

Table of Contact Information About News Media and Journalists

by Dr. Richard Cordero, Esq.

DrRCordero-collaboration@Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org

The information on this Table is intended for submitting to news media and journalists press releases concerning judicial discipline reform events.

One such current event is the drafting in self-interest by federal judges of procedural rules that will enable them to continue dismissing systematically all misconduct complaints filed against them. This is borne out by the official statistics, which show that during the 10-year period 1997-2006, there were filed 7,462 judicial misconduct complaints with federal judges, who disciplined only 9 of their peers! http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/judicial_complaints/letter&graphs_revised_rules.pdf.

By dismissing 99.88% of all complaints, these judges have allowed themselves to engage with no fear of any adverse consequences in misconduct, such as bias, abuse of power, conflict of interests, prejudice, bribery, undue delay, etc. The resulting sense of impunity has only bred arrogant self-confidence to engage in ever more blatant abusive and corrupt conduct. Cf. http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/judicial_complaints/DrCordero_revised_rules.pdf.

You can participate in the collaborative effort to add entries to this Table. To this end, this file has been saved in Word and is fully editable. To identify easily the new entries, add them in Arial Black 11. Then email the Table to Dr. Cordero, who will keep adding received new entries to the master Table and make it available through http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/judicial_complaints/media_contact_info.doc (also ...info.pdf).

You can see the equivalent Table of Contact Information About U.S. Senators that he prepared and has made available at http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/judicial_complaints/Senate_contact_info.pdf.

A similar collaborative effort is being undertaken to produce the Table of Contact Information About the Members of the U.S. House of Representatives, based on a template of Dr. Cordero that is kept at http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/judicial_complaints/HR_contact_info.doc (also ...info.pdf).

A useful portal address for finding media contact information is http://www.blackmesais.org/major_media_contacts.htm#Major.

The web addresses listed below can be used to find the fax numbers and email addresses or webforms on the Contact Us webpages of the respective entries in the Media & Journalists column.

You can use the fax numbers to fax to a media outlet or a journalist the current one-page newsrelease, such as that found at <http://Judicial-Discipline-Reform.org/retrieve-file/current-newsrelease.pdf>.

You can also copy the newsrelease's titles, byline, and text with links and paste them either in the body of an email to them or in the email box of their email webforms.

Helping to disseminate the newsrelease makes it more likely that news media and journalists will become aware of and cover events in the judiciary that judges have an interest in, and the means of, keeping out of public view because they constitute violations of their oath of office (28 U.S.C. §453) to “administer justice without respect to persons, and do equal right to the poor and to the rich” and to their peers and to the public.

III. Email Addresses of Media and Journalists for Use in Email Lists or Groups, in Sets of 100

1. There are several ways in which the addresses in any set below can be used. The simplest is to copy a set of addresses and paste it in the address bar of an email window, that is, the “To:” line; fill out the From: and Subject: line, write or paste the text of the email in the message box, and send the email. If your email program does not accept as many addresses or characters as there are in a set, copy fewer addresses than those in a set and paste them in the address bar until by trial and error you succeed in sending the email.
2. A more efficient way of emailing simultaneously to many addresses is to turn them –whether those in less or more than one set- into an email list or group. In either case, the sender only places in the address bar the name of the list or group, completes the other parts of the email, and sends it, whereby the email program receives an instruction to send the email to every member of the list or group.
3. The list is the optimal solution because the addressees do not see anywhere in the email the addresses to which the email in question was sent. Some people who see that the email that they received was sent to many others may consider it spam and either detract from its seriousness or importance and even not read it at all.
4. In the case of a group, one of its constituent addresses appear in the To: line and another in the cc: line, at the end of which there appears the link “More”; by clicking it the cc: line expands and reveals all the other addresses in the group.
5. Some email programs limit the number of addresses in a list to 100 or even fewer; the limit may be in terms of number of characters. By contrast, if a program offers the option of creating lists, it may allow each to contain up to a 1,000 or even more addresses.
6. In some email programs, the name of an email list or group can only contain lower case letters or numbers, but neither spaces nor symbols.
7. Depending on the limits imposed by your email program on the number of addresses in either an e-mail list or a group, two or more sets can be joined in order to reduce the number of lists or groups and, consequently, the number of individual emails that must be sent so that all the addresses are emailed to.
8. When creating a list or group, your email program may allow you simply to select a set below and paste it in the appropriate box when required.
9. If you need to separate the addresses into paragraphs with the ¶ paragraph mark at the end of each address so that each address is in its own line, do the following:
 - a. Select the set.
 - b. Press Ctl+F to bring up the Find window.
 - c. In the “Find what:” line insert the paragraph mark, i.e. ^p.
 - d. In the “Replace with:” line insert a comma.
 - e. Click “Replace All”.
10. However, some email programs allow the creation of lists or groups only by importing the addresses in a certain format, the most popular of which is the Comma Separated Value format, i.e., *.csv, where * stands for the particular name of the file and .csv is the file extension that identifies the type of file. Hence, the addresses here are the values.
11. The addresses in the sets below are separated by commas to facilitate their use in creating a .csv file. If you need the addresses to be separated into paragraphs to create a .csv file, follow the instructions in ¶9 above.

12. To turn a set below into a .csv file, regardless of whether its addresses must be separated by commas or into paragraphs, follow these steps:
- a. Go to Start>All Programs>Accessories> double click on Notepad.
 - b. In the Notepad window that opens, paste a set of addresses, whether separated by commas or into paragraphs.
 - c. If your email program allows the creation of lists or groups with more than 100 addresses, or you are merely importing all the addresses below into you're an address book, you may paste more than one set into the same Notepad. Make sure that the last address of a set and the first one of another are separate by a comma and have no space between the,
 - d. Go to File>Save As to bring up the Save As window.
 - e. In the Save in: line browse to a certain and easily accessible folder.
 - f. In the File name: line *.txt appears. Replace * with mediajournalists#, where # stands for the corresponding number of the set. Click Save.
 - g. Go to the folder where you saved Notepad mediajournalists#.
 - h. Select the mediajournalists# icon with a left click>Rename, and erase the .txt extension and replace it with .csv, making sure that the . dot is immediately before csv.
 - i. If you do not see the .txt extension in the name of the mediajournalists# icon, open any folder, click Tools in the menu bar>Folders Options>View> and uncheck Hide extensions for known file types>Apply>Ok.
 - j. A warning will come up stating that changing the extension of a file may cause it not to work properly. Ignore it and click Yes. The result is an Excel .csv file, which is the standard for importing the content of an address book into another address book, such as Outlook.
 - k. Follow the instructions of your email program for creating a list or a group, which may include importing the .csv file into either. Otherwise, select the addresses from your address book and create a list or group.
