sitting judge choose to run the risk of being so treated? His interest lies in being deemed loyal to the other class members, with whom he shares his professional life, not to the transient citizen grand jury that is there at the moment but will soon dissolve naturally into powerless individuals. When did you last hear that a public servant gave precedence to duty and principle over his interest in self-preservation and the continued approval of his peers?

To protect their pretense of integrity that renders any investigation unnecessary and preserves their unaccountability judges cannot allow it to be known that any of them engages in wrongdoing. This would show that they are as liable to do wrong as the members of any other powerful class. With greater reason, they cannot allow anyone of them to be prosecuted. That would diminish their standing and threaten their power. That is why the indictment of a judge by a citizen grand jury presents a clear and present danger to them. So the sitting judge will in all likelihood exercise biased judicial discretion at the preliminary hearing to find the indictment insufficient to bind over the indicted judge for trial. Thereby he will turn it into a mere nuisance of amateurs at the role of players in the legal and judicial system. If for the sake of appearances, he cannot dismiss it then, he will use every other opportunity throughout the course of the case to achieve the same result: impunity. In fact, judges have developed for their protection doctrines of judicial immunity(jur:26 d), although they are contradicted by the U.S. Constitution[192] and the foundational tenet of our republic: In government, not of men, but by the rule of law, nobody is above the law. However, the judges stand in a relation of mutually dependent survival. Surviving is their dominant interest; they will give it precedence over any other consideration.

2. Politicians as protectors of their judges due to harmonious interests

For citizen grand juries to be established, elected politicians have to adopt laws to that end. These are the very politicians who up to now have nominated, confirmed, appointed, recommended, and/or campaigned for, the judges.(78§6) In so doing, they pursued their own interests: In exchange, they expected the judges to look favorably on cases supported by such politicians; to pass on to them confidential information that the judges obtained in sealed documents or closed-door meetings; if those politicians or their friends were indicted and prosecuted before such judges or their colleagues, to steer the cases to failure and, if convicted, to impose unjus-tifiably lenient sentences. Given the importance of these harmonious interests, politicians will not turn against their powerful judicial protégés unless they advance thereby a more compelling interest: not to be voted out of, or not into, office by an outraged electorate.

C. Prosecutors in conflict with judges: the means of judicial retaliation

District and U.S. attorneys whose offices lose case after case for whatever reason can only envisage dim prospects of reelection or reappointment. If they indict a judge, never mind prosecute him, they can only provoke the sitting judge to close rank with her fellow judges in defense of herself, the indicted judge, and all the other judges. The resulting massive retaliation by the whole class of judges need not be blatant at all. It can take numerous subtle forms, whether the defendant is or is not a judge and the charges against him or her are civil or criminal:

1. Welcome mat treatment

The defendant can be given 'the welcome mat treatment': At the reading of the indict-ment, the judge can find that there is no probable cause to hold the defendant; or at a probable cause hearing she can find likewise; or she can release the defendant on his own recognizance or set bail at all or set it at an unjustifiably low level despite the risk that the defendant may flee the jurisdiction or stay around but fail to appear for trial; or confine the defendant, not to jail, but rather to a 'club med' facility, for example, for detoxification, psychological evaluation, or other alleged medical treatment that normally is provided behind bars by prison doctors.

2. Limbo treatment

The prosecutors' files can receive 'limbo treatment' by the judges, their clerks, and other court staff: They get lost; or are not entered on the docket allegedly because the filing fee was not paid or a statistical filing form is missing or a coffee spill rendered them unreadable or a decision is being made whether they comply with the formatting rules; or are entered untimely or with the wrong docket number or date or with the parties' names misspelled so that computer searches cannot find them; or are delivered to the wrong judge; or after redelivery to the assigned judge she puts them at the bottom of her calendar or recuses herself 'due to conflict of interests'; or the transferee judge in turn transfers them alleging that her calendar is clogged; etc.

3. Biased 'non-discretionary' treatment

When the files emerge from limbo, the sitting judges can give them biased 'non-discretionary' treatment, whereby they pretend that under the law 'they have no choice but to…' take decisions that always harm the prosecutors and favor the defense: The judges deny every pretrial motion of the prosecutors and sustain every one of the defense, including dismissal through summary judgment; and decide discovery motions to hinder the prosecutors from investigating their cases to obtain the necessary evidence while allowing the defense to go on an expensive and burdensome fishing expedition outside the scope of the case in search for a counterclaim.

If the cases make it to trial, the sitting judges overrule every objection of the prosecutors and sustain those of the defense; hamper and cut short the prosecutors' examination and cross-examination of witnesses and expert witnesses, that is, if they are allowed to take the witness stand at all because they have not been disqualified due to lack of testimony bearing on the case, or for being incompetent, or because of a defendant's privilege, etc. In the courtroom, the sitting judges make gestures that cast doubt on the prosecutors' statements but signal approval of whatever the defense attorneys say; the judges can meticulously abstain from making comments to the same effect, which would be taken down by the court reporters and could be used by the prosecutors to support appeals on grounds of lack of impartiality. Before the transcriptions of court proceedings are released, the sitting judges redact them accordingly and release doctored versions that are poisonous to the prosecutors' cases and a balm to those of the defense.

During trial, the judges can qualify their decisions as not final and thus, not appealable, or as final, and appealable, so as to harm the prosecutors and favor the defense. Interlocutory appeals can drag out a case, during which time the memories of witnesses can fade and their commitment to the cases can subside or they can move away, die, or be pressured into recanting. A non-final decision can keep the trial going forward under unfavorable conditions for the prosecutor and favorable ones for the defense. After prosecutors rest their cases, judges can sustain a defense motion to dismiss due to the prosecutors' failure to make out the elements of their cases.

4. Damning instructions and blessing sentence treatment

If the judges allow cases to go to the jury, they can phrase their instructions to make it appear that as a matter of law the acts of the defendants did not meet the requirements of the charges and an acquittal should be returned. If the verdict is for the prosecutors, the judges can enter judgment notwithstanding verdict on motion of the defense or of their own. If judges proceed to sentencing, their sentences can be so mild as to be irrelevant or jail sentences can be suspended or deemed extinguished by time served by the defendants since their arrests. If there are appeals, the judges can continue defendants' bail or release them on their own recognizance.

5. Conflict with little to gain for prosecutors and everything to lose

Judges' plentiful retaliatory means can establish that they are in practice beyond prosecution: untouchable. Prosecutors realize that they have little to gain by prosecuting one judge while risking all their other cases before all the other judges. Their interest lies in being on good terms with each judge and certainly with the class of judges. If they cannot avoid indicting and prosecuting a judge, e.g., due to public pressure, they are likely only to pretend to be doing so while steering the case to an acquittal or token discipline. If citizen grand juries depend on prosecutors to proceed with their indictments against judges, their indictments will be treated with the greatest reluctance and given the lowest priority, that is, if they are not dismissed by prosecutors' exercising prosecutorial discretion to decide which cases to prosecute. Any prosecution will be in all probability ineffective in disciplining the wrongdoing judges, let alone obtaining compensation for their victims. The citizen grand juries' work will be turned into an exercise in futility.

6. Citizen grand juries as prosecutors

Let's assume that some jurisdiction empowers citizen grand juries to prosecute the judges that they indict. They will be all but doomed to fail not only at the hands of those judges' peers. Since the overwhelming majority of the jurors have no formal legal training, they will in all probability also fail at the hands of another formidable foe: their own ignorance of substantive and procedural law and litigation tactics. They will be confounded by the sheer complexity of the law from the outset of their dabbling in it and their fumbling with the provisions that they invoke, if they invoke any rather than rely on their own notions of justice, their outrage in sympathy with other laypeople that have been abused by judges, or their own hurt from being their victims.

Advocates of citizen grand juries commit a gross miscalculation if they are counting on laypeople, whether jurors or not, to prosecute the people indicted by the juries, let alone indicted judges. The latter will not only know the law more than enough to represent themselves, but will also know the best lawyers in town and have access to them. It is in any lawyer's and law firm's interest to represent a judge. Becoming privy to the judge's information surrounding the charges against him and how he, his clerks, his fellow judges, and the court staff work will be more than enough pay. If the lawyer is successful in representing the judge or at least the latter is satisfied with her representation, the lawyer will have an invaluable friend in that judge and access through him to other judges and to unpublished, if not inside, information about them. Laypeople who think that they can take on a lawyer, let alone a battery of the best and brightest lawyers at top law firms eager to defend judges, reveal their incapacity to realistically assess the abilities and limitations of themselves and others, and what is necessary to prevail in a confrontation.

If advocates of citizen grand juries are counting on hiring lawyers, where will the money come from to pay their attorney's fees, discovery expenses, expert trial services, etc.? What quality of lawyers and with what experience and career prospect will undertake an all but hopeless prosecution of a judge and run the all but certain chance of becoming the nemesis of all judges?

Advocates of citizen grand juries can invest in their noble quest for Equal Justice Under Law a great amount of effort, time, and money, be successful in securing their establishment, only to lose every prosecution at the hands of judges or their own laypersons' hands. They rely on the reality-disconnected idea that all one needs to deal with public servants who abuse their power and disregard the law is honest, God-fearing people with high moral values and an unwavering commitment to our Constitution and the rule of law. Their advocacy betrays a failure to think through from the necessary legislation to the sentencing of defendants through the identification of the players, the detection of their interests, and the dynamic interplay of those harmonious and conflicting that provides the basis for devising a strategy to be implemented through a plan of action…and that does not begin to address the issue of who pays for what kind of compensable harm to what kind of victims. Despite being well intended, advocates of citizen grand juries run a fool's errand as they lapse into delusional wishful-thinking. In the interest of sparing themselves such waste, they should review their quest against a proposal anchored in facts and precedent. That proposal does include a citizen board of judicial accountability and discipline created through legislation with the investigative and reporting duty and subpoena power of a grand jury and the fact-finding duty of a trial jury and disciplining power. But other details(160§8) and the proposed path(next) to that legislation make a fundamental difference because they change the legal and judicial context in which those boards would operate.

D. Proposal for exposing judges' wrongdoing and leading to judicial reform

1. Strategic thinking: need for the media and an outraged national public

The strategy proposed here is based on exposing, not one wrongdoing judge at a time, but rather using one test case that reveals how the class of judges has abused their power to engage in wrongdoing in such routine, widespread, and coordinated fashion(jur:21§§1-3) as to have turned wrongdoing into their institutionalized modus operandi(49§4). That case should be national in scope, for what happens in the judiciary of one state is of little relevance to the people of another. So it must be a federal case and implicate Supreme Court justices(71§4) in participating in, or condoning, criminal activity, not for questionable judicial discretion. That will cause national outrage. It should be manifest enough to convince the media that public interest in the case warrants a large investment of money, manpower, and air time/print space to investigate it and publish findings over a long period of time. This will satisfy the media's interest in higher viewership/readership and advertisement revenue. A long-running story can keep building public pressure to force Congress, DoJ-FBI, and their state counterparts to open official investigations into judicial wrongdoing. By using their subpoena, search and seizure, contempt, and penal powers, and holding public hearings, the authorities can make additional findings that will so further outrage the public as to empower it to coerce politicians, lest voters frustrate their interest in a political career, into undertaking substantial legislated judicial reform. That is the strategy.

It is based on the public's current profound distrust of government, which makes it more prone to believe that public servants were involved in yet another scandal. It is also based on the power shown by the Tea Party to force politicians to support its tenets or risk disaster at the polls. It is likewise based on the precedent set by the Watergate Scandal, which began on June 17, 1972, when the so-called "five plumbers" were caught after breaking into the Democratic National Headquarters at the Watergate complex in Washington, D.C. Their arrest evolved into a generalized media investigation that dominated the news for years. It discovered political espionage orchestrated by the Republican Committee for the Reelection of President Nixon. Mounting outrage led to the nationally televised Senate hearings that exposed the involvement of all of Nixon's White House aides in a cover-up through further abuse of power. It caused the President to announce his resignation on August 8, 1974. The Watergate Scandal(jur:4¶¶10-14) prompted the adoption of significant laws to ensure more transparency and accountability of the federal government and its officers[107d]; those laws served as model for state legislation.

2. A unique and outrageous national case: the Obama-Sotomayor story

Such national outrage can be provoked by a test case(xxxv) founded in articles in The New York Times, The Washington Post, and Politico[107a] that suspected Then-Judge, Now-Justice Sotomayor of concealing assets[107c], which is a crime(26usc7206). President Obama could also learn about it through the FBI report on the vetting of her as a justiceship candidate, but disregarding it, vouched for her integrity(77§5): He wanted to ingratiate himself with voters interested in another woman and the first Latina on the Supreme Court and from whom he expected in exchange support for his key personal and political interest: the passage of the Affordable Health Care Act(Obamacare). The involvement of a sitting president and a sitting justice nominated by him in concealment of assets and its cover-up can so outrage the public as to set in motion events harmonious with the interest of advocates of citizen grand juries in legislation to ensure the impartial holding of all people accountable. The advocates and the other readers can help secure that objective by making possible Dr. Cordero's presentation of the above strategy and his plan of action to implement it through a multidisciplinary academic and business venture(Lsch:9§§A-C).

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. +1(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Judicial Discipline Reform

March 16, 2014

Professor Judith Resnik
Yale Law School judith.resnik@yale.edu
P.O. Box 208215 http://www.law.yale.edu/faculty/JResnik.htm
New Haven, CT 06520 tel. (203) 432-1447

Dear Professor Resnik,

I read with interest your article "Renting Judges for Secret Rulings". You ended it by stating, "[It is] is a dramatic example of rich litigants using their resources to close court systems that taxpayers support and constitutions require".

A more dramatic closure of justice to everybody occurs at the hands of the judges themselves through the pervasive secrecy in which they cloak all their activities, and their unaccountability. Those are the two circumstances that enable them to engage in riskless wrongdoing(jur:5§3). They do wrong in such widespread, routine, and coordinated fashion as to have turned wrongdoing into their systems' modus operandi(49§4). They have institutionalized it.

This is a proposal to join forces so that your advocacy of "restor[ing] rights to public courts" is not limited to "consumer and employment disputes" or to mere procedural access to the courts, but rather is the result of exposing judges' wrongdoing that leads not only litigants, but rather an informed and outraged national public to 'disciplining judges for transparent justice'.

A. Judges ensure their unaccountability through secrecy and self-exemption

The wrongdoing committed in secrecy by unaccountable federal judges, the model for their state counterparts, is concrete and has "dramatic" adverse consequences on the public and the administration of justice to it:

1. Federal judges hold all their administrative, adjudicative, policy-making, and disciplinary meetings behind closed doors[29] and never appear at press conferences[71]. Secrecy breeds self-indulgence and progressive disregard for the law; it turns the use of entrusted power like that of private property, and its abuse tempting, concealable, and an entitlement.

2. Chief circuit[22a] judges abuse the Federal Judiciary's statutory[18a] self-disciplining authority by dismissing 99.82%(10-14) of complaints against their peers; with other judges they deny up to 100% of appeals to review such dismissals(24§b). Judges immunize themselves from liability for their wrongdoing by denying complainants their 1st Amendment right to "redress of grievances", making them victims with no access to the courts.

3. Up to 9 of every 10 appeals are disposed of ad-hoc through no-reason summary orders[66a] or opinions so "perfunctory"[68] that they are neither published nor precedential[70], raw fiats of star-chamber power. They are as difficult to find as if they were secret; and if found, meaningless to litigants and the public, for most frequently their only operative word is the easiest: "affirmed!"(43§1). They defeat the purpose of public rulings: to provide notice, predictability, consistency, and constraint on arbitrary and capricious judicial power.

4. Circuit judges appoint bankruptcy judges[61], whose rulings come on appeal before their appointers, who protect them. In CY10, these appointees decided who kept or received the $373 billion at stake in only personal bankruptcies[31]. About 95% of those bankruptcies are filed by individuals; bankrupt, the great majority of them appear pro se[33] and, ignorant of the law, they fall prey to a bankruptcy fraud scheme(66§2).

5. While 80% of all cases filed every year in the Federal Judiciary are brought in its bankruptcy courts, only .23% are reviewed by district courts and fewer than .08% by circuit courts(28§3). Such unreviewability of bankruptcy rulings makes them in effect secret. It enables judges to run bankruptcy courts as their private fiefdom, allowing them the indispensable arbitrariness and unlawfulness to run the bankruptcy fraud scheme: Unreviewable exercise of power turns it into 'absolute power, the kind that corrupts absolutely'[32].

6. Federal judges together with bankruptcy and legal system insiders[169] run[60] the scheme risklessly, for in the 225 years since the creation of their Judiciary in 1789, only 8[13] of them –2,131 federal justices, judges, and magistrates were in office on 30sep11[13]– have been impeached and removed[14] from the bench. This provides the historic assurance that a federal judgeship is a safe haven for wrongdoing judges. Through agreement between principals and the accessorial silence of those who after witnessing their peers do wrong enable them before the next wrong with their implicit or explicit promise of more silence, wrongdoing is coordinated. That makes it more riskless, profitable, and corruptive.

7. In self-interest, politicians recommend, nominate, and confirm for judgeships people of their own ilk. Thereafter, they hold them unaccountable(50§95) because a single federal judge can hold unconstitutional what 535 members of Congress and the president have debated, voted, and enacted; and by so doing, doom their legislative agenda[17a].

8. Unelected, life-tenured, and beyond democratic control, federal judges act with impunity. They are 'risklessly wrongdoing judges for self-beneficial rulings' in professional(25§c; 60§f), social(62§g), and material(27§2; 32§§2) terms, especially profitable since they need not invest in means to avoid detection and escape punishment. Would you be tempted to cut yourself ever more slack and grab ever more if you were not afraid of being caught?

9. As a result of such secrecy and unaccountability for their public and private conduct(71§4), judges are influenced by the most insidious corruptor, money!(27§2) They need not rent the courts to make money; they make it because they own in practice the public's courts.

B. Causing exposure that outrages the public and forces politicians to reform

Is this "dramatic" enough? It should be. It warrants your exposing it as part of "telling the whole truth"[ii] as a professor to your students, the public, and the media. You can thereby launch the first-ever, Watergate-like generalized investigation(ol:55) of the Federal Judiciary. Its query can be one proven to be devastating(4¶¶10-14): 'What did politicians know about wrongdoing judges and when did they know it?' Its findings can outrage(83§§2-3) the public at judges as abusive trustees of We the People's power entrusted to them to do justice but embezzled by them for self-benefit.

Such investigation can dominate the mid-term and 2016 election campaigns. Outraged voters –more numerous than taxpayers and Tea Party members– can force politicians, lest they be defeated at the polls, to do what constitutions can only require on paper: Adopt and apply legislation(158§§6-7) that eliminates secret, venal rulings and establishes citizen boards(160§8) to ensure judiciaries' transparency and judges' accountability to the People and liability to their victims. To explain how these developments can realistically(92§d; 164§9) be set in motion through a multidisciplinary academic(128§4) and business(119§§1, 4, 5) venture I offer to make a presentation(Lsch:2) to you and your students.

Consequently, I look forward to hearing from you so that we can join in the public interest to 'obtain justice from the public's courts'[6].

Dare trigger history!(dcc:11)…and you may enter it. Sincerely, Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

The DeLano Case

a hands-on, role-playing, fraud investigative and expository multidisciplinary course for undergraduate or graduate students

WITH A SYLLABUS

setting forth
the work for the Classroom and the Organization of the Public Presentation for each of a semester's 15 weeks

by

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

2167 Bruckner Blvd.
Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. (718)827-9521

December 10, 2012

http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/DCC/DrRCordero_DeLano_Case_Course.pdf

Blank

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

January 4, 2013

The DeLano Case Course

a hands-on, role-playing, fraud investigative and expository course for undergraduate and graduate students based on

The Disinfecting Sunshine on the Federal Judiciary Project

multidisciplinary research and investigation to expose the inner workings of the most secretive branch of government and its riskless disregard for ethics and the law

1. The DeLano Case is based on cases that started in a U.S. bankruptcy court and were appealed to the District Court, the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit (CA2), and on to the Supreme Court(dcc:11[2,3]). Throughout this long journey along the full length of the hierarchy of federal courts they revealed the harmful effect on the judicial process of the two most corruptive forces: lots of money and unaccountable power to dispose of it. So, although thousands of federal judges and magistrates have served since the Federal Judiciary was created in 1789 –2,153 were in office in 2008-, in the last 221 years only 7 have been removed.(jur:21§a) Likewise, of the 9,466 judicial misconduct complaints filed in the reported 1oct96-30sep08 12-year period, 99.82% were dismissed with no investigation and no private or public discipline(jur:24§§b-c). Judges have also granted themselves absolute immunity from liability for deprivation of civil rights.(Pierson v. Ray, 386 U.S. 547 (1967), but see J. Douglas' dissent) The CAs get rid of about 75% of the appeals by a rubberstamped no-reasons summary order and about 15% by opinions so perfunctory(jur:44fn68) and arbitrary that they mark them "not for publication" and "not precedential" (jur:43§1). They have been assured that "A judge will not be deprived of immunity because the action he took was in error, was done maliciously, or was in excess of his authority". (Stump v. Sparkman, 435 U.S. 349 (1978)) A life-tenured person that can do anything without fear of consequences or even having to explain themselves, develops a sense of entitlement to do everything. Together with others similarly situated, they will protect their privilege. So is human nature.

2. Thus, federal judges are de facto unimpeachable and have made themselves unaccountable. Without accountability, the basis of any ethical system, they need not apply judicial ethics. Individually and as a class, they can fail in their duty to ensure due process and instead pursue self-interest by coordinating wrongdoing[iii] among themselves and with others. They have the means to secure riskless benefit. Judges that unaccountably disregard legality while ruling annually on $10's of billions exercise absolute power, which corrupts absolutely(jur:28§2). So they have placed themselves where neither the President, nor a member of Congress, nor anyone among We the People is allowed to be: Judges Above the Law. Unrestrained by law or rules, their administration of justice is dominated by relativism where anything goes.(jur:50§4) The mere capacity of judges so to behave, let alone their actual behavior, mocks every professor's scholarship on, and teaching of, the rule of law. Students should be made aware of this situation; otherwise, once they are out there in the real world and confront it for the first time, they will feel misled and become, not just ethics skeptics, but also amoral cynics who feel justified in doing wrong as judges do.

3. The DeLano Case course aims to teach students outcome-determinative facts about judicial conduct and the first steps toward holding judges accountable and liable to discipline(11§A). It illustrates the clash between the theory of how the legal system is supposed to work as bound by law and judicial ethics and evidence obtained during the prosecution of the cases of how in reality it is made to work by judges as free agents(jur:54§d) who cannot be fired, whose "Compensation… shall not be diminished during their Continuance in Office"(Const. Art. III, §1), and whose "good [or bad] Behaviour"(id.) cannot authorize their colleagues, from the chief justice down, either to promote or demote them. The key documents in the record of the cases and official publications provide the core teaching materials(18§§D, E). They are used to develop the students' independent and critical thinking(17§B). So teams of students(10) are taught to apply ever-greater perceptiveness, inquisitiveness, and discernment as they compete with each other(8) to pierce apparently lawful acts and authoritative statements in order to find the facts behind them and realize their generating force(11[5]): a bankruptcy fraud scheme run by insiders of the bankruptcy and legal systems that in practice enjoy immunity(9). The students also learn in clinic-like fashion to cooperate to organize a public presentation(11) to expose how unaccountable judges run or cover up such a scheme while depriving litigants and the public of economic and welfare rights. Its audience will be in the university auditorium and that reached by its broadcast on student-run or commercial TV, radio, and interactive web, its brochure and documentary(13§C), and the PR campaign(14§D). This exercise will sharpen their research and writing skills(12§B) as well as their ability to draw up and advocate public policy and legislation to ensure that judges run the system according to due process requirements. The Syllabus sets forth in detail the work for the classroom and the organization of the public presentation for each of a semester's 15 weeks(23).

4. The presentation is intended to have the effect that Justice Lewis Brandeis believed could be attained through open and transparent government activity that informs the public when he said, "Sunshine is the best disinfectant". That light will shine most brightly and be most salutary as a result the project(jur:121§E). The latter is broader in scope than the course and requires specialized knowledge as opposed to providing for role-playing. Though hands-on too insofar as learning is achieved by doing, the project uses the wealth of documents(dcc:19¶14) in DeLano, not as the basis for teaching, but rather as an advanced station for further discovery. Whether conducted by students earning a higher education degree(10) or a team of practitioners, the project consists in multidisciplinary legal research, investigative journalism(xlvi§§H-I), and fraud & forensic accounting(126§4). Its methods are field research to interview people for inside information and find evidence of unethical or illegal activity and hidden assets(102§§a-c); legal analysis to determine their consonance with the rule of law or bias(108§d); and computer-based literary forensics and database correlation –dockets, judges' calendars, court reports, etc.- to find statistically significant patterns in judicial writings and events(129§b). The project aims to determine how far up, pervasive, and grave is the coordinated wrongdoing[iii] that runs the bankruptcy fraud scheme revealed in DeLano.(50§4) To that end, it will promote(97§1) a Watergate-like, generalized media investigation(100§3) guided by a proven query thus rephrased: "What did the justices and judges know and when did they know it?"(jur:1-4) By bringing about disinfecting exposure, the project will contribute to the progressive realization of the noble ideal of Equal Justice Under Law(id.).

5. The public presentation by students and experts is the short-term objective of the course and the project. It has significant fundraising potential because it will explain to lawyers, their clients, and the public why in 9 of 10 federal cases they end up with a meaningless 5¢ summary order form or decision.(43§1) To redeem themselves and continue their quest for justice, they will bid to have their most outrageous case studied as DeLano has been. For the students, it will be a job fair where to exhibit their skills live.(dcc:8) It will enhance their college's reputation for providing imaginatively novel and challenging education and expert work that meets the highest standards. It will instill in students and experts a sense of professional honesty and community service as they take action in behalf of millions(jur:3¶14) who are denied a fair and impartial forum. Hence, it will be the first step in the long-term objective of establishing a watchdog institute for the study of the Judiciary that casts disinfecting light on it and holds judges accountable(128§5). This fundraising, job finding, and reputational potential and the prospect of securing for We the People justice through the rule of law warrant careful review of this course and project proposal.(7)

© 2012 Richard Cordero. All rights reserved.

Table of Contents

of the materials for

The DeLano Case Course

article# paragraph¶# dcc:page#

1. The DeLano Case Course 3
2. Presentation of the course to the faculty and the students 7
   - ¶6.Objectives of the oral presentation 7
   - ¶7.Concepts and proposal 7
   - ¶8.A public presentation by students and faculty 7
3. Course Description for Students 8
4. The Salient Facts of the DeLano Case 9
5. Multidisciplinary academic and business venture 10
   - ¶16. The law team 10
   - ¶17. The journalism team 10
   - ¶18. The business team 10
   - ¶19. Research and writing course 10
6. The Public Presentation of the DeLano Case Course 11
   - A. DeLano and the empowerment of the people through information and knowledge 11
   - B. Student evaluation of DeLano & the stages of the Follow the money! investigation 12
     - ¶25. Computer research 12
     - ¶26. Local field research 12
     - ¶27. Advanced, Watergate-like Follow the money! investigation 12
   - C. The students' across-platforms short & long-term telling of the DeLano story 13
     - ¶28. The public presentation 13
     - ¶29. Presentation invitations and advertising materials 13
     - ¶30. The brochure 13
     - ¶31. TV, radio, and web documentary 14
   - D. The students' PR campaign and strategy for judicial accountability and discipline 14

7. Teaching The DeLano Case Course 15
   A. Table of Contents of the Instructions for the Instructor 15
   B. Key Concepts Underlying the Course 17
   C. Role-Playing Structure of The Class 18
   D. Sources of Course Materials 18
   E. Materials to analyze as two sets of conflicting interests: assets v. liabilities; and debtors v. creditors 19
   F. Documents to be produced during the course 20
8. Syllabus: week by week course work 23
   A. Classwork

1st week 23
2nd & 3rd weeks 24
4th & 5th weeks 25
6th & 7th weeks 26
8th & 9th weeks 27
10th & 11th weeks 28
12th & 13th weeks 29
14th & 15th weeks 30
L. Notes 38

   B. Public Presentation of The DeLano Case

1st & 2nd weeks 31
3rd & 4th weeks 32
5th & 6th weeks 33
7th & 8th weeks 34
9th & 10th weeks 35
11th & 12th weeks 36
13th & 14th weeks 37
15th week 38
L. Notes 38

Note: All (jur:#) references are at

http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/jur/DrRCordero_jud_unaccountability_reporting.pdf

and herein beginning at ..... jur:i

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.
Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris
2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Presentation by the Author to the Faculty and the Students of The DeLano Case Course and The Disinfecting Sunshine on the Federal Judiciary Project

6. Objectives of the oral presentation. It will aim to demonstrate that undergraduate or graduate students in a multidisciplinary class(10) can benefit academically and professionally from the course. It will show how DeLano, a federal case, deals with a subject that affects millions of people: unaccountable power, greed, and fraud. It will describe how bankruptcy, district, and circuit judges and Supreme Court justices systematically(jur:21§A) 1) dismiss misconduct complaints against them to self-exempt from discipline; 2) engage in money-driven wrongdoing in bankruptcy cases: 1.5 ml. filed in CY10 worth $373+ bl. and unreviewable since fewer than .08% reached the circuit courts; and 3) disregard due process by issuing no-reason summary orders. Judges abuse their decision-making power risklessly and in coordination, e.g., in a bankruptcy fraud scheme(9). Their wrongdoing[iii] cannot be stopped through litigation before other judges, who fearing incrimination for at least having tolerated it dismiss any proceedings(jur:xxix). Students trained in detecting and exposing the scheme and judges' wrongdoing will render a valuable public service to victims and the community as advocates of official investigation(xxxix) and reform(155§e).

7. Concepts and proposal. The DeLano Case will be described as a course to teach the observing, analytical, synthesizing, and applying skills of an inquisitive, critical, imaginative mind: It skeptically reads parties' and judges' documents to identify between lines conflicting and harmonious interests(17§B); separates their interests, means, and opportunities using facts, common sense, and group dynamics(18§C); composes a reconfigurable mosaic of interacting judges, bankruptcy and legal systems insiders, and outsiders; and makes boomerang use of authors' statements to impeach or hold them to their words and implications(19§E). Such methodical way of thinking will give students a competitive advantage when as practitioners they deal with similar documents and dynamic situations. So a proposal will be made for 1) jointly taught legal research, investigative journalism, fraud & forensic accounting, statistics, and public policy advocacy courses and practicums; 2) a multidisciplinary project to analyze judges' decisions, financial disclosure reports, and investments; correlate them with their vacations, seminars, connections; and publish findings; and 3) a Watergate-like Follow the money! investigation of asset concealment in DeLano(9) and its cover-up by judges and others running or tolerating a bankruptcy fraud scheme.

8. A public presentation by students and faculty. The author will discuss how the faculty can present that proposal at an event that will enhance its reputation for innovative teaching that affords students a unique professional experience while fostering the civic commitment of all of them: a multimedia public presentation(11) of DeLano in their auditorium to members of the university, government, the business world, and journalists. 1) It can be the final exam of the role-playing course(8): The students mount a PR convention for their public interest firm to present a) lessons of their study of DeLano, b) findings of their Follow the money! investigation of a bankruptcy fraud scheme(12§B), and c) their recommendations to expose and end it(14§D). 2) That presentation can be a faculty-guided, school-wide event to a) explain the need for academia(126§4) in the interest of legal system integrity to pioneer judicial unaccountability reporting (jur:1-4); b) develop it through exposition of coordinated judicial wrongdoing(122§§1-3), research (129§b), and advocacy of legislation(155§§6,7) to discipline judges as public servants; and c) call for an institute(128§5) to act as (i) clearinghouse of complaints about judges' misconduct and due process denial; (ii) prototype of a citizen board of judicial accountability(jur:157§8); and (iii) for-profit(154§f) provider of consulting and representational services as Champion of Justice.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.
Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Course Description for Students
The DeLano Case Course
A hands-on, role-playing, fraud investigative and expository course for undergraduate and graduate students

9. DeLano is a case that went from bankruptcy, district, and circuit courts to the Supreme Court(9). It deals with an issue affecting over 1.5 million new bankruptcy cases a year: fraud. Part of a cluster of cases that originated in 2001, it has produced a wealth of documents(18§§D,E).

10 In this course(3), you analyze some of those documents to answer the questions asked by the managing partner, who assigned DeLano to you: Has fraud been committed?; if so, how does it operate and who is involved? Thus the course is structured as a role-playing exercise where you join a small consulting team that is pitted against other teams(18§C). All of you must get your work approved by the toughest of partners: your classmates. The latter will evaluate your team's presentations in oral and written fact-finding reports, legal and audit opinions, and editorials, all expressed in proper English; showing fairness, accuracy, and insight; with multimedia display of sources, data, and charts; complying with time and space limitations; and likely to attain your goal: to persuade your audience to rate your presentations' content and delivery highly.

11. To that end, the course will develop your ability to perform dynamic analysis of conflicting and harmonious interests and skeptical text analysis.(17§B) The former requires you to identify what debtors, creditors, trustees, judges, and lawyers want and do not want and how each party may or may not satisfy its interests in interaction with other parties' interests. So you need to be skeptical of their written or transcribed statements because the story that they tell may be a cover for the real interests that they are pursuing. You must read DeLano documents discriminatingly to determine where the parties' statements lie along the true-false continuum, for you will not be reading the textbook of an expert, reasonably assumed to be knowledgeable and reliable. Thereby you develop the capacity to pierce any party's surface credibility by asking poignant questions; exercise independent judgment to evaluate answers critically; and constantly revise your view of the case in light of new information as you engage in mosaic building: Use your common sense, general knowledge, and logic to sift from the parallel planes of told and hidden stories scattered and seemingly unimportant data pebbles as potentially relevant; assess their suspiciousness, plausibility, internal consistency, and external congruity; and imaginatively integrate(20§F) them into a coherent narrative that crafts a mosaic depicting a reason-appealing scene of meaning.

12. A demanding course(23), it also teaches you to work to professional standards in a large corporate environment. Using digital means of communication, you must coordinate and perform activities by tight deadlines with the accounting, law, business intelligence, and PR departments of your consulting firm as it produces an extraordinary event. Fun in itself and apt to enrich your life with valuable personal experiences and professional practice, it is the presentation(11) in your school auditorium of The DeLano Case: its lessons and your research findings and views. You will enlighten your audience about how bankruptcy fraud works, how to detect judicial wrongdoing[iii], and what measures to adopt to combat both. A presentation in the public interest and yours too!, for you will address students and faculty in your university as well as representatives of law and auditing firms, news and advertisement agencies, and government that you and your classmates invited and would like to turn into your employers and clients…a job interview the size of a job fair where you will highlight your multidisciplinary knowledge and skills(10) as you 'enact your resume' and stand out as the best candidate thanks to having taken this course.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

The Salient Facts of The DeLano Case

(as of 9dec12)

revealing the involvement of bankruptcy & legal system insiders in a bankruptcy fraud scheme

(D:# & footnotes are keyed to Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/DCC/DeLano_docs.pdf; blue text points to bookmarks on the left)

13. DeLano is a federal bankruptcy case. Part of a case cluster, it reveals fraud that is so egregious as to betray overconfidence born of a long standing practice[1]: Coordinated wrongdoing evolved into a bankruptcy fraud scheme.[2] It was commenced by the DeLano couple filing a bankruptcy petition with Schedules A-J and a Statement of Financial Affairs on January 27, 2004. (04-20280, WBNY[3]) Mr. DeLano, however, was a most unlikely bankruptcy candidate. At filing time, he was a 39-year veteran of the banking and financing industry and continued to be employed by M&T Bank precisely as a bankruptcy officer. He and his wife, a Xerox technician, were not even insolvent, for they declared $263,456 in assets v. $185,462 in liabilities (D:29); and also:

    a. that they had in cash and on account only $535 (D:31), although they also declared that their monthly excess income was $1,940 (D:45); and in the FA Statement (D:47) and their 1040 IRS forms (D:186) that they had earned $291,470 in just the three years prior to their filing;

    b. that their only real property was their home (D:30), bought in 1975 (D:342) and appraised in November 2003 at $98,500[4], as to which their mortgage was still $77,084 and their equity only $21,416 (D:30)…after making mortgage payments for 30 years! and receiving during that period at least $382,187 through a string of eight mortgages[5]. (D:341) Mind-boggling!

    c. that they owed $98,092 –spread thinly over 18 credit cards (D:38)- while they valued their household goods at only $2,810 (D:31), less than 1% of their earnings in the previous three years. Even couples in urban ghettos end up with goods in their homes of greater value after having accumulated them over their working lives of more than 30 years.

    d. Theirs is one of the trustee's 3,907 open cases and their lawyer's 525 before the same judge.

14. These facts show that this was a scheming bankruptcy system insider offloading 78% of his and his wife's debts (D:59) in preparation for traveling light into a golden retirement. They felt confident that they could make such incongruous, implausible, and suspicious declarations in the petition and that neither the co-schemers would discharge their duty nor the creditors exercise their right to require that bankrupts prove their petition's good faith by providing supporting documents. Moreover, they had spread their debts thinly enough among their 20 institutional creditors (D:38) to ensure that the latter would find a write-off more cost-effective than litigation to challenge their petition. So they assumed that the sole individual creditor, who in addition lives hundreds of miles from the court, would not be able to afford to challenge their good faith either. But he did after analyzing their petition, filed by them under penalty of perjury, and showing that the DeLano 'bankrupts' had committed bankruptcy fraud through concealment of assets.

15. The Creditor requested that the DeLanos produce documents[6] as reasonably required from any bankrupt as their bank account statements. Yet the trustee, whose role is to protect the creditors, tried to prevent the Creditor from even meeting with the DeLanos. After the latter denied every single document requested by the Creditor, he moved for production orders. Despite his discovery rights and their duty to determine whether bankrupts have concealed assets, the bankruptcy and district judges denied him every single document. So did the circuit judges, even then CA2 Judge Sotomayor, the presiding judge, who also needed the documents to find the facts to which to apply the law. They denied him and themselves due process of law. To eliminate him, they disallowed his claim in a sham evidentiary hearing. Revealing how incriminating the documents are, to oppose their production the DeLanos, with the trustee's recommendation and the bankruptcy judge's approval, were allowed to pay their lawyers $27,953 in legal fees[7]…though they had declared that they had only $535. To date $673,657[8] is still unaccounted for. Where did it go[9]? How many of the trustee's 3,907 cases have unaccounted for assets? For whose benefit?[2]

[1] §XIII [2] §III [3] §V. [4] §X [5] §§I.B & VIII [6] Cf. §XII [7] §XI [8] §I.B [9] §II

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.
Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Multidisciplinary Academic and Business Venture

Complementary intellectual and professional skills that undergraduate and graduate students and professionals can contribute to enriching the hands-on learning experience of a course and to performing the work at the expert level of the project to attain their investigative, expository, and public interest objectives

16. The law team will 1) find and analyze the evidence contained in the court record of DeLano(9) that shows federal judges concealing assets, withholding material information[213], and showing peer partiality by disregarding due process and systematically dismissing complaints against them (jur:24§§b,c); 2) research(129§b) the Judiciary's statistics(jur:21§A), financial disclosure reports, and news[ii], which reveal coordinated wrongdoing[iii] and self-immunization against its adverse consequences as its institutionalized modus operandi(jur:50§4); and 3) draw therefrom pertinent implications for the integrity of our legal system and its basic tenet: Equal Justice Under Law.

17. The journalism team can 1) conduct a Follow the money! journalistic investigation(12§B) of judges and other insiders of the legal and bankruptcy systems that engage in concealment of assets and cover it up as part of a bankruptcy fraud scheme; 2) apply their mass communication skills to the multi-platform(13§C) advertising of the class's public presentation to be held in its auditorium to report the lessons drawn from its study of DeLano and the findings of its library and field research; 3) layout and help write the brochure and CD to be distributed at the presentation; and 4) design and implement(14§D) a) a public relations campaign to market class 'editorials' on how to render judges accountable and disciplinable based on b) the strategy of •the media(jur:100§3) investigating the Judiciary through a case –such as DeLano(9)- that reveals judges from U.S. bankruptcy court to the Supreme Court participating in, or tolerating, coordinated wrong-doing; •an outraged public demanding that Congress and the FBI investigate and their findings be followed up with •legislation eliminating the judges' abusive discipline self-exemption and de facto unimpeachability through which they have become Judges Above the Law.

18. The business team will apply their fraud & forensic accounting (FFA) skills to(jur:102§a) 1) identify the means used a) by insiders to inflate creditors' proofs of claims and conceal debtors' assets in bankruptcy petitions' schedules and financial affairs statements(19¶14) and hide their bank and credit card statements; and b) by judges not to disclose in their annual financial reports(12[20]) as many assets as held by earners of similar salaries; 2) detect money and asset laundering by insiders(13[27]); and 3) track assets from a) their origin -e.g., salary, fee, and commission payments, loan receipts, and lottery wins- b) through property registries -such as county clerks' offices(12[21])-, DMV records, credit bureau reports, SEC filings, auction records, etc., c) to wherever assets have been concealed under the insiders' names, their relatives', and strawmen's.

19. A research and writing course using DeLano materials(18§D,E) will benefit 1) law students, who will learn how judges work in practice as opposed to in theory; 2) journalism students, who need to explain complex issues in a way understandable to the public[256e], and 3) business students, who must find FFA and generally accepted business standards, and their application. It can be taught to provide experiential learning -as a learning-by-doing course or an internship in a media outlet or an auditing firm- by having 4) the joint class research, write, design, publish, and distribute an exposé(jur:98§2) of the corruptive effect of unaccountable judges ruling on $100s of billions(jur:28§2). Both the DeLano and the R&W courses will 5) teach all students the essential skills in today's business world needed for a multidisciplinary team of professionals and their clients to draft, comment on, and produce a collaborative multimedia piece of writing

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.
Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

The Public Presentation of the DeLano Case Course

an imaginative and ambitious multimedia Brandeis brief presentation based on multidisciplinary knowledge, skills, and means and intended for undergraduate and graduate students to trigger history!

20. Before Louis Brandeis became a justice of the Supreme Court in 1916, he was an effective litigator advocating progressive causes. He won his cases, not only by arguing the law, but also by writing briefs where he presented socio-economic data and treated it with as much rigor as if it were legal evidence. His briefs were so persuasive that they gave rise to a new type: the Brandeis brief. They contributed to ushering in a more just society and thus, to make history.

A. DeLano and the empowerment of the people through information and knowledge

21. DeLano(9) is a case that was filed in a U.S. bankruptcy court[1] and appealed to the district and circuit courts and the Supreme Court[2]. It is the representative case of a cluster that followed the same path along the Federal Judiciary courts.[3] They show judges engaging in a series of acts, such as withholding of material information, concealment of assets, and partiality, so consistently in favor of other judges and insiders of the bankruptcy and legal systems to the detriment of outsiders and so blatantly in disregard of the facts and due process of law as to be non-coincidental and intentional. That series of acts constitutes pattern evidence[4] from which a reasonable person can infer a judicially supported bankruptcy fraud scheme[5]. The latter is only one manifestation of the two most insidious corruptors: unaccountable power and lots of money, i.e., the $10s of billions that federal judges rule on annually and their way above average salaries.[6]

22. The law, journalism, and business students(10) taking The DeLano Case and/or its research & writing course will study key documents in the 2,500+ page DeLano record[7]. They will learn the findings of, and conduct research on Judiciary publications, e.g., reports[8], statistics[9], and news[10], that reveal what has allowed the Judiciary to institutionalize coordinated wrongdoing(jur:50§4) as its modus operandi: the unaccountability of life tenured, de facto unimpeachable judges, who abuse their self-discipline system[11] by systematically dismissing complaints(jur:21§1)[12] against them; assured of impunity[13], they disregard due process and do wrong[iii] while exercising their vast judicial power[14]. The students will apply convergently their multidisciplinary skills and means

---

[1] In re DeLano, 04-20280, WBNY; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/DCC/DeLano_docs.pdf >§V

[2] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/US_writ/1DrCordero-SCt_petition_3oct8.pdf >§IX Statement of Facts

[3] James Pfuntner v Trustee Kenneth Gordon et al., 02-2230, WBNY; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/DrCordero_v_TrGordon_SCt.pdf

[4] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/18usc1961_RICO.pdf >7¶(5) "pattern of racketeering activity"

[5] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/How_fraud_scheme_works.pdf

[6] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/SCt_nominee/JSotomayor_integrity/12table_JSotomayor-financials.pdf

[7] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/DeLano_record/DrCordero_DeLano-ToC.pdf

[8] http://www.uscourts.gov/library/annualreports.htm; and http://www.ca2.uscourts.gov/annualreports.htm

[9] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Statistics_of_systematic_dismissals.pdf

[10] http://www.uscourts.gov/news.cfm and http://www.uscourts.gov/ttb/2009-01/index.cfm

[11] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc351_Conduct_complaints.pdf

[12] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/jur/DrRCordero_jud_unaccountability_reporting.pdf

[13] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/JNinfo/25Committee/2DrCordero-petition_25feb9.pdf

[14] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/why_j_violate_due_pro.pdf

to find evidence thereof, put their findings into across-platform multimedia reports, and deliver them in class and at a public presentation. They will thus perform a fundamental function of lawyers sworn to uphold the Constitution and of journalists in a democratic society: to inform the citizenry so that it may maintain or regain control of 'the government of, for, and by the people'.

B. Student evaluation of DeLano & the stages of the Follow the money! investigation

23. The students will learn the structure of the Judiciary, the principles of legal research, and the requirements for handling legal evidence. That way they can become knowledgeable legal reporters and forensic accountants, in particular, and competent lawyers, journalists, and financial analysts in general. They will develop a healthy 'paranoid' concern for reporting information with accuracy and for presenting evidence or citing precedent for every legal principle: 'There are people out there trying to get me!, be it the opposing counsel, the professor, the fact-checker, the editor, or the audience, including competitors, and their own sense of professional responsibility.

24. The students will apply independent and critical judgment to distinguish between factual and fraudulent statements of parties and even judges so as to detect judicial wrongdoing. To assess its scope, they will execute any of the stages of the Follow the money! journalistic investigation/discovery, as allowed by their knowledge, experience, and funding, and required by due diligence:

25. Computer research. This includes research on PACER (Public Access to Court Electronic Records) and the websites of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts (AO) and the courts[15]; legislators[16]; and pundits on the judiciary and consumers of judicial services[17]. The students can research further 1) the case handling policies that the courts have developed on their own and their compliance with Constitutional and statutory requirements[18]; 2)(jur:129§b) (a) the statistics on the nature, handling, and disposition of cases and (b) public opinion on the services of, and trust in, each of the government branches[19]; 3) the judges' publicly filed annual financial disclosure reports and how they compare with the assets and liabilities of non-judicial earners of similar salaries[20]; 4) repositories of public records to track online judges' and their surrogates' assets[21]; etc.

26. Local field research. Students can conduct field interviews with current and former staff and law clerks of the local federal court; litigants; lawyers; bankruptcy debtors, creditors, and service providers[22], e.g. trustees, appraisers, accountants, auctioneers, and deposition reporters; etc.

27. Advanced, Watergate-like Follow the money! investigation. The Judiciary's coordinated wrong doing can be investigated(102§4) through DeLano(9) as representative of circa 1.5 million bankruptcy cases filed annually and the one involving a former circuit judge who is now Justice Sotomayor[23a]. Students will travel as necessary to 1) interview (a) those involved in DeLano[23b]; (b) if possible, active, senior, and retired judges; (c) law clerks and staff, if need be with their identity hidden to protect their Deep Throat status(106§c); (d) legislators, who under the

---

[15] http://www.pacer.uscourts.gov/index.html; AO: http://www.uscourts.gov/; and http://www.uscourts.gov/courtlinks/

[16] http://www.senate.gov/general/contact_information/senators_cfm.cfm ; https://writerep.house.gov/writerep/welcome.shtml

[17] http://victimsoflaw.net/; http://www.wellsofjustice.com/; http://www.scotusblog.com/wp/; http://thecaucus.blogs.nytimes.com/

[18] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/CA2_summary_orders_19dec6.pdf

[19] http://www.uscourts.gov/library/statisticalreports.html and http://www.harrispollonline.com/

[20] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/5usc_Ethics_Gov_2011.pdf and http://www.census.gov/

[21] E.g., National Association of Counties: http://www.naco.org >clerks' offices; and footnote 1 supra >§X

[22] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/11usc_Bkr-Code_06.pdf >§327

[23] Footnote 1 supra [a] >W:23; [b] >§XIII pretext(jur:81§1) of separation of powers have allowed the Judiciary to become an undemocratic power center[24]; (e) law enforcement officers[25], who investigate more legislators than they do members of the larger Judiciary[26]; 2) attend court proceedings; and 3) track down assets from county clerks' offices to their current and former owners, sellers, neighbors[27]; etc. The students' investigation –which can be an academic degree's final project– and their storytelling –which can be the model for that of others(122§2)– can show that even justices tolerate or cover up[28] the same wrongdoing that they engaged in when they were judges, lest they end up incriminated[29].

C. The students' across-platforms short & long-term telling of the DeLano story

28. The public presentation. The DeLano course includes a presentation by the students in their auditorium of its lessons and their research findings, opinions, and editorials.(8) They will broadcast it on campus/internship TV and radio, and interactive web. Their audience will be university members and other opinion-shapers and decision-makers, e.g., political party and law enforcement officers; legislators; judges and Judiciary staff; journalism, fraud & forensic accounting, and law professors, practitioners, and associations; litigants represented pro se and by small, medium, and large law firms; public interest advocates; bloggers; talk show hosts; book publishers; etc. Their presentation(jur:97§D) can crown the course or launch a campaign for a higher objective(130§5); either way it can enhance the schools' reputation for academic excellence and civic leadership.

29. Presentation invitations and advertising materials. These call for copywriters, designers, and producers to cooperate to devise a story theme and compose a message that catch the attention of the target of the presentation advertisement, and do so on time and within budget. They will be mailed to invitees, posted on campus and the web, released at a press conference, broadcast, etc.

30. The brochure. The students will tell their DeLano story in a magazine-like package integrating main text(jur:119§1) and sidebars; statistical time series tables(jur:9-20); trend-depicting graphs[30]; hierarchical relations charts; clip art representations of people in systems; and realism-providing photos. They will give away the print version at the presentation, post it on their website[31], and burn it on CDs for low cost promotional distribution and possible sale. Their brochure can be updated(122§2) as the Follow the money! investigation of DeLano and similar cases is pursued in subsequent courses. So it can become the first investigative law/journalism periodical(126§3) dedicated to the in-depth professional exposure of the Judiciary, the most secretive of the branches of government, the only one to hold all its meetings behind closed doors[32], whose close-knit (88§§a-d) members appear at no press conference, account to nobody, yet wield power the

---

[24] Cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Sen_Specter_on_SCt.pdf

[25] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/DoJ-FBI/4DrRCordero-DoJ_30mar9.pdf

[26] In 2008, 2,153 federal judges and magistrates were in office, but there were only 535 members of Congress. Yet, the Dept. of Justice has recently investigated and/or prosecuted Rep. William Jefferson (D- La.); Sen. Ted Stevens (R-Alas.); Lobbyist Jack Abramoff and members that he influenced; Rep. Duke Cunnigham (R-Cal.); Rep. Bob Ney (R-Ohio); Rep. Tom Delay (R-Tex.), Rep. John T. Doolittle (R-Cal.); Rep. Mark Foley (R-Fl.), Rep Rick Renzi (R-Ariz.); etc.; but only U.S. Judge Samuel Kent (SDTx-5th Cir.). Cf. http://www.crewsmostcorrupt.org/; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Judicial_Watch_Corrupt_Politicians_09.pdf.

[27] En.1 sup. >§II; http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/18usc_bkrp_related.pdf >§§1956-1957: money laundering

[28] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/SCt_knows_of_dismissals.pdf

[29] [a] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/Dynamics_of_corruption.pdf & [b]…money/Unaccountable_judges.pdf

[30] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/statistics&tables/judicial_misconduct.pdf

[31] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/Programmatic_Proposal.pdf >5§C

[32] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/unaccount_jud_nonjud_acts.pdf

longest directly on parties and through case law over We the People's property, liberty, and lives.

31. TV, radio, and web documentary. Shot during the Follow the money! investigation and aimed to attract advocates and donors to its judicial reform campaign, it can be shown at the presentation; meetings of, and schools for, mass communicators, accountants, and lawyers; on TV, radio, and the web; entered in intercollegiate competitions and film festivals; and played at high schools and universities as a recruiting tool for the participating schools, clinics, and internships by illustrating the sophisticated craft that their students learn and the weighty subjects that they treat.

D. The students' PR campaign and strategy for judicial accountability and discipline

32. The students can pursue that legitimate journalistic and public policy objective as community service to inform about the Judiciary's institutionalized self-exemption from discipline, bankruptcy fraud scheming, and disregard for due process. This requires planning a PR campaign based on a cogent strategy.(jur:xliii) They must persuade their audience, especially the journalists in it (xxxii), to disseminate their findings to the national public and launch their own Watergate-like, generalized media investigation(jur:100§3; xlviii). The public should become outraged at learning how those who took an oath to "administer justice without respect to persons"[33], have instead turned the Judiciary into a safe haven for coordinated wrongdoing[iii] for their own and other insiders' benefit. Their outrage should force the Justice Department and Congress to investigate DeLano(85§3), in particular, and the Judiciary, in general. The findings of such investigation should force Congress to give up its historic refusal to take on the judges[34] and undertake judicial reform(156§7) that includes establishing citizen boards of judicial accountability(157§8).

33. A key to understanding that refusal is found in Former Speaker N. Pelosi's candid statement that "Congress is dominated by the culture of corruption"[16a]: If its members tried to hold judges accountable for their abuse of power only to appear on corruption charges[26] or election irregularities before those judges, the latter could take the opportunity to retaliate against their nemeses. So the campaign should be not only informative to the public, but also transformative of Congress' self-preserving hands-off-the-Judiciary attitude. This requires on the students' part insightful reporting, editorials, and advocacy that outrage35a the public and stir it up to demand(83§2) reform. They must analyze the reactions and circumstances of members of Congress so as to cultivate the interest of those that can reap a benefit from seizing the occasion to become this generation's Sen. Howard Baker(jur:3¶¶4-8), vice-chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee[36]. His equivalent today can attain similar national recognition supportive of a presidential bid[35b] (jur:xxvii) by updating his devastating trademark query thus: "What did the justices and judges know about coordinated judicial wrongdoing and to what extent did they tolerate, or participate in, it?"

34. The students can design their PR campaign so that their Brandeis-brief reporting on the corruption of the Judiciary due to unaccountable power, money, and secrecy(jur:xxxix) leads to dynamic analysis of the interests at stake(dcc:17§B.1) and to realistic proposals: citizen boards of judicial accountability, an IG for the judiciary, transparent operation(155§§6-8). Thereby they will not just witness historic events, but also influence them so as to trigger history! If they show the courage(xlvi§§H-I) to expose and the capacity to propose, they can become the statesmanship version of Woodward/Bernstein and their faculty the Graham/Bradlee of the 21st century(jur:3¶¶4-8).

---

[33] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/28usc453_judges_oath.pdf

[34] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/bill_to_amend_judicial_discipline.pdf, never reported out.

[35] [a] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/Follow_money/Emile_Zola_I_Accuse.pdf; [b]...money/Champion_of_Justice.pdf

[36] http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/docs/WP_The_Watergate_Story.pdf >p7

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.
Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Teaching The DeLano Case Course

A. Table of Contents of the Instructions for the Instructor

1. Class structure: teams competing with, and evaluating, each other and its rationale
2. Students' permanent, course role
3. Students' transient, class roles
4. Educational objectives and types of materials
   a. A publicly filed federal bankruptcy petition
   b. Briefs, motions, letters, dockets, court orders and decisions, and local rules in the DeLano record in bankruptcy, district, and circuit courts, and the Supreme Court
   c. Public records filed in county clerks' offices and other depositories of information
   d. Excerpts from legal documents such as:
      1) The Bankruptcy Code, 11 U.S.C.
      2) The Judicial Code, 28 U.S.C.
      3) The Federal Rules of Bankruptcy and of Civil Procedure, 28 U.S.C.
      4) The Criminal Code, 18 U.S.C.
      5) Code of Federal Regulations
      6) Ethics in Government Act, 5 U.S.C., Appendix [no. 4 in Thomson West]
   e. Publications of the:
      1) Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts
      2) Federal Judicial Center
      3) Judicial Conference of the U.S.
   f. Articles on Fraud and Forensic Accounting
   g. Standards of ethical and investigative journalism
   h. Articles written for the course on:
      1) the structure of the Federal Judiciary
      2) the operation of the bankruptcy system
      3) critical reading for understanding between the lines and outside the paper
      4) methodical thinking based on the scientific method
      5) good writing that is grammatically correct and achieves stylistic elegance through unambiguous, accurate, concise, and meaningful expression
5. Educational technique: Dynamic analysis of conflicting and harmonious interests
   a. Students' performance of the analysis
   b. Example of the analysis

6. Bilateral role-playing: students making presentations as auditing-consulting teams that provide legal, investigative journalism, and fraud & forensic accounting (FFA) reports and services to their classmates, who are their managing partners, editors, and clients
7. The bankruptcy petition as the first and key document to analyze
    a. Method and objective of analyzing the bankruptcy petition
    b. The petition's importance for the course's academic objectives
8. Reading to find the hidden reality behind the declared reality: two parallel planes of interests
    a. Skeptical text analysis
    b. 'Plutonic thinking' or the postulation of what should exist
    c. From skepticism to a 3-D presentation of information: connecting the parallel planes
    d. Divide and integrate to understand a complex, constantly reconfiguring system
    e. Mosaic building: from bits of information to a theory explaining the planes of interests
9. The Bankruptcy Code: a system and its disruption by the scheme of coordinated wrongdoers
10. Progressive release of documents
11. Rewarding necessary, insightful, and timely questions of facts
12. The Statements of Facts as scripts for the instructor
13. Analytical documents as chapters in the manual for the instructor
    a. Table of materials for the instructor and for the students 14. The importance of the writing exercises
    a. Exercises to produce letters, reports, and multimedia data displays
    b. Format and contents of written communications and multimedia data displays 15. Types of analyses
    a. Springboard analysis of documents
    b. Boomerang scrutiny
    c. Broth reduction
    d. Database creation
16. Criteria to evaluate written reports and oral presentations
    a. the Payment Evaluation Form and its Checklist for clients' services value assessment
    b. Applying the evaluating criteria to oral presentations and written communications
    c. Evaluation by students of peer performance using the checklist and the payment form
17. Digital means for efficient transmission and proper presentation of written communications
18. Business attire at presentations
19. Final presentation to university members, government officers, business people, and the public
20. Use of the course materials and Table of Contents of Materials Reserved for the Instructor
21. Suggestion for a follow up course

B. Key Concepts Underlying the Course(cf. jur:125a¶253c)

1. Dynamic analysis of harmonious and conflicting interests

What each of the parties wants and does not want is identified and integrated into a system of opposite or convergent and mutually reinforcing forces, which frequently reconfigure themselves in response to the exit of, or change in, interests within and the entry of new ones

2. Skeptical text analysis

Documents represent the parties' declared reality of interests that covers their hidden reality of interests, both of which are matched up in a 3-D mosaic

3. "Plutonic" thinking

Specific knowledge of the declared reality, general knowledge of what makes people tic and how the world turns, common sense, and logic to extrapolate from the declared reality and postulate what musts exist in the hidden reality

4. Mosaic building with bits of information

Gathering and integrating bits of scattered information into Plutonic profiles of parties, events, and dynamic systems of interests to portray declared and hidden realities

5. Boomerang use of a person's words

Turning against him his inconsistencies, incongruities, and implausibilities to impeach his credibility or hold him to his declarations against self-interest

6. From salami slicing to reasoning by extremes

Increasing values and adding elements that render a system more complex and describe a progresssion that reveals patterns and trends or system evaluation by leaping to its logical conclusion

7. Coordinated wrongdoing as institutionalized modus operandi

Involvement in wrongful activity through active participation based on explicit agreements or reciprocal three-monkey passivity whereby everyone sees, hears, and says nothing concerning the others' wrongdoing on the expectation that they will return the same complicity

7. Confluence of causes

Causes that individually are insufficient to have a given effect may nevertheless have it when their respective effective forces cumulate serially or simultaneously; their collective sufficiency can only be realized by integrating the bits of information about each of them

8. To run the scene

A static scene of objects and people are described individually in terms of their appearance and true nature –declared and hidden interests known or reasonably assumed- and then the dynamics of their relations is narrated to create a drama that explains how the event in question could have happened. This calls for tridimensionalizing each bit of information by describing its surface appearance of declared interests, postulating its internal composition of hidden interests, establishing how the appearance was able to cover the composition of motives and in turn was determined by it, and then explaining the process through which over time that bit of information came into being in the context of other bits of information and gave rise to a mosaic.

C. Role Playing Structure of The Class

1. Permanent roles
    d. lawyers, investigative journalists, and accountants teamed in consulting firms
    e. the clients that hired them to find out: Were they defrauded as creditors?; before investing in the bankrupt company, are the court and parties to the bankruptcy involved in fraud?
2. Transient roles:
    a. debtor
    b. institutional or individual creditor or investor
    c. the private or U.S. trustee
    d. the bankruptcy or appellate judge
    e. the lawyer for a party
    f. an interested party, as referred to by the Bankruptcy Code
    g. an unrelated third party
    h. an investigative authority, e.g., the FBI, a Congressional committee, and their state counterparts
    i. a law enforcement authority, e.g. a DoJ U.S. attorney and a state district attorney
    j. a member of Congress or of a state legislature

D. Sources of Course Materials

1. A federal bankruptcy petition, publicly filed under oath, with its A-J Schedules and Statements
2. Briefs, motions, letters, court orders and decisions publicly filed in court
3. Public records in county clerks' offices and other government offices
4. The Bankruptcy Code, 11 U.S.C.
5. The Judicial Code, 28 U.S.C.
6. The Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure, 28 U.S.C.
7. The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, 28 U.S.C.
8. The Criminal Code, 18 U.S.C.
9. Code of Federal Regulations
10. Publications of the:
    a. Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts
    b. Federal Judicial Center
    c. Judicial Conference of the U.S.

11. Articles on Fraud and Forensic Accounting
12. Standards of ethical and investigative journalism:
    a. The New York Times Statement on Integrity
    b. Washington Post Standards and Ethics, February 17, 1999
    c. Jim Lehrer's Rules of Journalism
    d. American Society of Newspaper Editors Statement of Principles 13. Articles written for the course on:
    a. the structure of the federal judiciary
    b. the operation of the bankruptcy system
    c. critical reading for understanding between the lines and outside the paper
    d. methodical thinking based on the scientific method
    e. good writing that is grammatical correct and achieves stylistic elegance through unambiguous, accurate, concise, and meaningful expression and aims at eloquence and poetic beauty 14. See the documents collected at:
    http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/DCC/DeLano_docs.pdf

E. Materials to analyze as two sets of conflicting interests:

assets v. liabilities and debtors v. creditors

Parts of a federal bankruptcy petition under 11 U.S.C. Chapter 13 Adjustment of debts of an individual with regular income

D:# in http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/DCC/DeLano_docs.pdf

1. The notice of the meeting of creditors D:23
2. Certificate of mailing D:25
3. Voluntary petition D:27
    a. Signatures D:28
4. Summary of schedules D:29
5. Schedules A-J to evaluate the debtor's financial affairs
        A. Real property D:30
        B. Personal property D:31
        C. Property claimed as exempt D:35
        D. Creditors holding secured claims D:36

E. Creditors holding unsecured priority claims D:37
F. Creditors holding unsecured non-priority claims D:38
G. Executory contracts and unexpired leases D:42
H. Codebtors D:43
I. Current income of individual debtors D:44
J. Current expenditures of individual debtors D:45
6. Declaration concerning debtor's schedules… D:46
7. Form 7: Statement of financial affairs D:47
a. Declaration under penalty of perjury by individual debtor D:53
8. Disclosure of compensation of attorney for the debtor(s) D:54
9. Verification of creditor matrix D:55
a. Creditor address matrix D:56
10. Debtor's Chapter 13 plan for debt repayment D:59

F. Documents to be produced during the course

1. Letters: in the nature of executive summaries
   a. Letterhead with name, title, address, and qualifications or logo
   b. Date
   c. Complete name and address of the addressee and email to which sent or fax number to which faxed, and telephone number
   d. Greeting with appropriate form of address
   e. Subject or reference line
   f. First paragraph:
      6) recalls what has occurred before
      7) summarizes the letter, phone call, or other communication to which the letter is responding
      8) iii) indicates the gist of the author's position or response
   g. Middle paragraphs sets forth:
      9) reasonable arguments based on factual or documentary evidence
      10) summary of statements developed in accompanying document or exhibits 11) references to:
         a) accompanying document containing detailed statements
         b) exhibits consisting of previously submitted documents or new supporting materials
   h. Last paragraph with requests to the addressee that are:

1) concrete by stating the action to take, to what extent, when or by when, where
2) ii) clearly identified
    a) as entries in separate lines a of list
    b) series of clauses separated by numbers in bold in the same paragraph

i. Signature on first page
j. Page X of Y, particularly when a multipage letter is faxed k. Footer, particularly after the first page of a multipage letter, stating in abbreviated form:
    a) sender's name
    b) date
    c) addressee's name and location, e.g., of a court or company branch
    d) subject matter

2. Reports
    a. Name of reporting entity
    b. Title that summarizes the nature of the report
    c. if title is figurative, subtitle providing a literal statement of the report's nature
    d. subtitle that clarifies or defines more precisely the report's nature
    e. Typographical highlights: in title and paragraphs
    f. Introduction that summarizes the fundamental proposition of the report
    g. Headings that summarize the section(s) that each covers
    h. Numbered paragraphs
    i. Table of contents
    j. Different left and right footers
    k. Indented bulleted points and numbered lists
    l. Explanatory footnotes and referential endnotes
    m. Conclusion
        1) recapitulates the essential points
        2) sets forth requests for action
        3) makes recommendations
    n. Table of exhibits:
        1) with title identifying the main document, date and author
        2) exhibits summarized in descriptive entries
        3) entries highlighting author, addressee, date and key terms of content
        4) as a single list of numbered entries
        5) as a hierarchical list

a) with headings identifying categories of exhibits
b) indentation of attachments to main exhibits
c) the main headings of key documents
    (i) with table of category headings to overview along table of exhibits
    (ii) page numbers hyperlinked to a file containing the exhibits

3. Graphs to show, rather than tell
    a. title verbalizing the point illustrated by the graph
    b. columnar table with colors to set out columns, rows, or cells
    c. with axes and values either together with corresponding pictorial device inside the graph area or gathered outside the area in a legend table
    d. with legend and footnotes
    e. with links and link banks to sources and other supporting materials

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel.(718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Syllabus of the DeLano Case Course

Outline of the week by week

Classwork

and

Work of Organizing

the Public Presentation of The DeLano Case

based on a 15-week semester

and

illustrating the practical application of the description

Teaching The DeLano Case Course

1st Week of Classwork

1. Discussion of course objectives, structure, and rules
2. Introduction to dynamic analysis of conflicting interests, how such interests give rise to declared and hidden realities, and fraud as intentional distortion of reality to advance one's interests and safeguard them from conflicting ones
3. Overview of the bankruptcy system and the Bankruptcy Code
4. Discussion of the parts of a bankruptcy petition using the DeLanos' petition
5. Introduction to skeptical text analysis
    a. Intrinsic consistency: compare among themselves the declarations in the DeLanos' petition for bankruptcy relief
    b. Extrinsic congruity: compare their declarations with the rest of the world, including other writings and general knowledge of what makes people tic and how the world turns: Do the declarations make sense?
6. Form & substance: Elements of an analytical report & its evaluating criteria
7. Formation by teams of three to five students of their consulting firms to provide legal, investigative journalism, and accounting advice
8. Assignment to establish a baseline: The firms prepare a report on the petition using keen observation to detect bits of information, and general knowledge, common sense and logic to integrate them into mosaics of realities

2nd Week of Classwork

1. Discussion of the formal elements of a professional presentation
2. Presentation of firms' reports & composition of best of reports' elements report
3. List of questions that Investigative Journalists (IJ) would want to pursue
4. Extrinsic congruity
    a. Who are the DeLanos? From facts to a socio/psychological profile
    b. Proximate causes of people's and the DeLanos' bankruptcy
    c. What corrective and preventive action could they have taken to avoid it?
    d. Timeline of debt accumulation: What were debtors & creditors thinking?!
5. Elements & method of professional letter (re)writing…revising, letting it sit,…
6. Assignment: The firms request information, i.e. answers and documents, depositions, and interviews necessary to ascertain the petition's good faith

3rd Week of Classwork

1. The system of peer evaluation and the use of points
2. Firms' presentation of their information requests
3. Clients critique the firms' presentation
    a. clarity of expression: proper use of language
    b. precision that avoids ambiguity: X is requested, but Y is produced
    c. conciseness: go to the point
    d. usefulness of the information for the intended purpose
    e. appearance and delivery that inspires confidence & retains attention
4. Composition of model request and integration of information into a system
5. Legal, practical, and ethical differences between depositions & interview
6. Identification and role of the players in the bankruptcy system
    a. The role of the U.S. trustee and the appointed panel trustee
    b. The judge's role: former power to appoint trustees v. current power to approve her recommendations and remove her for cause as trustee
7. Assignment: Identify and prepare to discuss the key bankruptcy concepts

4th Week of Classwork

1. Listening, observing, classifying, conceptualizing, static system building, interests as drivers of dynamic model, reconfigured after exit/entry of elements
2. Bankruptcy Code as a dynamic system of conflicting & harmonious interests
    a. Key concepts as conflicting interests: assets v liabilities; debts v claims
    b. Actors: debtors v creditors; lawyers, trustees, & court officers as insiders
    c. Life-cycle events: petition filing, approval, discharge, revocation, appeal
4. The use and development of information presentation devices
    a. to organize and present at a glance large amounts of information
    b. to discover and present relations and patterns
    c. types: hierarchical lists, tables, charts, graphics, clip-art, animations
    d. incremental display: from the schematic to the whole picture
5. Assignment: Make a graphic of the bankruptcy system's concepts, actors, and life-cycle events and display it in a slide show or with a flip chart

5th Week of Classwork

1. Charting to organize the known and guide the discovery of the unknown
2. Presentation of the firms' graphics and composition of a model graphic
3. Model graphic that identifies breakdown of a dynamic system due to:
    a. inchoate development v. overwhelming complexity
    b. lack of training, incompetence, imperfect transmission of information, ambiguity, failure to foresee consequences, fraud
    c. slackening controls: overconfidence in honesty & machine performance
4. Analysis of the process by which systems grow in complexity
    a. addition of tasks and more extensive and deeper coverage
    b. who controls the controllers?
    c. fail-proof system v. complexity that bogs down its operation
5. Murphy's law: system failure, known accident, act of God, the unforeseen
6. Plutonic thinking: unknown variables, reasonable assumptions, value ranges
7. Practice: Sue wants to earn money selling lemonade to ride the rollercoaster
8. Assignment: Build a system with objectives, people, internal processes and external interactions using only general knowledge, common sense, and logic

6th Week of Classwork

1. Presentation of firms' systems and their evaluation in light of their objectives, cost/effectiveness, checks and balances, risks/rewards ratio, novelty
2. Categories and types of elements of dynamic systems
    a. driving interests: need, desires, fame, principles, ego, obsession, tradition
    b. measuring elements: of performance, capacity utilization, waste
    c. control: to detect, prevent, remedy malfunctions, & learn from experience
3. Undermining in-, outside interests: benefit from system exploitation/defeat
4. The dynamics of corruption in a functional network
    a. development of friendship, belongingness and interdependability
    b. material gains, the benefits of camaraderie and moral IOUs
    c. treason, exclusion, pariah status and material and moral loss
5. Assignment: As per the allotted role, prepare a statement of interests to be distributed before, and defended at, the meeting of creditors

7th Week of Classwork

1. Enactment of the meeting of creditors: one partly eaten pie of assets and too many liabilities to finish it off
    a. dynamic play of conflicting and consonant interests
2. Scope and purpose of discovery upon the debtors
    a. the instructor uses his materials as the ultimate source of facts
    b. non-contradicting facts can be made up if not contained in the documents
    c. to point out inaccuracies, incongruities, implausibilities, and lies by comparing information in documents and made up
3. Assignment: Draw up and send a request for information:
    a. from parties other than the DeLanos
    b. with statement of justification and intended benefit

8th Week of Classwork

1. Comparison of requests for documents and documents produced
2. Model request for documents
    a. Plutonic thinking used to postulate the occurrence of events and the existence of documents and data and request their production
3. Mosaics of declared and hidden realities built with seemingly unimportant and unrelated bits of information scattered over many documents
4. Analysis of the Equifax credit reports on the DeLanos
5. Assignment: Prepare a comparative table of the DeLanos' financial data
    a. collect data from various documents and present it in one
    b. annotate it with factual and evaluative comments
    c. draw the timeline of data and debt production to show patterns and trends

9th Week of Classwork

1. Presentation of the annotated comparative tables
2. Model table that draws on the best features of the other tables:
    a. data most useful to establish the petition's good faith or fraud
    b. annotations most insightful, accurate, and clearly expressed
    c. graphical aspects most helpful to the understanding of data
3. Lists of the types of information derived from the analysis of data
4. Mortgages' purpose, actors, cost, life-cycle events, expectations
    a. Plutonic thinking applied to the DeLanos' string of 8 mortgages and closing costs but only one real property declared
5. Assignment: Report on the DeLanos' mortgages, proceeds and their application, mortgage payments, real property valuation, and income

10th Week of Classwork

1. Presentation of the mortgage and income reports
2. Model report that draws on the best information to answer the queries:
    a. Who needed to do what for the mortgage applications to be approved and the proceeds applied as they were?
    b. What system of interests does the mortgages analysis reveal?
3. Methods for tracing concealed assets
    a. title search and search for property in county clerk's offices
    b. subpoena for financial institutions to produce account documents
    c. trustee's accounts and annual judicial financial disclosure reports
4. Assignment: Report on the second batch of mortgage documents to determine the role of the trustees and the DeLanos' attorney

11th Week of Classwork

1. Presentation of the 2nd batch of reports on mortgages documents
2. Model report to ascertain:
    a. How useful for the lawyers and the trustees were the produced documents compared with those available in the county clerk's office?
    b. How should the bankruptcy judge have handled the produced mortgages documents when they were filed in court?
    c. What inferences can be drawn from the production of those documents?
3. Assignment: Report on the second batch of documents denying document production for the evidentiary hearing
    a. Analysis of conflicting interests, Plutonic thinking and integration of bits of information to build the mosaic: the documents were produced
    b. Is there still a need for documents and, if so, why and which?

12th Week of Classwork

1. Discussion of the reports on the denial of documents
2. Model report to identify the trustee and the court's interest in not requiring document production, yet approving the petition
3. The fees of the DeLanos' attorney: amount and nature of services
    a. Inferences from an attorney rendering such services and a bankrupt incurring such fees to avoid producing documents
4. Discovery of a theme during writing, its function, and rewriting to emphasize it a. An idea common to key points that allows them to reinforce each other and gives it unity so as to deliver a focused message
    b. Key words; summarizing headings and title; in- or deductive structure of the written piece
5. Assignment: Report on the appearance, content, purpose, and reliability of the "Trustee's Report"

13th Week of Classwork

1. Presentation of the reports on the "Trustee's Report" and its theme
2. Model report to discuss how form and content of a written piece reinforce each other and reflect on the author's professionalism and credibility
    a. the "Trustee's Report" and its place in his work and the DeLano case
    b. how the "Report" helps determine the petition's good faith or fraud
3. The bankruptcy judge's approval of the "Trustee's Report"
    a. whether the "Report" allowed the judge to determine that the trustee had investigated the DeLanos and found no fraud
    b. reverse Plutonic thinking: had there been a proper trustee-judge relationship, what should have been in the report and its approval?
4. Assignment: Prepare to present evidence and argue whether the DeLanos committed fraud, if so, what kind, and whether alone or with others

14th Week of Classwork

1. Final presentation of the consulting teams to their clients, if possible in the auditorium as rehearsal of the Public Presentation to be held there a. Were the clients defrauded; if so, in what amount and what should they do?
2. Model report to identify:
    a. consonant interests that induce and allow bankruptcy fraud and conflicting interests that work against exposing it
    b. interests and structural changes that should be introduced in the bankruptcy system to dissuade fraud and detect and expose it
3. Selection by the clients of the best presenters:
    a. to address the media at the press conference
    b. to present The DeLano Case at the Public Presentation

15th Week of Classwork

1. Rehearsals of:
    a. the press conference
    b. the Public Presentation of The DeLano Case
2. A single large consulting company holds:
    a. the press conference
    b. the Public Presentation

1st Week of Organizing the Public Presentation of The DeLano Case

1. Discussion in class of PP objectives, contents, and organization
2. Selection of dates to reserve the auditorium for rehearsals and PP
3. The class is the board of directors of the single large consulting company organizing the PP of The DeLano Case; each student is an officer of it
4. Division of labor among teams of officers that group themselves to take on primary responsibility for running the following departments
    a. Financing & Budget
    b. Accounting, reception
    c. Public Relations Artists
    d. Invitation & PP brochure
    e. PP stage script
    f. Auditorium & catering
    g. Audio/Visual
    h. Information Technology
5. Depending on the company size, a&b, c&d, e&f, & g&h may be merged

2nd Week of Organizing the Public Presentation

1. A bidding contest is held for primary responsibility for a department, with a run-off if necessary
    a. programmatic proposal: each team writes a description of its members' qualifications to, and how it would, run its two preferred departments
2. The winning programmatic proposals are announced and the departments choose and announce their directors
3. Each department discusses how to coordinate its programmatic proposal with the other winning proposals; and makes suggestions for
    a. a website for making, archiving, and retrieving inter-departmental communications, for commenting on submissions and voting on them
    b. PP's stationery: logo, letterhead, envelopes and typography
    c. categories of guests to invite to the PP presentation and the reception

3rd Week of Organizing the Public Presentation

1. Financing sources are identified and contacted and bank accounts are opened
2. Based on suggestions, PP stationery is developed and distributed for use
3. Industry standards to measure sizes, quantities, timeframes, expectations and feasibility are researched to make proposals for, and lists of:
    a. forms, e.g., purchase requests, payment authorization, payables
    b. receiving and disbursing funds and making financial reports
    c. guests to invite to PP and/or reception, contact information, attendance registration, food and place for reception, advertising campaign
    d. kinds of contents and layouts for the invitation and PP brochure
    e. desired and available A/V items, i.e. equipment, props and programs
4. The website and its secure communications are tested and set up

4th Week of Organizing the Public Presentation

1. The first estimate is drawn up of the in-hand and expected funds within which the departmental budgets will have to fit
2. A PR campaign is drawn up to invite the mass media and the specialized media, e.g. accounting, auditing, financial, law and educational publishers
3. Estimates are obtained with ranges of firm and contingent numbers of
    a. print runs, paper size and quality & colors of the PP brochure templates
    b. eaters at the reception, catering staff, food types and delivery options
4. A catalog is compiled of A/V items, instructions, tutorials and examples for
    a. classwork presentations and recording and replaying them for practice
    b. PP in the auditorium and recording it, cutting and splicing to make a video
5. The departments draw up their preliminary expense items and budgets

5th Week of Organizing the Public Presentation

1. The departments submit for comment and suggestions their draft proposals for
    a. their budgets
    b. accounting forms and procedure for requesting and making payment
    c. the PR campaign, master list of guests and their registration system
    d. the invitation and PP brochure templates (to add contents to later on)
    e. the script of PP on stage
    f. management of the auditorium, reception and catering
2. The A/V catalog so far compiled is distributed and proposals are made for a. refining, and adding to, it throughout the course as necessary
    b. terms and procedure for borrowing A/V items for practicing presentations

6th Week of Organizing the Public Presentation

1. An updated financial report is presented to inform about the funds in-hand or on account, pledged, or expected from known or new sources
2. The comments, suggestions and classwork learning are discussed by each department, which draws up three final proposals for:
    a. a general budget and the departmental budgets
    b. accounting forms and funds management
    c. the PR campaign, master list of guests and registration system
    d. the invitation and PP brochure templates
    e. the PP stage scripts
    f. management of the auditorium, reception and catering
    g. updating the A/V catalog and borrowing items for class presentations

7th Week of Organizing the Public Presentation

1. An updated financial report is presented
2. Each department submits to the board of directors three final proposals for choosing among them the final departmental program
3. The departments discuss the proposals
4. The officers vote on the proposals and any necessary run-off is conducted
5. The winning proposals are announced

8th Week of Organizing the Public Presentation

1. The accounting forms are used to request payment authorization and to grant it or in a reasoned statement to deny it
2. Three press releases are drafted to extend an invitation to the media to a press conference on PP and to it and the public to attend PP
3. Plans are drawn up for, with description of A/V items to use at:
    a. a press conference to inform and answer questions about PP and invite the media to announce and attend it
    b. PP script rehearsals with volunteers and their recording to determine the right number of cameras and angles for making the PP video
4. Content for the PP brochure is selected from course documents, consulting firms' classwork, officers' proposals, press clips, and laid out on the template
5. The auditorium, reception, catering and A/V officers may volunteer to help in other activities in order to gain experience

9th Week of Organizing the Public Presentation

1. The drafts of the press release and the plans for rehearsing the press conference and PP and making the PP video are submitted
    a. for comment and suggestions
    b. to announce rehearsals and full-dress rehearsal schedules and venues
    c. to call for volunteer presenters, journalists and audience to critique their performance
    d. with a list to be added to of media representatives and organizations to whom to send the press release
2. Three PP brochures with contents, in digital form and ready to be sent to the printer are submitted for comment and suggestions
3. The A/V items are made available for practicing for the press conference and PP rehearsals and the PP video making

10th Week of Organizing the Public Presentation

1. The departments submit an updated list of expense items and budgets with contingency margins
2. An updating financial report is presented
3. The PP invitations and envelopes are printed and mailed to the guests
4. The comments and suggestions made are used to revise
    a. the press release drafts
    b. the press conference and PP rehearsal plans
    c. the three proposed PP brochures
    d. the plan for using A/V items at the rehearsals and recording them to make the PP video

11th Week of Organizing the Public Presentation

1. An updated general budget is presented
2. Submission to the board of directors of the revised proposals and discussion of them in each department
3. Voting by the officers is held to choose the final version of
    a. the press release
    b. the press conference and PP rehearsal plan
    c. the PP brochure
    d. the plan for using the A/V items
3. Follow-up emails and phone calls are used to obtain feedback from the PP guests and encourage them to register their intent to attend

12th Week of Organizing the Public Presentation

1. An updated financial report is presented
2. Follow-up emails and phone calls are used to obtain feedback from the PP guests and encourage them to register
3. The press conference and PP are rehearsed to improve as need be a. the presenters' command of the subject and the accuracy, relevance and fairness of the information presented
    b. the A/V items' understanding-assisting value and proper use
    c. the number of recording items and the optimal recording angles for shooting the PP video
4. The brochure is sent to the printer
5. Drafts are drawn up for signs, i.e. flyers, posters and banners, to advertise PP in campus and direct to, and in, the auditorium and reception
6. Forms are drafted for the evaluation
    a. by the PP guests of the presenters, PP, and The DeLano Case
    b. by the departments of their own organizational and presenting performance

13th Week of Organizing the Public Presentation

1. The press release is sent out to inform the media and the public about PP and invite the media to attend the press conference on it
2. The second rehearsal of the press conference and PP is held
    a. the A/V items, i.e., props, equipment, and programs, are tested to ensure their availability, effectiveness, and ease of use
3. The draft signs are submitted for comment and suggestions
4. A call is made for officers to help prepare the auditorium before PP and clean it up afterwards and to serve as ushers at PP
5. The printed brochure is collected and inspected for quality and completeness and any necessary corrective measure is taken
6. Contingency planning: the departments v. a gang of Murphy's Law psychos that raise obstacles to which workarounds must be devised
7. The draft PP evaluation forms are submitted for comment and suggestions to the departments, which meet to discuss them

14th Week of Organizing the Public Presentation

1. An updated financial report is presented
2. After the classwork final presentations and the choosing of PP presenters
    a. a PP full-dress rehearsal is held for accuracy of information, on and back stage coordination and professional appearance and performance
3. The press conference is held
    a. a follow-up critique is held to determine what the media found interesting or in need of clarification and modify the PP script as appropriate
4. Firm arrangements are made with the caterers for the reception in light of the number of guests that have registered or are expected
5. Guests not yet registered are contacted a last time by phone and email
6. The signs are revised in light of the comments and suggestions, produced, and the advertising ones are posted or handed out while the directional ones are stored
7. The PP evaluation forms are revised in light of the comments and suggestions and then printed

15th Week of Organizing the Public Presentation

1. Possession of the auditorium is taken before and surrendered after PP
2. The signs directing to, and in, the auditorium and the reception are displayed and the PP brochure and evaluation form are distributed to the guests
3. The Public Presentation of The DeLano Case is held
4. The reception is held as an opportunity to
    a. thank the sponsors and gain feedback on The DeLano Case and PP
    b. network with the guests, inquire about jobs and ask for job interviews
    c. collect the PP evaluation form from the guests
5. Preliminary accounts and a balance sheet are presented:
    a. the final accounts are presented a week later to the board and university authorities, who issue the release or investigate
6. PP evaluation forms and Report
    a. the forms filled out by the guests are copied and distributed to the departments
    b. the departments discuss the PP guest evaluation forms, evaluate themselves, and fill out their forms
    c. the board meets to discuss the evaluation forms and outline a report of negative and positive points about PP and The DeLano Case
    d. three reporters are elected to write the official Evaluation Report on the Public Presentation of The DeLano Case
    e. the reporters issue their Report and distribute it to the officers and university authorities

NOTES

1. Given the amount of work involved in the theoretical and practical learning experience of the classwork and the organization to professional standards of the Public Presentation of The DeLano Case, it may be considered to attach more credits to this course than those attached to an otherwise regular one semester course.
2. Throughout the course it may be necessary to ask officers who have proved to be most capable to take over the directorship, or become members of, other departments whose officers have proved to be less so.

End Page

Creative Writings
blurbs, synopses, scenes and a short story

The art of storytelling as a communication resource to arouse the imagination of readers for pleasure and jurors on duty and incite them to inspired action for everything that edifies character and builds good relations with people such as the noble cause of Equal Justice Under Law

by

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

2167 Bruckner Blvd.
Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. (718)827-9521

December 14, 2012

http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/CW/DrRCordero_Creative_Writings.pdf

Blank

TABLE OF CONTENTS

A. Blurbs of scripts and novels

1. Sophie and The Children of the Wand (script and novel) cw:5
2. The Voice of the Fountain (script) cw:5
3. Family by Choice (script) cw:5
4. The Bloodied Mattress (script and treatment for a novel) cw:5
5. BIG MONEY for little ones (script) cw:6
6. Dead But On The Run (script) cw:6
7. Petals of the Heart (script) cw:6
8. The Fountain of Youth (script and novel) cw:6

B. Synopses

1. Sophie and The Children of the Wand (script and novel) cw:7
2. The Voice of the Fountain (script) cw:10
3. Family by Choice (script) cw:12
4. The Bloodied Mattress (script and treatment for a novel) cw:15
5. Dead But On The Run (script) cw:23
6. BIG MONEY for little ones (script) cw:26
7. Petals of the Heart (script) cw:28
8. The Fountain of Youth (script and novel) cw:30

C. Short story

Punting on The Digital River: Storytelling a proposal for developing and marketing areas of academic excellence cw:32

D. Scenes from a drama

Behind the Black Robe Wall: power and wrongdoing of unaccountable judges cw:58

©2012 Richard Cordero. All rights reserved.

Blank

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.
Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. (718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Blurbs of Creative Writings

SOPHIE AND THE CHILDREN OF THE WAND: (script and novel) A young teacher, Sophie, resorts to her extraordinary artistic talents to interest her 8 year old students, particularly the deeply withdrawn Nico, in classwork, and thereby gives meaning to their lives. She takes them to a bookstore, digitizes their photos, and makes them appear as if they were interacting with their TV heroes, who say that they learn to defeat evil guys by reading 'heroes books'. The children love it! She takes them to one of her plays in which she plays a Fairy Mother that outwits the Evil Spirits: Hopelessness, Ignorance, and Laziness. She brings her camera and teaches them what the Mathematicians, Physicists, and Technicians must know to photograph their heroes and print their pictures in popular magazines. By now, all the children in the school have the idea that if they get her a wand, all can become Sophie's children. The endearing bonding between Sophie, Nico, and her other children induces the kind of audience identification that supports the expectation of profitable merchandising if their popular appeal is developed like that of Disney's heroes and heroines.

THE VOICE OF THE FOUNTAIN: (script) Father Allgard recruits orphan Stacey to spy for him in his struggle against the conversion of a dilapidated seminary and church into a posh retirement resort. Through the ups and downs of their alliance, she makes him realize that his motivation is not religious fervor, but only selfish desire to preserve the stage for his sublime music and his outstanding choir. He unwittingly teaches her to temper faith in others with self-reliance. Teenagers can identify with the street smart Stacey and her search for parental love, while adults can relive Father Allgard's conflict between the pursuit of his lifelong emotional commitment to his vocation and the need for integrity and responsibility for his acts. All viewers can enjoy their witty dialogue and engaging alternation of unexpected funny scenes and the personality clashes between two characters in desperate search for a voice of solace for their troubled souls.

FAMILY BY CHOICE: (script) Three 17-year-old friends with little education and from broken families resign themselves to taking jobs as cleaning trainees, rather than as the uniformed front-desk clerks that they had imagined for themselves, in the Resort, a luxury retirement residence and country club. There they meet its director and three wealthy retirees. Coming from vastly different backgrounds and having unrealistic expectations as well as real conscious and unconscious needs, they clash and form alliances as their lives intertwine and they help each other to distinguish between what they wish they were and what they are and to achieve what they can still become. These are intense people with energizing dreams and paralyzing nightmares that end up realizing that they can only obtain relief from their emotional pain and have their demands on each other met if they show mutual respect and care for each other as family. The potential for dramatic situations and conflict among themselves and with other residents, club members, and friends and family is so vast that the script can be used for a movie and as the pilot of a TV series.

THE BLOODIED MATTRESS: (script & treatment for a novel) A jaded NY detective and his optimistic female trainee are called to a cemetery where a mattress was found with a bloodstain so large that an adult would not survive the corresponding blood loss. A lead takes them to the sublime world of art. They trace the mattress back to a posh hotel where an exhibition was held of a childish 26-year-old painter with the skill and sensibility of a master. In his room, only one single speck of DNA-matching blood is found. They cannot figure out how a mattress, and probably an already dead person, could have been spirited out of the hotel. They suspect the exhibition organizers, the caterers, and the painting transporters. After the body is found, their accounts check: There was only an accidental self-stabbing, the knowing or unbeknown concealment and transportation of the body in a painting materials trunk and the mattress in a crate, and a burial under a flowerbed to allow her soul to live on in the beauty of flowers. The detectives are shocked, but realize that although every day they are confronted with evil in the hearts and acts of people, there is also a positive, redeeming side to the human spirit and work that finds its purest expression in works of art.

BIG MONEY FOR LITTLE ONES: (script) An NYC Assistant D.A. and a Hispanic detective cannot avoid jointly investigating a burglary-homicide at a consulate with a strong-willed female Assist. U.S. Attorney and a suave Black FBI agent. The streetwise detective suspects the Feds of thwarting his investigative efforts at every step. But his credibility is doubtful due to his bully tactics and animosity toward the FBI. Moreover, the Feds reasonably explain their conduct. When he convinces the strict A.D.A., they realize that the Feds had broken into the consulate while investigating a smuggling operation in diplomatic baggage, lost an agent, whose government-issued equipment was pillaged and used by an attaché to blackmail the Feds into scuttling the NYC investigation or be exposed as violators of diplomatic immunity. The officers join forces to avoid defeat and discover the smuggling of orphans for illegal adoption by wealthy residents. Yet, they are torn by moral and professional conflicts, for those involved are neither saints nor demons, but people caught in dilemmatic situations and struggling to do right with imperfect knowledge and inadequate means.

DEAD BUT ON THE RUN: (script) NY City police detectives and prosecutors search for both a male criminal's corpse and the wealthy female patient who died after presumably having been transplanted illegally with his stolen and diseased liver. His body is not found in his grave because undertakers sold it to a pathology school. Only a DNA test can connect them were it not for cover-up operations that incinerate his corpse and cremate hers and for the non-cooperation of the life-insurer, who blackmails its defrauder. The investigators find out that police officers monitor police communications, kill 'disposable' criminals, and ship them to a clinic that harvests their organs and sends their 'carcasses' to the undertaker. The suspects have plausible explanations supported by doctored documents. Facing defeat, the investigators rein in their strong personalities and reconcile their divisive conceptions of law enforcement and the value of human life. Their cooperation enables them to apply their superior evidence analysis skills, knowledge of forensic science, and incisive logic to crack crafty methods of operation and expose the ring of conspirators.

PETALS OF THE HEART: (script) Roseleen, a Wall Street stockbroker, is robbed by muggers, but saved from a worse fate by a passerby, Grant, a Columbia University doctoral candidate in literature. When they go to the police station, she sees a secretary wearing her stolen bracelet, but the D.A. refuses to look into a possible police fencing operation for lack of evidence. Roseleen is determined to recover her bracelet, the symbol of her career success, and presses Grant into her service with keen observations on his character barbed with coercive comments about his moral duty. He helps while chastising her for her abrasive assertiveness and overbearing attitude. Thus begins the scrutiny of each other, which triggers a process of self-examination and discovery. Their investigation finds a fencing operation, but turns them into the fences' death targets. They narrowly save their lives thanks to his computer skills and her capacity for psychological analysis, while forcing each other to acknowledge and deal with character flaws that mar the decency and high principles that are the petals of their hearts and that so impair their social relations.

THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH: (script and novel) Ponce de León is a soldier that accompanies Columbus on his discovery of Puerto Rico in 1493. To secure the natives' friendship, he is forced by Iquena, the chief's daughter, to promise to protect them from the scourge of the Caribs, cannibals who deem themselves superior and raid islands for women and slaves. He keeps his promise, but brings with his soldiers and settlers the scourge of diseases that kill many natives, whom he too treats as savage weaklings. To find a cure, she convinces him to search for the Fountain of Youth. Ponce de León thinks of it as a source of medicinal water, whose discovery can earn him what he so craves: acceptance as a ruling class Castilian, rather than just a man of León. He discovers Florida in 1513. After a Pyrrhic victory over fierce Indians, he finds out that he and his men almost died for what had the appearance of the Fountain but was only storm rain temporarily welling up from an underground swollen river and enlivening its surroundings. She makes him realize that personal worth is assessed on one's conduct, not birthplace or superior knowledge; and that a civilized man's or a savage's treatment of others as inferior is equally hurtful so that respect for others that avoids deadly confrontation and allows reaching old age is the true Fountain of Youth.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. (718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

SOPHIE
AND THE CHILDREN OF THE WAND

Synopsis of a script and a novel

An austere woman in her late 40s is ironing the business suit that she bought for her daughter Sophie, 24, to wear on her first day at work. She brings it to Sophie's room. Its extra-ordinarily original decoration reflects on Sophie's superior artistic imagination and skills. Ignoring that suit, Sophie wears the colorful and stylish 2-piece pantsuit that she designed and sewed.

Sophie walks in a rundown multi-ethnic working class, violence-ridden ghetto known as the Block, for there is no way out of it. In a dilapidated building, she receives her assignment: the list of her third graders…She is an elementary schoolteacher! Yet everybody had higher expectations of her. Soon she realizes that the kids are not interested in academic work at all, but from a state of intellectual coma, they explode into boisterous activity at playtime, except one, Nico.

She learns that Nico was born to minors, so that his mother abandoned him the year before and his school-dropout father blames him therefor. Neglected by him, Nico is so unkempt and smelly that the kids call him "the Fish" and avoid him, causing him to be withdrawn. Yet, this is what attracts Sophie to him because as a child she was rejected by her peers, though for being too gifted, which she flaunted to get back at them, thus triggering a vicious cycle. She feels that her mother neglected her while becoming a renowned engineer. The memories of her suffering are stoked when she goes with him to his apartment: There is little food and no toys, except a dirty white bathrobe that his mother left and that he hides behind a sofa as his only source of solace.

By contrast, Sophie's father, a literature professor, comforted her with his storytelling that took her to more accepting worlds of the imagination where she was free to be as she was, thus fostering her creativity. Now the artist in her is suffocating in her students' indifference to her teaching the curriculum. Desperate, she would quit, were she not loath to admit that her mother was right in criticizing her career decisions. She confides her agony to Herbert, her mentor and director of the arts academy where she developed her artistic skills and now teaches a computer art class. He advises her: "Don't try to lead them into your learned world; instead, find out what excites them and use its energy". Sophie is at a loss, for no learning, only playing, excites them.

She keeps bringing Nico food and eating with him in his corner of the playground from where he longingly watches the children play. Although he does not talk, she relieves her stress through soliloquies in which she tells stories about her parents and her adoring toys, her younger sister and brother, who…"What program?" Nico asked a question! She realizes that she mentioned having watched a TV program. Thus she discovers that he identifies with his TV heroes. Nico is alive inside! Sophie finds out that the other children are also passionate about their TV heroes. Their TV world is what excites them! From that day on, she ignores the curriculum and has them read about their heroes in TV Guide and similar popular magazines. She invents all sorts of games to have them both enact what they read and play people they admire. They love it!

Yet, their abysmal reading skills are even less capable of coping with adult magazines already too difficult for any eight-year old kid. Hence, Sophie takes them to the school library to help them find children's books "like those our heroes read to learn what to do". But the donated books there are moldy, for adults, and in the custody of "the Cop", a disagreeable librarian. So Sophie suggests taking them to a bookstore, but not any: Imagineland, where they will meet their heroes and see how they use books to learn how to develop their superpowers and defeat their evil enemies. The children are excited by learning! With Herbert's support, she prepares a virtual reality show at Barnes & Noble. But the parents beg off coming along. To take 26 kids alone, Sophie makes them believe that theirs is a dangerous mission requiring their heroes' discipline.

Nico does not show up, for he is afraid of being among the children. On the subway platform, many have the impression that the train is leaving with Sophie but without them. In Block fashion, they break into the car kicking, biting, and pummeling anybody in their way. After they settle into a state of impending aggression under the horrified eyes of surviving straphangers, Sophie persuades the train driver to depart. However, she is shaken by the incident.

The children make it to B&N in 'heroes' discipline formation'. Unbeknown to them, Sophie's students at Herbert's academy take digital photos of them as they enter the show room and manipulate them so that the kids see themselves interacting with their TV heroes while on a virtual trip. It ends in a magnificent library where the heroes congratulate the kids for their decision to study and go to college to become all they can be. Believing that they actually interacted with their heroes, the children come out dazed with wonderment and a free 'book of heroes'. As they are leaving, Sophie sees Nico: He followed them! They go to McDonald's, where in a chain of freak accidents they throw the other diners into an all-out food war that wrecks the place.

After the trip, they cannot stop talking about it to their parents, who are perplexed by their enthusiasm over a schoolteacher, and their schoolmates, who envy them because they have the only exciting teacher in the school. But the Principal reproves Sophie for taking 26 students out to the streets alone and without her authorization. From then on Sophie spends all her free time with her children and avoids her colleagues, who in her view lack imagination to inspire the kids.

She convinces Nico that she can 'make him read', although he feels he is dumb. She realizes that his fear of the other kids causes him to feel inferior and lack self-confidence. An idea hits her: To bring them together to an activity that she can orchestrate so as to bridge their chasm. The inauguration of the auditorium of her siblings' school offers the occasion. Herbert puts his academy resources at her disposal and she infuses her students there with her creative spirit.

The Principal refuses her authorization for a school trip on a Saturday evening, but agrees to the parents taking their kids on it by themselves. But they do not have transportation. At the last minute, Sophie finds a bus and only with the help of Nico do the children learn that it will pick them up. He is confused by his ability to help Sophie since at his father's instigation he deems himself "no good for not'ing". He hides this time too, but she finds and gets him on the bus, where she introduces him as the Announcer and Copilot. The kids wonder who Nico really is.

At the inauguration, they are treated to amazing special effects of sound and light shows, including fierce beasts that morph into swans and then caring mothers. All this makes them believe that they have entered the wondrous Imagineland. Nico panics when Sophie asks him to go with the other children; so she lets him stick with her. He is enthralled when before the play he sees her dressed in white as the Fairy Mother and asks her, "Do you have children?" Sophie is baffled until he adds, "I can be your child. Can you be my mother?" Sophie embraces him as she wishes her mother had done her. She takes him to a seat to watch the play from behind the stage.

During the play, when the Evil Spirits –Hopelessness, Ignorance, and Laziness- come to harm his Fairy Mother, Nico rushes hysterically onto the stage to warn her. He is dragged out and scolded by a stagehand. Distraught by the certainty that Sophie has abandoned him for being bad again, Nico hides and cannot be found at departure time. After an anguishing search, Sophie remembers his confidence that when he feels lonely he holds his mother's 'dress'. She finds him in the dressing room wrapped in her Fairy Mother dress. Back on the bus, the kids unexpectedly hail him as 'the Child Prince' of the play because he 'saved' the Fairy Mother and became a TV hero. Nico is overwhelmed and confused, for how could Sophie make him be applauded?

Though the Principal hears admiring comments from parents, she still reprimands Sophie for turning her activity into a school one neither unauthorized nor covered by the insurance. As the children tell their schoolmates ever more aggrandized details, they realize why Sophie is so wonderful: She is Fairy Mother, theirs! She needs a wand so that all of them can become her children and travel with her to Imagineland. A group goes to a hazardous closed-down fish market to find a stick that can become her wand. Their now effervescent imagination transforms the 'horrific' incidents there into the story of Red Hot, a fish that eats Wand rescuers.

Nico resents that again nobody pays attention to him. Sophie tells him that since he is the Child Prince, he should go and tell them that he wants to be and play with them. "I ain't no Child Prince, just Nico". Sophie plans how to drain the Water Box where Red Hot lives to enable her children to find her wand and then see Nico do 'magic' with science by distilling some of its polluted water. She only tells him that she will make him work magic on Red Hot's 'poison soup' if he repeats the magic words, 'I'm the Child Prince;' otherwise, Red Hot will eat him!

But before she can organize her science event, the children stage an escapade to retrieve the Wand. Nico follows them because of his fear that Sophie will abandon him if he does not join the search for her wand. Upon failing, they realize that the Evil Spirits are out to capture Sophie. If they do, Nico will be left without his Mother! Repeating as if in a trance "I'm the Child, the Child Prince", he enters Red Hot's Water Box and retrieves the Wand. The kids bring him back triumphally.

But The Principal chastises Sophie for having infected their minds with 'stories.' Nico is demoralized because if Red Hot was only a 'story,' he is 'just Nico'. But Sophie tells him that although everybody was afraid, he was the only one to defy Red Hot. Nico accepts his new identity. Sophie buys him new clothes and gets him a haircut. The next day he looks like the Child Prince and is treated as such. After a surprise party, he takes ill and lands in hospital. His father takes the opportunity to abandon him. Sophie manages to bring him home as a foster child.

That is a school policy violation, as is not teaching the curriculum. The Principal suspends Sophie, who learns that what sickened Nico were harmful bacteria in the Water Box. She is shocked, for she is excluded from her children and may be their real, dangerous Evil Spirit. The nasty librarian substitutes for Sophie, but she cannot handle the kids, who keep comparing her with Sophie and complaining that "With Sophie and her magic we can be anything". The librarian loses her temper. When the children see her, the Principal, and other staff morph into the fierce beasts of the sound and light show, they attack them. Kids and staff get hurt. Sophie is in crisis!

Herbert makes Sophie realize that she became a teacher at the Block to spite her mother and emulate her building prowess, not out of love for kids that could only remind her of those who rejected her. The Principal calls a PTA meeting. Nico, imbued with the sense of the Child Prince, brings the other children to it. Sophie is there, in the business suit that her mother bought her. The meeting backfires because the parents praise Sophie and then chant "We want Sophie!"

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. (718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

THE VOICE OF THE FOUNTAIN

Synopsis of an original screenplay

From the vaults of a church, a superb choir is being listened to by somebody moving around stealthily. A coffin is at the altar and the occasion is special: The funeral service for the seminary's Father Superior. After it ends, a parishioners committee to support the seminary, which includes the church, meets with Father Allgard, 67, the second ranking officer. They report to him that the seminary cannot afford the required repairs and recommend that the religious Order to which it belongs sell it to investors for conversion into a resort comprising apartments for wealthy retirees and a country club. Rebuking them, Father Allgard lets them know that he, the next Father Superior, will never consent to such defilement of the seminary and 'his' church. He, the choir conductor and resident composer, and his music are what support the seminary.

Father Allgard sets out to foil their scheme. He asks Stacey what she has found out about the Committee's next moves. She should know because this 15-year-old girl eavesdrops on everybody. For that reason, he gave her, unbeknown to everybody else, a novice frock that allows her to wander incognito in this all-male institution. But as always, her information has a price, which he pays rather than let her untrained voice, 'like a startled flock of geese', join his choir.

That night the seminary holds a recordation dinner at which the Order dignitaries that came for the funeral are guests. Father Allgard is deeply disconcerted when they fail to appoint him the next Father Superior. He smuggles Stacey into his Spartan room and pays her price: food that he has stolen from the seminary. From her gibberish account of the Committee's conversation, he deciphers that the end of the institution is imminent. Its closing down would spell disaster for both of them: for Father Allgard it would result in the termination of the musical activities and choir that give meaning to his life; and for Stacey it would entail the loss of her only source of food for her body and relief for her soul. Realizing that they must become allies to survive, they concoct a plan to rescue the seminary and 'his' church. From now on, their bickering gradually gives way to bonding as they confide in each other that her mother died in a fire and that his musical talent earned him the seminary's protection after his parents abandoned him.

That night the seminary holds a recordation dinner at which the Order dignitaries that came for the funeral are guests. Father Allgard is deeply disconcerted when they fail to appoint him the next Father Superior. He smuggles Stacey into his Spartan room and pays her price: food that he has stolen from the seminary. From her gibberish account of the Committee's conversation, he deciphers that the end of the institution is imminent. Its closing down would spell disaster for both of them: for Father Allgard it would result in the termination of the musical activities and choir that give meaning to his life; and for Stacey it would entail the loss of her only source of food for her body and relief for her soul. Realizing that they must become allies to survive, they concoct a plan to rescue the seminary and 'his' church. From now on, their bickering gradually gives way to bonding as they confide in each other that her mother died in a fire and that his musical talent earned him the seminary's protection after his parents abandoned him.

Father Allgard forges ahead with his plan, which he discloses to an excited choir. They start rehearsing only to be disrupted by a terrible din. "The hurricane!", shouts a frightened Stacey from her listening post by the vaults. All run out of a quaking church and are met by an army of trucks bringing all sorts of construction materials. He imprecates those destroying his church and while denouncing the Lord, whom he has always praised in his music, for ungratefully allowing this to happen, he suffers a heart attack. Stacey keeps him informed at the hospital.

When months later he is enticed back from a convalescence home, he finds the seminary turned into a high-class resort and his ascetic room into a luxurious suite. Unable to recognize this as his home, he feels deceived. He resolves to sabotage the resort, in which he vows never to produce music. So he accepts the Committee's offer of room and board in exchange for his promoting the resort among his many current and former choristers and their wealthy friends and families. He secures Stacey's assistance by promising to teach her how to communicate with her dead mother. At his instigation, she fakes to be a resort employee to have a catering service deliver food for the resort's open house on the wrong date and trickily changes the date on the invitations. Pandemonium ensues when unexpectedly the guests show up, whom a dreadful-looking Father Allgard hilariously misinforms about the resort to dissuade them from moving in.

To make Stacey a more effective spy, he gets her a resort job. As a server, she discovers that the retirees moving in are likable people. They give her paying chores, so she does not need stolen food anymore. Then she takes the initiative to ask for jobs and even forms a 'company': She brings in her funny friends to help her out. One of the residents, Mr. Higton, asks them to wash his luxury car. By accident, a company member hoses him and he in turns drenches him and all the others until they jump him and soap him up. When they calm down, he tells them how much he would have enjoyed his granddaughter being there. Stacey suggests that he throw a birthday party for her at the exquisite resort fountain gardens. In search of work for her company, she successfully proposes to the Committee to rent the gardens to Mr. Higton for that purpose. Father Allgard accuses her of having gone over to the enemy and their relationship deteriorates.

While organizing that activity, she calls the caterers that were to have serviced the open house. Mindful of what happened before, they call the Committee to confirm the order. Thus, they determine that Stacey was the one who changed the dates and botched that activity. Baffled because everybody likes Stacey, the Committee investigates who she is. Her profile is disturbing: a minor neglected by her father, a school dropout, and a purloiner of seminary food. The Committee blame each other for not checking her background and thus hiring a delinquent. She eavesdrops on an acrimonious meeting where they decide to fire and report her to the police.

Desperate, Stacey runs to Father Allgard for advice. He only cares to know that nobody suspects him. She cries that he never cared for her; he retorts that she betrayed her mission in "his" church. That night she goes to the resort fountain, whose murmur makes her feel as if she were hearing her mother's voice of advice. He is there, for the fountain murmur is what comes closest to his music in an otherwise silent resort. She strikes a deep chord in him by asking whether the Lord would save a church where to be praised with the music of a selfish loner with no love for anyone but himself. Father Allgard is shaken by her question. Contrite, he discloses to the Committee that he manipulated her all along. The Committee confronts him with the choice between leaving the premises and figuring out how to make restitution to Stacey and the resort.

Months later, the Order dignitaries arrive at the resort for a grave meeting: Father Allgard's excommunication. It turns out that they have come for the inauguration of the church as an activities hall where the Father's new choir will entertain the guests at a birthday party. Stacey sings to her mother and the choir replies. At the buffet by the fountain, she tells him that she felt no fear while singing, for she sensed her mother at her side. He thanks her, for now that he composes, not for himself, but for the joy of his fellow men, he feels that the Lord will listen to his music.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. (718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Family by Choice

Synopsis of an original screenplay

On a sunny day in March, Lisee, Philip, and Dennis, all aged 17 and poor, break into a construction site where an old seminary is being renovated into the Resort, a luxury residence for wealthy retirees, and a posh country club. They voice their fantasies about what it would be like to work there. When they are ready to leave, two ferocious guard dogs attack them, but thanks to Lisee's ingenuity and quick thinking they make it out alive…barely.

Lisee goes home to cook dinner and is yelled at for being late by her abusive father, with whom she lives alone since her mother died in a fire. The following day, the three friends meet at their poor inner city school and discuss their efforts to find after-school jobs, so far unsuccessful because of their lack of skills. They fail to come up with a plan. Dennis goes home, where he lives with his siblings and mother, who disparage him because he can hardly read.

In June, Lisee startles Dennis and Philip with a plan: To go back to the Resort to search for jobs since it is now hiring. They go there and ask Mr. Nirhop, the director, to give them summer jobs. He declines arguing that the Resort clientele is so demanding that only experienced personnel is hired. But their arguments about taking risks in order to give a chance to the young and inexperienced get Mr. Nirhop thinking. That night at home, he sees his wife ably developing the skills and self-esteem of their two children. Thus inspired to emulate her, he extends a job offer to the friends, which is relayed to them as they are having a good time at a graduation party.

On their first workday, their immediate boss, Doug, tells them that they are being hired as cleaning trainees. They are aghast, for they saw themselves in smart uniforms behind the desks in the lavish lobby interacting with the residents, country club members, and outside patrons, giving them instructions where to go to get what they wanted, or serving them in the classy restaurant or the garden coffee shop by the renown Tearful Bliss Fountain that fills the pool and pocketing hefty tips. At the end of the day, the friends mournfully tell each other what kind of dirt they spent hours cleaning up without being noticed by anybody. Then they go home; Philip to that of his father and new wife, both of whom ask him again when he will move out now that he has a job.

To be noticed, the friends offer Resort clients, particularly residents, to do chores for them. Since the clients are accustomed to being served and although the friends still have to do their cleaning jobs, they develop ever more intertwined relations. Doug sends Dennis to program a TV DVD recorder/player for Mrs. Hildeft, the wealthiest resident, who says that she has never done any work, not even raise her kids. She is shocked upon realizing that he can hardly read.

Lisee inadvertently breaks an expensive vase in the lobby. When Mr. Nirhop approaches her, she becomes hysterical shouting, "Don't hit me!" Her cries attract nearby clients. Among them is Mr. Kokal, a resident and former topnotch corporate lawyer always itching for an audience before whom to argue his case. He scolds Mr. Nirhop for threatening Lisee only to find out that she yelled him off when he tried to tell her where to dispose of the pieces. Mr. Kokal ignores Mr. Nirhop's request for an apology, stating instead that he will replace the vase. He is troubled by the implications of Lisee's reaction and her vehement denial that anybody hits her.

Mrs. Passden introduces herself to Mrs. Hildeft and tells her about her days as an army nurse although she came from a wealthy family. Mrs. Hildeft invites her and her resident friends to a tea party. Philip, who dreams of becoming a star basketball player, is caught lying when he tries to woo rich girls in the gym and gives Doug excuses for shirking, who almost fires him.

Mr. Kokal takes Lisee to buy the replacement vase and in the process they become acquainted. He spurns Mr. Nirhop's request that he not take his employees away during work time, for it is 'Clerk Nirhop who has to adapt the performance of his 'chores' around the wishes of the people that pay his salary'. Mr. Nirhop tells him that he is not the only one that pays his salary, to which Mr. Nirhop retorts that he is nevertheless the only one with the skills to make a case to have him fired by the resort's board of directors.

Mrs. Passden examines the mail that Dennis picked up for her from the mailroom and tells him that he may be dyslexic rather than dumb, as people think he is and he does too. He is so excited upon learning that he is not dumb that he runs into the female employees' locker room to tell Lisee. As a result, he is branded as an unpredictably dangerous screw-loose.

By contrast, Mrs. Hildeft asks Doug to send her an assistant to rearrange some new furniture in her apartment, but one that can read. Henry, a coworker, finds out that the illiterate is Dennis. Doug sends Philip, who tells her how fun it was to mix beverages at the graduation party and that if she does so at her tea party, she will become the resort's 'hot chick'. The idea catches her imagination, for she says that her children never call or visit her and she feels lonely.

As usual now, Lisee has breakfast with Mr. Kokal in his apartment. There she reads cookbooks because she wants to become a cook and comments on them while he reads the newspaper that she brings him. Philip is with coworkers when Henry tells them that Dennis cannot read and they tell how he burst into the girls' locker room. Philip denies being Dennis' friend.

At Mrs. Hildeft's party, Philip laces everything drinkable or edible with alcohol that he orders from the restaurant bar and serves it with matchmaking fibs as he plays his DVD music so that what was a deathwatch ends up as revelry. A thankful Mrs. Hildeft tells him that she wants him to become her driver and will pay for his driving lessons. Doug tells Mr. Nirhop that Dennis is perceived as a risk; Mr. Nirhop agrees to let him go. Philip shows Lisee and Dennis all the clothing that Mrs. Hildeft bought to dress him as her driver. When Mrs. Passden hears from receptionist Cindy that Dennis is to be fired; she offers him to get his eyes tested, but he refuses.

Henry mocks Dennis and Lisee, and tells Philip that if Dennis is not his friend, then Philip should not hang out with Lisee either. Doug tells Dennis that he will be let go because of insufficient cleaning work. After Lisee realizes that Philip denied being Dennis's friend, she loses self-control and beats him up to make him feel what being afraid of a person really is like., Philip shouts, "You are like your father!" His comment takes her aback and she runs up to Mr. Kokal. Dennis follows her and Mr. Kokal volunteers to protect both. While group jogging, Mr. Kokal learns from Mrs. Passden what Cindy said about the real reason for firing Dennis. He tells Mr. Nirhop that if he dares fire Dennis, Mr. Kokal will bring a disability discrimination suit in Dennis' behalf. Mr. Nirhop tells Mrs. Hildeft that she cannot turn Philip, his employee, into her private driver, but she replies that he lacks the means to oppose her wishes.

These incidents with the residents make Mr. Nirhop doubt his abilities and his likeability as a person. His wife reassures him that she likes and loves him because of his constant strive to be a better person. Mr. Nirhop tells Dennis that for everybody's safety, he should take an eye test, but he refuses and tells him that he would rather be fired.

Mr. Kokal tells Lisee that at least his granddaughters accepted his invitation to visit him and asks her to make them feel welcome. He asks Mrs. Passden to organize a party for their friends and grandchildren. Dennis asks Lisee to be friends with Philip again, but she refuses because he failed to protect a friend. Dennis shakes his head and both walk away together as Philip watches them with teary eyes. Mr. Kokal calls a limousine service to have his granddaughters, Claudia and Barbara, picked up at the airport. They resent his not coming to receive them. Barbara wants to hold a poolside party and asks Philip to set up Mr. Kokal's music system. He takes this for an invitation to the party and evidence of her interest in him. Lisee is no sooner introduced to the granddaughters than Mr. Kokal takes her away to supervise the party arrangements.

At the party, Barbara asks Philip for beverages for her and the Ivy League-headed young guests; but offended by being treated as a waiter, he tells Dennis to do it. Mr. Kokal asks Lisee to go to his apartment and bring down some of his 'oldies' music. She goes there and gives in to the temptation of taking a close look at his granddaughters' clothing. Dennis is holding the beverages tray when it is accidentally tilted and falls to the floor. Some boys mock him. Philip attacks them and pushes one, Collins, into the pool. Barbara takes Collins to the apartment to get dry only to be stunned: Lisee is wearing one of her dresses! She orders Lisee to leave without changing because "I can't wear that dress anymore, can I?" Her statement deeply offends Lisee since it means that the dress has become contaminated by her wearing it and no laundry can clean it.

In the lobby, she screams at Mr. Kokal her resentment over his failure to introduce her to the guests and his treating her as a maid. Claudia sees Lisee in her sister's dress and goes upstairs. Mr. Kokal follows her. His granddaughters tell him how disappointed they are that he has avoided spending time with them. The friends meet in the cleaning room. Lisee asks Philip why he jumped the boy at the pool. He says that the rich guy mocked him and Dennis. "They don't like us. Nobody does. We don't have nobody to look after us but we." Lisee approves of his attitude: "That's what friends do 'cause what we touch turns dirty, like this dress after I put it on".

Deeming themselves fired, they decide to go out in style: They take Mrs. Hildeft's luxury car to joyride downtown and parade along their peers' hangouts. They are stopped by the police and taken to their station. Philip calls Mrs. Hildeft and asks her to come down and prove to the police that they did not steal her car.

She seeks Mrs. Passden's and Mr. Kokal's advice. He tells them that his granddaughters called a limousine and left in disgust at his uncaring hosting. Alerted by the receptionist, Mr. Nirhop shows up since the kids are his employees.

He and Mr. Kokal have an altercation that stops only when Mrs. Passden asks them to think of the kids rather than of their egos. Mrs. Hildeft avows how incapable she is of dealing alone with the unexpected; hence, her dependency on others to make decisions for her. Mrs. Passden tells them that it is time to stop talking about themselves and go to the aid of the kids.

All go to the station. Mrs. Passden secures their release by telling the officers that the kids did not call their parents because they feel that the parents do not care about them. "If we leave those kids feeling that they have nothing to lose, not even anybody's affection for them, we doom them. Let us care for them."

In the lobby, they bicker. "We are cranky", says Mrs. Passden, "we need breakfast". While preparing it in her apartment, Dennis confesses to her that he does not want to take the test because if he is not dyslexic, he is dumb; but she convinces him to risk finding out what he is and work to become what he wants to be. Mrs. Hildeft tells Philip that his call made her aware that she failed to care for her children because she did not know how to; he admits that he wanted to be caught by the police to see whether anybody would come through for him. Mr. Kokal and Mr. Nirhop realize that to help the kids they have to quit asserting their own status. Lisee tells Mr. Kokal that she so wanted him to be her father that she forgot who she was; he admits that he has always been insensitive to the feelings of 'the weak' and now he has nobody left but her. When all sit at the table to eat, they wish they could grow into the family that they long for.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England 2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School tel. (718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

The Bloodied Mattress

Synopsis of a movie script and treatment of its novelization

One early morning two cemetery workers find a mattress lying on the sidewalk against the fence of the Beth Olom Cemetery in Brooklyn, New York City. When they start removing it, they find a huge dark reddish stain on it. They call the police. Detectives Pablo, 53, and Jasmine, 26, respond and believe it to be blood. The single bed mattress must have been dumped here after that night's rain given that it is dry; hence, within the last six hours. As they inspect the scene, they notice further up the street large tire marks sideways on the pavement and against the curb. They also find small pieces of black rubber, which they bag. They agree that because of its size and the blood, it must have been concealed in a van for transportation. However, Pablo believes that a man was stabbed on it and dumped elsewhere while the mattress was dropped off here as a message that a similar violent cause can bring the bloodied bodies of his friends and relatives to lie beside him here. By contrast, Jasmine believes that an outcast, such as an illegal immigrant, may have had a terrible accident at home and other aliens put her on it, took the risk of dropping her off at a hospital, and brought the mattress here so that her soul may rest where life is conceived and makes hope flourish eternal. So begins a dynamic confrontation between a master, whose long career dealing with the worst fellow men has darkened his outlook on the world and rendered him jaded and cynical; and his young trainee, who still believes that there is a noble streak in the human spirit capable of inspiring a person to acts of courageous selflessness.

They find no such injured person at any hospital and no exsanguinated dumped body is reported. The mattress is taken to the Medical Examiner. She tells the detectives that the blood on the mattress is too abundant for an adult to survive its loss. Moreover, the mattress shows a pattern of an arch of small stains below which smaller arches with bigger stains converge on one solid stain that goes deep into the mattress. This suggests that an initial arterial spurt with the highest blood pressure occurred when the victim was seated on the edge of a naked mattress. Then he or she fell back. The weakening arterial pressure caused blood to be ejected ever closer to the bleeding point. The blood flowed down to the depression in the mattress caused by the weight of the person, where it formed a pool that by absorption and gravity sank deep into the mattress. Consequently, the adult was injured and bled out through a natural process that nobody disturbed by moving the victim in an effort to assist him or her. The ME adds that the carotid artery must have been completely transected with a profound blow that caused the victim to lose consciousness in a matter of seconds and bleed out in less than a minute. Blood samples are sent for DNA and toxicology analysis. The detectives tell their chief that a person that is about to commit suicide does not first remove the bed linen so that it can be used by survivors. They suggest that the wound was inflicted unexpectedly on the victim by another person, even if only by accident. The chief green lights the criminal investigation of a suspected homicide.

The technicians of the Vehicular Forensic Lab analyze the rubber of the tire marks and the small pieces and identify it as that used in the tires of an old Chevy van model. They speculate that if the scraping against the pavement or the curb was so forceful as to chip off pieces of rubber, the wheel train might have been bent. If so, the driver might have needed to call for road assistance. What they cannot figure out is that the pieces do not appear to have been scraped, but rather sliced off the tire.

The detectives find a call received by the local cellular tower that morning after it stopped raining and routed to the nearest AAA office. Strangely, the AAA service contract is for a previous year's Mercedes-Benz model. They trick the AAA service man by asking about 'the yellow Mercedes…rather the red one…I mean, the black' until he admits that he was paid off to service an old Chevy van and tow it to a repair shop. There he identifies the van, which is taken to the lab. The detectives then see the owner of the Mercedes-Benz, Mr. Willbough, owner of the first-rate art gallery Impressions in Greenwich Village. He says that his handymen, Gary and Karoff, called him requesting his AAA membership number because his Mercedes, which they were supposed to take for its weekly cleaning, had broken down. They said that they wanted to leave the car very early at the car wash so that they could run to finish dismounting his exhibition at the posh hotel Duke of York and release the hall before he would be charged for another day.

Gary and Karoff admit that they did not tell their boss that it was the Impressions van, used for transporting objects of art, that had broken down in Brooklyn, where it had not reason to be, because late comers to the exhibition insisted on viewing it and had caused them to finish dismounting it too late. So they decided to keep the paintings overnight in the van under lock and key in Gary's garage and unload it the following day. The Vehicular Lab tells the detectives that the van's rear left side has dents and transfer paint. In their opinion, a green Honda van impacted the Impressions van repeatedly during a chase, bent the fender inwards, which sliced pieces of the tire, and forced it against the curb until it stopped. However, the motive can hardly have been to retrieve the victim since neither fibers matching the mattress fabric nor bloodstains were found in the van. The trace laboratory determines that the mattress is expensive and its fibers bear transfer traces of laundry detergent used in hotel bed linen. The fingerprints on it do not match those of Gary and Karoff, which are in the criminal system fingerprint database for theft.

The detectives go to the Duke of York Hotel. The manager says that the exhibition organizers asked for two connected rooms. One was for the exhibited artist, Gregory. The housekeeper explains that the big beds in his bedroom were removed and replaced with a single bed because he wanted to have room to mount an easel and paint whenever he could not sleep. "A strange fellow, if you ask me," she comments, "who doesn't have set hours for eating or sleeping or doing anything, like normal people do." In the manager's view, "the organizers were more than happy to milk every drop of painting that he wanted to squeeze from himself." The beds and furniture in the other room were removed to store the crates of exhibited paintings. Sometime he kept there his painting materials trunk, "a rickety wooden box, like children have for keeping their toys, on wheels and with a top lid, where he dumped everything pell-mell and pulled by a cord on one side. Only he could pull it and did not allow anybody else to handle it. A crazy boy in the head", says the housekeeper, and the manager adds, "with the hands of a magician".

He takes the detectives and their Crime Scene Unit personnel (CSU) to those rooms. There is no sign of a struggle. CSU spray Luminal all over the carpet, the bedspread, and the walls but it does not react to make visible a single drop of blood despite the massive amount spilled on the mattress. They are baffled. The housekeeper joins them and says that a spare single bed is missing. CSU keep working there while the detectives go with the manager to his office.

He calls up Hotel Caterers Martin and Frances, who work in the kitchen and brought food service carts to Gregory whenever he wanted. They say that shortly before 8:00 p.m. on the last night of the exhibition, an hour before it ended, they brought up another food cart. When they came out of the elevator, they saw Mr. Willbough eavesdropping outside his door. He hurriedly walked away in the opposite direction and turned the corner. When they removed the cart before 10:00 p.m., they saw nobody. On both occasions, they only entered the crates room, which had the door to the bedroom closed…"the way of that lanky, stingy, gluttonous pig to avoid tipping us". They say that the crates are about 4'L x 3'H x 18"W. In addition to seeing Gary and Karoff enter the crates room, they also saw Deborah, 49, go in or out of the bedroom on other occasions. The manager says that she is one of the organizers and Director of New Artists Exhibitions at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Frances notes, "she mothers Gregory and consents to his every whim. I would have kicked his…" "Frances!", shouted the manager. "Oh yes," says Martin, "she would and his pocket too, for the tips." The detectives leave even more baffled, for how could a body and a mattress be brought down and removed from the hotel without anybody noticing?

Pablo and Jasmine go to the Metropolitan. The curator says that Deborah has not showed up since the exhibition started five days earlier, which is not unusual because she spends a lot of time taking the pulse of the art world and building links to the Museum. Her previous job was as an appraiser for the Antique Roadshow, where she developed a TV following. She discovered Gregory as he displayed his paintings on the artists' sidewalk of Central Park, and brought him into an agency contract with Mr. Willbough and a new art investor, Mr. Hsung. The detectives go to her apartment building, but the manager refuses to let them into her apartment without a warrant. However, he finds out from the janitors that everything is in order inside; and gives the detectives the address of her next of kin: her two grown up children, who survive their father.

The detectives ask Mr. Willbough why he did not mention either Deborah or Mr. Hsung as co-organizers of the exhibition. "Because you asked me only about Gary calling me for my AAA registration number." He says that Gregory is a temperamental, capricious, and immature young man in his mid 20s. The last night of the exhibition he disappeared from the exhibition hall, so Mr. Willbough went up to his room to find out whether he was working; "if he was sleeping, waking him up was definitely not a good idea". Mr. Hsung is a Chinese art importer, whom Deborah persuaded to convert a house in Chappaqua, upstate New York, into an art gallery to cater to wealthy suburbanites and her many affluent friends.

The detectives cannot find Mr. Hsung in his Chinatown office. They travel to Chappaqua, where they meet his secretary Frieda. She says that she supervises the conversion. But there are no workers, only interior decoration materials. To bring them, she has been driving Mr. Hsung's green Honda van, which is parked in the driveway outside the closed garage. She has not seen him, Deborah, or Gregory since the end of the exhibition. That night Mr. Hsung left at about 8:30 p.m.; shortly thereafter, she left with a client; Deborah remained behind to wrap things up. After the convention, Mr. Hsung was to attend an art dealers convention; that is why he did not need his van. The detectives ask whether they can look around the house, but Frieda adamantly refuses because it is under construction and, as such, a hazardous place. As the detectives are leaving, they take a look at the van. It has no dents or paint scratches; but pretending to drop her keys, Jasmine kneels behind the van and uses them to scratch a paint sample from it.

Deborah's children have not heard from her in the last few days. With their authorization, the detectives enter her apartment. Chicken parts were left in the fridge to defrost, which a person would not do who is planning not to come home for days. CSU takes underwear from the hamper for analysis. Deborah's answering machine has messages from Mr. Hsung asking to meet with her and indicating that Gregory was staying at his Chappaqua house. Frieda lied to them about it! The laboratory matched up the van's paint sample with the transfer paint on Gary's van. So the detectives have a surveillance camera installed on an electricity pole across a flowerbed in his backyard and aimed at the driveway. A CSU report reveals that a single speck of blood was found under the desktop in Gregory's hotel room and that its DNA matches that of the blood on the mattress and the skin flakes in Deborah's underwear. This convinces the detectives that she is indeed missing and most likely was killed in Gregory's hotel room.

The detectives go back to the hotel with photos of people photographed on Mr. Hsung's driveway and yard. The manager identifies Mr. Hsung and Frieda and confirms that they left before the end of the exhibition. Other people appear to be Chinese construction workers. The detectives grill Hotel Caterers Martin and Frances separately, but cannot shake their story that they did not see anything out of order when they took their food service cart in and out of Gregory's crate room. Yet, it is precisely the fact that their stories are so consistent, as if they had been rehearsed, that make them suspect. They interview other coworkers and find out that they have a champion-protégé relationship and that Frances has a highly developed take-charge attitude and is very resourceful. The detectives speculate that either Gregory, the caterers, or Gary and Karoff phoned for help to dispose of Deborah's body and the mattress. They check the logs of phones from which they could have called and find that a call was made from the employees' locker room, which is near the hotel's delivery dock, to a cellular phone registered to Mr. Hsung and relayed by a cell in Chinatown at 12:24 a.m.

The detectives scout Chinatown restaurants unsuccessfully. By accident, they find in a nearby Little Italy restaurant a waiter that recognizes Mr. Hsung from a photo. He says that Mr. Hsung was having a late night dinner with presumed Mafiosi when a phone call came in that upset him and everybody else. The detectives speculate that Mr. Hsung had Gregory kill Deborah to divide proceeds between fewer joint venturers and then left messages on her answering machine to pretend that he thought that she was alive; and that Frieda returned to the hotel after her snack with a client to make sure that the job had been done and then called Mr. Hsung from the locker room. But they cannot figure out why Mr. Hsung's van would bump the van of Gary and Karoff to make it stop if they helped him get rid of the mattress and the body, let alone if they did not. Then the detectives remember that the surveillance camera took a photo of a freshly planted flowerbed in Mr. Hsung's backyard…"That's Deborah's tomb, dug by the workers!"

Pablo and Jasmine get a warrant and take a CSU team to Mr. Hsung's house. Inside they find Mr. Hsung. He says that after the exhibition he lent his van to Frieda so she could bring interior decoration materials while he met at a convention with clients that he had met at the exhibition. CSU goes to the backyard to dig out the flowerbed. The detectives ask about Gregory. Mr. Hsung admits that he has been working on the second floor and that Mr. Hsung asked him to hide his clunker in the garage so that it may not bring either of them or the house into disrepute with the neighbors that may…screams! They rush outside. Police officers catch a young man who exited through a second floor window and was climbing down a tree. It is Gregory! A physically and emotionally frail man, he whines that he was not trying to escape, but that nobody would believe that he did not kill Deborah, who was alive when he last saw her in his hotel roo…more screams! They rush to the backyard. CSU has found Deborah's body! Mr. Hsung and Frieda deny any knowledge whatsoever of it and contend that Gregory planted the flowerbed. "It was an accident!", shouts Gregory uncontrollably. Taking that as an admission that he killed her, the detectives cuff him and lead him away as he becomes ever more hysterical until he drops unconscious. He is taken inside and laid on a sofa in Frieda's office. When he comes to, he is questioned until he breaks down and tells his story. Flashback:

The last night of the exhibition, an impressed visitor praises one of his paintings and buys it for more money than Gregory has ever been paid for all his works. That painting as well as all the others is truly remarkable for their thematic appeal, their color composition and structural balance, and their technical mastery. He, who sold his paintings for whatever tourists had in their pockets, is overexcited. Deborah asks him how much he sold it for, but he refuses to say and insists that he will keep it all because "I'm the talent here! It's mine! I'm The Painter!" She reminds him of his contract with the joint venturers. Upset, he storms out and goes up to his connecting rooms. Mr. Hsung has watched the scene, approaches Deborah, and learns what happened. He asks her to make Gregory understand that Mr. Hsung is the one footing most of the cost of the exhibition and his room and board and tells her to leave certain paintings in the hall for him to pick up and hold as insurance. Then he pays Frances to keep an eye on his pieces and call him if any attempt is made to remove them. He insists that among those pieces is the one whose view is blocked by all the people standing in front of it. He even takes her to see it.

There is good reason why that piece attracts so much attention from all exhibition viewers. It is Gregory's most ambitious and largest, 7' x 5' painting on which he is working in the hall as an artist-at-work promotional device. He could only paint it here because the hall provides the necessary space, whereas otherwise he is limited to paintings whose sizes fit his studio, that is, the back of his clunker van. However, there is something else that makes it amazing and elicits so many compliments to Gregory.

The canvas lies horizontally on its 7' size and has no sketch at all. Yet, its top half is already painted in color and reveals a surreal scene of a gallery of faces of people, animals, and flowers attentively looking from the top of trees at the center of the canvas. It is as if Gregory had attached the top edge of a rolled tapestry along the top edge of a wall and were slowly unrolling it down, thus revealing a complete and exquisite scene: The whole forest has come together to witness the birth of a life-sustaining fountain of water spurting up from the ground and…That's what's happening there! The scene of the people at his back watching as a genius of a painter is born and Gregory in turn is seeing them with the eyes of his imagination at the back of his head! There the painting is already finished and he is only using the dexterity of his hands to unroll it onto the canvas.

The sighs of wonderment and admiring comments are an ode to the appreciation of art and the mysterious ways of its creation. They resonate on Gregory's body, turning it into a tuning fork that keeps emitting a single sound of perfect pitch: I'm The Painter! The considerable amount of money just paid him to purchase one of his paintings is only the tangible expression of that sound. But it and the wrangle with Deborah have become shock waves breaking against his frail temperament and making him too nervous to keep painting. So he stamps away.

After her conversation with Mr. Hsung, Deborah goes up to the rooms. Gregory admits to having sold the painting for a lot of money and childishly challenges her to find it, as if playing hide and seek with her. Incensed by his inopportune and immature behavior, she ransacks the place, undressing the bed in his bedroom and moving onto the connecting room, where the crates are kept and he moved his painting materials trunk. In the latter, she finds a shoebox-like safe and a palette knife. She takes both, sits on the mattress, and with her right hand tries to pry the safe open. But the knife keeps slipping along the joint of the lid and the container bottom. As she hurls insults at Gregory, who is dancing and laughing puerilely, she turns the box and exerts a lot of pressure against a hinge at the back to burst it, and more pressure, and all the pressure that she can muster with her right hand, to no avail. So she places the box between her knees and with both hands holding the knife pointing upwardly she tries again, and puffs, and her arms shake with tension …the knife snaps like a tense coil that is suddenly released, darts up, and slashes the left side of her neck. Blood spurts out like a geyser of death. She falls back on the mattress while blood is pumped out in an ever more languid jet. Inversely, Gregory becomes ever more aware that she is bleeding out, and is dying, and she is dead. Horrified, he crumbles in a corner, wraps his arms around his bent legs, and with his face pressed against his knees weeps like a child.

When Frances and Martin enter his room to remove the food service cart before their shift is over, they hear somebody weeping in the bedroom. They knock. Nobody responds. So they open the door and find that scene. Frances shakes him and slaps him "and answer me or I flatten you like a ball of dough". Gregory snaps out of the self-absorbed stupor in which he has retreated. He asks for her help. "Help! Like I take your dirty dishes away and a dead body too?! I ain't no undertaker. I'm a business woman." He takes a key from his pocket, opens the safe box, and offers her all the money in it if she helps him. Bedazzled, she takes it, 'but this's for the tips you owe me and my employee. I want that painting too". He agrees to her taking anything if she helps him. She takes a small painting, an insightful portrait of a girl on a swing joyfully screaming as she swings forward toward the sky while the children behind her are looking down as they play with their toys in the sand. Frances is fascinated by it. She hides it in the cart. Then it's clean up time!

She takes from the cart plastic bags and presses them in Martin's hands. He protests about always having to do all the work, about how much of the "tip" she is going to share with him this time, about her never asking him how he would do it "though I too have lots of many good ideas", but she does not pay him any attention. She is busy figuring out how she and he are going to… "I've got it!" She orders him to take Gregory's painting materials from the trunk and put them in the bags "and I'll charge you for every stain you make on the carpet". When he is done, she gives him orders to help her "bag this Thanksgiving turkey for the oven but we're gonna stuff her in the trunk". He protests each and every order while following each with practiced obedience and skill: He pulls Deborah to a sitting position and she pull a plastic bag from her head to her torso "like covering an ice cream cone with chocolate sauce without spilling a drop or I ain't letting you lick the bowl no way". After "Deborah is cooking", they bring from the crates room into the bedroom the big crate for the big work in progress, lay it flat on the floor, and without tilting the mattress, lift it off the spring box, lay it on the floor beside the crate, and slide it in. They leave it thus for the pool of blood on it to "marinate" into the fabric. Gregory watches on in dumbfounded silence that gradually becomes amused curiosity.

They take the cart downstairs and before entering the kitchen to clean it, they clock out. "She said everything had to be in the nature's order of things if the cops come asking 'bout your slipping-hand beauty". Martin adds, "Your stiff would have been a great help in the kitchen opening oysters!" Frances shouts: "She's going to work, everybody still alive get out of the kitchen!" "They tag teamed always," says Gregory; "Cracked me up! They're real funny. We had a good time, though Frances smacked me like my parents 'cause I'd paint the walls with ketchup and mustard in cream cheese and blue toothpaste and they don't like it and they hurt and I left."

Later on, Gary and Karoff enter only the room with the crates to take them to the hall and pack therein the paintings for safe transportation. After they have done with the conventional size crates, Frances and Martin move the big crate from the bedroom to the crate room. Gregory tells the packers that it was packed with a painting that he was working on in the bedroom and the big work in progress in the hall does not yet need a crate. Frances adds, "It belongs to Mr. Chow Mein", and keeps ridiculing Mr. Hsung. All have a big laugh at his expense. "He thinks he waves his chopsticks like Harry Potter and gets everybody ordered around to do what he wants."

They load everything in the Impressions van in the delivery dock. Frances asks Gary "Do you have to slave much longer being that it is so late or you're gonna split home and do a good unload like a profi tomorrow morning fresh and strong? I guess they don't pay you triple time to work in the wee hours when their sleeping like a cannoli log on a pudding bed. That's what we make the hotel pay us or they can have the guests open a can of chicken of the street". Gary thinks it over and confides that from SOHO, where they are, they will take the Williamsburg

Bridge to Brooklyn because "you're right, it's too late to drive to the Upper West Side. That's hard labor to unload all this stuff in Mr. Willbough's storage facility by the Amtrak yard". They exchange hearty goodbyes and then Gary and Karoff drive away past midnight. It is raining.

It is then that Frances calls Mr. Hsung from a pay phone in the nearby locker room. He is at table eating with other businessmen, yet he shouts angrily upon learning that Gary threw his work in progress without a crate in his van, where he will keep it overnight after he parks it in front of his home near Richmond Hill, "a real nasty neighborhood, Gary said, but nobody will steal anything and anyway he knows all the fences". She tells him Gary's route. Then she takes Martin and Gregory to the storage room and has them bring a mattress and two cardboard boxes up to the bedroom. Frances and Martin place the bags with his painting materials in the boxes and carry them down while Gregory pulls his trunk with Deborah's corpse. They load it all in his clunker of a van. Gregory hugs them both like old childhood friends and tells them that they have to come see him at his next exhibition. "That's great! Greggy. And here is our farewell gift", says Frances pressing a plastic bag into his hand. "If you need to paint out another organizer, just put this bag over their head and choke'm 'cause we ain't cleaning no blood mess no more". They explode with laughter. After their banter subsides, Gregory climbs in his clunker and leaves.

"Don't you let her fool you! She is no clown", exclaims Mr. Hsung in a voice-over. "That cunning sleazy grease cook". The flashback goes on. He is standing by the table where their drivers are eating when he calls Gary. He tells him to take the paintings to Mr. Willbough's storage facility; but Gary refuses and says that he works for Mr. Willbough and "don't take orders from no chow mein". An infuriated Mr. Hsung takes his driver and leaves Little Italy.

It is drizzling as Mr. Hsung lays in wait by the Williamsburg Bridge. When the driver sees the van with the "Impressions" logo, they follow it. It has cleared up by the time they get to the deserted Beth Olom Cemetery on Cypress Hills. There his driver bumps the left rear fender of Gary's van into the wheel so that is brought to a stop. His driver jumps out with chain sticks in each hand and, standing by Gary's right headlight, starts swing them at a vertiginous speed. Mr. Hsung has a 50" engraved wooden dragon staff that he threatens to run through their windows if they do not roll them down and drive through their ears if they do not step out. Gary and Karoff step out trembling. "You dogs! You put my jewel uncrated in the van!" They try to explain what…"Shut up! Don't you disrespect me talking back! If it is as much as scratched, I break your fingers! Take it out!" Gary and Karoff look at each other in fear, instinctively put on their work gloves, remove it from the van, and hold it to the headlights of Mr. Hsung's van while he inspects it. He tells his driver to open the big crate of the work in progress. "Boss!", shouted the driver, "there's a mattress here!" The driver and Mr. Hsung pull it out…"What's that? Blood?!"

Gary and Karoff look at it incredulous, realize that it is blood indeed, and are panic-stricken in a flash. They cannot contain wildly denying having anything to do with it. Mr. Hsung says that they are at least accomplices helping in disposing of the mattress and who knows what else. He tells them to place the painting in its crate and load it together with some other crates in his van. "You two take the mattress down the street and dump it on the sidewalk and do it quickly before a Good Samaritan stops and sees that you dumped your bloodied mattress. If you two keep your mouth shut about my knocking your van, we won't say anything about your doing a whack job on the mattress or cleaning up for whoever did it." He adds that Gary and Karoff should tell Mr. Willbough that they left the work in progress at the hotel for Mr. Hsung to pick it up; he will bring it up to the Chappaqua house, where Gregory can be brought to finish it. "If he asks about the other pieces that I just took, let him ask Deborah. She knows what the deal is." He and his driver leave as Gary and Karoff hastily grab the mattress to distance it from them.

In a voice-over, Mr. Hsung says that, “Those two characters must have known that if they called AAA to tow the van, Mr. Willbough would find out that they had driven it loaded with paintings to Brooklyn to spend the night on the street and he would fire them on the spot. As for Frances, she played us! She wanted me to go after that extraordinary painting so that I would find the mattress and get rid of it before it ever made it to the storage facility. From there it could be tracked back to the hotel and her. With her tongue, she beats any of my salesgirls to sell the cross to Tibetan monks!”

Gregory drives to the house in Chappaqua and during the night buries Deborah’s body under the flowerbed. He is about to leave when Mr. Hsung arrives. “Gregory, by the Great Wall!, what are you doing here?!” Visibly disturbed, Gregory tells him haltingly that Deborah took the money from the sale of the painting that night to offset what was owed her from the sales at the exhibition; she wanted Gregory to give notice of termination of the contract with Mr. Hsung and Mr. Willbough and sell through her only. She upset him so much! So he came to the house to discuss the whole thing with Mr. Hsung.

“Deborah showed lack of trust in Mr. Willbough and me. She should be the one to get axed from the venture”, says Mr. Hsung. In the morning, he will discuss the matter with them. “I know you can’t finish your work in progress in your ‘studio’”, so he will bring it from Mr. Willbough’s storage room in the morning for Gregory to finish it in a big room in the house, where he can stay as long as he wants if he wants to keep painting there. “A room! It beats living in my van. I’ll do it!”, shouted Gregory beside himself. Moreover, Mr. Hsung will bring other paintings so that Gregory can give his opinion on how best to set up the spotlights. Exhilarated, Gregory goes into the house “’cause I’m beat with all the driving here and that it’s so late”. Soon he is snoring in a sleeping bag on the second floor. Then Mr. Hsung and his driver take the crates from the van to another room on that floor where interior decoration materials are stacked.

The following morning the driver takes the van to the shop to repair the damage from bumping Gary’s van. When Gregory wakes up in the afternoon, Mr. Hsung tells him that he brought his work in progress. “Frieda will order all the food and materials you need and make sure you can work without any distractions.” Gregory is seen licking his fingers and wiping them on his shirt before going back to his work, on which he is making beautiful progress. He chews on food from a table behind him that he has turned into a real mess, with five take-out containers and several opened soda cans intermingled with all sorts of materials from the two boxes nearby.

“You need to come with us until we check your story”, says Jasmine to Gregory, “you may be charged at least with the illegal disposal of a corpse”. Pablo shouts “a dump job!”. “No! no!”, cries Gregory, “I loved Deborah! She believed in me. She gave me hope. I’ll stay here and take care that she lives forever in the followers above her and the art that I’ll create in her name.”

The medical examiner performs an autopsy on Deborah. “The slash on her neck has a slanted upward trajectory. Gregory’s palette knife cut the skin at the bottom of the slash, proceeded deeper into the flesh, cleanly severing the carotid, and its tip stopped half an inch under and along her skin. The tool marks on her body and his safe box match the knife; her fingerprints are on both the box and the knife. A scratch on her throat below the slash is consistent with the nail of her right thumb, under which her blood and tissue were found. The cause of death is exsanguination by accidental self-stabbing.”

Jasmine tries to get Pablo to see in the light of the facts that there were no demons in this case. Pablo wonders whether the human soul has a bright side; and the thought that art may be its highest expression comes to him as an epiphany.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. (718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

BIG MONEY FOR little ones

Synopsis of a movie script

It is the opening night of the Romanian Trade Fair in New York City. There is a party atmosphere, with folkloric dancing, top Romanian singers, typical gastronomic delicacies, and plenty of wine. Top government officials and businessmen from Romania and the U.S. are present. Cultural Attaché Caragiale introduces the VIP guests to each other, while gorgeous female Romanian interpreters facilitate their communication. Caragiale sees when his special project, Mr. Inleighs, fixes his eyes on beautiful Elena. He pairs them up, picks up his own girlfriend for the evening, and squirrels away with them to the limousine, which Petru drives to the Consulate.

Their fun is snuffed at the Consulate when they surprise two intruders. One escapes, but the other is shot by Petru and falls dead outside the gate, on non-Romanian territory. Caragiale removes the intriguing night vision goggles, headset with microphone, and waist bag of the fallen man before NYPD Detective Ramiro arrives. Caragiale tells him simply that he found an intruder at the Consulate and shot him in self-defense.

The next day Ramiro informs Assistant District Attorney Gianni. Both meet with Assistant U.S. Attorney Ariel and Special FBI Agent Charleston. Ariel requests that the D.A. relinquish jurisdiction of the case to the Federal authorities given its diplomatic elements. Gianni states that the D.A. will not do so. After a tense discussion, it is agreed that both parties will work together. Gianni and Ariel find out to their surprise that the Romanian Consul refuses to let them inspect the premises or interview any of his employees. To him this was nothing but a burglary in light of the presence in the Consulate of gifts for special Fair guests. Privately Ariel tells Gianni that she too thinks this was only a burglary. At Gianni's insistence, she agrees to have the Romanian interpreters interviewed, for they were brought in by the Fair organizers so that they neither enjoy diplomatic immunity nor are covered by the Consul's refusal.

Ramiro resents having to partner with Charleston because the FBI has discriminated against his joining it due to his being Hispanic. Yet, he must go with Charleston to the Immigration and Naturalization Service to obtain the list of Romanian interpreters. Upon noticing that they are all young women, Ramiro comments that something is going on with them, but Charleston ridicules his comment as unfounded. Although they interview the interpreters at their hotel, Charleston deems it a pointless investigative effort. The two detectives find out that Elena is the interpreters' director and lives in New York. Ramiro becomes suspicious when Elena grows impatient and says that she has told them 'all she can'; now he wants to find out all she knows.

Ramiro goes back to the INS alone and learns from the records that Elena works for Romanian businessman Antonescu. He is one of the Fair organizers and thus, must have close ties to the Consulate. Since her address is his, she may have valuable information about the Consulate and shooting. Hence, Ramiro wants first to shadow and then interview her. When the Feds are told about this, they object to taking the investigation so far afield, but Gianni supports him and prevails. Ramiro and Charleston see Elena take two kids from Antonescu's house to school. Now Ramiro wants to know her relation to them. Charleston complains about such shotgun investigation, but accompanies Ramiro. They learn from a teacher that Elena is simply the nanny of Euge and Dinu, who arrived the previous October and January, respectively. Charleston's complaints grow louder. Ariel insists on interviewing Elena alone because "woman to woman is more productive". Ramiro tricks her into agreeing to wear a wire and to his talking to the kids too. Upon analyzing the conversation, he concludes that the kids are not even brothers: One calls Antonescu "Dad" and the other "Papa Anton". He wants to interview the school principal. The Feds argue that if only an INS violation is found with no link to the shooting, the case should be turned over to the INS and considered closed. Gianni agrees with that approach, but Ramiro goes along with him only reluctantly.

The Principal says that Dinu is Antonescu's illegitimate son and arrived when his mother allowed him to leave Romania. In Charleston's absence and by a slip of the tongue, the Principal calls Ramiro "Gianni". Ramiro bullies him psychologically and the Principal confesses that Antonescu, upon a request from Gianni, who wanted to close the case, asked him to say that Dinu had arrived in January, although he was enrolled in the school only later, in April. Ramiro does not tell Charleston anything. At the INS, he finds out that there is no record of Euge having ever entered the U.S. Then he blasts Gianni for double-dealing. Gianni affirms that he did not ask Antonescu anything. Ramiro asks him to prove it by going to see Antonescu right away. Gianni berates Ramiro for jumping to conclusions, but agrees to his demand.

While interviewing Antonescu in his home office, Ramiro pulls a stunt by saying that their investigation has discovered a prostitution ring involving the interpreters in which Antonescu can be implicated, and that Dinu entered the U.S. under the false name of Euge so that both can be deported. Gianni does not play along and the stunt fails to pressure Antonescu into telling what he knows about the Consulate shooting. On the contrary, he threatens Ramiro with a lawsuit for defamation and demands that Gianni disassociate himself from those accusations. Gianni upbraids Ramiro for the situation thus created. In turn, Ramiro accuses him of not having played along out of fear that a subordinate may get the credit for breaking the case. The next day, Antonescu and his lawyer obtain his removal from the case in exchange for their pledge not to sue. Ramiro berates Gianni for having sold him out, thus putting a blemish on his record.

To rethink their strategy for proceeding without Ramiro, Gianni calls Ariel, who invites him home for dinner. She tries to convince him to bring the case to a close. He picks up a detail in the conversation that gives away Ariel's lie of not having ever met Antonescu until she did with Gianni. Moreover, by mistake he enters her bedroom, where he sees a typical Romanian work of art similar to one that he saw in Antonescu's home office.

Still in shock, Gianni wakes up Ramiro at home and tells him of his suspicion of Ariel's corruption. Ramiro reveals that he took the initiative to examine the autopsy report on the dead burglar, who was identified by his mother. She claimed that her son might have been an FBI agent. Given the Feds' attitude to close the investigation as soon as possible, Ramiro ventures the conclusion that the Consulate break-in was a covert FBI operation. Gianni finds the evidence intriguing, but insufficient to support the conclusion or have Ramiro reinstated in the case.

The next day Ramiro shadows Elena and picks her up on her way back from the kid's school. He tells her that as part of a deal with Antonescu, he admitted that the Fair and the Consulate use the interpreters in a scheme that trades sex favors for VIPs' concessions. As a result, she is being deported. Right there he gets her on the car and drives her to the airport at a maddening speed. She is terrorized, breaks down, and tells him what happened on the Fair's opening night. She also says that Caragiale showed Petru the equipment taken from the intruder that was killed. Both quickly recognized what it was and were outraged, but just at soon became delighted by their "treasure", which "pays dividends hidden or in the diplomatic sun". Ramiro's bluff has paid off, but has left him puzzled.

Ramiro shares with Gianni Elena's equipment description and statement. They figure that Caragiale and Petru, thanks to their espionage training, realized that the equipment was government issued and the intruders were agents; and that the Consul must have blackmailed the Feds into killing Gianni and Ramiro's shooting investigation or the equipment would be shown at the Fair as proof that the U.S. Government had broken into sovereign consular territory to conduct an intelligence operation. What intrigues them is how the subject of the Feds covert investigation is so sensitive that the Consulate needs to prevent the shooting investigation from stumbling upon and revealing it. But one thing they now know: It earns money.

When Ramiro takes Elena back home, he learns that she never knew her parents, who abandoned her at an orphanage, where she suffered terribly. Following a lead from Elena's statement, Ramiro and Gianni go to the airport. They find out that Caragiale often goes to the cargo section of the Romanian airline to obtain a package that Antonescu brings for him in a chartered flight, which Caragiale then claims as diplomatic baggage. The dates of the first two flights coincide with the arrival of Euge and Dinu. The officer in charge of the U.S. Customs office denies that there is a pattern of entry of diplomatic baggage for Caragiale and surprisingly says that Gianni has no business investigating a matter "in the hands of the Feds".

At the INS, Ramiro is shocked at finding out that Euge has no immigration documents at all. He and Gianni realize that the officer that signs off on those documents fits Elena's description of the VIP brought to the Consulate the night of the shooting. Ramiro tricks him and with Gianni playing along, the officer agrees to falsify a document. They go to see Elena at Antonescu's house only to learn that she left for Romania because her parents are sick. But she never knew her parents! They check and her name does not turn up on any airline manifest. Hence, she is still in the U.S. But where? They accuse Ariel of having made Elena disappear. She denies having done so, but admits that she conducted a covert operation at the Consulate; Charleston adds that "we" must clean up the mess to save "our" standing in the FBI by playing along with Caragiale until the equipment is retrieved. Ariel says that Antonescu bribed Caragiale to smuggle Euge and Dinu as diplomatic baggage and then Caragiale went for more easy money by getting Antonescu to smuggle more orphans for illegal adoptions. When she realized that Gianni and Ramiro had put it together, she used that information to force Antonescu to help her retrieve the equipment or she would let Gianni's investigation cause his kids to be deported. He agreed to cooperate and gave her gifts.

Gianni and Ramiro realize that Charleston was the other intruder; that the Customs officer told him of their visit to Customs; and that Charleston had Ariel alert Caragiale to take Elena out of the reach of Gianni's warrants…and it hits them! They cut a deal with Elena by promising to keep her in the U.S. if she helps them retrieve the equipment. They rode Trojan Mare Elena into the Consulate! Gianni and Ramiro craft a plan to 'ride' Elena out the Consulate so that Gianni can offer her immunity from charges of running a prostitution ring in exchange for her testimony against the smuggling and adoption ring, a case that can make them a name by exposing the Fed's break-in.

After cajoling sensitive information from Petru, Elena lets Charleston enter the Consulate that night. Petru returns unexpectedly and fights Charleston. Ramiro comes out of hiding to take advantage of the distraction to sneak out with Elena, but Petru jumps him and he must be saved by Charleston; then both retrieve the equipment. An alarm goes off. Elena escapes and is met by Gianni outside the Consulate. Ariel and her agents pick them up before the NYPD arrive.

All go to a safe place. Ariel argues that given the Consulate's diplomatic immunity, they succeeded in quietly stop-ping the smuggling of orphans and causing corrupt INS officials to resign so that exposing the Fed's covert operation would only prevent the use of such operations to end abuses of diplomatic immunity. Gianni agrees not to expose it. Elena makes them admit that when they cooperate they are more effective than when they fight each other and can get results more important than the advancement of their careers: They can help the little ones, like the orphans, the interpreters-cum-sex girls, and her, who alone do not stand a chance against Big Money. Ramiro agrees with her and says that later on he wants her to tell him more about the smuggling ring. They tease him that what he wants is to date her.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. (718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Dead But On The Run

Synopsis of a movie script

Ex-convict Morton McCaully, 36, is playing with niece Sally, 5, when Stephen, 19, arrives at the McCaully's motor repair shop, cum chop shop, in New York City, with the stolen motorcycle that they need to do a 'job'. But Morton takes a fancy to the Harley-Davidson that a client has just brought in to repair. Since his brother will not give him the key, Morton starts smashing that big hog until he gets it and rides away with Stephen.

They hold up a check cashing office. When on his way out Morton finds that a door does not open quickly, he has a flashback to his 11 years in prison, panics, kills a customer…and drops the loot. They escape on the hog, which soon stalls, forcing them to split and run. Morton barricades himself in a house. There he is taken out of action by police officer Bolansky with a shot that disfigures his face. Stephen is apprehended by officers of a neighboring precinct where detectives Lawrence, 44, and Perol, 32, work, who are assigned to the case.

Stephen plea-bargains with the Queens Senior Assistant D.A. Alfred and his junior, Kathleen, by offering to testify that Morton was the killer of a schoolgirl. This allegation can only be proved by matching the DNA of fluids found on the girl's clothes with that of Morton. The lawyers and the detectives discuss the need for an exhumation order; tension erupts when Alfred treats the detectives as clerks of lesser intelligence.

When Lawrence and Perol go to exhume Morton…there is no coffin in the grave! The cemetery workers confess that they 'recycle' coffins, but allege that Morton was not in his. The detectives check with the McCaullys: They last saw their brother's corpse at the funeral home. The home director denies trafficking in corpses. The detectives recognize that a surveillance operation can take time, during which Morton's corpse can disappear forever.

The next day an anonymous tip says that a certain Travis wants to talk. When the detectives visit him he confesses through a smashed up face that he and others at the home sell corpses to a corpse dealer. Later on Lawrence admits to Perol that he hinted to the McCaullys the need for information, hoping that they would beat Travis into 'volunteering' to talk. Perol contests Lawrence's tactics, which becomes a source of conflict between their views of what means and ends of justice are proper.

The detectives bait and apprehend the corpse dealer, who confesses after realizing what happened to Travis: He buys corpses from funeral homes and sells them to medical schools. Lawrence and Perol manage to identify the school that bought Morton's corpse, which is incinerated before their search warrant is executed. However, the detectives find a pathology resident who dissected a faceless corpse and says that his liver had been removed and his other organs had poison traces, which he discovered by preparing tissue slides. The detectives suspect that this was Morton and that his liver was transplanted.

Through the McCaullys, they obtain the medical record of Morton after he was shot. It states that he died from gunshots to not only the head, but also the torso, of which the resident, however, found no signs. Lawrence and Perol talk to Bolansky, who only mentions shooting Morton in the head. They find out that EMS never sent an ambulance for Morton; strangely enough, it came from a clinic to which Morton would not normally have been sent because too distant. Nobody there would say who requested the ambulance.

Lawrence and Perol ask Vranska, Bolansky's commanding officer, to lend them the Morton file, but it is not sent. So they talk to Bolansky's partner, who says that Bolansky received a call on his cellular phone and then drove to the besieged house. The desk sergeant says that she did not send the ambulance and that Bolansky and Vranska are buddies. Vranska says he does not know who sent the ambulance. But cellular phone records show that Vranska called Bolansky and the clinic's director, who in turn called Dr. Gombrat, a liver transplant surgeon. Both the clinic's director and Dr. Gombrat refuse to provide any information. Now the detectives put it all together: Bolansky defaces criminals; Vranska arranges for their shipment to the clinic; the latter steals their organs while 'treating' them for torso wounds.

Kathleen obtains a court order enjoining the clinic to release its admission and operating room records. These show that liver patient Mrs. Flannigan was operated on shortly after Morton arrived. Alfred and Kathleen visit her, only to be told by her husband that she died of liver cancer and that her operation had nothing to do with a transplant. Unconvinced, Alfred applies for an order of exhumation; and criticizes Kathleen as naive; in turn, she resents his treating everybody as a suspect and lack of compassion. While the judge decides the application, the Morton record arrives from Vranska's precinct. It only refers to a face shot and has no police photos of the besieged house. The detectives get news footage copies, but the view of Morton is blocked; yet, Ringers bags held over him indicate that he was still alive.

The exhumation is ordered, but…the grave is empty! Mrs. Flannigan was cremated in the meantime by her husband. Kathleen acknowledges that he must have feared his insurance company's refusal to pay on his wife's life policy if she died from an illegal transplant. They are disappointed when the insurers say that based on mere suspicion they cannot launch an investigation that would expose them to liability, though they release Mrs. Flannigan's file.

Alfred and Kathleen take it to the medical examiner to decipher. He finds no indication of a transplant, only of cancer treatment, complicated maybe by a 'hepatic toxin.' The case is doomed …until Kathleen's free associative thinking realizes the implication of the examiner's jargon: "Bingo! That means liver poisoning and tallies with the poisoning found by the pathology resident in the other organs of Morton's alleged corpse." But who poisoned him and why? The detectives talk to the McCaullys, who may have poisoned their brother if he was a pedophile.

For more evidence, they get the owners of the besieged house to lend them their photos of the destruction that Morton wrecked inside while surrounded by the police. After an ingenious analysis of the photos, they and the lawyers realize that out of desperation Morton drank a household pipe-unclogging product rather than be caught. Yet, the insurers remain unconvinced by the evidence. The lawyers trick the insurers' outside doctor that examined Mrs. Flannigan: 'Yes, she got a liver transplant and her autopsy produced slides of a poisoned liver.' Those liver-tissue slides and the slides of Morton's liver prepared by the pathology resident have matching DNA.

They arrest the suspects of killing Morton and illegally transplanting his liver to Mrs. Flannigan and the insurers who blackmailed her husband, who defrauded them by falsifying her cause of death. But their explanations are plausible and supported by doctored documents.

To crack their conspiracy the witnesses must be tripped on the stand. The lawyers do so using logic and a document found by the detectives showing that the defendants overdid their greed. A plea bargain discloses that the insurers engaged in blackmail after discovering that Morton had been killed for his liver. Stephen is tripped into blurting that he killed the schoolgirl. The lawyers and the detectives realize that they are most effective when they work as a team and respect each other.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. (718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Petals of the Heart

Synopsis of a movie script

Grant Marwock, 28, is a candidate for the Ph.D. degree in literature at Columbia University in New York City. After shopping for groceries, he walks through his crime-ridden neighborhood of Washington Heights. He gives his landlady, Mrs. Sheppard, 69, her groceries and receives her criticisms. Then he goes up only to see thieves scurrying out of his apartment and through the scuttle with his notebook computer. He runs over the roof after the thieves: Mini, 17, the leader, and Tommy and Gaby, both 15, his 'crew'. They mock him as he pursues them right into their trap: a junkyard where in spite of Grant's ingenious effort to get back his notebook, they beat him up with sticks. He is saved by Oxy, 26, Mini's brother, a corpulent ringleader, whom those who follow or fear him have alerted to Mini's and his crew's 'prank'. It turns out that Grant and Oxy attended the same school. Oxy compels Mini to return the notebook.

While having a drink, Oxy tells Grant that he is a rising star as a fence with his own crews of thieves. It is dark when Grant, walking back home, hears a woman screaming for help. He flees, but the screams throw him into a quandary. Finally, he is driven back to help her. Hitting the assailants with his notebook, he manages to flush them away, but breaks his computer. Then he takes the woman, who lost her purse, jewels, and part of her dress, to safety.

She is Roseleen Sainberyl, 28, a resilient and spirited woman who swears vengeance. At the hospital, she tells Grant that she, a managing stockbroker, just transferred from Chicago to Goldman Sachs' NY office. In her search for a house near Washington Square, she got off at the wrong subway station. At the police station, she demands to see the captain. He has them look at the perps photo books, but neither can identify the attackers. She compliments the bracelet of the detectives' secretary, Wenifer.

Outside the police station, she reveals to Grant that Wenifer was wearing her stolen Celtic bracelet. An incredulous Grant responds: 'Then tell the detectives. This is your only lead'. She lashes out at his ivory tower naiveté: 'The police protect their own!' The conversation spins out of control until he tells her that he is done helping her and abruptly leaves.

Roseleen goes to the posh jewelry store Empress, where Wenifer alleged her boyfriend, Patrick, bought the bracelet. However, they never carried any Celtic bracelet. Then she looks for Grant at Columbia. Reluctantly, he listens to her apology of sorts as he keeps working on his thesis on the application of computer search capacity to comparative literature. Her argument that being a passive victim denies one peace of mind strikes a chord with him, but flashbacks to her screams and other dark memories make him turn down her plea for help. He walks away. Later on, he finds in his student mailbox an envelope from her with money 'as retainer for services'.

He meets her at work to return the money because he is 'a literary critic, not a detective'. She tells him to keep it to replace his computer. Arguing that writers stand up for justice, she persuades him to accompany her to the D.A.'s office. The incisive questioning by an Assistant D.A. of their allegations makes Grant realize that he made a fool of himself, while it only infuriates Roseleen. They clash again, but this time he runs away from her and smack into a column. At the hospital, they shake each other emotionally when he tells her that only robbers and would-be rapists would approach her before knowing the corrosiveness of her spirit; and she tells him that he can walk away from her once more but not from the emotionally stunted boy that he is.

While convalescing at home he agonizes over what he is, after which he decides to adopt an active role. From Wenifer he finds out that Patrick is the police station's computer wizard and lends her jewels from his father's jewelry store, Fidelis. From Patrick's father he gathers indicia of collusion between Fidelis, Empress, and the police. He finds out Roseleen's new address and at night goes there to tell her of his willingness to help her, but only hints at why he changed his mind. He takes her to Oxy, who may know who stole her bracelet. She sizes up Oxy as a swaggerer and pressures him into agreeing to help her. Outraged, Grant blurts that she flaunts her strength of character to show that she is any man's match, but that she has plucked from her heart its petals of beauty only to expose the heart of a bully. She is shocked, but bounces back.

Oxy and Roseleen visit Fence Bentley, whom Oxy unsuccessfully squeezes for information. When they visit Fence Pickering, she stuns Oxy by pretending to be his coquettish girlfriend and cajoles from Pickering a painful confession: Without telling Oxy, he has dealt with a new crew, which may have offered him the bracelet. Oxy's acknowledgment that she is 'a tough cookie' makes her wonder how she can be perceived as a macho man after playing 'a weak bimbo'.

Meanwhile, Grant submits the first chapters of his dissertation and learns from the Ph.D. program secretary that a friend came asking about him. Then Mrs. Sheppard demands that he move out immediately. Baffled, he sees Roseleen. She proposes that if he cleans her attic, he can move in and use her high-end computer. He accepts. While eating in her dining room, she tells him that she grew up in her father's large farm and has four older brothers who…boom! A projectile has crashed the window: It is a brick wrapped in a rag of the dress that she was wearing the night of the attack! After he calms down, they draw implications: Only the police could have given her attackers her new address; and the 'friend' asking about him and Mrs. Sheppard kicking him out of his apartment are connected to the attack…and to his investigation of the fence ring! Afraid, Grant decides not to move in. After going to the housing office, he sees his doctoral adviser, who blasts him for work so shoddy that he will seek his expulsion. When Grant opens his dissertation file, it flashes this: "Butt off or you end up garbled like your chapters".

It backfires: He tells Roseleen that he wants to fight for his doctorate. He stays over and has a terrifying nightmare after which he reveals to her the source of his fears and love of literature. Next day she visits Pickering and using a program written by Grant pulls off a scam that allows her to copy his computer's content. At home, Grant searches the copy for files linking the fences to the police…but all are encrypted! While he is uploading them to Columbia University's powerful mainframe to decode them there, Bentley, Pickering, and the police Captain show up leading Mini and his crew by their bloody noses as well as a badly beaten Oxy!

A psychological battle ensues. It reveals the way Pickering discovered that Patrick, disregarding the 'semper fidelis' motto of these ex-marines, was at the root of the bracelet affair; the role of Mini and his crew; and Mini's true relationship with Oxy, whom the fences have duped all along. Roseleen realizes that the fences have come to eliminate them as liabilities to their operation. She convinces Oxy, Mini, and his crew that they can only save their skins and even solve their identity crisis by feigning submission to exploit the fences' overconfidence and defeat them. As for Grant, he tricks the Captain in the attic as he overcomes his own childhood fears.

Grant goes with the others to Columbia and pulls off a daring stunt to prevent Patrick from erasing the copy of the stolen files that are being decoded on the mainframe. With these files, he proves that he wrote an excellent work and Roseleen provides the D.A. with evidence of police corruption. After the commencement ceremony, Grant and Roseleen acknowledge how they helped each other in their change of attitude, while Oxy, Mini and his crew, who have become witnesses for the D.A., show up with a look revealing their own inner transformation.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. (718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

The Fountain of Youth

Synopsis of a novel and a movie script

At dawn, somebody sneaks into a house through a window. On his way upstairs, he takes a knife from a wall. Quietly he opens a door to a woman's bedroom to…"Little Juan! Come in!" The boy, 9, runs into her bed and tells his mother that Don Pedro, the nobleman to whom she entrusted him as a page, was invited: "We are going, but I wanted to see you again." She tells him never to forget who he is when he is among those people: A Castilian, like them. "I won't!", he promises. He leaves, for Don Pedro is headed for the wedding of Ysabela of Castile and Fernando of Aragón at a castle in northern Spain. It is 1469.

At the castle, pages Nicolás, Carlos, and Diego are friendly toward Juan until finding out that he was not born in Castile, but in León, for he is Juan Ponce de León. At the wedding, he manages to give Ysabela the knife, 'so you can defend yourself from the treacherous Moors', their century-old enemies and cause of anything negative, whether drought or flood.

It is 1493 when the former pages meet again as officers in the second voyage of Admiral of the Ocean Sea Christopher Columbus. The three friends resent having to take orders from the Foreigner, Columbus, born Italian, and 'the Page of León'. When Puerto Rico is discovered, its chief, Agűeybaná, asks these 'gods of the sea' to protect his people from the Caribs, cannibals from South America's northern coast who in dugouts raid the Caribbean basin for women, slaves, and loot. Captain Ponce de León promises to protect them. Yet, Iquena, 17, Agűeybaná's daughter, defiantly shows that she is not impressed by a promise and a trinket.

The discoverers go on to La Hispaniola -the island of Haiti and Dominican Republic-, where they find the 39 men left there in the first voyage massacred. Over the objections of Nicolás, the soldiers' commander, Columbus charges Ponce de León to find and punish the culprits. He does and becomes provincial governor of the eastern region. There lands native Mayagűez, who carries a message from Agűeybaná: 'The Caribs have invaded us! Come to our rescue and you will be rewarded in gold.' Ponce de León asks Nicolás to lend him the Crown's ship for the mission. Only too happy to send the Page of León off on a very risky mission, he agrees.

To avoid detection, Mayagűez takes Ponce de León and his reconnoiters to land in Puerto Rico through a bat-infested tunnel. They rail at having to follow the lead of an 'ignorant savage'. Mayagűez concludes that Agűeybaná and Iquena have been captured by the Caribs, who will soon hold an areito. This is a rite of passage where the Carib chief's son, Nincanaqui, will choose for abduction nubile women to serve as producers of children for his future army as well as the strongest men to produce the necessary food; and Agűeybaná's best soldiers will be eaten as a lesson for his people, forced to attend the areito, not to resist the Caribs in their future raids.

After a risky reconnoitering of the village where Agűeybaná and Iquena are being held, Ponce de León realizes that 'my 50 wheat biscuit-eating soldiers are so outnumbered by over 500 cannibals' that he must walk away from a sure defeat. Mayagűez outwits him and makes his soldiers land. "Treacherous Moor!", yells Ponce de León. He retorts, "You promised to protect us. Are the gods of the sea treacherous too?" Thus morally constrained, Ponce de León decides to attempt a rescue just as he wonders how a savage could outwit him…that's it!: Pit the superior intelligence of civilized men against the inferior intelligence of savage Caribs.

The night of the areito, Ponce de León hurls bats with wings stretched out by sticks toward the hut where Iquena is being held; the bats flap convulsively and scare away the guards. He gives her a brass whistle for her to blow when the abduction candidates have arrived at the areito plaza and thereby signal to him that his rescue attempt can begin. The areito is a danced poem about the triumph of Carib life over the birth-mating-death cycle. It is accompanied by music played on primitive instruments. Iquena defiantly forces Nincanaqui to dance to her steps. In the light of torches and a bonfire, the whistle around her neck sparkles, so Nincanaqui takes it from her and puts it on himself. When Agűeybaná's best soldiers have been brought to be sacrificed, Iquena daringly warns Nincanaqui that if he disrespectfully breathes into her amulet and disturbs her ancestors' souls, who live inside it, they will kill him. "Me afraid!," he shouts, "your amulet is but a shack for scared rats to hide in", and he blows it. Ponce de León hears the whistle and his ingenious attack begins: Crossbowmen shoot darts with gunpowder wrapped around their heads into the torches and bonfire, thus causing explosions and preying on Carib's ignorance and prejudices. Defeated, the cannibals are expelled from the island to a likely death at sea.

Ponce de León receives his golden reward and the invitation to stay on the island. He brings about economic development, but also diseases that decimate the natives. Searching for a cure, Iquena finds an old man that escaped the Caribs' enslavement after learning firsthand about the Fountain of Youth. Ponce de León listens to his story and deduces where the Fountain must be located. He decides to search for it because it may have, not a magical effect, but medicinal mineral water, whose discovery can earn him what he craves most: acceptance as a Castilian. He fits ships with the help of 'savages', natives whom he deems to be just tagging along. At the farewell party, Iquena chastises him, for while he and his soldiers do not eat her people's flesh, they prey on their labor and disrespect their persons. He replied, "We are Castilians, civilized and superior: Only we are persons."

After being mistaken for a Carib ghost, Iquena is discovered as a stowaway in a coconut powder sac. 'I want to prove that we can do anything the Castilians do', she says. She makes Ponce de León tell her why he is not accepted as a Castilian. The natives mistake a hurricane for the vengeance of the Caribs who died at sea and infect the Spaniards with their fear. Where the ships land is arid and has no mountains from which the Fountain could spring as fountains do in Puerto Rico. But Ponce de León finds a depression embroidered with flowers. He names the land Florida. To steer away from the hurricane, he coasts south, but finds no mountains.

To persuade him to land again, Iquena argues that in dry riverbeds gold is easier to find. So he takes his men ashore. Under a scorching sun, they are disheartened at finding no gold, just another depression in…boom! A water jet shoots up from the ground! They frolic like kids…as they are watched. They bring their water barreling materials to the beach to…horrible screams! A surprise attack by Calusa Indians forces the men to run into the sea. Many are saved by Iquena ordering that coconuts, which float, be roped and swung to the water so that the men can pull themselves or be pulled to the ship. At night, the Calusa use that invention to reach and attack the ships. Iquena, as a coconut powder ghost, scares them away, but their chief is caught.

During a summary trial, Ponce de León realizes that hurricane rain flowed underground building pressure until it welled up through the depression's thin topsoil layer. 'There's no Fountain of Youth!' Iquena pleads for the Indian chief's life, asking Ponce de León whether he is a civilized person just because of the accident of his birthplace or a good person who can understand why others defend their land just as Spaniards did against the Moors. He releases the chief and leaves Florida in love with Iquena to search for the true Fountain of Youth: empathetic respect for others based on the commonality of needs and aspirations and prevents deadly enmity.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.
Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. (718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Punting on The Digital River

Storytelling A Proposal for Developing and Marketing Areas of Academic Excellence

"Did you bring it?"

"Yes, I did."

"How do you know? Not good enough. Go on, check it!"

"I had Hannah make us so many copies of it that Customs officers will think we are bringing merchandise for a store."

"We? Have you…"

"Of course I have. There are copies of it in each of your suitcases and…

"But what if they get lost?! That's not good enough! You should have…"

"I did! I put copies of it in each of your handbags and mine. Relax, will you?! You are going to get there so stressed out you won't be able to appear in command of yourself, let alone of the project."

"You know how much is riding on it. If we don't make a very good first impression, we will never get a second chance to attract their attention. Those who have made an investment by also travelling to New York to attend this event will feel disappointed and be lost forever."

"If we lose them it won't be because we didn't bring it since it is impossible not to…"

"Wait a moment! What are you saying there?! That other things can go wrong too? Is that your way of getting me to…"

"You know that in such a high tech project many things can go wrong, don't you?"

"Well, yes, I suppose so. But did you have to say it?! You really know how to put your boss at ease, don't you? Now you only have to whisper it in my ears every five minutes while I wrestle on the plane with Murphy to disprove his law that what can go wrong will."

"No, you won't 'cause you'll be knocked out, fast asleep for the first time in the last three months, without eating as if you were on a crash diet to get ready for the summer balls. And it shows, for you look rather a pitiful mess that…"

"That too! You little foul-mouthed ingrate tactless sadistic…

"I have booked us in a van, with a recliner for you, from Cambridge to London and in British Airways first class from Heathrow to New York. From the moment, we leave Hughes Hall, I will start stuffing you with some decent food. That junk on which we have survived lately while supervising the techno geeks of our new Learning Resources Centre and trying to rein in those idea-geysering promoters in New York is deadly. I'll make sure you pass out even if I have to force-feed you and hook you up to an IV to pump you full of highly relaxing and delectable liquors."

"If that could only get me to unwind! I need it. Sometimes you do have good ideas."

"Me!? Always!"

"Well, with relative frequency."

"I hope you choke on the food! Then I'll write your epitaph: 'Here lies the meanest of Presidents the University of Cambridge ever had in its 800 years of history: Sarah Squire".

"Don't you forget to add: 'for having beheaded the most insufferable and indispensable Head of Development and Alumni Relations ever: Annemarie Young".

Her riposte did not come back in the same tit for tat rhythm of their exchange of retorts up to now. There was a pause that weighed heavily on both of them as if they had simultaneously realized the only comment that could come next. They had worked so closely for so many hours for so many months on this project that they had come to learn the thought patterns of each other. Now they often communicated by just looking at each with their eyes closed. It was telepathy by empathy. But she voiced it to release their shared tension.

"If you don't, those in New York will cause the separation of us as the head of this college if we fail to deliver on all our hype about the first reunion of the Hughes Hall Alumni Society in America."

"Oh, AnnY! Let's eat and drink while we still have a head."

They looked at each other full of apprehension and waited in heavy silence for the van to arrive.

****

They had gambled their careers on this event that the Society promoters in New York had come up with within the broad parameters established by Hughes Hall. It was aimed at highly educated, and by the same token critical and demanding, alumni, many of whom had climbed the hierarchy of the education system from teachers to become school principals, school district supervisors, education chancellors, even presidents of some prestigious American colleges and universities. Moreover, as a result of Hughes Hall's enlightened decision made some decades earlier to diversify its student body, there were among the alumni also lawyers, and doctors, and scholars, even engineers, programmers, technicians, and business people precisely in the key areas of computers and their networks.

As proposed by the New York promoters, the purpose of the meeting was not merely to lure these busy, career-oriented people into becoming members of yet another social club and making donations to their alma mater. It was to win them over for a very innovative, ambitious, and technologically complex business venture that would make Hughes Hall the indisputable leader in the field of life-long education and multidisciplinary problem-solving through the application of cutting-edge computer and digital technology to the online interaction in real time of massively multiple geographically widely distributed users in the real world and real-like worlds.

To win the alumni's support, the event had to catch their imagination. To begin with, it had to display creative thinking that elicited respect and trust by demonstrating the technological feasibility of the business venture, thereby showing that it had been conceived by people with their feet solidly anchored in the ground but with their eyes turned to the sky. If the event succeeded in astonishing the alumni, they might not only invest in the development of the venture and use its products, but also become its spokespeople, recommending and even selling its products to their own institutions and their associations. In the process, those who had envisioned and pushed it through might even make a tidy sum of money for themselves. To attain these results, the event had to appeal to something more intangible than the alumni's logical minds and deeper than their imagination; something uncontrollable, viscerally impulsive had to be touched: their emotions. No wonder those of President Squire and her feisty Assistant Annemarie were stretched to the limit.

****

The President and her Assistant were aware that during their trip to London and the transatlantic flight they could do nothing else to ensure the success of the event except to use that time to get some rest so that they could appear fresh and relaxed as its hosts. But the current circumstances were not those that they had planned for.

Their plan had been to leave England a couple of days earlier in order to recover from jet lag and, as it were, run from New York a full dress rehearsal of the presentation, that is, the technical part of the event. However, that had proved impossible. They had to stay at Learning Resource Centre of Hughes Hall until the very last minute to ensure the interface between the technicians there and the promoters in New York. Hardware bugs and incompatibilities of software had kept glitching the presentation up to a couple of days earlier. To a great extent it was the fault of those in New York, for no sooner had a glitch been fixed, they had come up with yet another enticing feature, another detail, the kind of subliminal touch that turns an excellent presentation into an amazing experience…until President Squire had had to put her foot down to crush the pipeline that carried the seemingly irrepressible flow of innovative ideas.

From then on, the promoters in New York could not communicate directly with the technicians of the Centre. All communications between them had to go through her and Annemarie. They filtered out everything that was not intended to ensure that the presentation as conceived up to then would work without any more problems. They had been able to take on that relay and editing function of technical matters between the two teams because since the early discussions of the presentation they had become fascinated with its potential and had immersed themselves in it down to its bits and bytes, so to speak. In the process, they had become quite technologically savvy. Nevertheless, all the expertise that they had forced themselves to acquire would not save the presentation during its roll out at the event, for they would not be at the control consoles. Rather, they would be first on the floor, welcoming the guests, and then the President would climb on the stage, acting as mistress of ceremonies, with Annemarie behind the backdrop giving everybody else their cues to flick switches; after which they would mingle again with the alumni to get their impressions.

Due to the unplanned circumstances, the event would take place that very same night, less than half a day after their arrival in New York. At Heathrow, they were whisked into the VIP lounge of British Airways. However, unbeknown to them, their trip stopped there as if their flight had crashed at takeoff: A sudden storm over the Atlantic, another freak manifestation of global warming, had caused a delay of all flights to and from North America. Would those to the United States be cancelled? That was anybody's guess. Of late, similar violent meteorological phenomena occurred out of the blue and could stop just as abruptly. It had caused a world record:

a foot of rain in 19 minutes! And just as suddenly it could trigger its counterpart among humans: An explosion of irrational anger among high-strung VIPassangers with all sorts of pressing commitments, who would not understand that even mighty BA could not control the weather and its proud pilots, heirs to the bravery of those who fought the mad fury of the Nazi airplanes during the Blitz of London, could not take on the murderous winds of a disturbed atmosphere. Hence, those VIPs would remain stuck in the lounge, fretting uselessly until they would fall one after the other victim of heart attacks, ulcer-perforated stomachs, and epileptic convulsions due to extreme anxiety.

So instead of waiting until they were managing an intensive care unit, the BA managers of the VIP lounge opted for a more radical solution…What? What are you saying? To bring in Jack the Ripper and turn the lounge into a morgue? No, of course not! They brought in a specialist, one that could have been a top hit man for the mafia if his expertise had not been to shoot a barrage of hit songs with the weapons of choice of a disc jockey and the intention to kill the minds of VIPs worrying about missed appointments and to rough up their bodies with his shameless jokes in cockney accent that left their mating instincts tender to the touch of any suggestion.

Pretending to have on-screen access to BA's roster of its VIP lounge members, to their passport photos, and to the manifest of those there awaiting embarkation, the specialist singled out some individuals with a commanding presence and attributed to them top credentials, such as high-priced executives, stellar sale representatives, and top brass of Scotland Yard, and asked them to help him part the lounge into studs and 'maries'. After everybody was on his or her side, he picked out the bossiest and most successful-looking woman, made up her description as a top scouting executive for an American premier fashion model company and, alleging privacy concerns, called her Maggie One. He asked her to pick up and bring by the hand a handsome, full-blooded, mature stud, whom he made out to be an investment genius at Lloyds, and give him to the girl in whom she saw the potential for becoming the next top model. She chose a gorgeous brunette who was not older than 21 but way past 100% in heat. Then he asked them to dance to the tune of "Woman in Red, dancing cheek to cheek" and they not only did, they showed off! As if it had been the opening dance at the royal gala for the wedding of money and beauty. The studs cheered them on with congratulatory exuberance, for they all wanted to prolong that moment in which they too felt what it would be like to win a trophy wife. And the 'maries' applauded with delirious jealousy, rooting for the young girl in her prime they wished they had been or could still be: beautiful, famous, and desired.

At the end of the dance, the specialist had a prize for Maggie and the princely couple: They each got a tray with four shots of alcoholic mixes that he described as exotic aphrodisiacs from remote parts of the world. They could drink any they wanted and then offer the other three shots to others: Maggie to the studs or maries that she wanted to be top models; as to the couple, the prince to the princesses and the princess to the princes that each wanted to pick out his or her successors. If the person offered a shot drank one, he or she could choose his or her dancing partner.

As Maggie and the princely couple each chose a shot and then went about offering the others, the specialist stated each of the shots' names purportedly in their respective native language pronounced with hilarious accent and thinly veiled meaning in English, such as the "Khandyvoovs" and the "Ol-ueis Jornie", that he made his audience repeat. He had them convulsing with laughter at those names and clapping their hands in a frenzy every time a model, heir, or heiress downed a shot and went across the lounge in quest of his or her partner in the midst of a shouting match of those screaming the description of the person they wished they could choose and those extolling their own features that made them the right choice. It was a riot!

After that dance, the dancers were each rewarded with a tray containing 12 shots for them to offer around. While their heirs and heiresses were dancing, waiters and waitresses were circulating through the lounge with trays so that every VIP had the chance to shoot his or her empty stomach with an alcoholic mix more potent than high-octane jet fuel, for it could almost instantly burn its way to their brains and consume their worries and inhibitions. This showed at the end of that dance, when the specialist declared open season: a Sadie Hawkins, where the maries could ask studs to dance. They jumped at both the opportunity and the studs in a stampede. Thereafter everybody was daring enough to ask anybody to dance. That day President Squire danced more and with more enjoyable casualness than she had in the previous half century…No, no! That's not to date her, that's just an expression meaning a long time. As to Annemarie, a total geek that could switch to a total flirt in a nanosecond, she had at least four proposals of marriage by drunk and not so drunk studs, including a true stallion that wanted her to hop on his flight and go with him to get married in Las Vegas. She was seriously discussing with him how to do so when the announcement was made.

It startled everybody. It caused everybody to stop in their tracks and freeze. They all would have given in to hysteria or exploded into fits of anger had they realized what it really meant: That it was not known when or if their flights would depart. But they were too full of booze and too depleted of energy to think past what they actually heard: A meal would be served. The VIPs sunk to an even lower level of primal instincts, that of hunting for food, and adopted the suspended animation attitude of a pre-pouncing feline lying in wait.

A few minutes later, the doors of the lounge were opened from the outside and their quarry came into view. The unsuspecting waiters and waitresses rolled in their carts with two-compartment Styrofoam containers with transparent plastic lids and pint cartons. As the smell of sweat and fresh blood spread in the lounge, those behind the third or fourth rows of VIPs lining the quarry column sensed that there might not be any flesh left to eat by the time they got to the column and they pounced forward. That triggered a generalized rush toward the carts with the quarry. The horrified waiters and waitresses screamed at the top of their voices that there was more, that everybody would get food, that they were spilling food all over the place, which was true, for hot potatoes with melted butter and cream cheese as well as slices of roast beef and globs of custard pie were flying from corner to corner of the lounge. The calls to reason of the service personnel were to no avail, for the drunk and starving VIPs were in a grabbing frenzy. They even took the pint cartons and used them as throwing weapons, squeezing, squirting, and splashing enemies with their red and white wine. The VIPs had retrograded to the primeval stage of an all-out, no holds barred, school food war…and they were relishing it. They grabbed everything around them they could lay their hands on: food, body parts, kisses, and slaps and kicks. It was a Bacchanalia!

The specialist again was called in to do a hit on those that had disrespected BA, his boss, Berry Allarmd. He went about his job with gross ruthlessness: He iced the red-hot debauchery with "God Save the Queen", the British national anthem.

After everybody had calmed down, waiters and waitresses full of trepidation carted in more food and drinks. Since there were not enough tables for everybody to sit down at, lots of tired VIPs ignored once more the proprieties of people of their standing and simply sat on the floor and eat away…as they growled and snarled at those around them that looked at them, not to mention their food, for more than four consecutive seconds. After they had eaten up everything save the containers themselves, those still alert enough to be concerned about their appearance began to tidy up their hair by combing out globs of custard and buttery cream cheese. The others just passed out, leaning against the walls or columns of the lounge or against each other, or with careless spontaneity, they simply stretched themselves out on the floor to sleep it off. So it was that the lounge managers ended up with a kindergarten of napping pre-schoolers while avoiding an intensive care unit.

They took this for an indisputable success of managerial foresight and congratulated themselves effusively, for it was only seven hours after the flights were delayed that the violent storm cleared up and it was safe to take to the air. There was no point in waking up all of them at the same time since all the planes could not be boarded or cleared for takeoff at the same time. So all the lounge personnel pitched in to identify and tag sleeping passengers that were not awaken by the low volume of the loudspeakers announcing boarding flights. In the end, it did look a bit like a morgue. When their time came, many could not be resurrected or could not walk steadily enough, so they had to be muscled to their airplane seats: Bag handlers were called in to give a hand with this special cargo.

When their flight was called, President Squire and Annemarie dragged each other the best they could to their planes. They fell into their seats, stretched them out, and continued enjoying in their sleep the booze in their bodies and the fog in their minds. That was the best they could do, for otherwise they would have realized the full scope of their situation: It was with a nine-hour delay that their plane took off. Even if their plane flew at full speed to make up for some of the lost time, they would arrive in New York with very little time to spare. For them to have the opportunity to participate in the much needed full dress rehearsal of the event and incorporate in the presentation what they had brought, they would have to go to their hotels right away, take a quick shower and change, and rush for the venue of the event. No doubt, their situation was critical, for not only had their performance during the presentation been compromised, but also the very success of the event was in jeopardy.

****

Their flight over the Atlantic was uneventful, at least as far as President Squire and Annemarie remembered. Like everybody in first class, they ate when they were given food and slept after they had eaten it. However, upon landing they found that the situation was more than eventful, much more: It was chaotic! The sudden storm had had a ripple effect that had seriously disrupted normal patterns of departures and arrivals. As a result, the tarmac of JFK Airport was overcrowded with airplanes and their tugs as well as the additional baggage and galley loaders, janitorial vehicles, water tankers, and ground power units that had been called in to service those most unfortunate planes that had been stuck on the taxiways for hours without end until many had had to return to a terminal. Their own plane had to wait on the apron for more than an hour just to get to a pier. Despite their VIP treatment, they disembarked through an airbridge into a waiting area where they had to join the tug of war between those that had just arrived and those that had not yet been able to depart and the sheer number of all of them caused people not to know whether they were coming or going.

But nothing prepared the President and her Assistant for the scene of out of control madness in the baggage claim area. There were hundreds and hundreds and hundreds of people breathing out impatience and epithets because the number of their flights had not even been posted at the carousel where they were supposed to pick up their baggage and because those that had found their baggage had to engage almost in hand to hand combat just to open a way for themselves through the crowd. Hence, they bathed in sticky hot air heavily damp with sweat and anxiety and something else, for some people on the verge of a nervous breakdown did the unthinkable: They illegally smoked! After a wait of an hour and a half for their flight number just to be posted on any carousel, foul acrid air was clinging to their hair, to their clothes, and to their skin as if snails had crawled all over them and left them covered in their viscous, malignant slime. Utterly disgusting!

They realized that even if they got their baggage right then and there, they would not have time to go first to their hotel, rather they would have to go directly to the venue of the event. Therefore, there was no point in wasting any more time in that infectious atmosphere. But they could not possible go to the event in the wretched condition in which they were.

"We have to get cleaned up here", said President Squire.

"What are you talking about?", snapped Annemarie. "There are no showers even in the VIP lounge…if you ever wanted to go back there".

"But there are boutiques and they have at least a bathroom for their personnel. And we have money. We will improvise with it."

So they left the baggage claim area with just what they had arrived with, their carry-on handbags, and went to the shopping area. They looked for the largest boutique, the one that would carry the largest array of products. The President asked to speak with the manager. When the manager arrived, a not too friendly but businesslike woman elegantly dressed met them.

"Good evening. Did you ask for me?"

"Yes. We need to be upgraded", said the President matter of factly.

The manager opened her eyes completely baffled.

"We have no time to waste. Can you refit us?"

The manager's lower jaw dropped in disbelief, for she could not understand what these too individuals were doing in her store. They did not look like clients, but rather like the beggar and the pauper, in shockingly crumpled and dirty clothes, with their hair hanging wet as if they had not washed it in a month, and with an offensive smell about them. It was not that the manager was unfriendly; it was the she was repelled by them. And on top of that, the older one spoke nonsense. She looked at Annemarie.

The President too looked at Annemarie in consternation since she knew that she was in New York speaking English. Why could this manager not…?

"Now, look who is the total geek," said Annemarie to her. Then looking at the manager she added, "What she means is that we need to be outfitted from head to toe".

Now the President realized it. "Oh! I am so sorry. We are not computers. My mind is on a high-tech career-breaking or -making meeting tonight that we…I am the president of a British college and she is my Assistant. That storm you surely heard about turned us into this mess. We need you to let us use your bathroom to wash up and give us your undivided attention and that of your best assistants so that in less than an hour we walk out of your store looking, well, lovely! We'll pay you a 25% premium over the total of everything that we buy.

The manager smiled. It was not just a friendly smile; it was the smile triggered by a favorable business opportunity.

"The delays, of course. Look at my store, how busy it is. These are women with a lot of time on their hands until their flights are called and in the mood to relieve their tension by just buying something nice for themselves".

The President and Annemarie looked around. They had not noticed anything as they had walked into the store, so immersed were they in their own problem. But it was true: The store was full of women. Their hearts sunk.

"We can't concentrate just on you two and neglect their business. But for twice the price, you can use our bathroom and I and two of my best girls will see to it that you both are transformed in record time in two attractive business women."

The President looked at her. "Fifty percent over cost".

"Time and three quarters."

"Deal!"

"So it is!" She waved at two of the store attendants. When they arrived she told them. "Jacqui, Heather, we have less than an hour to turn these two ladies into…into ladies. Drop everything else and let's get going. Heather, you take them to our bathroom and give them everything they need to start getting washed. Jacqui, get them a set of shampoo, soap, and perfume. Then come back to help me get them a nice evening business set. Do you need make-up too?"

"No", said Annemarie, "We could bring it on board, here, in the handbags".

"OK! But leave your shoes here, for measurement. Then move it! Move it!"

And off she and the President went with Heather. Jacqui skipped in one direction and the manager darted in another. Then both got together, made a choice, and took it to the manager's private office, which was also her own dressing room. When the President and Annemarie were done in the bathroom, Heather brought them to the office. They brought with them their purses with the money and their make-up kits to match the colors to the outfits.

For President Squire, they had chosen a single-breasted indigo linen jacket with silver buttons bearing a filigree bas-relief and having violet leather cuffs and collar that allowed a pink cotton blouse to show its frills at the wrist and from the collar to the middle of the chest. Over each of the thighs of the tubular skirt and on each side of the jacket from four inches above the waist to the sides above the breasts there was embroidered a fine elongated fern leave. She wore violet leather shoes. The set gave the President a sober, powerfully elegant look.

For Annemarie, they had a sleeveless one-piece white dress with a floating pleated skirt in silk and a long sleeved buttonless jacket. When she was standing still, the pleats joined forming a smooth surface just as the two sides of the jacket joined; but when she walked on her low heel white leather shoes the pleats opened revealing along their inner edge a narrow band of a different color each: the colors of the rainbow! The movement of her arms also opened the sides of the jacket so that the top of the dress beneath became visible: A satin top in gradient blue with ascending tones toward the neck. It was as if she were walking on a rainbow that pointed to an ever-bluer sky of hope. It was exquisite!

Both of them were so excited! They were going to do their make-up there, but the manager insisted.

"You will do a better job of it if you sit at the cosmetics counter in front of a desk mirror. That tiny mirror of your blusher won't let you do justice to your outfits."

They went out to the cosmetics desk. In front of the desk mirror and with a selection of lipsticks, mascara, and eyeliners and –shadows wider than their own, they realized that theirs were not the best. So Heather and Jacqui helped them choose the best one and do their make-up under the supervision of the manager.

After they had finished, the manager insisted, "You have to come to the semicircular mirror under the best lighting."

Now they were ecstatic, for they not only would look the part; they would look, well, lovely!

"Now you have to get going or you won't be seen at all. We have taken a bit longer than planed", said the manager.

President Squire looked at her watch and almost got a panic attack, for they had spent there over an hour and a half. So she snatched Annemarie, who was still turning like a fan from side to side in front of the semi-circle mirror, and ran to the cashier. When the bill was handed down to her, she did not even get a sticker shock: $1,609. She asked that $150 be added so that she could have it in American currency. She gave a firm handshake to the manager and a lot of thanks, gave each of the attendants $20, who in turn gave her and Annemarie two large store paper bags.

"We put your stuff in the boxes of your purchases. You're ready to go. Good luck getting to your meeting in time. You'll need it to catch a taxi in front of the building."

They were still not home free! So they grabbed the shopping bags and ran out into the corridor. They had to wade through an enormous crowd of indirect victims of the storm. When they finally got to the outside of the airport building, they were aghast: The line of people waiting to take a taxi was endless! They realized that if they had to wait their turn, they would never make it to the event in time. Something had to be done and fast.

"I haven't got American dollars. Give me yours", said Annemarie.

"How can you be thinking of that now?! Anyway, I just bought you an outfit that you could never afford. Get your own money!" retorted the President rather irked.

"First, you charged it to the College expense account; and second, if you paid me what I am really worth, I could have flown you here in my private jet with a bathroom where I would have let you make yourself decent after I had finished my…"

"Don't start me with that again!" burst out the President. "I will never pay you more than I myself earn, you little self-centered, conceited, ungrateful…"

Annemarie dropped her shopping bag, hopped a few steps in front of her and turned around, fanned out her pleated skirt and looked up absorbed in her own admiration; then with languid sultriness she raised her arms above her head making and arch and coquettishly tilted her head from one side to the other like a pendulum marking time to surrender to her seduction as she pivoted on her toes the way the ballerina of a cuckoo clock does until she slid one foot back, bent the opposite knee, bowed, opened her arms, and stretching them in front of her with her palms up, moved her fingers with a give-it-to-me in and out gesture, as if she were the prima donna asking an admiring audience to keep applauding her genius.

"You little greenish pretentious flirtatious maniac!", said the President as she opened her purse and gave Annemarie her dollars. Jumping forward and snatching the money, she dashed away until she stopped in front of a good-looking young limousine driver holding a sign with the last name of the passengers that he was waiting for.

The President could not see her face, but she could see that of the driver, and his face opened up, smiled, but nodded because he could not…Annemarie grabbed one of his hands, turned around, and ran with him in tow toward the President as he dropped the sign.

Once in front of her, Annemarie said, "Aja is going to take us in record time to the place of the event".

The Indian driver nodded and parted his lips in a bashful smile. Annemarie gave him her shopping bag. "So let's go! Quick! Quick!"

He and Annemarie darted off, followed by the President carrying her shopping bag.

The limousine was nearby. Aja put the bags in the trunk and let them in the spacious rear seat. Although the drop-off and pick up area for taxis looked more like a long-term parking lot, Aja drove out of it and into the expressway with the same skillfulness and temerity of all other demolition derby NY cabbies.

On the way to the venue of the event, President Squire made a startling and horrifying realization: She had not called the team in New York since they had left Hughes Hall. So she called their number on her British cellular phone, but it just did not work in New York. Annemarie came to the rescue by cajoling her new pal Aja into lending her his.

The President called from that cellular, but the line was busy. She figured that perhaps the New York team was trying to call her hotel. She called there, but was informed that no message had been left for them. She told the concierge to deem them to have registered and not to cancel their reservations. He told her not to worry, that the news stations had broadcast reports all day long of how a capricious storm over the Atlantic had disrupted air traffic and caused the return of many flights that were already on route as well as the delay and cancellation of many others; as a consequence, there had been a bunching up in the three major airports in the Tri-State area of way more than the 1.7 million passengers that had arrived or departed on the Thanksgiving getaway Wednesday and the 3,500 flights that had taken off from or landed at them that day. The concierge agreed to arrange to have their baggage delivered to her room from the airport as soon as possible.

Shortly thereafter the limousine stopped. Aja opened the door and the President and Annemarie stepped out…to their dismay, for he had brought them to the wrong place!

"This is not a hotel! This is not a cultural center either. This is a non-descript dump!"

She was right. This was at best a third rate business street of buildings not taller than 12 stories. The place in front of which they had stopped was about the only one to have over its entrance lights, bright ones though about to go out because they were flickering; otherwise, the street was poorly lit with no light coming from almost any building window. There were no pedestrians, but if any had come here, they would have been the members of a gang of dropouts just passing through, for what could they have stolen from these seedy buildings? No doubt, this was not the place to hold the first reunion of the Hughes Hall Alumni Society in America. First impressions do count!

"How can you have missed your way? Don't you know New York?"

Aja smiled and nodded his head. Then he repeated the address and pointed to the number of the building. It was the correct number. Then he raised his hand to point to a higher place on the façade where one could barely read something:

"The Mercury Building", he read.

Annemarie ran to the door. It was opened. She went in and not even 10 seconds later she came back out running.

"There is an easel with a big sign bearing Hughes Hall's coat of arms of two owls above a lit torch and the name of the event! There is also a man behind a desk. He said that it is about to start in less than five minutes! At 9:00 sharp!"

"What?! This is it?! And they are going to start without us!? Without it!", screamed the President in disbelief.

Annemarie paid Aja; he got the shopping bags out of the trunk; and the two women walked hurriedly to the building.

"Give me the rest of the money", demanded the President.

"Rest?! It was used to get us here," snapped Annemarie.

"I gave you $110 and you paid him $70. You owe me $40."

"That's for my irresistibly charming performance."

"That's your job! You'll give it back to me later on or you can check yourself into a by-the-hour motel in this neighborhood, you little scoundrel cunning grabbing thief!"

Inside the building, under an eye-hurting flickering light, they identified themselves to a man slumped in a folding chair. He said that he was the caretaker of the building and that they should simply follow the signs on the wall leading to the basement.

"Get it!", the President ordered Annemarie.

Annemarie put her shopping bag on the floor and pulled out the big carton box of her dress. Her dirty clothes, her toiletries, and all the other belongings that she had pulled out of her handbag while in the bathroom of the store were there, but not the handbag itself! She pulled out the smaller shoebox. It was not there either! She snatched the President's shopping bag from her hand and looked into its boxes. It was the same: her dirty clothes and other belongings used in the bathroom were there but not her handbag! They did not have it!

IT! It was the DVD disc holding the latest version of the presentation with all the contents that had been added by the technical people at the Learning Resource Centre of Hughes Hall. In addition, it contained programming code after removing all the bugs. But more importantly, it had been decided that in order to eliminate some nagging incompatibilities that had not been identified, the operating system developed at the Centre would be used to run the servers in New York. This code was rather big in MB size and the efforts to download it from Cambridge to New York had proved unsuccessful because the connection always dropped at some point along the transfer. So what was it that these promoters in New York were going to use tonight?

"Can you keep these shopping bags with you?", the President asked the caretaker.

"No 'cause I aint being here all the night".

"Look how pretty we are? Well, we just couldn't help it", added Annemarie teasingly,

"that is, that we are late, got stuck at the airport. But if people see us with these shopping bags, and we are the hosts!, they'll think we got carried away shopping and forgot about them. You wouldn't want anybody to think that of us, would you?"

"Not'ing doing 'cause their coming in more late the night and I gotta show 'em where and I blink sideways and any gets the whole or just the juice of 'em bags and you yap to the boss that his sure giving me heat for 'em. And then my job? Forget'a 'bout it!"

"But listen, you can…

"Sometimes it just doesn't work, AnnY. Let's get downstairs."

"Despite your jealousy you are right this one time: Nectar works on butterflies; cocoons can't lick it."

So they ran to the basement with their shopping bags. The staircase leading to it ended in a room where a bright light flickered violently although there was no ceiling lamp. They walked to one wall with a two-pane door that was closed under the last sign of the event, which one had to look up and stare at to read because its lettering was small. They opened one pane quietly and stepped in. Before moving any further, they checked the lay of the land…and were appalled! They were at one end of a long, narrow windowless basement, an unfinished one at that, for its walls were simply covered with white plaster of Paris and had no lamps in the ceiling, which was arched. It had no platform at either end, no microphone, no curtains, no signs or pictures, just flat walls! Along the center of the room, there was a column of rotating barstools four abreast with backs and armrests; except a few stools at the back, they were all occupied by elegantly dressed people, presumably Hughes Hall alumni and their spouses or companions. But there was no bar, no tables, no food, no beverages, no nothing! A four-foot corridor extended between either side of the barstool column and the wall; on the floor of each, about a foot from the wall, ran a line of 10 inch cubic boxes, each having at its top a round convex crystal that was lit, like a headlight pointing up. The boxes were connected by an electrical coiled tube. This was a claustrophobic tunnel with its ends walled up, except for the door at the back end, and nothing to see! Yet, there was supposed to be a stage and a screen where the…

The lights went off! It was pitch black. They had not had time to identify anybody who appeared to be one of the NY promoters. After a moment of hesitation, they whispered to each other that they should go upstairs to ask the caretaker where the people responsible for this event were. They opened the door to go out…it was also pitch black! They were trapped in that tunnel. Since the journey upstairs was the sure one to stumbling in the dark and breaking their necks, and the few steps to the empty barstools was the safer one to end a disastrous day in another disaster, they held hands and cautiously inched their way toward them. They sat there and before they let go of each other's hand, they communicated through their skin, so attuned to each other they were, an inquisitive feeling: They asked each other what they were sitting for, what could possibly happen in that tunnel that led nowhere. Yet, they wondered whether after such a terribly eventful trip they should feel lucky, yes lucky because they had been hit simultaneously by one powerful realization: The promoters had taken on the responsibility of hosts of the event and had turned them into spectators. With a sense of great apprehension but also intense curiosity, they decided to sit back, relax, and watch.

****

After a few minutes in silent darkness, the sound of water was heard…tumbling in a steady flow, like from one level to a lower one in a fountain…lapping, against…more like gently caressing…a rumor of voices, hard to make them out, mixed with laughter, cries of joyful surprise, light!, blue, on the ceiling near the front end of the tunnel, the one opposite the doors, now more, on either side of…the crown of trees!, and buildings, and at the front end a river…

"The mill!"

"That's the Graduate Centre!"

Heads! The backs of them, of men and women, looking out, moving along, but not walking as more buildings under a sunny blue sky appeared on either wall that…

"Sidgwick!, my girlfriend studied there!"

A long pole, inclined, the backs of people, dressed up, black tie!, and the women, lovely!, but not the one with the pole at the back…look lower on the wall, what's that? What kind of boat is…a punt! They are punting! Look! Another old building that…

"Queens' College!, one of the Fellows came from there!"

The Backs! Down the River Cam! They are in Cambridge! On two punts!, but not students, older, a group of Watch out! Up, on the ceiling:

"The Mathematical Bridge! I almost fell from it fooling around one night of revelry!"

More buildings on the walls toward the back end of the tunnel…

"Duck!, Dr. Glasser, duck!"

Clare Bridge appeared on the ceiling and those on the punts looked in as they duck…there was a roar in the tunnel, uproar, guests jumped to their feet, many shouting:

"Honey!, that's you!"

"That's me! On the punt!"

"Henry! Henry! How did you get there?!"

"Me too! I'm there!"

Very soon, everybody on the punt was recognized by an alumnus in the tunnel. Their faces had the full range of gestures and their bodies moved with the naturalness and realism of any person on a movie or TV program.

"I sung in the choir there! That's King's College!", shouted a woman in the tunnel.

"You are going to scream in pain for losing your head if you don't get down. There comes Kings Bridge!"

Soon thereafter, the back of the tunnel became the station where the punters got off…and the scenes on the walls and the ceiling disappeared. But then the punters appeared on either wall walking toward the opposite end of the

"That's Trinity! My buddy in the Engineering Department was from there."

"Look how beautiful, Jesus College! My doctoral supervisor was the dean there!"

"I'm there now!"

"Me too!"

"Jennifer, you are in!"

As the punters disembarked and turned around, they had become other alumni in the tunnel and they were walking through Cambridge on either wall. It was hard to tell whether it was the alumni on the walls or on the rotating barstools that were talking, for the acoustics in the tunnel were perfect and there was hardly any need for microphones or loudspeakers to hear what anybody was saying.

"The Law Library"

"No, the Law Faculty is a modern building."

"Then, Sir, you are a much younger man than I am."

"That's Market Hill. We use to buy food there to cook in the residence."

"McDonald's, that was the nearest thing to mom's kitchen in Cambridge."

The punters kept walking down St. Andrew's Street and past Pembroke College until they entered a large green space, Parker's Piece. There were students throwing Frisbees near the University Arms Hotel. Tall, leafy trees appeared on the front end of the tunnel. As the punters approached them on both sides of the wall, less of the trees remained visible and more of what lay behind them came into view: the Parkside Pool. They went across Gonville Place and past the Kelsey Kerridge Sports Centre. They could see on the right Fenner's Cricket Ground and on the left…

"Hughes Hall! That's it!"

"Alice, that was my residence! Oh, my youth, my youth, it is all coming back!"

"Look how much it has changed!"

"Very modern buildings, that's for sure."

Now the punters were entering from the scenes on the walls into the front end of the tunnel, which was dominated now by the façade of the main building. Only the backs of the punters could be seen as they knocked on the door. The door opened for…

"That's me! SaSq, I'm there too," shouted Annemarie out of herself leaping from her barstool to the floor.

"Sarah! Sorry, President Squire, they are here! They arrived!"

From the interior of the lobby, a woman approached to…

"Good Lord! That is me, in this outfit!," the President could not help but exclaim.

"Me too, I am in this dress! How'd they do it?! That's super geekish!"

"Good evening, Ladies and Gentlemen! Welcome back!", said the President in the lobby. "We are delighted that you made it here once more. You have arrived just in time to have the appetizer with the others. With the presence of so many alumni like you, this will be an exceptional Summer Ball at Hughes Hall! Please do come in."

As she said that, the tunnel was plunged into darkness. Then it became bright at the back end of the tunnel and everybody rotated toward it on their barstools only to scream in amazement as the perspective had changed and from the lobby the alumni were seen entering it.

"That's me! That's me 21 years ago, when I studied there!"

"William!, you look as young as when we married in '77! How handsome were you!"

"I look young again! I'm a younger man tonight"!

What a clamor! One alumnus or alumna after the other, as he or she entered the lobby, was recognized by other alumni in the tunnel, but they looked as they did when they studied at Hughes Hall! The sheer impact of such totally unexpected and profoundly moving experience could be felt in the air. The tunnel had come alive, shaking with emotions. It had moved. It had taken the people in it back to their youth!

The alumni walked from the lobby of Hughes Hall on the back end of the tunnel to their right to go to the Common Room or to their left to enter the President's Office, which were shown on opposite walls of the tunnel. As they picked up a glass of sherry and went deeper into the Room and the Office, they moved along those walls toward the front end of the tunnel. Their emotions on the scene were only exceeded by those in the tunnel because as they mingled with people in Room and the Office they would bump into other students that had also studied in Hughes Hall at the same time as they did. They had parallel outbursts of joy goaded by very old memories exploding into reality in front of their eyes. The vibrancy of reliving those memories so vividly only continued to intensify because more and more alumni in the tunnel kept appearing in Hughes Hall and meeting old friends.

Eventually, the time came for one of the main activities of the Summer Ball: the five-course supper. So the alumni proceeded to the Dining Room and lined up behind its closed door on the front end of the tunnel. When it opened, its frame was occupied by the back of their heads, shoulders, and backs. As they entered the Room, the back of the line kept moving forward and leaving in the dark the space of the walls behind them. When the last alumni went in, the door of the Dining Room was closed behind them on the front end of the tunnel; gradually the door became darker and darker until the front end was left in the dark.

Simultaneously, the alumni were seen on the back end of the tunnel entering the Dining Room from the perspective inside it. They filed behind the long dinner table beautifully set that appeared on each wall and kept extending toward the front end; when the last one went in, the door of the Room was closed from the inside on the back end of the tunnel. The alumni sat facing the tunnel on only one side of either table and engaged in lively conversation as they reminisced the old days when…a bell ringing? What's going on? All the students stood up. Look!, on the front end of the tunnel, there appeared High Table. President Squire and several of her predecessors as well as bursars entered from either side of the front end. Once they were seated, the alumni sat down. A prayer was said thanking the Lord for this joyful occasion on which so many friends would partake of His food. Annemarie sat at the top of one of the side tables. Eerily enough, as High Table and the alumni began to be served, the tunnel too was invaded by the appetizing smell of cooked food!…as if it were not enough for the long and narrow dimensions of the tunnel and its arched ceiling to create the impression of being immersed in, and forming part of, the scene.

Another bell rang. High Table stood up as did all the alumni. After High Table had left the Dining Room on the front end of the tunnel, the Room's door on the back end opened and a view of Hughes Hall's backyard on the left and a tent on the right appeared. The alumni walked toward the door to leave the Room and the dinner tables disappeared behind the last of them, leaving the walls in the dark.

For its part, High Table on the front end of the tunnel morphed into the raised platform under the tent where a disc jockey had set up his equipment. On either wall near it, the alumni entered the tent from the perspective inside it. Soon thereafter the music started and all the alumni where dancing, drinking, and celebrating their reunion. Then the music died down and President Squire climbed the platform and put on an over-the-ear headset with voice-tube microphone.

"Dear Students and Alumni, I am pleased to announce that this year for the first time we have more participants in our Summer Ball than those that are here with us. To foster a sense of community and allow many alumni to share in our merry-making, we have been broadcasting live every aspect of this great party by means of cameras placed throughout the building, the grounds, and in this tent. As a matter of fact, some of the songs that you have been dancing to have been requested of our disc jockey by the virtual partycomers. Thanks to software in part off-the-shelf and in party developed by us, they have the ability to switch from any camera to any other and even to zoom in and out any view. Let's ask them how much they have enjoyed it."

With that, she flicked a button and on the platform, mounted behind and above her head, a horizontal band of 10 screens lit up showing 10 alumni from different parts of world that…

"Carlos, Carlos! How are you doing buddy, this is Mark!", shouted a student in the tent.

"Patricia, Pat! I'm here, Connie. You made it! I got your e-mail today."

Several of the students on the screens were seen waving back.

"Many of those online tonight," said President Squire, "graduated from Hughes Halls just last year and thanks to your communication with them you knew that they would be coming to our party tonight. Others just could not resist our invitation and have on the spur of the moment logged on. Still others would love to join us if only you called them on your cellular phones and asked them to log on and join us. If you do not have their phone numbers do not despair because we have a computer here with the phone numbers of all those students and alumni as well as teachers that listed their phone numbers when they registered on our website. And we have a surprise for you: There are 10 laptops on your left with webcams mounted on them and pointing at you and our dance floor behind you for you to communicate with them. These laptops will allow your friends to see you as you communicate with them through Instant Messaging or even Internet phone and, if they too have webcams, you will also see them. Please limit your use of any those computers to five minutes so that everybody has the opportunity to contact any of students and invite them to join our party. And I still have something else: One person that you loved so much that you elected her president of the student association last year is with us. Please welcome ever bubbly and witty Pradhi Kamaresh! She is joining us from Bangalore, India. Let's put her on the central screen above me and on loudspeaker".

"Howdie! All of you. It is so nice to see you all again. I would like you to join me in dancing. Yes, you heard me right. You can join me because I just sent your disk jockey as an attachment to an email the latest song that is having everybody dancing here in India to the point that Parliament opens everyday with the Prime Minister leading the deputies in dancing it…well, O.K., it is a suggestion, but it is a good suggestion that I will make to him next time he comes down here to have tea and biscuits with me and ask my advice on how to put an end to global warming 'cause this song is really cool. It is India's improvement on La Macarena! Just look at me dancing it and dance along. Hit it, DJ, let's dance!"

And they did and had a lot of fun!

"Next year," said the President, "we are going to run a contest during the year and have the best five songs around the world played at our Summer Ball for you to choose the best one. So you all graduating students, keep your ears open as big as dish antennas as you go back to your countries. For the winner next year there will be a prize. And for those of you that come up with a dance for the song, there will also be another prize, one of your asking! That's right, send us your suggestion of what that prize should be and will choose one…up to half of Hughes Hall!"

As the President said that, there was uproar among the students and the alumni.

"Can we have our students choreograph a dance and win a prize?", asked one of the dancers on the floor.

"Yes, yes! There is a good idea. We'll work on it during the year. Keep it coming, girls and boys. Let us have your bright ideas…and why not, even your own songs. Let it be one of the projects for your music and dance students the composition of a song and dance for Hughes Hall Summer Ball!"

The President pressed her hand to her ear and then said, "Tom, our DJ and Universal Master of All Telecommunications, is telling me that one of our alumni on the screens above me has a question. Tommy, put her through."

"Hello, guys, I am Nancy Brandon here in Houston, Texas, Hughes Hall class of 2001. I would like to know if we have our students around the world compete with each other, will Hughes Hall bring a couple of them here to your next Summer Ball to teach dancers how to dance it?"

"We are willing to consider everything that will allow us to keep helping you our alumni to be the best teachers possible, the ones that can best motivate your students to develop their full potential. So you keep sending us your suggestions and we'll put them to the consideration of…of you! That's it. That's one of the functions that you alumni can have as members of the Hughes Hall International Society for Lifelong Learning. In this vein, I invite you all to sign on tomorrow, at 3:00 p.m. Greenwich Mean Time, after we have slept off this delicious double 'punch' of wine and gin and to our dancing muscles. One of the subjects that we have on tap for discussion with our alumni that made it to this extraordinary Summer Ball is how they and we can continue learning as a global community. So we will discuss how to help your students. Wait, Tommy says that Catharine of France has a suggestion in this regard."

"Bonne soir, I am Catharine DuChamps, in Toulouse. I graduated from Hughes Hall in 1999. I remember that when I first went to Cambridge as a school kid I could have learned much more English if I had not gone with a group of French kids. We remained among ourselves and spoke French most of the time. Maybe we can use this Society to help our students to communicate with other students of English around the world. We can have them participate in the organization of the Hughes Hall's International High School Students Song and Dance Contest. Naturally, all of this will be done in English and if we use Internet phone the students can choose those that speak English best and can be brought to Hughes Hall to form the jury of the Contest."

"That's a wonderful idea, Catharine. Well, you see that once we all open the floodgates of our imagination there is an unstoppable torrent of ideas…an all because one of our students, Pradhi, had conducted exhaustive scientific research that indicated that global warming could be stopped with a cool song. That's the caliber of our students. Dance on that thought for the rest of the evening."

The music had not started when Annemarie jumped on the platform and blasted the President in a hissing whisper:

"You could have told them that thanks to my astonishing performance as Hughes Hall's thinking head we had the alumni connect to us tonight via the Internet!"

"That's you job! But I can still let them know if you give me back the $40 that you swindled out of me, you little rapacious, deceitful, narcissist brainiac!"

There was a burst of laughter from those on the dancing floor.

"The best couple ever!"

"You deserve each other!"

"Our very own Shrek and the Sassy Donkey!"

They followed up their laughter and comments with a burst of applause.

"The NY promoters overheard us!, AnnY. How could they?", an astonished President in the tunnel asked Annemarie.

"They must have had highly sensitive omnidirectional microphones outside the…flickering lights! They weren't…outside the building…They were flashes!, of digital cameras snapping photos away. Like inside, in the lobby and in the anteroom to this basement. That's how they got the faces of everybody. They must have integrated those photos from many different angles into composite figures and applied to them life-like animation software. They could also have used facial recognition software to identify the faces of every guest here tonight from the moment they stepped in front of the building. Then they morphed the faces of the characters of the presentation that they had already made. They could have morphed the whole body to make tall people look tall and fat people look fat and so on."

"Morphing! Exactly! Like they did with High Table, transforming it into the tent platform. Maybe they also used that technique to make people look young, using the students' id. card photos. That's why they were so adamant to get them. But we told them that we didn't have photos for all of them, especially those that studied many years ago before the University Library began taking photos for the students' admission cards."

"They could have used something else, SaSq: the reverse variant of facial ageing software, which was developed by law enforcement agencies to get an idea what the victims of unsolved child abduction cases would look like even many years later. But why didn't they tell us that they were doing all this?"

"I don't know. But see the result: They have impressed us by delivering more than they promised."

"That's their message: that from the pool of ideas these came from there are still many more to be expected. When they ask you to pay them what they are really worth, are you going to be as stingy as ever, SaSq? I think they deserve every penny they ask for and even a premium."

"Of course, you would think so! And I've told you not to call me SaSq!"

"You started it! You have horribly reduced my beautiful name to AnnY."

"That's to cut you to size and because I am your boss, you little impudent, ill-bred, manipulative brat!"

By now, the music had died down and the lights had gone out. The tunnel was again in silent darkness.

****

It appeared on the front end of the tunnel. It was the view of the top of a building that descended until the façade of a modern three-story building became visible from a ground perspective. As the building came into view, President Squire's voice-over could be heard and eventually the back of her head and her shoulders were seen moving from the center of the 'screen' to the building's door, followed by the backs of other men and women.

"This is our brand new Learning Resource Center", the President was heard to say. "It is the most technologically advanced of its class. Here at Hughes Hall, we made a decision to develop as our competitive advantage the application of cutting edge computer, network, and telecommunications technology to both teaching a geographically widely distributed set of clients and enabling their interactive exchange of academic experiences and knowledge in real time. The technological core of this project is that supporting massively multiplayer online role-playing games. MMORPG allows tens of thousands of players to interact in real time in highly detailed three-dimensional virtual worlds. This technology, as adapted by our programmers and technicians, will allow us to build real and imaginary scenarios to assist teachers, students, and all kinds of professionals in the learning process of any subject.

"There lies another key element of our competitive model in keeping with our policy to admit to Hughes Hall students engaged in all sorts of studies, not just those that want to become K-12 teachers. Hence, to teachers and their students we are making it possible to use to their best advantage what kids are practically born with and associate with a positive, enjoyable experience, that is, video games, animated and real movie characters, and pop culture celebrities as well as the iPods, videophones, and GPS devices associated with them. Instead of competing with the appeal of TV, the Internet, and their video games consoles, we are using them to render fun the teaching and learning of English as a first and second language, mathematics, science, and the humanities.

"Moreover, to those that have become educational system administrators, engineers, doctors, lawyers, and government officials we are making available the means of networking to exchange experiences and knowledge with substantial and immediate practical value. In other words, we are, not asking them to take time from their busy schedules to chat leisurely in a social club, but rather affording them the opportunity to leverage mutually their expertise so that they get their work done more efficiently and find together innovative solution to nagging individual or common problems. Let's see how we are planning to implement this ambitious, future-determinative, and realistic project to carve for ourselves a preeminent competitive niche on the education market through high technology."

By that time, they were in front of the Learning Centre and President Squire reached for the door. However, it opened from the perspective of Annemarie, who was inside. Both she and the President were wearing clothes other than those that they had on when they left Cambridge or bought at the airport.

"Good afternoon. I hope that you had a restful morning," she said to the adult-looking alumni that were behind the President.

"Hannah, please do come nearer," said the President as she waved in with her arm.

Another lady approached her. "I would like to introduce to you Ms. Hannah Fogg, an Alumni and Development Officer. Hannah will help us explain how the Centre is setup and what we have undertaken to accomplish through it."

"Welcome to the Learning Resource Centre!", said Hannah. "It is delightful to have you here for a tour of our facilities and even a bit more. Indeed, we have been joined online by alumni from all over the world. I trust this real and virtual tour of the Centre will be most informative and stimulating of new ideas." She was the one wearing the over-the-ear headset with voice-tube microphone and was holding a remote control.

As they moved through the central corridor of the first floor, more images of its facilities on either side appeared in front of them on either wall of the tunnel, with one half of the alumni behind the President and Hannah on the right wall and the other behind Annemarie on the left. As the groups kept moving forward, the images behind them would disappear. However, the image of a close door remained on the front end of the tunnel.

"On the first floor," said Hannah, "we have our library. It holds not only books, but also educational and professional videos on all sorts of subjects. Included in its collection is also computer software that we have developed in-house and other on which he holds institutional licenses. This software allows us to send to clients the equivalent of a browser that they install on their computers in order to connect to our servers interactively in real time and be able to switch between many views available in a single session.

"Our books are not only in print, but also to a large extent they are in digital, PDF format, because through our main University Library we are part of the Google Project for the Digitalization of World Class Libraries. This allows us to make books available in digital form to our alumni all over the world. What is more, we are part of an innovative project for developing software that will allow us to let alumni check out digital books that are not yet in the public domain. To protect intellectual property and foster intellectual creation, their text will not be editable, that is, it can neither be copied in part or in whole nor printed, except one page at a time to paper through a physical printer, just as you can print the pages of a borrowed library book in print to the extent allowed by fair use. In addition, those books will erase themselves from the borrowers' computers at the end of the check out period. A borrower will only be able to read those books the same way he can read printed books, but with the significant practical convenience that he will be able to access them from any part of the world. Moreover, while the pages of digital books of the first generation were monolithic, non-searchable photos, the text of digital books of the new generation can be searched using Boolean logic and proximity connectors. That feature facilitates research considerably. We are very excited about this project."

"Our participation in a project like this," added Annemarie, "is possible because we are at the vanguard of research in the application of the latest computer, networks, and telecommunications technologies to teaching and learning by all kinds of clients as well as collective decision-making particularly for professional clients. This is the main research in which our professors and resident scholars are engaged and on which our students write their master's and doctoral theses.

"What is more, thanks to our association with the University Department of Computing Engineering, we are training our own programmers in the specialized field of writing code for new applications that use the potential of digital technology for providing new ways of learning and teaching. What makes our program so interesting and ambitious is that we deal with learning and teaching for the benefit of not only school graders, but also university students as well as employees and officers in the corporate world and professionals too, and even retirees, whose life expectancy after retirement is ever longer. In brief, we conceive of learning as a life-long process. Although learning makes specific demands throughout its different stages, it has two constant factors, to wit, the human brain and the reality of an ever more technologically demanding world. Consequently, we have partnered with the School of Medicine's Neuron Research Program, the Department of Psychology's Program for Clinical Research into the Psychology of Learning, and the Department of Sociology's Study of the Transformation of Society Through Technology."

"In other words," explained the President further, "we are putting together a multidisciplinary program conducted by a team of experts in their fields. It aims at offering two comprehensive products: on the one hand, a curriculum for teaching our students and, on the other hand, continuing learning and problem-solving program for our alumni. Through the offering of these products to our clients, we intend to put Hughes Hall at the forefront of the field of fundamental research and practical application of the science of teaching and learning. What will be common both to the way we lead our institutional activity and to the development and marketing of our products is this: creative thinking that springs from unbound imagination assisted by technological resourcefulness. Let's go upstairs to see how this works in practice."

The group took a flight of stairs on the back end of the tunnel. The sound at the front of the tunnel of a door opening caused the guests to rotate on their barstools to face the front end, where they saw the door opening and the college officers and the alumni climbing the stairs and grouping at the entrance of the second floor. There Hannah explained to them by way of introduction that:

"On this floor, we have the computers, the servers, and the rooms where computer technicians and programmers work as well as where students gain hands-on experience in a learning by doing fashion. One of their activities produces a most visible result as well as one of the most important products of Hughes Hall, that is, its website. It incorporates the latest multimedia techniques and tests the new ones that we develop to make it not only appealing to users, but also a showcase of how multimedia can be applied to learning, whether it be in the classroom or in a corporate training room."

"We have three concrete examples of learning facilitated through multimedia," continued Annemarie. "In each of them we work in an interactive way with our clients, a broad term that encompasses our students as such, later on when they become teachers, their own students, and alumni in other fields. The first example originated with an idea from a teacher in an economic and educational underprivileged area. This is the politically correct term for a blunter description: a ghetto of blacks and immigrants, many of them illegal, where parents are mostly uneducated or functionally illiterate dropouts who put little stock on their children even attending classes every day, let alone succeeding at school, or cannot help their children with their homework even if they wanted because they would not understand what that work was all about. In their neighborhood, a flashy car for drag racing is the greatest aspiration of not only boys, but girls as well, except that girls do not get to drive the cars, they just cheer on their 'men' from the sidelines. So a teacher contacted us with a most challenging idea.

"He wanted to develop a whole course around the idea of having his class put together a marketing plan for a drag racing car shop. So he challenged his students to divide themselves into five 'business persons' teams that would compete with each other in developing a viable marketing plan that at the end of the year they would present to the owners of several car shops.

That was the outside aspect of the competition. The inside aspect was even more demanding because it challenged how students conceived of themselves and their role in the social context of their ghetto. This was the teacher's imaginative way of solving a problem: the boys did not want to have girls on their teams and girls claimed that the competition was unfair because they did not know anything about car shops. So he solved the problem: Can boys only work with their hands, having them dirty all the time with car grease or sore from clinching to the wheel of a racing car belonging to girls, who can work with their heads to become the owners of the car shop and the employer of the boys?

"The teacher was aware that this boys v. girls scenario would never have been realistic in the upscale school that he attended as a kid. But it fit perfectly the school where he worked as a teacher. His imaginative way of dealing with it had spectacularly positive results. For one thing, girls saw this as the opportunity to prove, not just to the boys, but more importantly to themselves, that they were not just objects to be displayed along with the boys' cars, but rather that they had the smarts and self-assurance to beat the boys at their own game. The teacher also made a rule: At any stage of the competition, a mixed team of boys and girls that was up to 5 percentage points behind a single sex team would win.

"The competition involved the mathematics of purchasing supplies, even the calculus applied to determine how frequently to order spare parts taking into account the cost of shipping and handling and the opportunity cost of not keeping the purchase money in the bank earning interest. It involved English grammar and composition, for students had to write letters in proper English to companies to explain to them what they were doing and the information that they wanted from them. It involved science because teams earned points by complying with environmental protection regulations on the safe disposal of used oils as well as with strict exhaust pipe gas emission regulations. To ensure such compliance, they had to determine the biodegradability of products, the increase of such degree by the use of different techniques, and the advantages of using ethanol or even electric engines. In addition, they had to keep their accounts on a spreadsheet, to balance a balance sheet, and to pay interest on borrowed money and dividends to investors. They also had to put together an attractive brochure to market their plan to the racing car shops. We have learned that on this score the girls inflicted a humiliating defeat to the boys, who had scoffed at anything that had to do with arts, such as graphic arts, as a matter for sissies. Even boys admitted that their brochures would not sell even a car wash, let alone a car customization that could cost thousands of dollars. So in the end, which team would be attracting the most clients and making a killing in business?

"Let me tell you that this account does not begin to scratch the surface of all the imaginative details that went into developing this program. Its development resulted from a collective effort that involved, not just this very imaginative teacher and our own programmers, technicians, and curriculum developers, but also all those teachers that learned about this project, followed it on our website, and contributed wonderful ideas. So much so that the project is still active and undergoing constant refinement."

"The second example," said Hannah jumping back in, "can add most valuable details to Annemarie's. The initiator was a teacher at a posh school who learned about this type of team-competition courses. In the social context of the kids at her school, there was no boys v. girls opposition. But she felt that those kids had had it just too easy in life and were not exerting themselves to develop their full potential. Spoiled as they were, they counted on living on the family wealth if they failed to go to college. Their lives were dominated by party going. So she came up with the idea of a course where teams would compete on whether a pop star should develop a name brand clothing line or a chain of nightclubs. The kids loved it! For them, spending $500 on the latest fashion and charging it to daddy's account was like going to Market Hill to purchase the fruit of the season; and bragging about going to the members' only nightclub that was 'in' at the time was like talking about the latest TV hit show. Since all had the same firsthand knowledge of what they were talking about, they had to gain a competitive edge in a different way. They were aware that they needed that edge if they were to make a winning presentation to a jury of top-notch designers, fashion show organizers, investors, and owners of night and country clubs. For these kids, not to mention for their parents, losing face in society was inconceivable.

"So it was the kids who generated an overwhelming number of ideas to make their plans stand out: One business model envisaged having no in-house designers. Instead, designers anywhere in the world would offer their creations and they would choose the best ones. Production of the designer clothing would take place in China. So the teacher had to do a lot of research to come up with obstacles for the kids: They had to propose how to determine royalties, the customs regulations applicable to importing from China, and whether to import from the new 'China', namely, Vietnam and its lower cost textile shops. They also had to develop a strict product safety assurance program, which was the way of introducing chemistry and biology into the course. It was during this process of throwing obstacles at the students that the teacher realize a fundamental element of team-competition courses: Its development calls for a storyteller that can develop a story with a beginning that sets up the scene of a quest, a middle that raises problems to attaining it, and an end that must fall within certain academic and professional standards of quality and efficiency.

"For their part, the students realized that text messaging had not equipped them to write business letters, let alone, reports. So they would pester their English teacher to correct their writings until the teacher realized that for the first time her students were interested in learning how to write. She also realized another key element of team-competition learning: Kids can be more demanding as well as more receptive to the demands of their peers than a teacher can be. A kid who is praised by their peers feels King of the Hill just as a kid that is chastised by his peers for having let them down feels that he has fallen through his social network to the abyss of eternal rejection. After all, young people lack experience to know that life is made of ups, downs, and rebounds.

"The English teacher contacted the initiator teacher to find out how they could work together. In turn, they contacted the science and math teachers, who were most receptive because by that time a phenomenon had occurred: Their students were complaining to them 'why they had to study science and math while the other students were doing fun stuff'. The teachers realized that they had laid their hands on a fundamental element of effective teaching and learning: How to motivate students to want to study and learn. Consequently, they, as a team, contacted us to help them develop a multidisciplinary course based on the principle of class teams competing with each other on a project with practical value that actually prepares students to meet the challenges of the real world."

"This brings us to the third example," said President Squire, as they reached the exit door of the second floor of the Centre. As before, this door was seen on the back end of the tunnel and these people went through that door and reappeared on the front end entering through the door to the third floor from the perspective inside that floor. Then they walked in two groups on either wall, which showed the classrooms on the third floor on either side of a central corridor. The views of the second floor kept disappearing until the back end of the tunnel showed the exit door of the third floor.

"What you see on this floor is equipment that can be used, not only in K-12 classrooms and corporate training rooms, but also in the meeting rooms of professionals making presentations or engaged in a collective decision-making process. Look at this digital blackboard. The teacher or presenter writes on it using a digital stylus just as the students or meeting participants can type on their laptops or write on their Personal Digital Assistants, such as Blackberries, and their writings, processed if need be through handwriting recognition software, appear on the blackboard, to which their devices are connected wirelessly. This eliminates the need for graphics tablets and widens participation.

"The contents that appear on the blackboard and is reproduced on the laptops and PDAs, are just as sophisticated: It can be a plant for producing ethanol from corn as compared with one using sugar cane; a complex diagram of the journey of a scarf from the hands of a seamstress in China to the hands of a model preparing in her dressing room to appear on the catwalk; or a small toy part that a toddler has swallowed and appears making its way through a three-dimensional view of his body, where the lead of its paint is seen wrecking havoc over time on his neurotransmitters and causing genetic disorders inside a chromosome. This type of contents is what we help teachers develop just as we also help them develop the narrative of the competition, that is, an engaging story that makes them want to engage in a quest."

"Likewise, we help our alumni, whether they are school system administrators or professionals, get the ideas that they have had as individuals ready for presentation to a group and help groups make decisions. Take for example this list of suggestions for improvement that a school chancellor and his board of 10 school district supervisors have to discuss, quantify, prioritize, and provide with a budge to the local authority or city council.

1. student/teacher ratio
2. tardy and absent students
3. after school detention and remedial teaching
4. one, two, or three school meals
5. social services provided at the school
6. after school sports & performing arts courses
7. providing books and laptops to students
8. repairing and upgrading school facilities
9. parents pot luck dinners at school
10. conversion of a failing, to a charter, school

"For each of these suggestions they have to provide a cost/benefit analysis and incorporate all of them in a multiyear budget. If we touch with our stylus the number of any suggestion, the outline of its analysis drops down and if it contains figures, we can present it in graphical form, like a pie or line chart. Then we can collect only some elements of each suggestion to produce an overall view. We can also depict the process of making a decision through the application of game theory.

"But we do not do everything by any means. Competition with an attractive prize at the end is also a powerful stimulant to get our alumni to do and share their best ideas and results with everybody else. Actually, each of the entries that you see on the blackboard list is an idea that a teacher came up with, developed in considerable detail and to high professional standards, and turned into a course that she applied in her classroom or proposed for application by others and therefor made it available by its posting on our website. During the coming year, teachers will be able both to assess these courses in the abstract the way they would grade a paper and to apply them to real problems that they are facing in their classrooms. They will vote on them and the finalists will be invited by Hughes Hall to present their ideas here at an International Education Symposium.

"This Symposium will be broadcast over the Internet in an interactive mode. Each presenter of a finalist course will be required to answer questions posed by participants in the audience, those online anywhere in the world, and by members of a jury of experts. All of them will cast a composite vote that will choose the winner. The winners will have the option of participating free of charge in a four week summer seminar; a three month intensive master's degree program; conduct post graduate research as a Fellow for an academic year; or if they cannot spend time away from their jobs or family, they can opt for a cash prize paid out of the receipts of project entry and Symposium fees as well as sponsors. The latter will be, for example, manufacturers of hard- and software that will present their products at the Symposium."

"Is it here where we come in?", asked one of the alumni.

"Precisely," replied President Squire. "During the next three weeks, we will familiarize you with every aspect of the Learning Resource Centre, in general, and those aspects that you have chosen as most relevant to your profession, in particular. Then you will go back to your countries and places of employment where you will be able to offer our products and services to your students, your colleagues, and your superiors or local authorities. Where your offering of our products and services generates a profit for us, it also generates a commission for you. It is a win-win situation."

"President, we have a question from a teacher in Miami, Florida," said Hannah.

"Very well, put the teacher through."

"Do you consider this kind of alumni society a product too?"

"What do you mean?"

"Well, traditionally alumni societies are simply social clubs that allow members to network among themselves and be hit by the alma matter with requests for donations. I see that you have taken a different approach. Yours is more of a mutual assistance professional association where members can find practical help for their professional advancement and can even join as a business venture. All this interactive software that you are developing to connect in real time alumni, not to mention their students, strikes me as highly sophisticated and expensive. I have the impression that other colleges and universities here in the U.S. could be interested in licensing it."

An alumnus on the floor cut in, "You are on to something there. I guess that the extent of that interest could be tested if we made a presentation at the Conference of American Colleges and Universities and similar professional gatherings.

Another added, "You never have closer friends than those that you make as a kid in grade schools. I would say that graduating high school classes could be interested in keeping in touch through your program and even participating over the Internet in that year's senior prom or your type of Summer Ball."

"That is likely to be nothing," said another, "compared to the interest of the high school itself, which would like to maintain its alumni involved in the continued development of the school. How many times have you thought, 'If I could only get a hold of this or that student and get them to come back and talk to my students or support this or that project'. But that is difficult to pull off when you drop on them out of the blue 10, 15, 20 years later and you find out that their memories are attached to the people that were there at the time, but those people are all gone and the school has become to the alumni merely a brick and mortar building. You need to cultivate their attachment to the school from the moment they leave it upon graduation."

"It is quite apparent," said the President, "that you do not lack for ideas. We are open to all of them and during the next few weeks, we will have the opportunity to hear them all and use our own decision-making model to determine their relative coefficient of feasibility and likely effectiveness in terms of our objectives. With that I would like to propose an idea that I think you all will agree is the best possible one right now: Let's have another glass of sherry and go for another delicious meal!"

Everybody applauded their assent. Then President Squire, Annemarie, and Hannah led the way to the exit door of the third floor, which was on the back end of the tunnel, through which all of them disappeared as the views of the third floor of the Learning Resource Centre progressively disappeared too. Eventually the tunnel became engulfed by silent darkness…and once more, it was invaded by a most irresistible smell of cooked food. Then the tunnel became lit and the doors at the back of the tunnel were open, allowing the view of the carts of a catering service that gave off all sorts of appetizing smells. The audience burst into applause and rather quickly headed to the back to partake in the buffet. As they did, they spotted President Squire and Annemarie…

"Look, Martin!, they were in the movie dressed like that!", a comment echoed by others.

"Whom do we talk to now?"

"I heard they are the back."

"There, where the bunch of people are."

"That's why this line is not moving. Everybody is thanking them for this wonderful evening."

"They really put on a show of unsurpassed imagination in the perfect locale."

"Good evening. I take it you are President Squire."

"Indeed, I am"

"My name is Dr. Michael Hermes and this is my wife Emily."

"How do you, Dr. Hermes, Mrs. Hermes," replied the President. "I am glad that you made it. This is my Assistant, Annemarie Young."

"Nice to meet you."

"I would like to let you both know that you and those that created this program made me cry tonight. For a moment I felt young again and I believed that my future was all in front of me, as I did when I studied at Hughes Hall more than forty years ago, when I was convinced that everything I thought I could also realize. You and your people think so. I would like to meet them?

"So would we," said the President, "You cannot imagine how many questions we have for them."

"We will look for them and bring them here to meet you all," added Annemarie.

Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

Ph.D., University of Cambridge, England
M.B.A., University of Michigan Business School
D.E.A., La Sorbonne, Paris

2167 Bruckner Blvd., Bronx, NY 10472-6500
tel. (718)827-9521; follow @DrCorderoEsq
Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org
Dr.Richard.Cordero.Esq@gmail.com

Behind the Black Robe Wall

Scenes from a play about those who have power to get away with anything and can muster the imagination to justify everything. They enjoy that power because there is nobody to require them to do anything they do not want to do; and what they are required to do, they are allowed to leave undone. They can do and not do it all because they have a most effective means to achieve it: Self-assured unaccountability.

INT. CHAMBERS OF THE CHIEF JUDGE OF A FEDERAL COURT OF APPEALS - NIGHT

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
Hi, Gaby! Did you want to see me?

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
Yes, Bob, come in. Close the door.

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
What's up?

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
Sit. How is your prima donna case coming along?

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
Have you been following it?

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
Like everybody else in the City. It is showtime: Godfather on trial!

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
I'm grateful it was assigned to me, Gaby.

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
You bet, old boy. I saw you talking to his lawyer.

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
That was a good call to let cameras in. All TV newscasts open with it.

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
Not even Judge Judy gets as much exposure. But, I meant in the parking lot.

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
What what do you mean? Was he there?

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
Wasn't that like an ex-parte contact?

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
Oh, you mean last night. Yes, we crossed path briefly.

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
That late at night? By that time, your court and mine had been closed for hours.

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
You are right. He said he had come to drop some papers in the after-hours box.

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
It looked more as if he was filing it with you. His car pulled in right next to yours and…

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
What a coincidence! He saw me there when I…

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
He gave you an envelope and climbed right back in his car and drove a…

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
Gaby, what's going on? What's all this about?

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
You tell me. Since when are filing papers folded into a regular envelope, not even slid into a manila one? Do you always grin from ear to ear when opposing counsel files with…

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
I…it was dark, you couldn't have seen his my face nobody was round he's jo joker…

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
Easy, BobbySon. No need to come unglued. I was the one in the dark, not you…in the corner, another fight with Angie on the cellular, got distracted and out of the elevator on the wrong parking floor, where neither you nor I, none of us is supposed to park there…security, the marshals, you know. After she hung up on me, I realized I had lost my way…in more than one sense. Have you too, Bobby? It wasn't a coincidence. You planned to meet him there.

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
It is not what you think, Gaby. It was nothing.

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
I thought you said it was a filing. How much did that mobster lawyer file with you?

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
Gaby! What are you saying there?!

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
Tell me! You can talk to me. We've known each other for more than 15 years. You can talk to me.…Come on!…Gosh, Bob, spit it out!!…Now!!!

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON

Fifty.

Chief Circuit Judge Gabrielli

Fifty grand!? Is that all this is worth to him?! He could get life, his third strike.

District Judge Jamieson

Not the case. A ruling, pittance of evidence, toss it.

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI

I see. You're going to cash in on one slice at a time until there is no salami stick to beat him up with. For havens sake, Bob, you can't do that.

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON

Gaby, please, it is no big deal. Not like Gambino Senior killed anybody, at least not in this case. It's only dealing. A bunch of junkies! Why should we care for them when they don't care for themselves?

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI

They are hooked! And they hook others. What about all the mischief they cause to buy ano…But that's not the point and you know it, Bob! You just can't do that!

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON

You're not the only one with problems at home, you hear me! I've got two boys in college and it is killing me. Ivy League. Good boys, mine! $44K…

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI

For two in college it is not…

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON

What are you talking about?! For each! That's tuition alone. Plus room and board, not in a dinky crowded dormitory…I have a name to maintain. They live in a hotel-like residence, for people of our standing…and security too, my boys. And a car for each. And I fly them in every time I can, need to see them. The phone bill is…Those casebooks! Even $130 each! Those authors are the real extortionists. Gaby, please, I can hardly make ends meet! It is not as if I wanted to get rich! I just need…

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI

You're making over $174,000 a year! and with all your speeches, your university course and…But that's not the point either. You just can't rationalize anything you want. You just can't do that!

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
This one time, Gaby, give it to me this one time.

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
It is never once. You too get hooked. They hook you. Then everything goes. Soon it…

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
No, no! Just for them, my boys, while in college.

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
It is never for one purpose. If more can be had, new 'needs' appear. I know! Angie does it. What I make with one hand she gives away with both to a new charity. She's punishing me! That it is not clean! Mother Theresa the activist. Her causes as surrogate children. With my money! And I can't do anything

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
She should know better. She's a lawyer too. Anyway, she does well with your money. And I do too. Just for my boys. They are good kids. You know them.

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
I do. Very fine young men that…

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
Plan to go to law school, both, in my footsteps! I can't disappoint them!

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
That can take years!

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
Now you've got it! I have to look ahead. I can't stomach the thought that one day they won't have enough for…Please, Gaby, give me this, for my boys. My boys! If you had kids, wouldn't you…

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
I wish! She couldn't. You put me in a bind. This is wrong. My sources say that reporter, Woodstein, is thinking to publish it on the Internet if he has to…

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
Dead on arrival! We can squash him!, can't mess with all of us. None of us can afford to let his dirt against any of us stick. We all have our peccadilloes, everything goes behind those no-reason summary orders, deals, at the club, and away, at the judicial junkets, everything really goes there!

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
Don't you dare threaten me, you son of a…!

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
Gaby, I would never…you are my boys' godfather…but you are my boys' godfather.

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
So I owe them! I must cut deals with all the Mafiosi that stand before us so I can keep my godchildren in a nice hotel. You are really a piece of work!

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
Gaby, I didn't mean it like that. Just that we are in the same boat and…

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
Stop it, Bob! Just stop it! I got the drift.

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
Thank you! Thank you, Gaby. For my boys, thank you!

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
But never in civil cases, where a party can get hurt…

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
Unless both wealthy, then they won't mind a few…

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
No! I say no! Just the prosecution may lose. That's what I give you! And never in blood crimes.

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
Yes, Chief, I promise. You won't regret it. Thank you. Why don't you come for dinner, with Angie, and you see my boys. They'll be home for the long weekend. Then you can quiz them again, as you used to. You'll see they are worthy it.

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
I'll try. I'll tell her…Hey, I have an idea. Come home for poker, I call the gang. And you see her, hear her preach about another pro bono activity. You too would want to get rid of her. But she won't give me a divorce. My wagon has too much gravy. I hate…

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
Gaby, Gaby, calm down! Take it easy. No need to let her righteousness get you. Sure, I'll go to your home, for you. But I am a disaster at poker.

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
All the better for me! You're flush, you can afford it.

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON
Yes, Sir! I can!…But you, well, what you need…He said that, the lawyer, invited me to a party, private, with some girls for fun. For you that's what…you can come along. He said gentlemen's honor.

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI

He said that?! Gosh, it has been so long! And longer since it meant anything. All this pressure at home, at work. We need it. But it can't be at his place. Uhm, Nicky has a cottage by the lake. He can prepare it nicely. We could go there, say, to fish.

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON

The gang boys need it too. Even she. She told me how she skimps on data on the mandatory judicial financial disclosure reports. They are public and yet. The reviewers don't care. Everybody does it.

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI

But if Woodstein got proof of hidden assets! That's what he is sniffing for…Have we all lost our way? Peccadilloes? We sent people to jail for…

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON

So what! His paper won't publish it. And take all of us on? Life tenure! We have it. What we don't have is a salary three, five, ten times as much in private practice. Public service? The people get us, the best and the brightest, but pay us…confiscatory. That's it. A taking without compensation.

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI

Skip it, Gaby. You sound like that Mafioso lawyer. You need to cut down on the time you spend with…He is not going to be there, is he?

DISTRICT JUDGE JAMIESON

Of course not! Just us. He'll only arrange it. And the girls very discreet or they end up with the fish in the Hudson River. Gambino Father too or he ends up in Sing Sing with his head in his hands courtesy of the defense lawyers in our debt. They know people inside that for a TV in their cells or more phone time will do it. Gaby, it is going to be alright.

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI

I hope so. A new experience! meaningful…and more frequent. Waiting for those judicial junkets…My clerk thinks everybody in the City is looking at her. I'll talk to Nicky. He can't write even a Christmas card but he is superconnected. Lots of people owe him. That's how he got the cottage. And he will owe me. I'm glad we were able to resolve that other matter satisfactorily first.

INT. THE CHAMBERS OF THE CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE – DAY

The Chief is on the phone.

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
Hey Nicky, how are you, old boy!?

DISTRICT JUDGE NICKY
Gaby! How's'it going?

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
Real good. I wanted to let you know again how much I enjoyed that last judicial junket.

DISTRICT JUDGE NICKY
Me too. I learned a lot about fly fishing.

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
Without doubt they are very educational. Listen, my assistant got the photos that she took of me…of us at the junket. I think Millie will like them too.

DISTRICT JUDGE NICKY
You'r too thoughtful! My wife is making the album for all the gang this time and she's driving me crazy 'cause she don't want to miss no photo.

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
I'll send them to you right away by courier. By the way, I found this thing about you that has been lying on my desk for months, you know…What's the story about it?

DISTRICT JUDGE NICKY
You mean the misconduct complaint? Well, so long ago. I think one of the clerks told me that one of those had come in. Gaby, there is not'ing to it. You know how things go. These little pro se people come into your court out of their wits after being hit with a suit or revved up by a petty offense they just whipped up from a teapot into a tempest at law. Their nervous, misunderstand everything you say, exaggerate everything you do and don't understand not'ing 'bout how things are done in the local practice of a real courtroom.

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI
Nicky, you don't have to tell me. I remember how things were when I was in district. Today I just give them a summary order: Affirmed! Affirmed! Affirmed! and move on.

DISTRICT JUDGE NICKY
How I envy you!, Gaby. I try as much I can to get rid of these pesky mudslingers to write with my clerk for the high profile cases with pedigree names. Anyway, you can't shortchange the honchos with big law firms. They have the means to go up to you and make you look like a hack…

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI

and you end up calling in your IOUs with us to fix it! Nicky, Nicky! I know the drill. Well, I'm so glad we have discussed this matter fully. Sorry I even mentioned it. But don't you sweat it. I'll give this complaint the good shot. I have a form for them too: Dismissed! Dismissed! Dismissed!

DISTRICT JUDGE NICKY

You do that and thank you so much, I really appreciate what you'r doing for me with those photos. Send them right'a way. I think you gotta one when Harry was startled awake by his first fish ever…and fell from the boat into the lake! We'r gonna be teasing him until we meet you guys at the circuit conference!

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI

You are such a jerk!, Nicky. You know that? A friend doesn't do that to a friend…alone. I'll help you! I'll write a note on the back of that photo that it has been submitted in a disability complaint against him as evidence he also falls asleep on the bench. Make sure the gang is with him when he reads it. With his leaky bladder after dozing for years at boring squabblers, he'll do it in his pampers laughing!

DISTRICT JUDGE NICKY

You'r too thoughtful! You genius!

CHIEF CIRCUIT JUDGE GABRIELLI

Listen, Nicky. About your cottage by the lake. Perhaps one day…

DISTRICT JUDGE NICKY

Say not'a nother word, Gaby. Whenever you want it for you and company. Just tell me when and I'll tell the carekeeper to get it skipin' spanking. His and girlfriend are totally mute 'cause they ain't got no papers. I think their from Mexico and she from somewhere in Central America near Ecuador. They've been mine for years. The honchos that recommended my nomination use them every time…I mean the cottage for fundraising for state judges…and other things too. I let them, just a little thank you to friends…

Blank